MICHIGAN FEDERATION OF LABOR SEEKS WAY TO AID COPPER MEN

Meets at Lansing; Will Not Talk of General Strike.

Tanner Flays Ferris, Grand Jury and Citizens' Alliance.

Gompers to Explain A. F. of L. Policy—Shaw Resents Probe.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The house committee considering plans for an investigation of the Michigan and Colorado strikes decided today that the investigators shall leave the capital Monday.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 29.—Labor leaders of Michigan holding official positions in almost every vocation affiliated with the Michigan State Federation of Labor, united their forces in a conference at the state capitol today, to decide upon a plan for raising funds to assist the striking copper miners of the Calumet region in continuing the industrial war which has been waged since last July.

Executive officials of the state federation authorized a statement denying a rumor that the conference might consider the advisability of recommending a state-wide strike. It was said practically all of the delegates were opposed to such action, and it was not expected that any delegate would bring the matter up, even for informal discussion.

Dear Labor Leaders.

Although Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, were not able to attend the conference, several labor officials of national prominence were expected to deliver addresses. Among them were John H. Walker, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor; Charles H. Tanner, auditor of the Western Federation of Miners, who was deported from the Copper country with Moyer; John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and Dan Sullivan, president of

TWO RURAL CREDIT BILLS INTRODUCED

Would Establish Federal Bureau of Farm Loan Banks.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Administration rural credit bills were introduced simultaneously in the senate and house today by Senator Fletcher of Florida and Representative Moss of Indiana, members of the commission President Wilson sent abroad last summer to study the foreign systems. The bills were for long term farm loans. Bills for short term loans will be introduced later. The introduction was a sequel to yesterday's conference at the White House.

The measures would establish in the treasury department a bureau of farm loan banks under the direction of a commissioner, and make provision for the formation of such banks in any state, under Federal charter and Federal inspection.

DEMAND $41,900,000 WITHIN FIVE DAYS

Wabash Road Bondholders Seek for Foreclosure Decree.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 29.—A conference between the receivers and bondholders of the Wabash railroad was begun in the chambers of the United States circuit court here today, and was looked upon by local financers as the "beginning of the end" of the road's receivership.

Lawrence Greer and George Murray, representing the Equitable Trust company of New York City, the largest bondholders of the railroad—submitted to Federal Judge Adams a form of foreclosure decree which, if granted, will order the sale of the Wabash properties at auction unless the $41,000,000 mortgage against the road held by the Equitable company is paid within five days.

Conference Not Public.

The conference was not public and the plans for reorganizing the railroad, which has been in the hands of receivers since December, 1911, have not been announced.

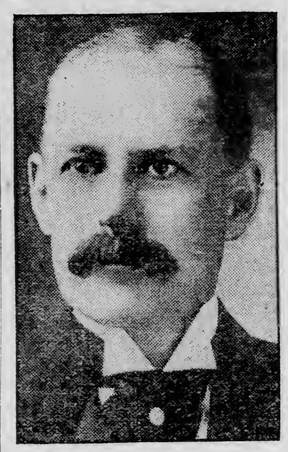

The Wabash was put into the hands of receivers on complaint of the Westinghouse Airbrake company, which had a claim of $18,000 against the road. Later the Equitable company filed suit, asking a foreclosure.

SAYS MEN NEGLECT SONS TO GET RICH

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 29.—"For all the money spent to improve our wheat, our cattle and our business industries, hardly a dollar is laid aside to assist the boy who has been handicapped for want of proper parental care," said Governor George H. Hodges of Kansas, addressing today's session of the annual convention of the Southwestern Lumbermen's association on the topic "Father and Son." Governor Hodges made a plea for a closer relationship between parent and child.

"Our country is money-mad," he said. "In our efforts to accumulate wealth we neglect the duties we owe our future citizens, the small boys."

CHINA'S PRESIDENT MUST BE CONFUCIAN

WHAT WILL SAVING BE?

How State Expenses May Be Reduced By Efficiency Commission.

Forestry Department Cited as One Example of the Possibilities.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—How much will the efficiency commission save per annum?

Well, that is getting a little ahead of the story. The efficiency commission has not yet prepared any report and when it does there will still be the legislature.

However—

In the last session of the legislature the committee on public accounts prepared a series of bills by which it was computed the state could save $185,000 a year in administrative expense. Six thousand dollars a day. Of course, that isn't much but it would help some. The committee on public accounts did not pretend to cover the field. That was their calculation from a jab here and there. A thorough reorganization should accomplish a good deal more.

But the amount saved by not spending it is only one side of economy.

The Forestry Department.

Take as a concrete example the forestry department. In 1910 the forestry department consisted largely of a brave old gentleman in the state capitol, a stenographer and an indefinite army of fire fighters. The organization beyond that was very slight. The department was spending $8,500 a year for regular organization and was allowed $16,000 more for emergency.

That was a very hard season. It was in October that year the Baudette fire swept the border. Town supervisors were calling out crews all through the season to protect their homes. And the bills which rolled in upon the legislature the next winter came to more than $100,000. That is apart from the

WILSON WEARS THE M'KINLEY FLOWER

Murdered President Is Generally Remembered at National Capital.

PLEADS WITH RUSSIA TO STOP DRUNKENNESS

COUNT SERGIUS WITTE.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 29.—The council of the empire was startled by a dramatic appeal yesterday from Count Sergius Witte, the former premier, to stop the consumption of spirits, which he declared was leading Russia to ruin.

The council of the empire recently was occupied with the discussion of a bill aimed at the suppression of inebriety. Count Witte contends that his successors, with the ministry of finance, have misapplied the spirit monopoly which he created. His aim, he said, was to suppress drunkenness. Instead of doing this, they have built an enormous cash reserve for the country's defense and have only spent a small amount on national education.

Count Witte said that the means for defending the country must not be collected through the cultivation of a national weakness. During the discussion Count Witte exclaimed:

"Help correct the mistakes which Witte made, mistakes which are leading Russia to her ruin."

He added that if he had the right of access, he would beg the emperor, without waiting for the decision of the council or the duma, to issue a ukase in the interest of the health of the people, limiting the revenues of the spirit monopoly and devoting the surplus to fighting the vice and drunkenness.

MAY STRIP HARVARD YARD OF ITS ELMS

Corporation Hears Report on Diseased Condition of Trees.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 29.—The Harvard yard will lose all its ancient elms, if the corporation follows the recommendation made by Guy Lowell of New York in a special report today. Mr. Lowell has been investigating damage to the elms by a fungus growth. He recommended that every tree in the yard be cut down, including elms planted within a few years to replace damaged ones.

STEAMER GOES BACK TO PORT FOR REPAIRS.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 29.—The bursting of a low pressure cylinder on board the Scandinavian-American liner United States, while on her voyage to New York today, forced the captain to turn back to Glasgow for repairs. The vessel left here Jan. 26, and has 234 passengers on board. She broke down 200 miles to the west of Scotland. The passengers are to be transferred to another steamer at Glasgow, whence they will proceed to New York.

MERCURY HAS BAD TUMBLE

Goes Down From 40 to 50 Degrees in the Southwest.

North Dakota Gets Blizzard and Sub-Zero Temperature.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 29.—A drop of 40 to 50 degrees below yesterday's maximum temperatures was shown throughout Western Missouri, Kansas and Northern Oklahoma today. A 25-degree drop was registered in Northern Texas. A sharp north wind, blowing in some regions as high as 35 miles an hour, accompanied the lower temperatures.

The lowest temperature in the four states reporting to the local United States weather bureau was 16 degrees above zero at Concordia, Kan. It was 20 degrees here, 18 at St. Joseph, Mo., and 30 at Oklahoma City.

Blizzard in North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A severe blizzard raged throughout the central, western and northern parts of North Dakota all last night, causing great suffering to livestock. Thermometers here showed a drop of 44 degrees in the last twenty-four hours, registering this morning 14 below zero, the coldest of the winter.

Fell 49 Degrees.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 29.—The mercury at 7 o'clock this morning stood at 8 degrees above zero, a fall of 49 degrees since 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A high northwest wind was blowing.

Gets Into Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—The thin edge of the cold wave in the Missouri valley touched Chicago at noon today and a drop of 50 degrees from last night's spring-like mark of 60 was officially forecasted. During the forenoon the mercury receded to 40 degrees.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR CULLOM

Washington, Jan. 29.—After a brief funeral services at his home here, the body of Former Senator Shelby M. Cullom was started for Springfield, Ill., on a train leaving at 11:45 a. m. After funeral services, during which his body will lie in the Illinois state house, he will be buried there.

Dr. Charles Wood, a Presbyterian clergyman and a close friend of the former senator, was telling today how Mr. Cullom had changed his belief in eternity after writing his memoirs. The former senator concluded that work with an expression of doubt that he had found anything in his reading of the Scriptures to warrant belief in a hereafter.

"In the last few months his feelings changed completely," said Dr. Wood. "He told me he believed in God and Christ and immortality, and added:

"'I want to make at the first opportunity a statement of my simple creed to be inserted after the last chapter of my recollections, to correct the doubt expressed on a dark day when the light was dim.'"

LONDON FINANCIERS WOULD FORCE ACTION BY U. S. IN MEXICO

RETURNS SUDDENLY TO HOME IN NEW YORK

CHARLES B. STOVER.

New York, Jan. 29—Charles B. Stover, former park commissioner, who left town last October without announcing he was going, and for whom a country-wide search was made for many weeks by his friends through the police and with the aid of his picture thrown on moving picture screens, returned as unexpectedly to his home here last night. Newspaper reports had him found in various cities after his departure, while Mr. Stover maintained a silence for more than six weeks, but finally sent in his resignation, from Cincinnati, to Adolph L. Kline, then mayor.

Mr. Stover said that he had enjoyed his vacation very much. He had been in nearly every important city in the South, he said, and had made an exhaustive study of parks and general municipal conditions.

BAKER'S BANK JOINS THE RESERVE SYSTEM.

Wilson's Policy Is Criticized By Pall Mall Gazette.

Washington May Soon Lift Embargo on Arms to Rebels.

Villa Denies He Has Any Personal Ambitions.

London, Jan. 29.—The relations of the United States with Great Britain in regard to the Panama canal tolls; the controversy between Washington and Tokio over the California land ownership legislation, and President Wilson's policy toward Mexico are the subjects of lengthy dispatches today from British newspaper correspondents in Washington, but there is a singular lack of editorial comment on these questions.

The Pall Mall Gazette is the only newspaper to mention Mexico editorially. It says:

"President Wilson has laid himself open to a charge of having chalked up 'No Huerta' and then run away. It is a position that becomes worse for the prestige of the Washington government every day on which nothing happens."

Financiers Impatient.

Financiers here interested in Mexico are becoming impatient at the lack of action shown by President Wilson. A meeting of the Mexican section of the London Chamber of Commerce is to be called shortly to discuss the replies to a circular recently sent out to its members asking them for their views "as to whether it would be advisable for Great Britain to join with France and Germany in asking President Wilson to take some steps to adjust the financial position of Mexico."

The summons sent to Sir Lionel Garden, British minister to Mexico, to come to London for a conference has created no surprise here, as it was announced on Jan. 5 that this would be the first step toward his transfer to Brazil. The six months for which he was appointed to Mexico expire in February. Thomas B. Hohler, as first secretary of legation in Mexico, will naturally act as charge d'affaires until the successor of Sir Lionel Carden is definitely appointed, which will occur after his transfer to Rio de Janeiro.

Charles Murray Marling, now counsellor of embassy at Constantinople, is still the only diplomat in view for the appointment, although it is understood that he is disinclined to go to Mexico.

SAYS MILLIONAIRE IS HELD FOR RANSOM

Anonymous Writer Would Explain Clark's Disappearance.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 29.—According to an anonymous letter received by a morning paper, Francis Lewis Clark, the Spokane millionaire, is being held for ransom of $75,000 by "blackmailers" in or near this city. Clark disappeared from Santa Barbara Jan. 17 after seeing his wife off on a train, and was thought to have committed suicide by throwing himself into the ocean.

Handwriting experts who examined the anonymous letter today asserted that part of the letter was written by a woman and part by a man.

The postal authorities were asked to assist in tracing the sender of the message. Mrs. Clark, who is in Paso Robles, is awaiting anxiously a reply to her request for further information regarding the alleged kidnaping.

GOETHALS NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR OF CANAL ZONE

Will Accept Unconditionally, Secretary Garrison Says.

Salary May Be Made $15,000 While He Holds Place.

Washington, Jan. 29.—President Wilson sent to the senate today the nomination of Col. George W. Goethals to be governor of the Panama canal zone after April 1.

As chairman of the Isthmian canal commission, Col. Goethals now is paid $15,000 a year. The Panama canal act fixes the salary of the governor at $10,000. Representative Britten today introduced a bill to amend the law to make the salary of the governor $15,000 so long as Col. Goethals holds the office.

Secretary Garrison announced today that Col. George W. Goethals had signified his intention of accepting the governorship of the Panama canal zone, to be proffered him by President Wilson. Mr. Garrison intimated that Col. Goethals' acceptance was unqualified.

"I am not able to give out the terms of Col. Goethals' acceptance at the present time," said Secretary Garrison, "but it was whole and complete. I probably shall be able later to make an interesting statement."

Two firemen were injured by a falling wall. The fire necessitated the closing of the city's electric light and power plant.

Minnesotans Take Part in Meeting at Madison, Wis.

Northern Wisconsin Methods Are Detailed at Length.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 29.—Citizens of cities of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa told the Wisconsin country life conference today of ways they had used in uniting village or city and country. Peake of Fond du Lac, Wis.; Secretary G. F. Teranne of Clinton, Iowa, and Editor L. J. Boughner of Minneapolis, Minn.

Editor Nye, describing the Wittenberg way, said his town's success was due to corn, grain and vegetable contests, ending up with a minstrel show, free to all, which drew hundreds of farmers for miles around. Institutes and lectures also helped.

HOLDS TRUST BILL HEARING

House Judiciary Committee Begins Its Public Work.

Representative Stanley Would Prohibit All Trade Restraint.

Washington, Jan. 29.—First public hearings on the new trust bills were begun today before the house judiciary committee. The bill defining restraint of trade prohibited by the Sherman law was taken up.

Representative Stanley, who has introduced a bill making every restraint of trade whether "reasonable or unreasonable," a violation of law, made a long argument for clearing up the "twilight zone." He contended that prior to the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases the supreme court had repeatedly held that it was outside of its province to determine whether a restraint was "due or undue, reasonable or unreasonable," and declared that in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases the "reasonable and unreasonable" feature of the decisions was merely incidental.

"The only act that can be effective," said Mr. Stanley, "is an absolute prohibition of all restraints of trade."

Says Rheumatism Yields to The Great Kidney Remedy

I have been troubled with rheumatism for the last five years. Suffered with much pain in the limbs, back and feet and my joints have been badly swollen. Also suffered from constipation. Besides having a regular physician, I had tried every remedy without receiving the least benefit until I accidentally came across a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I began taking it, never thinking it would help me, but must acknowledge it has done wonders for me. Have taken more than a dozen bottles and feel that it has been a God-send to me. I am recommending it to all my friends.

Yours very truly,

ECCENTRIC ST. LOUIS GIRL SUES FATHER

MRS. VIOLET BOGY MOSELY.

Violet Bogy Mosely is suing her father, Bernard F. Bogy of St. Louis, for an accounting of her mother's estate. Bogy belongs to one of the old French families of St. Louis. The Bogys were always noted for eccentricity. Bogy runs a cigar store. His daughter, Violet, is apparently as eccentric as any of her father's family, and she wants money with which to live a "bohemian" life. Hence she has demanded $250 a month allowance from her mother's estate while her father is giving her only $125. Mrs. Josephine Bogy, the mother of Bernie Bogy, has testified that her daughter-in-law lived in one of the best residential districts of New York and did not need any more money except to squander it.

GROCERY IS BURGLARIZED

Marauders Are Evidently Juveniles---Fun With Cash Register.

Burglars broke into the grocery store of Johnson & Jermsted, 501 North Fifty-eighth avenues west, early last night and stole about $2 in pennies, as well as a quantity of tobacco, cigars, candies, gum and fruit. An attempt had also been made to get into the safe, but in this the burglars were unsuccessful.

The burglars smashed a window leading to the coal bin and from there worked their way through a hole in the wall to the cellar and later into the main store. It is the opinion of J. O. Johnson, owner of the store, and Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth police station, that the burglary was committed by boys who are acquainted with the surroundings.

The cash register was rifled of about $2 worth of pennies. The intruders also spent considerable time in ringing up $197 on the register, evidently not being afraid of being disturbed. About $20 worth of cigars in boxes, several cartons of smoking and chewing tobacco, as well as a large quantity of gum and candies were taken.

Lieut. Wilcox has the name of several boys, some of who, it is believed, know of the affair, and is pursuing an investigation. It is probable that some arrests may be made before this evening.

It is the opinion that there were three or four in the party who entered the store. One of the number made the entry through the coal hole and after getting inside opened the door for the others. The police are of the opinion that the perpetrators of this robbery may also have been implicated in the recent burglaries of Johnson Bros.' store on Central avenue and the store at 5528 Grand avenue.

A. F. ROCKWELL HURT.

Struck By Runaway Horse and Severely Injured Internally.

A. F. Rockwell, 405 North Central avenue, was seriously injured shortly before 10 o'clock this morning by being run down by a runaway horse while he was walking along Central avenue. The injuries are believed to be largely internal.

A horse, whose ownership is not definitely known, came down the street on a run. Attached to it was a pair of shafts evidently torn loose from a cutter. The horse left the center of the street for the sidewalk when crossing the Northern Pacific tracks and followed the sidewalk until it struck Mr. Rockwell in front of his brother's shoe store, 325 North Central avenue.

Mr. Rockwell was walking in the same direction taken by the horse and being heavily bundled with wraps, owing to the cold weather, did not hear the approach of the horse. The shafts struck him in the back and knocked him to the sidewalk. Several citizens rushed to his assistance and after taking him to Erickson's drug store where temporary treatment was given, he was removed to his home. The extent of his injuries is unknown as yet but it is thought that no bones are broken.

AMERICAN WIDOW TO EXPLORE IN THIBET

—Copyright by George Grantham Bain.

EULALIE LEPRIETO CAMPBELL

Eulalie Leprieto Campbell is a dashing young widow of Elizabeth, N. J., who is going to seek the interior of Thibet at the head of an exploring expedition. Mrs. Campbell has traveled much in the far places of the earth, but she has not yet been in Thibet. She has no fear of the fate of Savage Landor, who said that the natives of Thibet tortured him when he attempted to penetrate their country. At that time, so far as is known, no white man had ever penetrated to Lhassa, the capital of the country. Since Landor's expedition a military expedition under an English commander has been in Lhassa. Mrs. Campbell is going to make her trip, she says, in an automobile. She will travel in a light car and have a heavier car to carry the commissary stores and gasoline. Her supplies of food, she says, are already on the way to the interior. She will sail during the coming week for Europe en route to Thibet. Mrs. Campbell has several fads besides travel. She is a comparative philologist and she also takes delight in a kennel of thirty-five Pekingese of high degree. She has written books about her travels and will record what she finds in Thibet.

WIDOW'S DEATH BEING PROBED.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 29.—An investigation was begun by Coroner John J. Phelan today of the death of Mrs. Hannah A. Cross at her home here last November, under conditions which, it is now alleged, were suspicious.

Mrs. Cross, who was the widow of a New York jeweler, came here from Montclair, N. J., a few months before her death. It has been alleged that death was due to an overdose of an opiate.

ANOTHER STEP IN OCEAN RATE WAR.

London, Jan. 29.—There was a fresh development today in the trans-Atlantic steamship rate war recently begun by the German lines, when the Anchor line announced its intention of starting a service between Queenstown and Boston. This step is meant to counter the project of the Hamburg-American line to run a service between the same ports, and also as a reply to the German lines' entry into the Canadian traffic.

JAPAN WORRYING OVER FUTURE LAWS

Hope for Understanding as to Asiatics in America.

Tokio, Jan. 29.—Hopes are expressed in official circles here today that a basis of understanding on the Californian alien land ownership question will be found by the Japanese and United States governments, which are both seeking a solution.

The chief concern at present seems to be in regard to future legislation in America, and it is said any additional enactments unfavorable to Japanese would be considered a serious menace to the traditional friendship of the two countries.

The government at Washington has endeavored to assure Japan that the state of California would cease adopting legislation held by Japan to be discriminatory. This is admitted here, but it is pointed out that owing to the political distinctions between the governments of Washington and California there might be some difficulty in obtaining reasonable assurance for the future.

Women clerks in the forestry department of California will hereafter receive the same wages as the men clerks.

The fellow with the big tough muscles, who can chop trees all day and lift the butt end of a hard log, is a hearty liver in everything he tackles. He likes his tobacco rich, mellow and full of natural flavor, good for both smoking and chewing. He uses because it's got the right stuff in it.

PEERLESS
Long Cut Tobacco

Satisfaction—for a sturdy man—can come from real tobacco only. Insipid mixtures don't appeal to a man with real tobacco hunger.

PEERLESS is pure Southern Kentucky leaf, with the "body" for a real smoke or chew, yet rich and pleasing. It takes three to five years to age the tobacco in PEERLESS; the process can't be hurried. That's the reason PEERLESS is so ripe and mellow.

PEERLESS will "make good" the first time you smoke or chew it. But if you want to prove that PEERLESS satisfaction isn't a "flash in the pan" give PEERLESS a week's trial. Then you'll know that PEERLESS always satisfies, and you'll always keep on using it. Sold everywhere in 5c packages.

Decision in Butter and Egg Case Will Be Far Reaching.

Railroads Must Not Be Permitted to Throttle Water Competition.

Copies of the interstate commerce commission's decision in the Duluth butter and egg case received yesterday afternoon by G. Roy Hall, traffic commissioner, the Bridgeman-Russell company and the Northern Cold Storage & Warehouse company go to show that it was much more sweepingly in favor of the protestants than was indicated in the original announcement.

The contention of the Bridgeman-Russell company, represented by Francis W. Sullivan, and of G. Roy Hall, representing the tariff commission of the Duluth Commercial club, are upheld in every particular, and the boat lines are ordered to provide refrigerator service for the transportation of butter, eggs and poultry from Duluth to the lower lake ports.

Referring to the contention by the Duluth interests that the lake lines are controlled by the trunk railroads, and that the reason of the refusal of the former to provide facilities for the handling of butter and eggs, is that it is consequently to their common advantage to keep the traffic entirely on the rails, where it pays a much higher rate in the main than on the lake and rail route, the commission makes the following pertinent deductions: "While this proposition cannot be categorically established and its nature is open to argument, we think a general knowledge of the situation points towards its correctness. Can there be any serious doubt that if boats independent of all-rail influence were plying between the Head of the Lakes and Erie and other ports, they would compete intensely for the rich paige of the dairy traffic of the Northwest? Would it be conceivable that independent boats would co-operate in keeping this traffic off the lakes? On the contrary it must be apparent that they would struggle to secure it.

Value of Lake Traffic.

"Nor are we impressed with the contention that if this commission should compel the respondent to carry these commodities, the all-rail carriers would meet this competition, the implication being that 'meeting the competition' means the destruction of the lake traffic. The people of the United States have expended many millions of dollars in improving and safeguarding navigation on the Great Lakes. The railroads should not be permitted to make it useless nor the boat lines allowed to shirk the public duty which their use and enjoyment of these privileges imposes upon them.

"While there doubtless are articles which these respondents should not be forced to carry, butter, eggs and poultry do not fall within that class. The possible volume of traffic may not justify the installation of proper refrigerator equipment on all boats, but we believe it fully justifies the experimental equipment of some of them. It has been suggested that such experiment might be made with the three passenger boats of the Anchor line which now operate regularly on published schedule. It would also seem possible that such experiment might be made by equipping a few of the boats of each of the lines serving Lake Superior and Lake Michigan ports to operate under an arrangement of regular alternate sailings from ports of each lake so as to permit of the service of one boat on as many consecutive days or with as brief delays between sailings as possible. We shall not attempt to lay down a definite plan believing that this may be better left for consultation and arrangement between the operating officers of the lines concerned in conference with other interested parties. Such plans may be submitted to the commission. There is good reason to believe that the boats so equipped will find the business more profitable than what they now carry in the same space.

"It is our judgment and determination that the request of protestants made upon the respondents to provide transportation for butter eggs and poultry is reasonable and that their refusal to provide such transportation in the past was unduly prejudicial and disadvantageous to the particular description of traffic involved in these proceedings."

The commission also intimates that while it has taken no cognizance in its decision of the reasonableness of the rates herctofore applying to this traffic, the order is entered without prejudice to such further action, if any, as may seem advisable in the future.

SAY COMPETITION EXISTS IN SUGAR

Wholesale Grocers of New York Testify in Trust Case.

New York, Jan. 29.—Up-state wholesale grocers testified for the defense yesterday in the government's suit to dissolve the American Sugar Refining company under the Sherman anti-trust law. They told of prices paid various refineries for sugar, and said competition had been keen, and is keen today.

The defense sought to establish that for six years the grocery trade sometimes purchased of rival refineries because these competitors fixed a scale of cheaper prices which the American company did not always meet.

Thomas R. Ward, Jr., of Albany testified that a cut of 5 cents per 100 pounds would throw business to the refiner making the cut. Only 20 per cent of his business goes to the American company, he said; in 1913 it was 20 per cent; 1912, 16 per cent, and 1911, 11 per cent. Another company often got his trade through quoting lower prices, he said.

H. R. Wright of Albany testified that from 1908 to 1913, inclusive of 60,800 barrels of sugar, his firm purchased only 3,700 from the defendant's refiner.

Eugene B. Harthe of Albany and David C. Murray of Utica testified that there was competition.

PROGRAM FOR FREE CONCERT

Miss Linehan Will Be Soloist and J. H. Hearding Will Speak.

The soloist at the free concert at the Masonic temple next Sunday will be Miss Margaret Linehan, soprano, who will sing three numbers. Among the organ selections will be Tschaikowsky's "Marche Slav," one of the most interesting of that great composer's works.

During the war between Turkey and Servia in 1876 Nicholas Rubinstein planned a concert for the relief of the wounded soldiers, and for this affair Tschaikowsky, alive with patriotism, wrote this march. It commences with a somewhat gloomy but impressive minor theme, which works up to a thrilling climax. In the finale the Russian national anthem is heard.

There will also be two movements from Haydn's Sonata No. 1, a caprice by Tershak, a Bohemian composer, and virtuoso on the flute, who wrote mainly for his favorite instrument, and a popular medley of English folk songs.

The speaker will be John H. Hearding, who will give a short talk on the "Iron Mines of Northern Minnesota."

YOUNGEST GAYNOR GIRL IS MARRIED

Sixteen-Year-Old Becomes Bride of Youth of Twenty-Three.

New York, Jan. 29.—Sixteen-year-old Marion Gaynor, fourth and youngest daughter of the late mayor, William J. Gaynor, was married here yesterday to Ralph Heywood Isham, son of Henry Heywood Isham, New Jersey capitalist and president of the Marietta, Columbus & Cleveland railroad.

The wedding came as a surprise to friends of the family, but it was fully explained that no formal announcement of the engagement had been made because of the recent death of the city's executive. For the same reason, only members of the family were present. City officials were among the guests at a reception later in the day.

Mother Obtained License.

Owing to the youth of the bride, the license was obtained by her mother, whose consent to the marriage was necessary. Mrs. Gaynor motored to the Brooklyn Borough hall and took the license to the Gaynor family home, where Miss Gaynor and Mr. Isham signed it.

Mr. Isham, who is 23 years old, spent a year at Yale and then traveled abroad. He returned recently to manage some of his father's interests. He is a descendant of Jonathan Trumbull, first governor of Connecticut.

As Miss Gaynor, Mrs. Isham drove an automobile and was several times a winner of blue ribbons at horse shows at Belmont park and Madison Square Garden. Mr. and Mrs. Isham will leave today for Santa Barbara, Cal., where the elder Isham is ill.

FORMER CLERK DIES WORTH MANY MILLION

British Subject Owned Island Belonging to America.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 29.—William G. Irwin, 76, multi-millionaire sugar planter of Honolulu, died here yesterday. Irwin owned the entire island of Lanai of the Hawaiian group. He bought it five years ago from Charles Gay for $1. Though a British subject, he was master of an American region of 139 square miles, with a population of 600. The purchase caused threats of international complications, but the United States supreme court upheld his title.

His career was one of the most picturesque of the capitalists of the Pacific coast. From a clerk in Hawaii he became a magnate with a fortune estimated as running into the tens of millions. His home in Honolulu is one of the most magnificent in the island city.

OVER $2,000,000 CUT OFF THE INDIAN BILL

Measure as Reported to House Carries Only $9,609,737.

Washington, Jan. 29.—With the estimates of the interior department reduced by $2,165,127, the annual Indian appropriation bill has been reported to the house carrying $9,609,737. Chairman Stephenson of the Indian affairs committee announced that an omnibus claims bill would be presented later to pay various claims, including those eliminated from the general appropriations measure.

The report said many items in the bill had been reduced, particularly those for non-reservation schools.

Appropriations are carried for building hospitals on Indian reservations for the treatment of tuberculosis, trachoma and other diseases.

EXPORTS INCREASE; IMPORTS DECREASE.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Exports from the United States during the calendar year 1913 were more than 3.5 per cent greater than in 1912, while imports were 1.4 per cent less, as shown by figures made public by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The excess of exports over imports in 1913 was $692,127,531, against $581,144,938 in the year previous. This excess was larger than in any preceding calendar year since 1908.

BITTERNESS IN ATTORNEYS' FIGHT

De La Motte Disbarment Proceedings Have Aftermath in Court.

Bitterness has developed in the De La Motte-Reynolds lawsuit, a fight between attorneys for certain fees in connection with some of the old White Iron Lake fire cases.

In district court yesterday, Mr. De La Motte, represented by Harold Harris, a St. Paul attorney, filed a reply to Mr. Reynolds' answer to his suit to recover money alleged to be due as attorneys' fees in certain cases turned over to Mr. Reynolds.

In the papers filed yesterday, Mr. De La Motte, who has been disbarred from the Minnesota courts for one year, declares that he was tricked and deceived by Mr. Reynolds. He claims that after he had retained Mr. Reynolds to represent him at the disbarment proceedings Mr. Reynolds failed to show up when the testimony was taken before a referee.

Wisconsin Man Recovers $423 for Team and Harness.

In a replevin action brought in Judge Bert Fesler's division of the district court, T. W. Jay was awarded judgment for $423 against Michael W. Willette and Erasmus G. Kreidler by the jury yesterday afternoon.

The suit was brought to recover possession of a team and a set of harness, which he claimed were being unlawfully held from his possession. If possession could not be had he asked for the equivalent in cash, which he figured at $622.50. The lawsuit involved a dispute over a chattel mortgage. Jay resides at Brule, Wis.

COLLECTING DATA ON ELEVATORS

U. S. Consuls Make Interesting Investigations in Foreign Ports.

Some of the United States consuls at foreign ports have been collecting some valuable data concerning grain elevators in the different countries where they are located, and their reports read most interestingly. The consul at Hamburg, Germany, says that there are twenty-four floating elevators in that port for the transferring of grain from ship to warehouse. Six of them only are of bucket type and the rest are of suction type. The stevedores make their own discharging contracts with the vessel owners, and the grain company charges the stevedores 19.04 cents per ton for discharging the grain, plus wages of employes on tenders, coal, night work, etc., the aggregate coming to about 21.42 cents in all.

The pneumatic elevators in Hamburg have a capacity of 200 to 227 tons per hour, and as four or five elevators can be put to work at one time, a steamer carrying 8,000 tons of wheat, for instance, can be discharged easily and the grain weighed within twelve hours, including all stoppages for changing lighters and barges.

FIRE DESTROYS PARK POINT HOME.

Fire starting from an overheated range partially destroyed the cottage at 3547 Minnesota avenue shortly after 8 o'clock last evening. The structure was damaged to the extent of about $500, while the loss on the furniture is estimated to be $300.

Company 5 of Minnesota Point answered the alarm and when the firemen arrived on the scene, the building was in flames. Only the work of the men saved the structure from being a total loss. The cottage is owned by A. G. Brothau, but was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Selin.

Mrs. Selin, who was at home with her child, discovered the blaze and telephoned the fire department.

HOW TO SAVE YOUR EYES

Try This Free Prescription.

Do your eyes give you trouble? Do you already wear eyeglasses or spectacles? Thousands of people wear these "windows" who might easily dispense with them. You may be one of these and it is your duty to save your eyes before it is too late. The eyes are neglected more than any other organ of the entire body. After you finish your day's work you sit down and rest your muscles, but how about your eyes? Do you rest them? You know you do not. You read or do something else that keeps your eyes busy; you work your eyes until you go to bed. That is why so many have strained eyes and finally other eye troubles that threaten partial or total blindness. Eyeglasses are merely crutches; they never cure. This free prescription which has benefited the eyes of so many may work equal wonders for you. Use it a short time. Would you like your eye trouble to disappear as if by magic? Try this prescription: Go to the nearest wide-awake drug store and get a bottle of Optona tablets; fill a two-ounce bottle with water, drop in one tablet and allow to thoroughly dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. Just note how quickly your eyes clear up and how soon the inflammation will disappear. Don't be afraid to use it; it is absolutely harmless. Many who are now blind might have saved their eyes had they started to care for them in time. This is a simple treatment, but marvelously effective in multitudes of cases. Now that you have been warned, don't delay a day, but do what you can to save your eyes, and you will thank us as long as you live for publishing this prescription.

OFFICE MEN AT LUNCHEON.

W. B. Rittenhouse Tells How Appraisements of Property Are Made.

The noon luncheon idea was given a try-out yesterday by the Duluth Association of Office Men when forty members gathered at the Commercial club. Owing to the success of the luncheon a similar affair will be held every two weeks. The first forty who make application for places will be accepted. This number is the capacity of the Commercial club for such affairs.

W. B. Rittenhouse, valuation expert, who is appraising the property of the Duluth-Edison company, was the speaker yesterday. He told how valuations are made and the methods used by persons or corporations who want to make their property appear more valuable than it is.

R. W. Marshall, assistant purchasing agent for the Oliver Iron Mining company, will be speaker early in February. An effort will be made to secure President George E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota as speaker on Feb. 16, when he comes to Duluth. The entertainment committee is on the lookout for good speakers and is communicating with men of note for future speaking dates.

The fame of the Minnesota associations has spread all over the United States. President Pattinson of the Duluth association said yesterday that he had received letters from office men in New York City, Pittsburg, Pa., and Calumet, Mich.

MAYOR IS SPEAKER.

Addresses 200 Students of the Duluth Business University.

Mayor W. I. Prince gave a very interesting and instructive talk yesterday afternoon at the college room to more than 200 young men and women now attending the Duluth Business university.

In addition to his other scholastic attainments, the mayor has had a business college training, thus enabling him to speak intelligently of the worth of such training.

He dwelt particularly on the excellent opportunities offered in this part of the Northwest to ambitious young people with a business training. He commended the training given at the Duluth Business university, stating that when in business he had often employed graduates of this school whom he always found up to the mark in proficiency and competent to perform office duties. He advised the young people not to attach too much importance to money getting. "Your great aim," said he, "should be to build character and be of service to mankind to warrant your getting the greatest happiness out of life. It is necessary of course to provide for old age and for those dependent on us. Many are so engrossed in the hunt for wealth that they disqualify themselves for the real pleasures and enjoyments of life."

The mayor's talk was well received by the students, and he assured the young people that he would speak to them again.

FLOUR RATES TO ORIENT REDUCED.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 29.—Announcement is made by the trans-Pacific steamship lines operating in the Oriental trade out of North Pacific ports, that effective March 1, a reduction of $1 a ton will be made in rates on shipments of wheat and flour to the Orient. Rates to ports in Japan will be reduced from $4 to $3 a ton; from Seattle to Hong Kong and Manila, from $5 to $4 a ton; from Seattle to Shanghai, from $5.50 to $4.50 a ton.

All of the trans-Pacific steamship lines participate in the reduction, which it is explained is being made in an effort to stimulate offerings for ports in the Far West during the dull season in Orinetal shipping.

Strange uses are being found for some of the cues lately cut off in vast numbers by the Chinese. A British woolen manufacturer recently received an offer of five tons of such hair for weaving into woolen fabrics.

ATTACKS THE CASHMAN LAW

D. & N. M. Railway Alleges That New Rates Will Be Confiscatory.

Asks That State Commission Be Enjoined From Enforcing Them.

Alleging that the new Cashman distance tariff law is unconstitutional and unreasonable, as applied to it the Duluth & Northern Minnesota Railway company of Duluth this morning filed a bill of complaint with the clerk of the United States court, in an action in equity against Lyndon A. Smith, attorney general of Minnesota; Ira B. Mills, Charles F. Staples and Charles E. Elmquist, members of the Minnesota state railroad and warehouse commission; Curry & Whyte company, Scott-Graff Lumber company, and the Alger-Smith company.

The plaintiff company brings the action through its secretary, J. W. Bayly, and solicitors, Harris and Pearson, attorneys of this city.

In the bill of complaint the plaintiff company asks the United States court to enjoin the defendants, Attorney General Smith and the members of the state railroad commission, from enforcing the Cashman distance tariff law or the order recently made by the commission, which would reduce or lower the present freight rates, and enjoining the defendant companies from collecting any of the penalties from the plaintiff provided by the law.

Wants Injunction.

It also asks that all the receivers and shippers of freight in Minnesota be enjoined from attempting to make shipments over the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad under the order given out Jan. 13 by the commission and the rates described therein, or from bringing an action to recover the penalties prescribed by the Cashman law. The railroad finally prays the court that the defendants and the lumber companies be subpoenaed to appear before the court and answer the complaint, and pending the final hearing in the suit, a temporary restraining order is requested.

In its complaint the plaintiff company sets forth that it was organized in 1898 under the laws of Minnesota and that the road extends from Knife River to the boundary of Lake and Cook counties. It has in operation sixty-two and one-half miles of main line and forty and one-half miles of branch lines and spur tracks. The company is capitalized at $200,000.

Revenue Reduced.

The company claims that two orders were made last year for the reduction of rates, one by the state railroad commission and the other by the interstate commerce commission. The revenue of the system was greatly reduced, the complaint reads, and now another reduction is ordered by the state commission pursuant to the law passed by the state legislature on March 10 last. The company claims it has not been able to pay a dividend since 1905 in spite of the most economic management.

The new rates, the complaint further states, will not enable the plaintiff company to earn a fair and reasonable return on the value of its property. Should these rates be enforced, the plaintiff company claims it will be deprived of its property without due process of the law and be denied the protection of the constitution of the United States.

The Duluth & Northern Minnesota Railway company is included in the Class B railroads of the state, under the new tariff law. These roads earn more than $3,000 and less than $4,000 per mile each year, according to the findings of the state commission. The penalty prescribed for the failure to change the rates in conformity with the Cashman act and the commission's order of Jan. 13 is a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000 upon conviction for the first offense.

LOSE GOOD OPPORTUNITY

Free Spending Leaves Woodsmen Stranded in the City.

Big Wages for Piece Work, But Men Have No Tools.

The failure of a large number of workingmen to "save for a rainy day" is causing them considerable trouble with Duluth employment agents. Orders are coming in from all over Northern Minnesota for experienced men to do piece work at big wages, but in many cases a set of tools and car fare are required to cinch a job. For that reason Michigan street is pretty well crowded with idle men who are not equipped to take advantage of the opportunities offered.

"This is the best season in years for piece work in the woods," said an employment agent today. "There is little snow and the weather has been mild most of the time, making conditions pleasant in the woods. We have calls this week for any number of men to cut ties, pulpwood, posts and all kinds of piece work.

"But the trouble is the men are required in many cases to furnish their own tools, which often cost $10 to $15. Some of the contractors, however, rent tools, but where the men are required to pay their own car fare, many of them cannot get out of the city.

"Piece work is the most profitable of all employment in the woods. This work is done by contract and a man's wages are governed by the amount of work he does. An experienced workman came to Duluth the other day after working some time cutting ties, and his earnings averaged more than $5 a day.

"A lot of the men are coming in from the woods every few days, having saved up quite a big roll. As soon as they hit the city they get a spending streak, and are 'broke' in a few days. I have noticed several the last few days who came in with $60 to $70 who are now penniless. These men will go back and work for $25 to $30 a month in a logging camp, when they might make more than double that amount at piece work if they had saved a few dollars to buy tools and pay car fare."

CITY PLAN EXPERT HERE

Prof. Smith of Wisconsin University Will Speak at City Hall.

Is Surveying City and Will Pass on Specifications.

Prof. L. S. Smith, director of the highway division of the University of Wisconsin, who will pass upon the specifications of the engineering department for street improvements and sidewalk and sewer construction, reached the city this morning.

After a discussion of the general situation with Commissioner Murchison, City Engineer John Wilson and Secretary Futter, he left the city hall to make a survey of the city. Prof. Smith wished to get an accurate idea of local conditions before passing upon the specifications.

This evening he will deliver an interesting talk in the council chambers at the city hall upon the construction, maintenance and repair of roads and pavements. He has exhibits which have been gathered in all parts of the world. Judging from the inquiries which have reached him, Secretary Futter said this morning that he was afraid the council chambers would be too small to accommodate the crowd that will attend.

Tomorrow night Prof. Smith will give an illustrated lecture before the West Duluth Commercial club on the housing problem and city planning.

GROCERS WILL DANCE.

Immense Crowd Expected to Take Part at Armory.

The Duluth Retail Grocers' association will entertain at its annual ball this evening at the Armory. According to announcement made this morning by George M. Peterson, a member of the committee in charge, the tango and all the other various forms of dancing will be allowed in modified form.

The members expect to have about 500 couples in attendance. That number of tickets has already been sold.

It is proposed by the local association to use the proceeds at the state and national conventions for the purpose of securing the latter for Duluth in 1915.

TRY TO HIDE LABOR MEN'S DEPORTATION

South Africa Government's Action Discovered By Men's Singing.

Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, Jan. 29.—The most minute precautions were taken by the government to keep secret the deportation from South Africa of ten of the principal labor leaders, and a strict press censorship was instituted. It was only by accident that the action of the government became known. The men were heard singing labor songs aboard the train, and an investigation disclosed that they were under a strong guard. The labor men themselves were ignorant of their destination and were greatly surprised when they reached Durban.

The government had chartered the entire passenger section of the steamer Umgilnia. The vessel is without a wireless system, and will take months to reach London. A large force of police and detectives was also aboard.

When the vessel crossed the bar, she anchored in the roadstead, and the prisoners were told that she would remain there for an hour and a half to enable them to write to their relatives and friends ashore.

LIMIT BANK STOCK IN RESERVE BANK

None Can Have Over 6 Per Cent of Capital and Surplus.

Washington, Jan. 29.—It has become known that the Federal reserve bank organization committee has decided that no bank shall be allowed to take stock in the reserve bank in its district amounting to more than 6 per cent of its capital and surplus.

The law clearly states that a national bank cannot take less than 6 per cent, but it is not so plain that there is any limitation on the amount above 6 per cent which might be subscribed. The organization committee, however, decided that 6 per cent from any one would be sufficient. It is understood that if future demands point to the need for larger subscriptions the committee, or the Federal reserve board when it is organized, can change the present ruling.

YEAR'S WORK OF VISITING NURSES

Investigated Nearly 400 New Cases in 1913—Other Details.

Miss Louise E. Schneller and Miss Eda B. Kerr, visiting nurses of the health department, investigated 394 new cases during the last year, according to their annual report. Of that number 192 were diagnosed as having tuberculosis.

One of the encouraging features of the report is that forty-three cases were reported by private physicians. Fifty-one were discovered at the dispensary and twenty-two were reported by neighbors or friends, but the majority were located by the nurses themselves during their visits about the city.

The nurses now have 429 cases under observation, of which 236 are active and the others suspected. Ninety-five are under the care of physicians.

During the year the nurses made 2,538 visits. Patients made 1,101 visits to the clinic. Two hundred and twenty-six children and 274 adults were examined at the clinic; 19 children and 31 adults were admitted to the sanitarium at Nopening; 13 adults were sent to the state sanitarium and 19 to the county tuberculosis pavilion, while three were directed to other institutions. Of the patients under observation 71 are working.

HEATED DEBATE ON JAPANESE GRAFT.

Tokio, Jan. 29.—A heated discussion took place in the diet today in reference to the charges that Vice Admiral Koichi Fujii, former Japanese naval attache at Berlin, received illicit commissions on contracts secured by a German electrical concern from the Japanese government.

The premier, Admiral Count Combei Yamamoto, and the minister of marine, Admiral Baron Minoru Saito, were kept busy for four hours responding to questions from members of the opposition.

The ministers denied that any officers of the Japanese navy had accepted commissions, and announced the appointment of a naval commission headed by Admiral Baron Shigeto Dewa to investigate the Fujii charges.

PERSONAL INJURY SUIT DISMISSED

Plaintiff Who Wanted Damages for Loss of Eye Makes Motion.

On motion of the plaintiff, the personal injury action which was brought to trial before a jury in Judge Dancer's division of the district court, in which John Franklin is seeking $16,500 damages from the St. Croix Lumber & Manufacturing company, has been dismissed. Whether the case will be settled out of court or will be renewed next term has not been disclosed.

The plaintiff is blind in his right eye as a result of a steel sliver lodging in it. He claims that on Feb. 7, 1913, while employed by the company in the woods near Winton he was given a defective sledge hammer with which to remove stone from the roadway. A steel sliver flew off the striking surface of the hammer and struck him in the eye, destroying the sight.

The claim is made that the steel was improperly tempered and that the defendant company was negligent.

HOW I CURED MY SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

A Friendly Scientist showed Me How to Cure It Forever

I WILL TELL YOU FREE HOW TO GET RID OF YOURS TOO

For a long time I was sorely troubled by a hideous growth of superfluous Hair on my face and arms. My face was indeed a sight from the exasperating growth and I grew almost to hate myself for my unsightly appearance. There are many things advertised for Superfluous Hair, and I think I tried them all but never with any result, except to waste my money and burn my skin.

But, notwithstanding all my years of disappointment, today there is not a sign of Superfluous Hair on my face, arms or anywhere else. I got rid of it through following the advice of a friendly scientist, a Professor of Chemistry at an English University. The treatment he advised is so thorough, simple and easy to use that I want every other sufferer in America to know about it. It worked such a change in my appearance and my happiness, that I gladly waive my natural feelings of sensitiveness and will tell broadcast to all who are afflicted how I destroyed every trace of hair, never to return.

If you are a sufferer and would like to have full details, just send along your name (stating whether Mrs. or Miss) and address, and a two-cent stamp for return postage and I will send you in full detail the advice and instructions which resulted in my own cure after all else failed. Address your letter, Mrs. Kathryn Jenkins, Box 631 B. C. No. 264 Purchase St., Boston, Mass.

NOTE: Mrs. Jenkins as her photograph shows, is a lady of refinement, and for years was well-known as a Society Leader in Scranton, Pa.

Capt. Cyril Patrick William Francis Radclyffe Dugmore arrived on the Oceanic Thursday and was married Monday to Mrs. H. Bramhall Gilbert at her home in New York. Capt. Dugmore was in the army service corps and is now on the reserve list. He is a son of the Hon. Evelyn Dugmore and a nephew of Lord Brougham and Vaux. Mrs. Gilbert, who became a widow in 1911, is one of the very popular women in society in New York as well as in Paris and London. She has a beautiful country place at Great Neck, L. I. One of her pretty daughters married Howard Price Renshaw of Troy not long ago. Two are left unmarried—Miss Florence and Miss Bettie Gilbert.

SUE FOR SERVICES AND MATERIALS

Seeking judgment for $1,201.65 against the firm of Murphy Bros., contractors, and asking that the judgment be declared a specific lien against the line of the Mesaba Electric railway, Michael F. Jampsa and Leander Nisula, doing business under the firm name of Jampsa & Co., are suing the contractors and the railway company for labor and material furnished in the construction of a portion of the line.

Trial of the lawsuit was started today before Judge Dancer without a jury. The plaintiffs are also contractors, and between May 27, 1912, and Aug. 15, 1912, were engaged as subcontractors under Murphy Bros. In the building of that portion of the electric railroad which now connects Buhl and Chisholm. The bill for their services was $2,650. The unpaid portion is claimed to be $1,201.65, for which they are suing.

SEAL SALE NETS ALMOST $1,000

Money Will Be Expended in Fighting White Plague Among the Poor.

The total receipts of the Red Cross seal sale at Christmas time were $942.24, according to final figures which have been prepared in the office of the health department. Of this sum the city receives $706.68, or 75 per cent, the other 25 per cent being forwarded to the state society.

This money is turned into the Red Cross emergency fund and is devoted to aiding the campaign which is being waged against the white plague in Duluth. The expenditures are made by the visiting nurses, and provide medicines, clothing, food and other necessaries for tuberculosis patients who have no funds with which to help themselves.

TWO DAYS OF COLD WAVE

Temperature Expected to Drop Many Degrees By Night.

Real Winter Weather Is Promised—Severe Cold Wave Working East.

A two-days' cold wave will grip Duluth, the Northwest and lake region today and tomorrow, and temperatures will range from 15 to 25 below zero. It is expected that the temperature will drop to 15 to 20 below in Duluth tonight.

A severe cold wave now prevails over Western Canada and the Northwest and is gradually working eastward. The mercury at 7 o'clock today was 3 above, but dropped to about 5 below before noon. The drop will continue throughout the day and night. Freezing temperatures are expected as far south as Texas tonight.

There was a wide variety of weather this morning. In Chicago the mercury stood 58 above, while at Winnipeg it was 10 below zero. The Windy City will get a severe jolt tonight when the cold wave works farther east.

According to H. W. Richardson, forecaster for the United States weather bureau in Duluth, from one-half to one inch of sleet fell last night and yesterday afternoon. The telegraph and telephone wires were heavily laden with ice, and considerable wire trouble was experienced early this morning. The Duluth Street railway also had trouble in keeping its schedules, especially between Duluth and Superior, where there is no service after midnight. The interstate wires became coated with ice during the night, and conductors had difficulty in keeping the trolleys working.

Some telephone poles fell across the street railway wires on the Woodland line this morning, and residents of Woodland had to walk to Anoka street, but the damage was repaired by 10 o'clock.

purchase arms in the United States on an even footing with the Huerta government, may soon be granted. Though President Wilson and Secretary Bryan have reached no final determination on that point, the Washington government is strongly inclined to such a course as the next step in its Mexican policy.

Informal inquiry among prominent administration officials disclosed the fact that practically the entire cabinet, many members of the senate foreign relations committee and many of the leaders in congress are ready to support the president should he release the embargo on arms by proclamation.

The recent defalcation by the Huerta government of the interest on its bonds, the growing anxiety of foreign nations about the financial affairs of Mexico and the declared intention of the Constitutionalists to carry the fighting into the thickly populated cities of Central Mexico, are said to be underlying reasons for some further development of the American policy, though no official would predict when it would occur.

Ground of Beliefs.

That the president is giving serious consideration to the question of arms, is apparent not alone from the trend of his talk with the senate foreign relations committee, but from the evidence which has been daily coming to the Washington government of the disadvantage to which a denial of arms has put the Constitutionalists.

The chief argument being placed before President Wilson now is that the Huerta government has experienced little difficulty in buying munitions of war in countries other than the United States, while the Constitutionalists have been cut off from their only external source of supply—the American border—and that, in this respect, the American policy is one of partiality instead of neutrality.

The reason for the president's refusal of arms to both factions, as stated in his address to congress last August, was a desire not to add to the bloodshed. Though there was no understanding with foreign governments about exportations of arms, the United States then hoped that the embargo on funds would be extended to munitions of war.

Struggle Prolonged.

The failure of this to materialize, and the persistent determination of the Constitutionalists to obtain arms by the slow process of overcoming Federal garrisons, have prolonged the struggle beyond the expectations of the Washington government.

The view among officials that to give arms to both sides on an equality would end the revolution quickly in favor of the Constitutionalists rises from the belief that the latter have more men available for service and are financially better able to obtain supplies than is the Huerta regime.

Villa Not Ambitious.

Juarez, Mex., Jan. 29.—Gen. Francisco Villa, military commander of the rebel forces, disclaims any ambition to become president of Mexico in the event the revolution is successful. He says that although his victories against the Huerta forces at Ojinaga and Chihuahua attracted attention to himself in this connection, he did not wish to overshadow Gen. Carranza, whom he recognized as the leader of the revolution.

"Should Gen. Carranza become president, he would receive my support, and I would obey his commands," Gen. Villa said. "As proof of my loyalty and as evidence that I have no ambition to become president, I would leave the country if he ordered me to do so.

"I have never been in anything but the fullest accord with Gen. Carranza," Gen. Villa said. "I never had any personal ambition to reach high office. I am a fighting man only, and I am fighting for the liberation of my country, not to elevate myself.

"I wish all the nations of the world to know that I am not fighting to make myself president"—and here Gen. Villa brought both his clenched fists through the air by way of emphasis. "We are not fighting to make any man president, but we hope, once for all, to save our country from spoliation and the ambitions of individuals.

"Within a few months we have liberated half of Mexico, and in a few months more we shall liberate the other half."

Gen. Villa came to Juarez to negotiate with business interests for the resumption of industry in Chihuahua state, and also to procure small coin for circulation in the rebel territory. He plans to start a rebel mint and a bank as soon as possible. He said that on his return to Chihuahua he would prepare immediately to command an attack on Torreon.

Huerta Still Confident.

Mexico City, Jan. 29.—The announcement by the war department that Gen. Eugenio Razon has been granted leave of absence to go to Salvador has revived the report that he really was concerned in the recent alleged plot against the government, and it is thought his going to Salvador may be in the nature of exile. His friends, however, call attention to the fact that if the government wished to exile him it would not send him to a nearby country from which he might easily engineer a new revolt.

The lifting of the embargo by the United on arms and ammunition for the rebels would not worry President Huerta greatly, nor cause him to alter his policy, according to the reply he made when it was suggested that the American government might take that step.

President Huerta said that it was not lack of arms and ammunition that was enfeebling the rebels, but lack of money. They were getting as large a supply of arms and ammunition as they could pay for now. It was money the rebels needed, and the lifting of the embargo, he said, would not greatly alter that phase of the situation.

Gen. Huerta insisted that he was able to obtain money sufficient to last for a long time, and that he would be president of Mexico for years to come. He expressed confidence that the European nations would not be allowed to collect by force the debts Mexico owed abroad, and therefore he was not worried by the clamor of the financial centers on the other side of the Atlantic. Huerta laughed at the stories of his resignation and said they were untrue.

Commander Moriyama of the Japanese cruiser Idzumo, replying to a toast at a luncheon given by Gen. Blanquet, minister of war, referred to the similarities in the characteristics of the Mexican and Japanese peoples.

Carden to Leave Soon.

London, Jan. 29.—The Times announces that Sir Lionel Carden, British minister to Mexico, will shortly return to England on leave to report to the government upon the outlook in Mexico. Pending Sir Lionel's return to his post, T. B. Hohler, first secretary of the British legation, who was charge d'affaires in Mexico during the greater part of 1911, again will act in the same capacity. Mr. Hohler will sail for Mexico in a few days.

WAYS TO UNITE CITY AND COUNTRY ARE TALKED OVER

Wittenberg," he said, "the automobile hasn't yet won classification as a farm necessity, but we have climbed to the point where libraries, lecture courses, daily papers and the rural telephone are reckoned needful, and I believe that we shall go steadily and unchecked to those heights of agricultural plutocracy where our farmers, too, will count that day lost whose low descending sun records not an added ten in bank and a century auto run. We're behind only because we got a tardy start. In due season Northern Wisconsin will head the procession."

Sauk City's way of uniting city and country, according to Prof. Buckley, is to invite the farmers to share in the Memorial day exercises, to share in material things, as in the organization of a co-operative canning factory and the state bank. A store that was remodeled last summer has rest rooms for everybody. The banks do the same for their farmer patrons.

Community Spirit.

A community institute was started by the university, and lecturers from Madison talk on preventable diseases, good roads and how to get them, common interests of village and country, health, recreation, business and farm subjects. This community spirit, declared the speaker, is rapidly extending the village's trading area and adding improvements of many kinds.

"When strangers tell us we are experiencing a boom, we simply tell them we are just finding ourselves," concluded the speaker.

WHAT WILL SAVING BE?

special appropriation for the relief forces at baudette.

Since the forestry department has been established one item of $75,000 a year has covered the regular organization and emergency expense.

Without adequate organization the state spent $106,000 to fight fires that had got away from control.

Result of Organization.

With adequate organization the state spends $75,000 and doesn't have any fires.

It won't do to crow too much over that. The new organization has not been tested by a dry season like that of 1910. But it is hoped, even in such a test, fires will be prevented. At any rate, thousands of fires will be stopped before they ever get started.

A further reason for thinking there will be no more bad fires is that in that dry summer there were no fires in the Federal forest at Cass Lake. They were all pinched out before they ever got started.

Another fruit of proper organization. While many settlers did desperate work to save their claims and their neighbors, with little or no pay for it, there were cases where fire-fighting became an established industry. If a fire was doing pretty well, the town officers would let it run a little before calling out the crews. And in some cases bills were put in for imaginary fires. How we know that is that when the new department was established a number of requisitions for fighting fires that were pure fiction were revealed and rejected.

Inefficient and Costly.

The state was spending $8,500 a year to enable a brave old man to make what fight he could single-handed against the fires and the destruction of lumbermen. All he and his little force could do was to make a record of the fire, a guess at the loss, and try to discover the cause and pass on emergency bills that in one year ran up to over $100,000—bills of volunteers who fought hard enough, but never prevented a fire and never extinguished a fire.

The new department prevents fires. It also cuts out trails, makes firebreaks, supervises the burning of slashings, runs telephone lines, makes maps, estimates standing timber. How much is the saving there?

Say the word, and by arranging the organization fitly with the state lands, the value of the forestry department can perhaps be doubled. How much will the saving be then?

Fire losses have been cut down from millions to a negligible sum by good forestry methods. How much is the saving there? Forest culture may be raised from a negligible amount to $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 a year on land now owned by the state. How much saving will there be in that?

That's our department. There are others where it doesn't as plainly appear, but where the possibilities are equally great.

the Upper Peninsula district board of the Western Federation of Miners.

Tanner Accuses Ferris.

The mine owners of the Calumet region, the Citizens' Alliance, the Houghton grand jury, the Michigan militia and Governor Ferris were assailed in his address.

Tanner said there were from 8,000 to 9,000 union men still dependent on the Western Federation of Miners for food and clothing. He declared many of these men had large families and he urged the Michigan labor unions to send men throughout the state soliciting funds to be spent in caring for those out of employment.

Tanner made the principal address. The keynote of his remarks was a plea to provide means to continue the industrial fight.

Attacked Citizens' Alliance.

Tanner charged the Citizens' alliance with responsibility for the disaster at Calumet on Christmas eve, and said evidence to that effect would be produced before the congressional investigators.

"Nobody believes the persons responsible for the tragedy intended to kill anyone," he said. "They did, however, want to break up that celebration. More than one union man had been told that the union men 'would have a black Christmas.'

"The Houghton county grand jury is a farce. Composed of mining superintendents, members of the Citizens' alliance and Jim MacNaughton's chauffeur, it acted as the unions expected it would act."

Tanner and Dan Sullivan, another speaker, both asserted that Governor Ferris had been partial to the operators during his investigation in the strike region.

Grand Jury at Work.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief interest in the strike of the Western Federation of Miners is centered in the coming investigation of conditions in the Copper country by a congressional committee, and no change in the situation is looked for until its finish.

The special grand jury continued investigation of strike disorders this morning without reporting any more indictments. A petit jury was empaneled by Circuit Judge O'Brien and then was excused until afternoon. Ten cases of importance are to be tried this week. The Seeberville murder case is to be called next Monday.

Plan Congressional Program.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Arrangements for beginning the Federal investigation of the Michigan copper and Colorado coal mine strikes next week were taken up today by the house mines committee, authorized by resolution of the house to conduct the inquiry. It was expected Chairman Foster would be ready at the conclusion of the meeting to announce the completed program.

Tentatively it had been agreed that hearings should be conducted by two sub-committees, which would leave for the West the latter part of this week. Chairman Foster was expected to head the investigators of the Colorado situation, and Representative Taylor of Colorado to be chairman of the subcommittee for the Michigan inquiry.

No decision had been reached as to the cities in which the hearings are to be held.

Gompers to Explain.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 29.—Delegates to the international convention of the United Mine Workers of America were awaiting today the explanation by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, of the charges made by Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners. Mr. Moyer, last Monday, declared in the convention here that if the strike of the copper miners in Michigan was lost, it would be due to the inactivity of the executive council of the federation.

Mr. Gompers, in reply to a request of the convention to appear and give an explanation, telegraphed John P. White, president of the miners, that he would arrive in Indianapolis shortly before noon today. He probably will not speak until late in the day.

Since the convention of miners convened, a number of attacks on the

DULUTH MAN DIES WHILE AWAITING FAMILY'S RETURN

FRANK M. THOMAS.

While his wife and 18-year-old son, Morris Thomas, were on board a trans-Atlantic liner bound for New York, Frank M. Thomas, 46 years old, died suddenly yesterday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Morris Thomas, 1512 Jefferson street, following a week's illness from the grip.

Mr. Thomas was taken ill last Friday. Mrs. Thomas, his mother, cabled to her daughter-in-law in England and she left by the first boat. A cablegram was received yesterday that the boat would reach New York on Feb. 5. Both Mrs. Thomas and her son are still in ignorance of the death of Mr. Thomas. They went to England several months ago for a visit with relatives and planned to stay two years.

Mr. Thomas came to Duluth thirty-three years ago with his parents and was very well known here as a logging contractor. His father, Morris Thomas, who died three years ago, was a former Duluth alderman. He is survived by his mother, widow and one son, Morris.

The body has been removed to the Crawford undertaking rooms, where it will be held until the arrival of Mrs. Thomas and her son. They are expected here Feb. 8. Mr. Thomas was a member of the Masonic fraternity and this society will have charge of the funeral services.

Shaw Resents Probe.

New York, Jan. 29.—In a statement issued here Quincy A. Shaw, president of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company of Michigan, "regrets and resents" the resolutions recently adopted by congress for the investigation of the Michigan copper strike. Mr. Shaw says the action proposed would prolong the "semblance" of a strike.

The investigation is not desirable, Mr. Shaw says, because the terms and directions are unfairly aimed at one side of the controversy, and "exclude from investigation the notorious disorders and bloodshed inspired by the leaders of the strike."

The co-operation of Mr. Shaw is promised the committee in the statement. The investigators are offered every facility to ascertain facts, hoping that "in the interest of justice the committee will familiarize the American people with the character and methods of the Western Federation of Miners."

"No charge has been made which the courts are not competent to investigate," the statement says. "Now congress proposes to abandon its functions as a legislative body and investigate them as a grand jury."

SUFFRAGETTE TALKS TO BRITISH PRIMATE

Forces Him to Hear Protest Against Forcible Feeding.

London, Jan. 29.—A band of militant suffragettes today besieged the archbishop of Canterbury, the English primate, in Lambeth palace, and eventually forced him to capitulate and receive one of their number in order to discuss the question of forcible feeding.

The women were headed by Mrs. Dacre-Fox. It took them upwards of an hour to gain admission to the old palace on the banks of the Thames, a little above Westminster. They declined to listen to any attempt on the part of those within to temporize. Finally the archbishop, seeing the futility of trying to escape from his obdurate blockaders, allowed Mrs. Dacre-Fox to enter.

The head of the church of England listened sympathetically to the suffragettes' appeals, but he refused definitely to commit himself.

Questioned His Sincerity.

Mrs. Dacre-Fox told the prelate that if he believed torture was ever justifiable he could not be a real Christian. She said he had to use only his personal influence to put an end to the system of forcible feeding.

The archbishop said he received daily protests from all sections of the community against forcible feeding, but declared that he could not give a definite answer to the suffragettes' appeal until he had heard the other side fully. He continued:

"All I can promise is to give my earnest consideration of the matter."

Mrs. Dacre-Fox thereupon informed Archbishop Davidson that she was profoundly dissatisfied with his reply. She presented him with a copy of the suffragette newspaper, and also with Miss Christabel Pankhurst's book, and said she hoped his perusal of them would open his eyes to the necessity for action.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Boyce drug store and other leading druggists in Duluth and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

NAMES EXAMINER IN COAL TRUST CASE

Court Also Limits Time for Taking of Testimony.

Philadelphia, Jan. 29.—Appointment of an examiner to take testimony and the limiting of time in which to submit evidence in the suit of the government to dissolve the coal trust, are incorporated in a decree filed by Judge Gray in the United States appellate court yesterday.

Suits were started several years ago by the government against the Reading company, its subsidiary concerns, and a number of other railroads and coal companies declared by the government to be in a combine to regulate the production and output of coal in the anthracite region, but these were withdrawn so that the government could be more specific in its allegation of conspiracy and monopoly.

Last October new suits were filed in the district court, and yesterday District Judge Gray appointed Charles H. Guilbert as special examiner to take testimony and to submit the transcribed notes to the court not later than May 23.

It is also stipulated in the order that the government shall conclude the submission of testimony not later than March 10, and that the defendants shall have furnished all their proof not later than April 24.

Among the defendants named were the Reading company, the Philadelphia & Reading Railway company, the Reading Coal & Iron company, the Central Railroad company of New Jersey, the Wilmington & Northern Railway company, the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company, the Lehigh Coal & Navigation company, the Lehigh & New England Railroad company, and several other smaller companies.

PEACE TREATY WITH DENMARK IS SIGNED

Similar One With Great Britain Said to Be in Prospect.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Arbitration of all questions which may arise, including those involving national honor, is proposed in a treaty, the terms of which were agreed upon yesterday by Secretary Bryan and Constantine Brun, the Danish minister. It is expected that the new treaty will be signed in the near future, and Mr. Bryan is optimistic over the reception it will be given in the senate.

There has been no announcement on the subject, but it is understood favorable progress is being made toward the conclusion of a peace convention with Great Britain. All the nations to which the original communication on which Mr. Bryan's plan was sent are receiving copies of the treaties signed.

SENATORS WORK ON TRADE COMMISSION

Amendment to Limit Publicity Plans Already Proposed.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Perfection of the interstate trade commission bill introduced into the senate and house last week as the first of the anti-trust legislative measures of the administration, has been begun by the senate committee on interstate commerce. It was determined at the outset that no public hearings other than those to be held by the house committees would be necessary.

An amendment proposed would limit to a certain extent the publicity feature of the measure by prescribing particularly that no trade processes, list of customers, or like trade secrets submitted to the commission by corporations should be made public. As the bill stands now, all information concerning the business of corporations is required to be made a matter of public record.

Another amendment will be proposed later to enlarge the powers and scope of the commission.

BIGGEST OIL TANK STEAMER LAUNCHED.

Newport News, Va., Jan. 29.—The John D. Archbold, largest oil tanker ever built, was launched here yesterday with a ceremony which President Archbold of the Standard Oil company and many other officials and guests came on a special train to attend. Mrs. M. M. Vanburen of New York, Mr. Archbold's daughter, christened the ship. The Archbold has every modern device, double the lifeboat capacity required by the government, is equipped to burn oil or coal, and though she will carry 67,000 barrels of oil, her draught is such that there are few ports in the coastal trade she will be unable to enter.

WHITES MUST NOT TEACH NEGROES.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 29.—The lower branch of the general assembly has passed the Fortner bill, prohibiting white persons from teaching in negro schools. Amendments to the measure adopted provide "that the provisions of this bill shall apply to intimacy of the races in houses of ill repute," and that the bill shall include "white nurses employed in negro hospitals, or to nurse negroes at any hospital or sanitarium."

How to Beautify a Weatherbeaten Face

(From Beauty and Health.)

It's really a simple matter to renovate a face soiled by dirt, wind or cold. Ordinary mercolized wax, used like cold cream, will transform the worst old complexion into one of snowy whiteness and velvety softness. It literally peels off the outer veil of surface skin, but so gently, gradually, there's no discomfort. The wornout skin comes off, not in patches, but evenly, in tiny particles, leaving no evidence of the treatment. The younger, healthier under-skin forming the new complexion is one of captivating loveliness. One ounce of mercolized wax, to be had at any drugstore, is enough to remove any coarse, chapped, pimple, freckled, faded or sallow skin. Apply before retiring, washing it off mornings.

Many skins wrinkle easily with every wind that blows, with heat, worry, etc. An excellent wrinkle-remover, because it tightens the skin and strengthens relaxed muscles, is a wash lotion made as follows: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. This gives immediate results.—Advertisement.

NEWS OF THE WEST END

HERALD BRANCH:— HERMAN OLSON, Manager, 1823 West Superior Street.

RAPID GROWTH OF WEST END IS FORECASTED BY SPEAKERS AT COMMERCIAL CLUB BANQUET

J. W. PRESTON, Chairman of Committee.

S. W. HILL.

WILLIAM L. BERNARD.

With the big dining room of the Rex hotel taxed to its capacity, nearly 200 men and women, members of the West End Commercial club and their wives last night attended the testimonial banquet tendered the hotel management by the West End Commercial club. Following a meal served in several courses and with a dispatch that would be creditable to a long established hostelry, addresses touching on the progress of the West end in the past and its bright future were given by the speakers.

The speaking program began with a short talk by L. J. Simonson, president of the club, who introduced John J. Moe as toastmaster.

The first address was given by Prof. R. S. Rice of the extension department of the Minnesota university, who in a fifteen-minute talk outlined the work of this department. Mr. Price said that statistics showed that while the university was established for all of the people only 10 per cent of the students graduating from the higher schools were taking advantage of its courses. In view of the fact that the people were not going to the university, he said, the university is now going to the people and offering them its courses through its extension department.

"We have taken a different view of education from that of former times," said Mr. Price. "In times past only the best type of sons and daughters of moneyed men received education. This some years ago was changed with the establishment of public schools, placing the educational system on a democratic basis, giving the poor and rich alike the advantage of learning. Later came the universities with the same object in view but in recent years it has been discovered that only about 10 per cent of the graduates of high schools have taken advantage of it, and the majority do not attend because of the expense. It then remained a duty to find some way of bringing the education closer to everybody and this brought about the extension department.

Statewide Campus.

"I wish to say that no longer is the campus of the Minnesota university located in the Twin Cities, but it covers the entire state. It provides courses in all the varied studies and in this city several night schools have so far been established.

"What more does Duluth want? We are here to find out and if there is any course which the people are interested in we are here to begin it. What does this district of the West end need? With your large manufacturing district, factories, mills and other industries, there may be room for classes in engineering, mechanics or other studies which we will readily establish if asked."

Next Mayor a Woman.

"I am prouder of the West End Commercial club this evening than ever before," began Mayor Prince, who complimented the members of the club, the hotel management for the supper it served, and the club for inviting the ladies to be present. "I wish to compliment the members of the club for bringing the ladies. Bringing them may have been taken as a precautionary measure in order that the men might be properly taken care of after 11 p. m. We men are no longer the whole thing and it will not be long before we will be crowded out of our vocations by the gentler sex. In fact it would not surprise me to see that our next mayor may be a woman.

"The people of the West end have just cause for rejoicing. Here progress is taking rapid strides, business is the best and industries are fast locating in this section."

Homer C. Fulton extended the greetings of Hunter's Park. "We who live in the community of oatmeal breakfasts and cemeteries, quietness and solitude are glad to get among the real 'live ones' by coming to the West end."

Mr. Fulton spoke of Duluth in the past and its future. He said that present indications were that it would shortly become the metropolis of the state, if not the Northwest. He admonished the members of the club and business men not to pay such close attention to their business that they would overlook the importance of helping their fellow man or their community.

Business Never Better.

George M. Peterson, secretary of the Duluth Retail Merchants' association, gave a short talk on business conditions. He stated that business had never been better than during the past year and that indications were bright for continuation of business prosperity in this end of the city as well as the city as a whole.

S. W. Hill, former president of the club, and one of its original members, gave a brief history of the club. He said the club was first organized in 1896 and at that time it was the only organization of its kind in the city. Since then he said it had taken an active interest in all public matters, and that no doubt it would continue to do so in he future. Mr. Hill was optimistic in his prediction for the future, saying that real estate in this end of the city would double in value in the next ten years. He quoted the price at which some property had recently changed hands in this end of the city, showing how the value had risen.

George M. Jensen, secretary of the club, spoke on, "The Upbuilding of the West End." He admonished the business men to stop their petty strife and invited all to join in the membership of the club and its meetings in order that the progress of the West end might be pushed. He said that there was room for more business blocks and that these would be filled with merchants if only the store room could be found. He advocated more advertising on the part of the merchant and said that the progress of a community or city was reflected in the advertising in the newspapers.

Former Alderman William L. Bernard gave a short talk on street improvements in this end of the city. He said that big progress had been made by West end residents during the last three years in getting the streets paved and graded and that many parts of the West end were now clamoring to have similar work done.

Warren E. Greene, who was scheduled to talk, was ill last night and unable to attend. The invocation was given by Rev. Milton Fish, pastor of the Central Baptist church. The committee in charge of the banquet consisted of James W. Preston, L. A. Simonson and George M. Jensen.

WEST END WOMAN HAS VOTED FOR TWO PRESIDENTS

Mrs. Milton Fish, wife of Rev. Milton Fish, pastor of the Central Baptist church, holds the unique distinction of being the only woman in the West end who has voted at two presidential elections. Mrs. Fish voted for president in 1904 and again in 1908.

Rev. and Mrs. Fish were then residents of Colorado. At the latter election Rev. and Mrs. Fish were away from home, visiting in another state where they were conducting revival services. When election day came the question of going home to vote came up. Mrs. Fish went home to vote while Rev. Mr. Fish stayed away from the polls.

MRS. MILTON FISH.

"What effect do you think women's suffrage has on the results of election?" Mrs. Fish was asked.

"Well, if our family was an example, I should say none," said Mrs. Fish. "At one of the elections my sister voted Republican, my husband voted Socialist and I voted prohibition. The state went Democratic."

CHANGE LOCATION OF LIBRARY BRANCH

The West end branch of the public library now located in the Mohaupt building, 2022 West Superior street, will be moved on March 1, to 20 North Twentieth avenue west, according to an announcement made by Mayor W. I. Prince last night. In its present locality the institution has not been patronized as well as it should, said the mayor, and the change is being made in hope that more adults as well as children will go to it.

The library will occupy the street floor of the new quarters. A large reading room will thus be provided. The Saturday afternoon story hour for children will be continued in the new building.

"We hope that some day the branch in the West end will be as firmly established as the branch in West Duluth," said Mayor Prince. "Then we hope that a suitable site may be purchased where a handsome building may be erected as its permanent home."

GEO. THRANA HEADS NORMANNA CHORUS.

The Normanna Male chorus at its business meeting last night at the Maccabee hall elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, George Thrana; vice president, Axel Ruske; recording secretary, Olaf Sunfor; financial secretary, Birger Sande; treasurer, Anton H. Teasdahl; property man, Haakon Haugan; comptroller, Arthur J. Meyer; banner bearer, Hans Trogstad; instructor, Jens Flaaten; trustees, Joe Solem, John Ratke and Carl Chulze.

ORPHEUS SOCIETY'S ANNUAL BANQUET.

The Orpheus Singing society will hold its fourteenth annual banquet at Woodmen hall tomorrow night and it is expected that as usual, the attendance will be very large. Associate and active members alike turn out to this annual affair. W. A. Anderson will be toastmaster and O. G. Olson, chairman. A fine program has been prepared. There will be several chorus numbers by the society, and Mrs. August Lofgren and Rev. C. W. Wermine will give vocal solos.

The chief speakers of the evening will be Rev. J. A. Krantz, Dr. O. S. Olson and C. R. Magney.

HAS LARGEST ATTENDANCE.

Norwegian-Danish Methodist Church Wins at Sunday School Convention.

The Sunday school of the Norwegian Danish Methodist church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, was awarded the banner for the best attendance at the annual meeting of the district held last evening in its church. The Swedish Baptist Sunday school, which has held the banner for two consecutive years was a close second for the banner.

The attendance at the convention was large in spite of the bad weather. Addresses were given by W. B. Patton, vice president of the St. Louis County School association; T. F. Upham and A. T. Powell of St. Paul. Mr. Upham spoke on "Home Department Work," and Mr. Powell on "Teen Age." A. O. Anderson was re-elected president of the West End district. Eiran Anderson was chosen secretary and John J. Moe, treasurer.

TO GIVE PROGRAM.

Entertainment Planned for First Swedish Methodist Church Friday.

The Young People's Society of the First Swedish Methodist church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, will entertain tomorrow evening at a social and musical program in the church parlors. BLAMES WOMEN FOR HIGH BUTTER PRICES

Chicago Man Says Retailers Simply Cater to Wrong Idea.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—The general custom of women of demanding the most select grades of butter for their tables has caused the retailer to put his prices up to a point not justified by wholesale prices, according to a statement by J. B. Mitchell, president of the Chicago butter and egg board.

"The actual difference between the most fancy grades and the next grades of good butter is so slight that the purchaser frequently pays a 25 per cent increase in price for not more than 2 or 3 per cent improvement in quality," Mr. Mitchell said.

"The new tariff law has resulted in the importation of butter from New Zealand, Argentina, Siberia and other foreign countries. Because of the open winter, the fresh production of butter has been unusually heavy, and today the fanciest grade of butter is sold by jobbers at 27½ cents a pound and should enter into competition at not more than 30 cents a pound.

"There are large quantities of good table butter, both fresh and storage, not good enough to grade as extra, but fine enough to grace any table, that sell at wholesale at 24 to 26 cents a pound and which should retail at from 29 to 31 cents a pound.

"If the housewife could get out of her expensive habit of asking for only the best, the retailer could sell the next grade below extras at from 2 to 4 cents under what he would ask for the best and the consumer would be just as well satisfied."

FARMER GETS VERDICT.

Awarded $899.90 for Live Stock Killed By G. N. Train.

Martin Raski, farmer in section 16, 50-17, in district court yesterday recovered a verdict for $899.90 against the Great Northern Railway company.

Raski sued the railroad company for damages resulting from the killing of a hog and the injury of four horses. The plaintiff asked for $1,150, claiming that his live stock was struck by the company's trains last May. Negligence in failing to properly fence its right-of-way was charged by the plaintiff against the railway company. The case was tried before Judge Ensign. The jury was out thirty minutes yesterday afternoon.

THREAT FOLLOWS CHICAGO ARRESTS.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Of the six men arrested in disturbances among the unemployed here Tuesday night, four demanded jury trials, one was dismissed, and the sixth, Samuel Rosenberg, was fined $50 and costs. A policeman testified that Rosenberg made incendiary appeals to the crowd.

Capt. Storer turned over to the post-office authorities, an anonymous threat, embellished with a skeleton drawn in red ink, to blow up the Maxwell street police station unless all of the men arrested last night were dismissed.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Men Too Willing to Find Fault With Women.

I wonder why it is that men are always so willing to say something which is hardly complimentary of women. It may not be utter disparagement but it is too often tinged with censure and unfairness.

I ventured to ask two men in good standing, in my opinion at least, for subject-matter for this column and both seemed delighted to grasp the opportunity. I did not expect that they would sing the praises of women. Neither did I anticipate that they would both smile gleefully, and sort of dare me to discuss their separate suggestions.

"Give you a topic for your column," said a dignified gentleman, looking over his glasses at me. "I'd be delighted, only you will not write it, you are far too considerate of your sex. But here goes."

To humor me, he delivered himself of the following. "Women ought to be taught how to walk so that they will not interfere with those in front of them and those behind them. Most women walk along the street as though they were following cow paths. Their bags are bumping the shins of the persons in front and their umbrellas are puncturing the eyes of the poor things in their rear."

Hardly had he delivered himself of this tirade ere another voice volunteered the 'something to write about' for which I had expressed a desire. The following came from a man of more jovial nature than the first mentioned. He hadn't said a half dozen words before I was apprised that he was in critical mood also.

This is what he claimed. "Women store up a lot of ill-will and spite occasioned by the shortcomings of others and vent it upon any but the deserving head. Usually, it is upon the defenseless head of the house when he returns at night from a hard day's work." He thought he had scored very heavily. All the reply that I had wit to make was "That being married, he ought to know."

I do not wish to deny that woman is not full of faults. Some one said that the Lord made them that way to match the men—and I believe it. Seriously, women can improve themselves in many ways. Some women do monopolize more of the sidewalk than their size or importance warrants. Many women do allow the small happenings of family life to upset their equilibrium to the extent that they empty the vials of their wrath upon their poor husbands.

This is all very true. But one thing I may deny. Had I asked two women for subject-matter for this column, I doubt that they would have been as loud spoken in their demand that I belittle the men folk.

PORTRAIT MISSING SIXTY YEARS.

Westminster Gazette: There has just been sold in Berlin a pastel drawing of Heinrich Heine by the artist Ernest Benedict Kletz, which there is every reason to suppose is the lost portrait made of Heine from the life. A note on the picture states that it was the work of Kletz; and in Meissner's famous "Reminiscences of Heine" is an account of how Kletz made a drawing of Heine at Paris in 1851 when the poet was already attacked by the illness from which he died five years afterward. The sittings were given in July.

When the head was drawn Mathilde, Heine's wife, complained that the poet was made to look blind, and demanded that the eyes should be drawn as though open. Accordingly Kletz made a second sketch, and subsequently finished both portraits. Kampe, the Hamburg publisher, acquired the first, but it appears that Madame Heine did not obtain the second, which has been missing for more than sixty years.

There seems no doubt that the original has now been recovered. It represents Heine in the three-quarter length, with long hair and the romantic beard which he wore during his last years. His eyes are open, as his wife insisted they should be.

INDIFFERENCE TO DANGER.

H. Windsor in the Popular Mechanics Magazine: If a "Titanic" sank every week in the year the horror of even so terrible an event would shortly lose its force, save only for immediate relatives and friends. What happens constantly we grow to regard as more or less inevitable. Scarcely a day passes without motor vehicles killing one or more persons in each of our large cities. The small space devoted to these accidents in daily papers merely reflects the apathy which prevails among their readers. When the first few airmen lost their lives, whether here or abroad, columns were devoted to each event, with full description of the struggle in the air and minutest details of what followed. Your evening paper tonight may devote perhaps four or five lines to record the death of one or two aviation-corps officers. The local press will devote space to the accident, but only because it was strictly home news.

This complacent or at least indifferent view of what passes as inevitable goes on for a time, until conditions become so bad that somebody wakes up and calls on everybody to stop and view the awful wreck. Then there is a chance to improve or remedy things.

KAISER PRAISES AMERICAN WOMAN FOR HER BEAUTY

This snapshot of Mrs. Whitehouse was made on the ship as she was sailing for Europe to be presented at the German court.

CONSISTENCY.

The issue of the rent-saving device of putting stores in saloon fronts seems, like the cat, to have come back.

As we saw it, it was the principal issue in the referendum campaign, because the liquor laws were enforced before the Hicken ordinance was adopted, as they have been enforced since, no more and no less. The chief reason why The Herald opposed the adoption of the ordinance was that it imposed a needless hardship on the cigar stores, jewelry stores and barber shops that had been able to afford Superior street quarters because of this rent-saving device. It was objectionable then for that reason; it is objectionable now for the same reason.

And now the morning paper, most vociferous advocate of the ordinance then but until lately the most vociferous assailant of the machinery which brought about the law enforcement it professed to favor, declares that the ordinance shouldn't work to drive these stores out of business.

It shouldn't, of course; that is precisely why The Herald opposed it in the referendum campaign: but unfortunately it does. No other meaning can be read into its language. Commissioner Hicken never said, publicly at least, that it did not have this meaning; and he is thoroughly consistent now in declaring that it does have this meaning, and that therefore he must carry out the intent so defined.

The Herald would be better pleased to see the News Tribune over on its side of the argument if it were not so obvious that it comes there only to seek another excuse for discrediting the agency that has brought about the law-enforcement and order which it but lately professed to favor so ardently.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OF RAILROADS.

The question whether the government should own the railroads or let these vitally important highways remain subject to private profit-taking is simply a business matter.

It should neither be accepted or rejected solely because some people are for it or because some other people are against it.

If it is better for the country to have the railroads under private ownership, then they should remain there. But if that conclusion is adopted it would be well to consider whether it would not be wise to turn the wagon highways also over to private ownership and let somebody make some money out of them.

There seems to be no particular reason why, if it is wise to let some of the people make money out of ironshod highways, it is not also wise to let some of the people make money out of wagon highways. And, if it comes to that, why not turn the streets and sidewalks, which are also highways, over to corporations for profit-taking purposes?

Clifford Thorne, state railroad commission of Iowa, has been making a study of this subject, and his conclusion is that it would be profitable for the people if the nation would take over the railroads. His reasons and figures, laid before congress by Senator Kenyon of his state, have made many think more deeply on this subject than they ever did before.

His first argument goes to the heart of one of the strongest reasons in favor of public ownership of railroads—that public credit is cheaper than private.

Fixing a valuation of a little less than fourteen billion dollars on the railroad property of the country, he figures that the nation could get the money to buy it all at three per cent. This would put upon the public an annual interest charge of $419,075,201.

But the dividends, interest and surplus earnings of the railroads now amount to $833,734,571, which is of course all collected from the people—and all the people join in the response to this collection.

So right here at the start is a saving of $414,659,370 each year which government ownership might bring.

In addition, Mr. Thorne says that there would also be saved to the people an accumulated surplus of a billion dollars.

Besides, the government, instead of the railroads, would gain future unearned increment, amounting to several hundred millions of dollars a year.

Again, further savings could be obtained through eliminating high-salaried officials and duplications in terminal facilities, and the suppression of stock manipulation.

Further, under government ownership rate adjustments would be on the basis of cost, not on what the traffic will bear.

Finally, under public ownership the principle of safety first would apply, whereas under private ownership many railroads find it cheaper to kill people than to install safety devices and practices.

The choice lies between complete public control, down to details which railroad managers have hitherto regarded as exclusively private affairs, and complete public ownership.

And the issue should be decided wholly on the basis of what is best for the country and all its people; not because it is "progressive" to favor government ownership and "reactionary" to oppose it.

AN IMPORTANT CONFERENCE.

There will be—at least there ought to be—great interest in the approaching conference of agricultural experts in Duluth Feb. 4 and 5.

This conference will be participated in by representatives of the division head of farm management, field studies and demonstrations of the Federal department of agriculture; the state leader and the home economics department of the state university; the state superintendent of schools and high school inspectors; the country agricultural agents; county superintendents of schools; teachers of agriculture in the public schools; the superintendents of the experiment station at Grand Rapids and the demonstration farm school at Duluth; the United States supervisor of boys' and girls' clubs in Minnesota; delegates from boards of county commissioners in counties having or intending to have county agents; officers of the Northern Minnesota Development association; and officers and members of commercial clubs.

That's a pretty impressive array of agricultural talent, both on the pedagogic side and the working side.

The purpose of the gathering is "to recognize the importance of these several agents in agricultural development and to bring them into helpful relationship, thereby increasing their efficiency in conserving our agricultural resources, in promoting the business of farming, the betterment of farm homes and the general uplift of this section of Minnesota."

Now that's an eminently praiseworthy object, and ought to enlist wide interest, particularly as in the last analysis every one of us lives upon the soil, whether he works it or not.

The program prepared is interesting, and not only those especially invited but everybody with the slightest interest and leaning that way ought to hear as much of it as he can.

TO THE FELLOW WHO'LL TAKE MY PLACE

Here is a toast I want to drink to a fellow I'll never know—
To the fellow who's going to take my place when it's time for me to go.
I've wondered what kind of a chap he'll be and I've wished I could take his hand,
Just to whisper, "I wish you well, old man," in a way that he'd understand.
I'd like to give him the cheering word that I've longed at times to hear;
I'd like to give him the warm hand clasp when never a friend seems near.
I've learned my knowledge by sheer hard work, and I wish I could pass it on
To the fellow who'll come to take my place some day when I am gone.

Will he see all the sad mistakes I've made and note all the battles lost?
Will he ever guess of the tears they caused or the heartaches which they cost?
Will he gaze through the failures and fruitless toil to the underlying plan,
And catch a glimpse of the real intent and the heart of the vanquished man?
I dare to hope he may pause some day as he toils as I have wrought,
And gain some strength for his weary task from the battles which I have fought.
But I've only the task itself to leave with the cares for him to face,
And never a cheering word may speak to the fellow who'll take my place.

Then here's to your health, old chap; I drink as a bridegroom to his bride;
I leave an unfinished task for you, but God knows how I tried.
I've dreamed my dreams as all men do, but never a one came true,
And my prayer today is that all the dreams may be realized by you,
And we'll meet some day in the great unknown—out in the realms of space;
You'll know my clasp as I take your hand and gaze in your tired face.
Then all your failures will be success in the light of the new found dawn—
So I'm drinking your health, old chap, who'll take my place when I am gone.

SHELBY M. CULLOM.

When Shelby M. Cullom was born Andrew Jackson was president. When he was speaker of the Illinois house of representatives Stephen A. Douglas, at the outbreak of the Civil war, made before that body his historic speech for the preservation of the Union.

When he went to Washington as a member of congress Abraham Lincoln was president. When in 1883 he became a United States senator Chester A. Arthur was president.

And Shelby M. Cullom sat in the senate of the United States from then until a year ago, when he closed a career of public service that had lasted for nearly sixty years. It was a career that, while not notable for striking eloquence or towering leadership, was marked by diligence and integrity. No better epitaph could be framed than these words of Governor Dunne of Illinois:

> For fifty years this remarkable man occupied public positions of honor and trust, and even his bitterest political foe must concede that he carried these honors and performed these trusts faithfully and honorably. The best proof of this is that for half a century he went through the fiery ordeal of holding public office without ever being accused of enriching himself in public life, and died comparatively poor.

HIGH TAXES IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON.

We find the Spokane Spokesman-Review vigorously urging the reduction of state expenditures, so we can fairly assume that there is in that state some discontent with state finances.

The state tax rate in Washington is high; which is to be expected in a developing commonwealth with a comparatively sparse population. Indeed, both in 1910 and this year the state tax rate is higher than Minnesota's. But when it comes to percentage of increase in that period, that is a horse of another color.

Washington has a population of 1,141,990, while Minnesota's population is 2,075,708.

Washington's state expenditures in 1910 were $9,059,731, against $13,145,734 for Minnesota in that year.

In 1914 Washington expects to spend $10,892,731, while Minnesota's expenditures will be $21,771,680. Washington's gain in state expenses, which is arousing criticism, is at the rate of twenty-one per cent. Minnesota's gain was at the rate of SIXTY-SIX per cent.

From 1910 to 1914 Washington's state tax rate increased thirty-one per cent. In the same time Minnesota's rate increased EIGHTY-SIX per cent. Washington's rate increased from 6.7 mills to 8.81 mills, while Minnesota's rate advanced from 2.7 mills to 5.03 mills.

Washington's per capita expenditures, because of its large area and relatively small population, are high. They were $7.92 in 1910, and are $9.54 in 1914. But Minnesota's, which were $6.33 in 1910, are $10.49 this year!

Washington is disturbed and concerned about high state taxes.

WHAT ABOUT MINNESOTA?

And do the candidates for the legislature in YOUR district show any interest in this subject?

A Trust Manager With a Conscience

From the American Magazine.

In the "Interesting People" department of the February American Magazine appears an account of James Farrell, president of the billion-and-a-half-dollar Steel corporation, and said to be the most conscientious corporation official in Wall Street. Following is an extract from the article:

"The most conscientious corporation official in Wall Street." Thus one man.

"Jimmy Farrell? Oh, he used to load scrap in a wire mill." Thus another.

Put these two remarks together and you get in tabloid form the character and history of James A. Farrell, president of the $1,500,000,000 United States Steel corporation.

Let us take another tabloid—and here quote Farrell himself. "I work fourteen hours a day." Notice the tense. This was the reason why the head of the Steel trust amazed all who heard him testify in the corporation's defense to the government's suit for its dissolution recently. When Farrell began life he worked twelve hours a day in the mills. He does not work twelve hours today, but more. His idea of the duties of the presidency of the biggest company in the world is that additional responsibility entails additional work.

I remember how on one occasion I had been trying for several weeks to obtain an interview with Mr. Farrell; but no matter at what hour I arrived at his office he was busy and unable to see me. Eventually I gained admittance. This was at the time when there was a good deal of agitation over the twelve-hour a day shift in the steel mills, and reformers were demanding an eight-hour working day. Farrell's first remark as I entered was: "Sorry I could not see you before, but, you see, I have to work more than twelve hours a day."

But Farrell is the type of man who thrives on work. A big man, physically as well as mentally, he stands well over six feet, notwithstanding the slight stoop of the shoulders, which is the only remaining sign of his early days of labor in the mills—a stoop of strength, not of weakness. His features are large and bold and his hands are those of the doer, the organizer. Years of hard work and responsibility have silvered the hair, but his face otherwise is young. Perhaps the most striking thing about the man's appearance, however, is his directness. His eyes are clear and steady, his whole manner straightforward and open.

What of Farrell the man? Perhaps his most striking characteristic is his innate sense of morality, particularly business morality. This it was that kept him, as shown by letters produced on the occasion of his testimony, from taking part in "pools" in which nearly all steel men at one time or another participated, and which pools did not tend to benefit the consumer. Farrell refused to permit himself to become identified with these pools, and even after the corporation was formed, and it was suggested to him that his opposition to such agreements might be against the interests of the company, he steadfastly refused to countenance them.

A year or so ago Farrell was on a mine inspection trip and arrived at one mine to learn that there had just been a cave-in and that men were at work shoring up the falling walls. Farrell entered the mine cage and gave the signal for the operator to send him down. But the foreman interfered: "You musn't go down there, Mr. Farrell, it's as much as your life is worth."

"Our men are working down there, aren't they?" demanded Farrell impatiently. And again he turned to the operator: "Lower away."

Grandmother's House.

Here was the old farm parlor, on its floor
The rug she braided; there beside the door
The whatnot stood. Such wealth it used to hold!—
Some little beaded bags of blue and gold,
A starfish, shells, a few quaint foreign things,
A red cloth bird she made, with outspread wings.

This was the window of her sunny room,
Where the flowers she tended came to scarlet bloom.
Here in her rocker she was wont to sit;
I see her face, the old sweet look of it,
The dear worn hands that rested for a space,
The snowy silken hair that framed her face.

Here was her kitchen, yellow floored, and there,
A bit beyond, the cool dark milk room where
The great pans stood, a shining even row,
Do you remember how she bade us go,
A happy pair, with bowls, to "help ourselves,"
And what a joy it was to raid the shelves?
The crumbly doughnuts, brown with sugar dipped,
The crock of spicy cookies, where we slipped
Our eager hands? Her soft, low laugh?
—Ah, me,
That it should all come back so poignantly!

Then let us go. Come quick and shut the door;
But first, one more long look, for nevermore
Shall feet of ours find courage to return,
Too warm and bright the fires of memory burn!
Our thanks, good strangers, for your welcoming,
For doors of all those haunted rooms you fling
So widely open. In your debt are we
For kind averted glances, lest you see
The lip that quivers and the wincing eye.
One more long look, then, dear old house, good-bye.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the Owen-Glass, 1914 model currency bill was in process of construction, Representative Carter Glass, chairman of the house committee in which the bill was incubated, sat in a weighty discussion one day with Senator Robert L. Owen, papa to the senate draft of the bill.

After they had talked about their forthcoming offspring for a long time and were about to separate, Glass suddenly shifted topics and inquired:

"Bob, speaking of currency, I have often wondered where you ever got the money to buy those cannon firecrackers the day you made such a big stir down in Lynchburg?"

You know, Owen and Glass, parents of the currency bill, were born two or three doors apart in Lynchburg, Va., and played together as boys. It was a rare thing for either one to catch sight of money in those days and the idea that they would separate, grow up, and meet after many years in the national capitol to draft a currency bill for the nation would, of course, have seemed preposterous.

Owen's uncle, by the way, was a doctor, and was for years physician to the Glass family, although he missed being on hand when Carter Glass was born. The first that young Robert Owen ever heard of the Glass family was when a fellow townsman shot little Carter Glass' father's eye out, on account of an article that had appeared in Glass' newspaper.

But to get back to Glass' question about the cannon firecrackers:

Lynchburg was a quiet little place and "Bob" Owen thought it should be aroused up a bit. He saved his money a penny at a time until he was able to buy two or three dozen large cannon firecrackers. It was not the Fourth of July, but that made Owen's project all the more noticeable. He put his mess of big firecrackers into a large and commodious basket and went about placing them on street corners and lighting them. As fast as one cracker went off and attracted a crowd, Owen was a block away lighting another. His enterprise caused more talk than anything that had happened in Lynchburg for a long time—especially among the youngsters, for a boy counted himself lucky if he had the price of one big firecracker. No one but Owen ever had the patience to save up for cannon crackers in dozen lots.

Carter Glass was deeply impressed with Owen's great feat at the time, but the thing slipped from his mind and never occurred to him again until here the other day. And when he did think of it, it was small wonder that he dropped the discussion of national currency long enough to have Owen tell him how he acquired the currency to buy all those cannon firecrackers.

Events move sometimes in funny little circles.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma got up in the house a short time ago and delivered a speech boosting the proposition for government aid to manual training in the public schools.

It was a good speech, with ideas and facts in it. When Murray had finished, Representative Charles Davis of Minnesota walked over to offer him congratulations.

"Do you take an interest in that sort of thing?" inquired Murray.

"Yes, indeed," replied Davis; "I got up a vocational education bill and made several speeches on it myself when I first came to congress. I also had the pleasure of speaking before a number of educational associations over the country in regard to the bill, and I have been a strong advocate of such a measure ever since. When did you first become interested in it?"

"Well," replied Murray, "I guess my first serious interest in the proposition dates back to a speech I read in a paper at Oklahoma City several years ago. A big national education association met there and a man then in congress delivered a speech before them on vocational education that deeply impressed me. I've been investigating and following it up ever since. And, by the way, the congressman who got me started was named Davis—the same as yours. Funny coincidence that he would have the same name, wasn't it?"

"Yes," laughed Davis, "and the coincidence goes even farther than you thought. For I was the Davis."

As he was about to carve a handsome large turkey and apportion the white meat and dressing among a number of distinguished guests at his home one night, Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio was reminded of an awful experience.

It was when he was a young lawyer, and shortly after he was married. He had gone to a small town in Southern Ohio, some distance from his home, to try a lawsuit and the case ran up to the Thanksgiving season.

All the lawyers were anxious to get home, especially Atlee Pomerene, as it would be his first holiday with his new wife. But the judge was equally anxious to have them stay and get the case disposed of.

Atlee Pomerene got up and proposed that they adjourn over Thanksgiving—giving as his reason the necessity for looking up another witness or two. But he failed to fool the judge.

"Young man," said the judge, shaking his finger sternly at Pomerene, "you've got more turkey in your eye now than you'll have in your mouth tomorrow. We're going to stick right here."

Vice President Marshall has a double in Washington. He is—

But wait.

During the Baltimore convention Edward B. Clark, Washington correspondent for the Chicago Evening Post, sat in one of the galleries talking to a group of Indiana people. Within plain sight were a number of lithographs of Thomas R. Marshall.

"You Indiana folks would have more chance to have your man Marshall nominated," remarked Clark, "if you did not display so many pictures of him. He probably is a good man and all that, but these pictures make him look like a professional horrible example."

Marshall has gray hair and a gray mustache. So has Clark.

Just as Clark was in the midst of deploring the Marshall pictures, a stranger walked over, put out his hand and said to Clark:

"Good afternoon, Governor Marshall!"

Keeping Up With Minnesota Editors

Press Comments on Current Events.

Why Not, Indeed?

Remer Record: The Duluth Herald, in a recent editorial, suggests the commission form of government for the state. Why not? The state is naught but a big business enterprise, and like all other business establishments should be run on a conservative and economical system. The state can well utilize all of its surplus funds in ways that would greatly benefit her people and the state in general. This electing and sending down to the capitol, every two years, a horde of men, office seekers whose greatest aim is to get that Hon. prefixed to his name; this is an expensive business for the people, and we honestly believe the time is ripe for the taxpayers to call a halt on what we deem needless expenditure—sending a horde of hungy office seekers to the state capitol to spread upon our statutes more dead letters laws—and Heaven knows there are too many there already.

Railroads and all other conservative business concerns curtail all unnecessary expenses and thus add to their profits. If the commission form of government is profitable and a success in the management of large cities, why would it not be feasible for operating the affairs of the state?

Plenty of Noise Assured.

Elk River Star News: The candidacy of "Jim" Peterson of Minneapolis for governor will furnish the campaign with about all the oratory it is liable to get. Mr. Peterson can scatter words on a given proposition in a way that cannot be equaled by any other candidate thus far mentioned.

Kicking on the Game Commission.

Aurora News: Governor Eberhart may have been sincere when he appointed his economy and efficiency commission, but it would look from other of his actions that it was more of a political move on his part. In all the departments of state there has been none more lacking in effectiveness than the state game and fish commission. Northern Minnesota newspaper men, who are aware of the conditions from their actual contact with the great North woods and waters were unanimous in asking for the appointment of a man really interested in game protection and propogation in place of the executive agent, H. A. Rider, whose term expired the first of the year. Sportsmen from the entire territory backed this proposal without qualification. Yet in the face of this Mr. Rider has been reappointed to the commission and it is taken as an assured fact that he will again be the executive agent. Rider and his game wardens in this territory have been little concerned with real game protection and his reappointment will be a serious handicap to those sportsmen who have taken a decided interest in a worthy cause.

One-Armed Diplomat Succeeds.

Browns Valley Tribune: Instead of sending an army to Mexico, President Wilson sent a one-armed diplomat from Minnesota, and it will probably turn out in demonstrating that the president was wise. At least a lot of young American blood was saved from slaughter, even though powder manufacturers don't make so much profit.

The "So-Called" Especially.

Princeton Union: From casual observations it appears that the so-called "Progressives" of the country are creeping out of their holes and then creeping back again.

The Power of Place

Kansas City Star: A gentleman living in Milwaukee happens to hold the belief that a statute designed to prevent the bringing of diseased or imbecile children into the world is against public policy. This gentleman thinks it is perfectly legitimate to charge a man $2 for a marriage license, the fees to be used to pay the salaries of clerks in the marriage license office. But he thinks it violates the man's constitutional rights to make him pay $3 for a physician's certificate of good health.

Now, that a gentleman should have these half-witted views is not surprising. A good many gentlemen are half-witted when it comes to a consideration of public policies.

But it happens that this particular Milwaukee gentleman is a judge of the state circuit court of Wisconsin. And just because of that accidental circumstance he has set aside a very mild and reasonable statute for the restriction of marriages among those who are physically and mentally unfit to marry. The statute may have been drafted by other citizens who knew in a minute more of constitutional law than the gentleman on the bench will ever know. But no matter; the fact that he is on the bench makes him the supreme arbiter of laws, constitutions and public policies, unless and until his opinion shall be overruled by the opinion of other gentlemen on a higher bench.

It is this subversion of popular government to the opinion or caprice of any one of more than 4,000 judges throughout the United States which creates the strong demand for the remedy Mr. Roosevelt has championed. That remedy is that whenever a judge or court says a statute of public policy is unconstitutional, the question that thus arises between the legislative servants and the judicial servants shall be referred for final decision to the masters of both—the people.

A Mighty Good Guess.

Philadelphia Telegraph: They were talking about fortune tellers, astrologers and other kindred things in the lobby of a Washington hotel a few nights ago, when Congressman K. D. McKellar of Tennessee told of a friend of his who once consulted a phrenologist.

Running his hands over the subject's head, the phrenologist sorted out the different bumps and explained their significance in a talk that sounded like higher intellectuality.

"This large bump running across the back of your head," he continued, going over the territory just above the collar zone, "means that you are inclined to be curious, even to a reckless degree."

"Right you are, old pal!" explained the subject. "You certainly made a good guess that time!"

"Ah," said the phrenologist, with a pleased smile. "Then you admit the truth of our science."

"Yes," answered the subject. "I shoved my head into a dumb waiter shaft to see if the waiter was coming up, and it was coming down."

Consistent.

New York World: It is quite consistent with the record of Boston-ruled Houghton county, Mich., that its grand jury found "no true bill" against the men who deported Moyer. In Houghton county the law is not golden; it is copper.

OUR BIRD FRIENDS

Prof. Forbush reports finding 453 noxious mammals (rats, mice, etc.) in the nest of one barn owl. Compare that with the record of any cat!

The study of economic ornithology should have a place in every school, farmers' meetings, and on every program where time can be given to it.

In our schools we need positive instruction on the value and importance of birds in the economy of nature. Children should be taught to do things for the birds, provide food, shelter, etc. The joy is so much greater than that derived from the dead bodies, either for food or plumage.

"A dead bird does not help the appearance of an ugly woman," and a pretty woman needs no such adornment.

Someone else has said: "The two worst enemies of birds are women and cats."

A single cat has been known to destroy fifty-eight birds in one year.

Watch your cat!

FACETIOUS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

This is a mean old world. Just one thing after another. I am suffering from a fit of indignation and a raise in water rates. Now, I do not boast of it, but I have a strong leaning toward philanthropy. Some time ago it occurred to me that it would be a noble act and reduce the fire risk in my neighborhood if an automatic sprinkler system were installed in my premises. Understand me rightly, it was not the fact of the saving enough on insurance premiums to provide a rich interest on the investment that induced me to put in the system. The city had installed a main in front of my premises and had to keep it full of water. I might as well benefit by it. So the sprinklers were put in and the tank was built. A tank is not an artistic monument, but next to fat men nothing gives a city an air of prosperity so much as tanks. Well, the system did not cost the city a penny; if a leak developed in the underground pipe I would have it repaired at my own expense, providing the city officials found it out. I would even repair it if they did not find it out if the water bothered me. If my engineer made a connection to the underground pipe or obtained a plentiful supply of water free of cost, if I was informed of it, I should treat that engineer with scorn for three days and maybe a week; anyway the city officials are quite welcome to mooch around and look over things whenever they want to. Outside of making regular inspections, all the city is required to do is to deliver the water and keep an ample pressure up to my valves, that's all; and yet the water department has the unadulterated gall to require me to give them a portion of the money I have saved on insurance premiums. They really hadn't orter. Is it not enough to arouse the indignation of a philanthropically inclined gentleman? When I informed them that a sprinkler system uses no water except in the event of a fire, and is as good as an extra hydrant in a community, they say that a hydrant uses no water and also reduces the fire risk, yet they collect from the general public for it. Their arguments disgust me; as if an individual were not entitled to more consideration than the general public. I am so indignant that I feel like learning to play the fiddle, then like that gay old Roman scamp, if she starts to burn, climb to the top of the tank, look at 'em run and say, let her go Gallagher, fol de rol, fol de rol, iddle de day. SAINT BILL.

Duluth, Jan. 27.

SEE WHAT WE STARTED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In last night's issue in the Open Court you state that a "pair of twins probably means four persons."

What do you know about twins? Ever had any? Are you a twin yourself? Don't you know that a pair is two of a kind? Ever hold a pair of twins in your lap—or a pair of queens? (In your hand, of course.)

Richard Grant White, in "Words and Their Uses," says that it is correct to say a pair of twins, a pair of scissors, pair of trousers, pair of things that are worn under trousers.

You often yell at the entire editorial force: "Who in the warm place has swiped my scissors?" You don't say pair of scissors, do you?

But you say to the pink lady at the department store: "I wish to buy a pair of scissors." And you gaze longingly at a pair of ruby lips, and a pair of laughing blue eyes—if she has two eyes. You don't say: "I want to buy a scissors," do you?

And you wear a pair of trousers, don't you? (Daytimes, I mean.) But two pairs of trousers are not four trousers, are they? Not even "probably." But a pair is two of a kind, isn't it? Well, then, are a pair of trousers two of a kind? Suppose you bought a pair of suspenders, would you get sufficient support for the lower halves of two suits of clothes?

Two men couldn't wear a pair of trousers at the same time, could they? But a pair is two of a kind, isn't it—I mean, ain't they? One pair of twins, when they grow up, will have to have two pairs of trousers, won't they? But if a pair of twins means four persons, "probably," then what?

A pair is two of a kind, isn't it? If you bought a pair of vases and one of the vases was stolen, you'd still have one vase left, wouldn't you? But if you went into a store and bought a pair of trousers and one was stolen what would you wear home? Nothing, but a sense of shame.

One twin is one person, isn't it? And the other twin is another person, isn't it? And that makes two persons, doesn't it? And a pair is two, isn't it? So you have a pair of twins, don't you? And that's two persons, isn't it—not four?

If you had two pairs of twins, you'd have four persons, wouldn't you? And you wouldn't qualify it by saying "probably"—not after the first day.

A pair of twins is plural, isn't it? And a pair of trousers singular, isn't it? But one pair of trousers on one pair of twins would be still more singular, wouldn't it?

If you held a pair of kings and somebody called for a show-down and you replied: "I have a pair of kings—probably four," you'd be compelled to show 'em up, wouldn't you?

Well, if you ever tell any of your friends the same thing about a pair of twins you'll have to do the same thing, won't you?

Very sincerely yours,
DAVID HENRY DAY.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self- addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Miss Berle W." asks: "Will you kindly prescribe a safe remedy to reduce my weight? I prefer a tablet, as I cannot take liquid medicine."

Answer: Obtain of any well-stocked druggist a tube of 5-grain arbolone tablets and take as per the directions which accompany the packages. You will reduce at the rate of a pound a day after the first few days of treatment. This remedy reduces goitre also.

"Howard" writes: "What can I take for headache, dark spots before my eyes, dizzy spells and also constipation?"

Answer: Constipation is the cause of all your trouble, but I can relieve you if you will follow my directions. Get at the drug store three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). These are packed in sealed tubes and contain full directions. These little tablets purify the blood, the bowels and liver are stimulated into healthy action and will gradually cure your trouble.

"Little Girl"—To correct your child of bed-wetting get tincture cubebs, 1 dram; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz., and tincture rhus-aromatic, 2 drams. Give 10 to 15 drops in water about one hour before meals.

"Louise L." writes: "Please prescribe something which will rid me of a bad case of catarrh. It is becoming worse all the time."

Answer: Thousands suffer from catarrhal conditions such as you describe and the surest relief and preventive is to wash the nostrils and gargle the throat daily with antiseptic vilane powder, which is sold in two and eight ounce boxes with full directions for home use.

"Kathryn" writes: "If you know of anything that will stop premature baldness, cure dandruff and itching scalp, I should appreciate a reply."

Answer: The following simple remedy will stop dandruff and promote a luxurious growth of hair. Ask for plain yellow minyol which can be had in 4 oz. jars and use regularly according to directions. I have seen the most astonishing results from its use that I heartily recommend it to all who suffer with any disease of the scalp.

"Mrs. A. F." writes: "Really if I could find a true remedy to increase my weight, I should be the happiest woman alive. I am so thin and scrawny, it is a shame. Why can not I be like other women? I do not work hard and have pretty good health."

Answer: You can "be like other women" if you will follow my advice, which is to use three grain hyponuclane tablets packed in sealed cartons with directions, and most widely prescribed by intelligent physicians everywhere. They improve the nutrition, add red blood corpuscles to the blood, improve the complexion, but thorough and regular use must follow to get these good results.

"Mr. Ben" writes: "My joints are becoming so stiff from rheumatism that I can scarcely walk. Is there any help for me?"

Answer: Of course there is help for you and for all others who suffer from rheumatism. Take the following and you will be entirely relieved: Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate 4 drams; wine of colchicum, ½ oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; and syrup sarsaparilla, 5 ozs. Mix and take a teaspoonful at meal time and again at bed time.

"Mary J." says: "Every winter I have a cold which lasts till spring. I have tried several doctors prescriptions but they do no good so I ask you what to do."

Answer: The best medicine to relieve colds and coughs is made by mixing the contents of a 2½ oz., bottle of essence mentho laxene with honey or home made sugar syrup. Full directions for making are given on the bottle and also how to take. You will find this will cure your cough in a very few days and it is perfectly harmless and pleasant to take.

J. T. C. writes: "I have tried numerous remedies for stomach disorders, indigestion, gas, pains after eating, and have found no relief. Please prescribe."

Answer: The best and most effective treatment is tablets triopeptine. Obtain in sealed carton with full directions.

"Nerve Wreck" writes: Is it possible to find a medicine which by its tonic or nutritive powers will bring the glow of health and ambition back to a man who has everything in the world but health and happiness. I am dull, forgetful, despondent, weak, trembling, short of breath and suffer more or less with pain in spine and back of head."

Answer: Your condition indicates that need of a strong, harmless tonic nutritive, to restore nerve equilibrium, which in turn fortifies and strengthens the organs of nutrition, thus vitalizing the blood and promoting new cell and tissue to take care of the waste forces. Three grain cadomene tablets packed in sealed tubes with full directions are recommended in all such cases.

C. R. C. writes: "I suffer with kidney and bladder trouble, have large puffs under eyes, swelling of ankles, irregular painful urination, with headache, fever, chills, loss of appetite, etc."

Answer: The symptoms you mention are present when the functions of the kidneys are abnormal, and I would recommend that you begin taking at once balmwort tablets, sold only in sealed tubes with full directions.

Victor Murdock, of Kansas

(By Sarcyard.)

Washington, Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—I said the other day that only old "Subsidy Pom" and John James Ingalls had secured re-election to the United States senate from Kansas. That was error. Preston B. Plumb was chosen senator to succeed himself and died while serving his second term. Never were two senators from the same state more different than Plumb and Ingalls. The former was a heavy man, physically and mentally. He moved slowly, physically and mentally. He was eternally threatening to "insurge" on the tariff question; but he never did. Kansas was then too loyal for that.

Ingalls was a very brilliant man. His command of language was second only to that of Matt Carpenter. He had a scorpion tongue, and his mission in the national councils was to tell the South how mean she was and what a traitor she had been. The man was as lean as Lazarus. About six feet, he weighed about 110. Erect as a grenadier, he commanded attention everywhere, for he was a striking figure. He counted that day lost that he had not succeeded in making somebody uncomfortable. He might have been a great statesman; he now and then was content to be a very contemptible demagogue. He used to twist the British Lion's tail, not that he cared a rap for the old beast, but it read well out at Lawrence, where, as patriotism was then weighed, it consisted of approval of tariff robbery levied on the fields of Kansas to enrich the shops of New England, and old England was a free trade country.

Finally, when it was too late—when the "loyalty" game was played out—Ingalls in his brilliant and fool speech, 'The Image and Superscription of Caesar," sought to weather the storm and failed. His seat was given to the unspeakable Peffer, and as Garrett Davis of Kentucky said of Henry Wilson of Massachusetts, who wore the toga that once was Webster's, "Ye Gods, what a succession!"

Ingalls' sarcastic invective did not even spare the state of his birth, when he declared that African slavery was not found to be a sin in Massachusetts till they discovered that it was not profitable there. And that is true. Had it been as profitable in New England and Iowa as it was supposed to be in South Carolina and Arkansas, African slavery would be in the green tree today.

But Kansas has progressed. For a third of a century here was the exordium of a stump speech in Kansas:

"Veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, ladies and gentlemen, fellow citizens of Lawrence: It was a causeless and wicked rebellion against the best government Almighty God ever allowed man to form. The fortitude and the valor with which these heroic men fought for [illegible] and freedom now belong to glory and to history," and a whole lot of damned rot like that. It was the only road to office; it was the soul of graft; it made senators and congressmen, governors and judges, and Kansas for thirty years was as fanatic as John Brown and as brutal as Kate Bender. But a generation arose that knew not Moloch.

And, one morning, Kansas waked up—Jerry Simpson shook her—and asked "What is there in all this stuff for Kansas?" Now, whatever else Kansas is, Kansas is no fool, though she has acted more foolishnes than most any other of the states of the Union. But Kansas got to thinking and she wanted to get all the profit of the enterprise. Then Kansas got into her "noggin" that the corn field was paying too much tribute to the iron works and so in 1896 Kansas went Democratic.

True she returned to the wallow and the vomit, but she revolted again, and Kansas is now become pretty well regenerate. Of all the Northern commonwealths Kansas is most Saxon. She has never invited foreign immigration and she is nearly as completely American as Kentucky or Tennessee.

Today Victor Murdock is the first citizen, as he is the first stateman, of Kansas. Intellectually he is one of the foremost men in public life at the capital. His character is lofty. His moral courage might gaze an eagle blind. His ideals are the highest, and it is such men as he who must make our country the first of the nations. If I could direct the councils of the Democratic party of Kansas it would result in the indorsement by that party of the candidacy of this noble fellow for the United States senate.

What an independent chap it is—this Victor Murdock; what a clear vision he has—this Victor Murdock; and what a high rank he would take in the United States senate—this Victor Murdock.

Put him in the senate and it is not unlikely that a day will come ere this century is half done with this world when Victor Murdock will be a Democratic successor of Woodrow Wilson as president of the United States.

BUSINESS IS EXPANDING

Duluth Jobbers Are Booking Liberal Orders in All Lines.

Higher Prices Reported in Sugars and Many Hardware Staples.

Taking expressions of opinion gathered during a roundup of the various Duluth wholesale establishments, sentiment in business circles is steadily growing more optimistic. Further improvement is noted in the volume of orders being placed in many lines, and with increased demand in some staples, a hardening tendency in prices is reported.

Taken on the whole, the trade situation is thought to be satisfactory in every direction, and local jobbers are counting upon marked expansions in their scope of operations from now on during the present year.

Collections are reported satisfactory, current paper being well taken care of on the average.

Dry Goods Trade Healthy.

The dry goods trade is in the most healthy condition in years, in the opinion of F. A. Patrick & Co. Merchants are said to be ordering a good class of goods and to be making careful and liberal selections of stocks. General current orders are good, and it is noted that credit conditions are improving. The house comments on the opening of a larger proportion of new accounts than in years back. Business is being found especially active in the firm's mackinaw department and in other lines of its own manufacture. Its knitting mill is now in full operation and is running on woolen hosiery. Machines for the knitting of sweaters are being installed and a force of girls to operate them is being engaged. According to advices from over the territory, merchants are preparing for a busy spring trade.

Hardware Prices Stiffening.

Business in staple hardware lines and features is reported brisk by the two local jobbing establishments, the Marshall-Wells Hardware company and the Kelley-WeHow-Thomson company, to have shown remarkable improvement during the last few days. The iron and steel market has firmed up appreciably with the mills refusing to accept specifications beyond sixty days delivery at the present basis of prices. Steel sheets are up $4 a ton, and woven wire has stiffened up 2 per cent.

Sugars Are Advancing.

Orders in groceries are liberal for the season, according to the Barthe-Martin company of this city and the Twohy-Eimon Mercantile Company of Superior. Sugars are up 10 cents a hundred this week, with the market in them much stronger. Coffees are still weak on account of heavy Brazilian shipments and accumulated stocks in the hands of the large jobbers. In the meantime the trade is buying only to cover current requirements.

The situation in canned and dried fruits and vegetables is unchanged with the market stiff in California products. Fancy Carolina rice is stronger, but Japan rice is offering unchanged. Oatmeal quotations are strong on comparatively moderate supplies and the usual heavy winter demand being met with from consumers.

Leather Market Firm.

Quotations in all grades of leather are now steadier than they have been in weeks and in the opinion of the Schulze Brothers company, they are likely to remain at about their present range for some time. Gratifying trade in horse collars and harness is reported by that company, and taken in the aggregate January shipments of goods are advised to have passed last year's figures for that month three days ago. The house now has its new catalog in preparation and expects to have it ready to issue by March 1.

Footwear Sells Freely.

"Our business is running well ahead of last year," said F. E. Church, sales manager of the Northern Shoe company. Mercahnts through the West are said to be gradually working down their stocks of rubbers and heavy goods, and they are placing liberal future orders in general footwear. The local company's factory continues to operate on a capacity basis in all departments.

Good Furniture Orders.

Though the present is the off-season in furniture, the De Witt-Seitz company reported the receipt of satisfactory salesmen's and mail orders. H. F. Seitz, who returned yesterday from a three weeks' visit to the markets at Grand Rapids, Mich., Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, avers that prices will average up about the same as last year, but that advances are likely in combination cases, buffets etc. Changes in styles are comparatiely few with the tendency in the direction of increased plainness in all lines. Among the buyers at the company's warehouse yesterday were: A. E. Perrier, Marble, Minn., and J. Johnson, Cloquet, Minn.

Building Papers Higher.

The Peyton Paper company advised that the present month promises to be the best in its history for the season in point of volume of business. It is coming to hand well distributed from over the territory covered by its salesmen.

Outside of an advance in building papers for future delivery, no changes in quotations were noted.

E. C. Kiley, Grand Rapids, Minn., and T. G. Johnson, Two Harbors, were among the outside buyers in the house today.

STILLWATER, MINN., GETS NEXT MEET

Upper Mississippi River Improvement Association to Meet There.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—The annual convention of the Upper Mississippi River Improvement association will be held at Stillwater June 17 and 18 next. This decision was reached by the executive council of the association which adjourned last night after a two days' session.

The plan of river terminals advocated by the executive council will be presented at the convention and will be discussed by river terminal experts of the five states comprising the association.

Sees Future of Big Idea.

In discussing the project, President Thomas Wilkinson of Burlington, Iowa, said he was certain of the ultimate success of the plan as outlined at the executive session. With the completion of the Panama canal, he said, the natural transportation route would be over the Mississippi river, and while the handling of freight in this manner would mean a loss to the eastern markets and to the railroads, the decrease in cost of transportation would reduce the cost of living in the central and northwestern states. Mr. Wilkinson said that under the proposed system the cost of freight transportation would be cut in half.

The January grand jury which has been engaged for the past three weeks with an investigation of police affairs is expected to submit its final report in the matter to Judge Cant in district court this afternoon. If the report is made public this evening, a full account of what the grand jury found will be contained in a Herald extra.

W. A. Hicken, commissioner of public safety, testified before the inquisitorial body this morning. He spent two hours in the jury room. It was announced by the foreman at the noon adjournment of the body that the jury would submit its report as soon as it could be drafted and agreed upon. This may take longer than is anticipated and the report may not be made public until tomorrow morning.

Was Very Thorough.

The investigation was a most thorough one. Every charge of misconduct and malfeasance, every accusation of graft and corruption, whether brought to the attention of the grand jury through the instrumentality of the News Tribune or from other sources, was sifted to the bottom. In all, ninety witnesses were called.

Real Burns detectives and sleuth reporters of the morning paper staff presented their "evidence" to the grand jury. Just what the character of the "evidence" was, is at this time, largely a matter for speculation.

Each charge was taken up in turn and every witness supposed to know anything about the facts and who could be reached by a subpoena was summoned and required to tell whatever he or she knew about the particular matter under consideration.

The investigation began on Monday, Jan. 12, so far as the grand jury is concerned. As a matter of fact, however, County Attorney Greene had been quietly working on the matter ever since the public mass meeting at which the News Tribune was put on trial for its repeated attacks on the city's department of public safety.

At this mass meeting, Charles S. Mitchell of the morning paper staff declared that the books of one keeper of a house of ill fame would show that $40,000 was paid by her in varying sums to members of the police force. This charge has since been thoroughly investigated. The woman was brought before the jury and the alleged "graft book" was opened.

County Attorney Greene was present in the audience and publicly announced at that time that if he News Tribune or any one else had any evidence of graft reflecting on the police department that he would see to it that the evidence went before the January grand jury. He declared that an extraordinary grand jury would not be needed.

Search For Evidence.

Immediately after the mass meeting, the county attorney engaged himself with matters pertaining to the investigation. For two or three weeks before the grand jury convened, Mr. Greene was collecting what evidence he could bearing on the situation. After having taken the initiative in the matter it is understood that the county attorney asked the morning paper to co-operate with him in the matter. During the week just prior to the convening of the grand jury, the News Tribune assisted the prosecuting attorney in connection with the probe.

Has Cost $1,000.

The investigation has cost the taxpayers of St. Louis county more than $1,000. The exact figure is $1,054.65. Of this amount, $982 was expended for jury fees made extra by reason of the investigation, and $172.65 went for witness fees. This, of course, does not include the time of two deputy sheriffs, one for serving subpoenas and another in charge of the grand jury, nor does it take into account the time occupied by the county attorney. Police officers and city officials were not reimbursed for their time taken up while on the witness stand. The largest individual witness fee was that which was paid to A. G. Lunt, a Burns detective in the employ of the morning paper. The county paid him $42.89, which includes mileage from Chicago and four days' witness fees.

C. H. Troyer, chief of police, testified before the grand jury on several occasions during the course of the investigation. Other police officers called were A. G. Fiskett, captain of police; H. A. Fritz, lieutenant of police; John Roberg, sergeant of police; Harry Toewe, detective; F. A. Schulte, detective, and Patrolmen A. A. Wanvick, John B. Connor, John H. Callahan, John Englert, Ira L. Ricketts, David Olson and Axel Johnson. Two former members of the police force were also called. They were John D. Kenna, former sergeant of police; Henry Brouilette, former patrolman, and F. E. Resche, former captain of police.

Among the city officials who testified before the inquisitorial body were William I. Prince, mayor; W. A. Hicken, commissioner of public safety, and C. S. Palmer, city clerk. Among the former public officials who were called were: John H. Norton, former county attorney; Marcus B. Cullum, former mayor, and George E. Duren, former city sealer of weights and measures.

Other Witnesses.

Other witnesses who appeared before the grand jury were: Mary Le Flohic, alias Madam Gain; John W. Nagel, managing editor of the News Tribune; Marie Obermeyer, alias Daisy Stover; Lars Rue, News Tribune reporter; Julia Wallace, Jackson L. Darrimore, News Tribune reporter; W. S. Wright, B. P. Tinker's catchers so far given out are Owens, Washington; Allen, a local player, and Mulvaney of Cincinnati, with Killifer still claimed. Hendrix, Pittsburg; Brennen, Philadelphia; Chalmers, Philadelphia, Packard, Cincinnati, and Lange, a local man, claimed by the Chicago Americans, will be the main reliances among his pitchers.

Becker, Kading, Westerzill of St. Joseph, Tinker and Zelder of the New York Americans compose the infield, and Wickland, who jumped from the Cincinnati club last night, and Zwilling, claimed by the Boston Nationals, with a number of recruits, the outfield.

DIFFICULTY IN SECURING JURY

Difficulty is again being experienced in drawing a jury to try Mary Le Flohic, alias Madam Gain, a second time on a charge of conducting the Clifton, now Elgin hotel, 321 West First street, between June 24 and July 5 last as a house of ill-fame. At the noon adjournment of court, only one juror had been accepted by both the state and defense. He is Walter Spearin, employed by the Northern Pacific Railway company as a freight house foreman.

Before the drawing of a jury was begun, B. M. Goldberg, attorney for the defendant, moved the court for a dismissal of the indictment on the grounds that the madam had not been brought to trial as speedily as the law requires. She was indicted at the September term of court. Mason M. Forbes, of the county attorney's office, opposed the motion and after showing to the court that there was reasonable excuse for every delay, the motion was denied by Judge Cant.

The crime for which Madam Gain is indicted is punishable by either a jail or penitentiary sentence or a fine.

SHERLEY ASSAILS THE "ANNUAL WAR SCARE"

Tells House That Nation Is Not So Unprepared for War.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Representations of the unpreparedness for war and "the annual war scare" were assailed today by Representative Sherley of Kentucky, when he presented the fortification bill to the house for general debate.

Representative Sherley referred particularly to Rear Admiral Vreeland's opinion, given to the naval affairs committee yesterday, to the effect that the United States was not in a position to defend the Philippines.

"I can assure the house that our fortifications are in no such condition of unpreparedness as to cause alarm," said Representative Sherley. "As to the Philippines, the island of Corregidor, commanding the entrance to Manila bay, has been completely and strongly fortified and it is in a position to withstand attack for six months without assistance from the outside."

As to Ammunition.

Representative Sherley referred to field artillery ammunition, for which the war department has demanded larger appropriations.

"If we contemplated taking the field in a war that would require an army of 500,000 within the next year or two," said he, "then the appropriation of $900,000 for field artillery ammunition in this bill is not sufficient. It should be several millions. But if we do not expect a great war for five or ten years, then the present provision is ample and generous."

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: FEB. 1.

Luke xi., 1-13; The Unfriendly Neighbor.

CONNECTION.

After the feast of Dedication which Jesus attended in Jerusalem in December, A. D. 29, He retired from the city for quiet work where the excitement would not be so intense and went over to Perea, "the Beyond," which means the country beyond the Jordan. There we shall find Him in quite a number of our lessons, for He spent some weeks there. His death was only a few months ahead. He knew it and felt it.

THE LESSON.

I.

What to Pray For. 1-4.

"And it came to pass, as He was praying in a certain place, that when He ceased, one of his disciples said unto Him, Lord, teach us to pray, even as John also taught his disciples. And He said unto them, When ye pray, say, Father, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Give us day by day our daily bread. And forgive us our sins; for we ourselves also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And bring us not into temptation."

1. ART.—There is an art in praying, yet it is not an artificial thing. There is an instinct in the human heart to pray to some One higher. It is falsely trained, but Jesus would train it aright. The sense of need is universal. It is in the constitution of man that he must pray. Then we will learn to pray. Orientals have a great notion of formal utterance of prayer and so did the Jews. It is to be studied. The great religious teachers had taught their followers. John had. Now Jesus must. We note the loving confidence the disciples felt and the loving care He took with them.

2. BREADTH.—Note the points involved in the prayer He taught them. Their conception of God was changed. He is not Creator or Ruler or Provider alone, but Father. He appeals to their care of God, for He is our care, even as we are His. God's interests on earth, our physical needs, our spiritual integrity—all varieties of needs are mentioned.

3. ORDER.—The first is God's interests. Two things are asked, that His name may honored and that He may come to rule on earth as completely as He does in heaven. Next is the prayer for physical blessings. He is interested in our food, its quantity, quality, way it's cooked and eaten, way it's secured and what's done with the strength we gain from our bread. Bread being used as representative of all food. Third, a clean life and protection against influences that will lead us astray. That can come only through forgiveness, which means to send away. That is the only way on earth to get rid of sin—get God to send it away from the heart and from His book of remembrance, in other words, to forgive it. God's protection against temptation is necessary or none of us would stand in the onset. But there is one condition on which we can receive God's forgiveness—that we shall forgive others. No use praying the prayer if you can't do that.

II.

Two Illustrations of Prayer. 5-13.

"And He said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say to him, Friend, lend me three loaves; for a friend of mine is come to me from a journey, and I have nothing to set before him; and he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not; the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give thee? I say unto you, Though he will not rise and give him because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will arise and give him as many as he needeth. And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. And of which of you that is a father shall his son ask a loaf, and he give him a stone? or a fish, and he for a fish give him a serpent? Or if he shall ask an egg, will he give him a scorpion? If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?"

1. CONTRAST.—Prayer is based on God's nature and our natures. It is our nature to need and desire to pray and always to pray, whether we pray aright or not. It is God's nature to want to hear us praying and to answer our prayers. He gets great pleasure in hearing us talk to Him as we get pleasure in hearing our children talk to us. Sometimes the talking is praise, sometimes merely fellowship, sometimes petition or praying proper. The latter is what Jesus has in mind—supplication in behalf of ourselves or others. The parable Jesus first speaks is to encourage praying by contrast. Here is a man who asks his neighbor for help in a critical time. Bread is made for day at a time and at night there is usually none left. He wanted three loaves for the friend, but the neighbor makes all kinds of excuses and finally gets up and lends them simply to get rid of him. He didn't want to do it, because he was stingy or too lazy to get up after all the family had turned in for the night. He saw it would be less bother to give them and let the persistent fellow go. The argument is that if a selfish man will help for such a reason as that, how much more will your Father who loves you and has all sorts of blessings ready for you and is just watching for a chance to bestow them. God gives not because of our importunity, but because we are friends and relatives, kinfolks. For that reason all effort must be made in prayer, asking; still further, seeking; further still, knocking at the door. That means our whole heart must be in our praying, not to make an impression on Him but to fit ourselves for receiving.

2. RESEMBLANCE.—Here is an interesting bit of resemblance. It is between an earthly and the heavenly Father. God allows us to reason from the lesser to the greater, from the lower to the higher. An earthly father will not injure his son by giving him what he ought not to have nor deny what he needs simply by withholding it. If he is a normal father he will not. Now, once get hold of the truth that God is our Father, and you are secure in your confidence that He will give you what your nature needs. All that was spoken in what we call the Lord's Prayer is an expression of our needs yet with a sense of the Father's interests that is strictly becoming in a child of His. We want our Father's name thought of and spoken with reverence, "hallowed," for His name stands for His nature; we want His rulership recognized with love everywhere on earth as it is in heaven, because He's our Father; we want our Father's will done, for we know it is right and best for us. No man shall be led by our example to speak slightingly of Him. So, we know He is as good as any earthly father. Therefore we know He will listen to us and give us what we need. A loaf looks like a stone, the round thing they knew, but no father will confuse the two. A scorpion may roll itself up to look like an egg, but father won't make a mistake. A slender fish may look like a serpent of some kind, but sharp eyes cannot be deceived and a loving heart will not bestow the wrong thing in anger or brutality. The best gift the heavenly Father can make is the Holy Spirit—all because He is Father. We pray, not because He has promised to answer but because He has the nature to answer; not because His word has been given but because He is what He is. It is in a father's nature to provide for his children and listen to their requests.

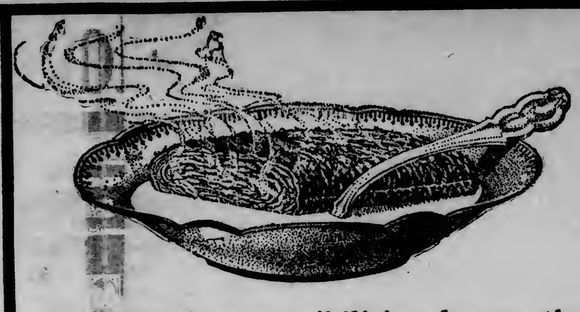

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

"For there is a right and a wrong way of praying. Man must pray—he cannot help himself. But how he blunders in his attempts at prayer sometimes! Look at the Hindu cutting and maiming himself. Look at the Mongol with his praying machine! Ah, yes, man needs to be taught how to pray."—Anon.

"I have a thousand times tested the efficiency of sudden prayer in moments of difficulty, when confronted with a little temptation, when overwhelmed with irritation, before an anxious interview, before writing a difficult passage. How often has the temptation floated away, the irritation mastered itself, the right word been said, the right sentence written! To do all we are capable of, and then to commit the matter to the hand of the Father—that is the best we can do."—Arthur Benson.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. If we all have the instinct of prayer, why do we need to be taught?
2. Look at the Lord's Prayer and say whether you can pray it sincerely?
3. On which of these things does your emphasis fall?
4. Do you need a form of prayer?
5. Why does not God answer our prayers at once?

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

A MUNICIPAL guardian of the peace to take care of men and women who have to resort to the police courts to to settle their family affairs is the newest official on Kansas City's list. Miss Lois Cornforth was appointed as such guardian by the board of public welfare. Miss Cornforth's work is to be an extension of the court of domestic relations, instituted a year ago with much success. A man arrested for non-support upon complaint of his wife is brought into the domestic court, where frank discussion of the family affairs with the judge usually results in an agreement whereby the man must support his family. There is where the municipal guardian steps in. She will visit the family, and, if necessary, persuade the man that it is his duty to support his family. She also will talk with the wife and children and endeavor to show them where they can help make matters easier.

This field is most efficiently filled in Duluth by Frank Hicks, manager of the welfare department. He acts as probation officer and conducts the free legal aid bureau. In welfare lines Duluth is in the front rank of American cities.

Washington, Jan. 28.—American branch banks in South America, principally in Rio De Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Valparaiso and Lima, are being contemplated by several groups of bankers of the United States, planning a Latin-American extension of their institutions as permitted under the new banking law.

DUMP AMMUNITION IN NEW YORK HARBOR.

New York, Jan. 29.—Eighty thousand rounds of ammunition which the Federal authorities believe was intended for use by revolutionists in San Domingo, was dumped into the harbor yesterday. Two members of the crew of the Clyde liner Algonquin, on which the alleged contraband goods were seized during a raid at the line's Brooklyn pier, are under arrest, several hundred cartridges having been found concealed in their clothing. Others of the crew are suspected of having hidden the ammunition on board the vessel.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 29.—Kenneth Murphy, aged 21, serving a life sentence in the Nebraska penitentiary for murder committed when he was 18 years old, has been paroled by Governor Morehead, that he may attend the state university.

Murphy, with three other men, was convicted and sentenced in 1911 to life imprisonment for the hanging of Charles Sellers, a ranchman, near Cody, Neb., because they objected to Sellers' attentions to Murphy's sister, Eunice. Murphy plans to take a four-year course in agriculture in the Nebraska university.

ESCAPES FROM SAVAGES; FINDS PARENTS IN DULUTH

Romantic Story of Michael Gormley Who Is Awaiting Decision of Immigration Authorities.

Not unlike the imaginative tale of a Rex Beach, or a Jack London is the life story of Michael Gormley, who recently escaped from savages in Argentina, and who is now living with his parents in Duluth. It is even more interesting because it is true, and because there is to be a sequel, which is not yet known.

Michael, unacquainted with the laws of the United States, or in fact the laws of any country, came into New York last April on a passenger liner, which had taken him on at Buenos Ayres. No one questioned this young man, who is but 24 years, and he walked across the gangplank at New York without any interference.

And now, after reaching Duluth, where his parents and two sisters and a brother live, Michael has learned that he violated the immigration laws and that he may have no right to be here. Yesterday afternoon Michael and his brother came to Brown McDonald, immigration commissioner, and there Michael told his strange tale, which began when he left his home in Ireland at the age of 14 years, running away to South America, where he was captured by savages and kept in captivity until last spring.

Up to Uncle Sam.

The sequel of this strange life story will be the decision of the immigration authorities at Washington, who will decide if Michael may remain in this country and become a citizen of the United States. The young man is healthy, sane and sound, and it is believed there will be no objection raised by the government. He is willing to work and as he will not become a public charge, it is believed by Mr. McDonald that Michael will be granted the right of citizenship. A complete statement was taken yesterday afternoon by Mr. McDonald and this will be sent to Washington in a few days, so that a decision is expected within two or three weeks.

Ran Away From Home.

When but 14 years old Michael left his old home in Ireland for parts unknown. His parents and brothers and sisters knew nothing of his whereabouts and he seemed literally to have disappeared from the earth. Michael went to Scotland and later to England, where he looked for work. After he had been wandering about for a year, Michael decided to have a look at the other side of the globe and when the opportunity offered he took a trip to South America.

Then at the age of 15, Michael became a cabin boy on a whaler. He arrived at Buenos Ayres in due time and decided to remain in that country. The opportunities there looked much better than they did in England or even on a boat. After working at various jobs for some time, Michael obtained a homestead in the interior.

Captured By Savages.

No sooner had this young farmer settled himself on a homestead, than a band of savages arrived and confiscating his property, took him along to their tribe in the mountains. And there among savages, who spoke no English at all, and where no white man ever appeared, Michael spent the next seven years.

His people gave him up for dead and Michael was almost forgotten.

But last winter he managed to make his getaway from the Indians and made his way across the mountains. For four days this young man climbed the mountains and crossed lone valleys, finally reaching Buenos Ayres in an exhausted condition. The authorities took him in and he was given clothes and food, in fact, he was the man of the hour in the South American capital.

Last April Michael began preparing for a trip to the United States, where he imagined his parents and brothers would all be living by this time. He obtained work as a steward on a passenger liner and reached New York. There he met his sister by accident and from her learned that the other members of his family were living in Duluth. He worked in the metropolis up to two weeks ago, when he decided to come here, where he is now living with his parents at 107 Park terrace.

Now Michael is anxiously waiting for a decision from the government as to his status in this country. It is understood that Michael has received several offers to go on the lecture platform, and even on the stage, but these he has so far refused. He plans to consider these, however, as soon as the government makes a final disposition of his case.

The DOCTOR'S HELPS

By DONALD McCASKEY, M.D.

Member of Staff, General Hospital, Lancaster, Pa.; Fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine.

HER JAWS LOCK AND SMOTHERING SENSATIONS OCCUR

"What can I do for myself? I have had seven different doctors, and have been in the hospital, but with no relief. My jaws become locked. Once they stayed so for fourteen days straight ahead. They never lock for less than five days, and sometimes my tongue swells so thick I can't talk, and when my jaws unlock my speech never returns for three or four days. I am 27 years old, married and very nervous, and have had five children, but no childbirth wounds. Frequently awful headaches occur, and bad pains in my neck and side. My doctors say I have a leaking heart. It makes an awful noise, and thumps violently. Sometimes it beats so fast my throat chokes and a smothering sensation comes over me. My youngest child is 6 months old. What can I do? I must procure help. I am sending a stamp for your personal reply."

From your letter there is evidently some very decided nervous cause for your periods of severe jaw locking and your temporary loss of speech.

What form of nervousness this might be I, of course, cannot tell by any such meager means as the mails. I would have to examine your every organ to locate where the irritation was located. Likewise, your urine would have to be analyzed. Your bowel movements would have to be closely studied. Your blood carefully tested, blood pressure taken, etc.

You say you have five children and are 27 years old and that your seven physicians who have examined you declare that your heart leaks.

I should certainly counsel you to pick out one physician in your community in whom you have confidence. Have this doctor carefully go over your entire physical body in an exhaustive examination at your home and have the trouble located. Then follow his advice. Your throat and smothering symptoms indicate very plainly some heart disturbance. I wish I could be of greater service to you in your distress, but the human body is a million times more complicated than a finely organized watch, and there does not exist any watchmaker who can diagnose and treat by mail a watch that has got out of fix. Pick out a physician in whom you have confidence. Have him take your case. Then follow his advice. This is your safest and best course.

MERE WRITING WON'T ADJUST THIS MAN'S AILMENT.

An inquiry from Governor Tener's home town of Charlerol, Pa., has reached me, asking for "help out of my present trouble." The gentleman says: "For the past year my stool is very fetid. My rectum is irritated, and despite my scrupulous washing, the odor of the stool clings to me, and I am satisfied there is something wrong."

From your letter, I cannot pick out the exact cause of your trouble. Neither can any one else. By mail, it is impossible.

If you were in my office, I would analyze your urine. Likewise, I would examine your rectum and sigmoid under electric light with a recital speculum, and, in addition, give your thirty feet of bowel a thorough cleansing, having you save each stool for examination. Each stool would have to be separate from the rest. This last must be done at home or in the hospital, but it gives exact information. If you desire it, I will undertake to find out exactly what is wrong and correct it, but you would have to come to the Lancaster general hospital, prepared to stay at least four days. If you have a fistula, the latter would require about two weeks for treatment.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of the ordinary cough more quickly, usually conquering it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for spasmodic croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and bronchitis.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help relieve a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, but the old successful mixture has never been equaled. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HOW WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. GRIFFITH, 7305 Madison Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."—Mrs. ADA WILT, 196 Stock St., Hanover, Pa.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

WORK TEST FOR THE IDLE

Rockpile Will Be Reopened and Another Sewer Job Begun.

Every Man Will Have Chance to Earn Food at Least.

Duluth has no time for the unemployed who are unwilling to work.

The shiftless and the lazy are to be weeded out forthwith and given short shrift.

"Earn your keep or get out," is the trite rule which will be the keynote governing the situation which has arisen.

Realizing the gravity of the situation, the authorities are going more than half way to solve the problem.

The work test is to be applied as the primary remedial measure. The rock pile at the point of rocks at Fourteenth avenue west will be reopened; work will be begun on the second sewer job authorized to be done by day labor, and arrangements have been made whereby men without funds can secure jobs in the woods.

Mayor Prince believes that part of the idle men now in the city have been remaining here because they have had a snap which they disliked to pass by. They have been able to get food and lodgings from local institutions and have been required to give or do nothing in return. Their stories have been the old, old tale of being willing to work but unable to get a job. Nor has there been any means of trying them out.

By reopening the rock pile those to whom they have been appealing will be in a position to direct them to a place where they can make enough to pay for their food and lodging. If they show their good faith by going to work these institutions will reciprocate by furnishing them food and lodgings at the smallest possible price. If they refuse to work they can be arrested for vagrancy and dealt with accordingly. The people who have been sustaining them can tell them that they cannot do anything for them, thus forcing them to get jobs or seek other fields.

Paid By Piece Work.

The men who work at the rock pile will not be paid by the hour, but upon the more businesslike basis of the quantity of work they do, measured by the number of yards of stone they break. The operations at the point of rocks last fall left a big pile of boulders weighing from half a ton to several tons. The men will be supplied with hammers and sledges and put to work reducing these boulders to sizes which can be handled in the crusher. The work is hard and being inexperienced it is unlikely that they will be able to make more than 75 cents to $1 a day, but this will be more than ample to sustain them in reasonable comfort, for they can get substantial meals for 15 cents and lodgings for about the same price. Inspector Charles Voss of the engineering department will probably be in charge at the rock pile. Preparations are now under way and the work will begin within the next two or three days.

The construction of the second sewer at Vernon street, in the West end, will commence tomorrow or Saturday. The job is a small one, the estimated cost being under $400, but it will provide work for several local men with families dependent upon them.

Through arrangements made by Mayor Prince, men who are without funds are being shipped to the camps of the Alger-Smith Lumber company free of charge. They are being sent through the employment office at 411½ West Michigan street.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Photoplay.
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—"The Passing Show."

Amusement Notes.

The minimum wage question and recent agitation thereupon play an important part in "Within the Law," which will be seen at the Lyceum theater on Friday and Saturday. The heroine of Bayard Veiller's melodrama is a poor shop girl, underpaid and underfed, who, after serving three years in prison for an offense that she did not commit, and trying vainly to obtain decent employment, becomes the head of a band of "crooks" and with their assistance takes her revenge upon society. As the leader of "Joe Garson," the forger, "English Eddie Griggs," a thief, "Aggie Lynch," an amusing little blackmailer and other confederates, "Mary Turner" obtains enormous sums of money, but manages always to keep "Within the Law." She even hires a lawyer to help her evade wrong-doing which is punishable. Another interesting feature of the drama is the introduction of a Maxim silencer, which is shown in this play for the first time on any stage. Among the well known names of players who will be seen here in Mr. Veiller's play are Jane Gorden, Eileen Wilson, Marcia Marainell, Robert Tabor, William Lambert, Wilson Reynolds, Daniel Sullivan and others.

The attraction at the Lyceum Tuesday and Wednesday will be George Arliss and his company in Louis N. Parker's comedy, "Disraeli."

The great English prime minister was a peculiarly interesting subject for stage portraiture, being one of the most remarkable figures in Europe. As a statesman his political achievements secured him the premiership, while his literary gifts won him a place in the list of English men of letters and his wit secured for him the entree to the most brilliant social circles of the Old World.

In writing "Disraeli" Mr. Parker was not blind to the romantic possibilities of his subject, and he displays Disraeli not only as a statesman of brilliant achievements, but also as a sort of good fairy to a pair of young lovers who are very near to estrangement over temperamental difficulties. The motive of the story is Disraeli's purchase of the Suez canal for Great Britain and the manner in which he outwitted the craft plans of the Russian government.

Mr. Arliss' company includes Violet Heming, Florence Arliss, Margaret Dale, Lella Repton, Lilia Campbell, Oscar Ayde, Charles Harbury, Arthur Eldred and St. Clair Bayfield.

That every actress should have the training that only a stock company can give, is the opinion of Miss Myrtle Langford, the young actress who so capably plays the role of the little country girl in "The Goat," the sketch which Miss Maude O'Delle and company are presenting at the Orpheum this week.

Miss Langford's stage experience has been brief, as she is scarcely out of her teens, but it has been broader than that of most actresses who have been many years in the profession. She was a member of the Spooner Stock company in New York for two seasons, and while with that organization was called upon to play parts of widely different types. Later she appeared with Henry Miller in "The Embassy Ball" and then joined Miss O'Delle's company. Next season she hopes to appear in a new dramatic playlet of her own.

"Nothing gives the experience and training that a stock company can give," said Miss Langford. "Playing a new part every week, one week an ingenue and the next week a character bit, gives a training that you get in no other way. Of course, you do not have time to perfect one role in road companies, where they have weeks to rehearse it and a season to perfect it. The actress who has had the training of a stock company and then goes into a road company playing but one play, is like the athlete who trains for a five-mile race and finds he has to run only a mile."

"The Passing Parade," the latest offering of the Interstate Producing company, is said to be the most pretentious tabloid scenic production of the season. Five complete sets of scenery are introduced during the action of the play. The first scene, laid in Atlantic City, shows the bathing beach and pavilion in the distance.

Scene two takes the audience to the dock of the S. S. Lusitania. "Percy" and "Vera," tired of being denied their parents' consent to their marriage, decide to elope, but they are quickly followed by their anxious parents, endeavoring to overtake them.

The third scene is enacted in Monte Carlo, the well-known gambling resort in Monaco; the scene is the poker room of the beautiful gambling house.

The fourth scene shows New York. This is a setting for one of the big specialties in the production. The fifth and closing scene shows the "Gay White Way" at midnight, with the throng of theater-goers on the way to the cafes, cabarets, etc.

"The Passing Parade" opens its engagement at the Empress this afternoon. The attraction will remain three days, giving three shows daily. The company includes: Fields and Fink, Leo Hoyt, Nat Phillips, Helen Allerton, Master Fred Tidmarsh, the boy soprano, James McLean and others.

SENTENCED TO DIE; MAY BE PARDONED

MRS. KATE EDWARDS.

Mrs. Kate Edwards may be pardoned. She has been in the Berks county jail in Pennsylvania for more than twelve years under sentence of death, but because of her sex one governor after another has refused to fix a date for her execution and sign the papers for carrying out the death sentence. She has now petitioned for a pardon and it is believed it will be granted.

She has changed much since she entered prison, having learned to read and improved herself in many other ways. Mrs. Edwards was charged with murdering her husband. A negro was arrested as an accomplice and both were convicted. Later she confessed and exonerated the negro but it was necessary to pass a special law to gain a new trial for his acquittal.

PULMOTOR FAILS TO SAVE HIS LIFE

The pulmotor at headquarters was brought into use yesterday afternoon, when a futile effort was made to revive Jacob Hihnala, 35 years old, who was in a stupefied condition from drink in the tailor shop at 330 Lake avenue south.

Louis Johnson, jailer at headquarters, received a report that Hihnala was in a drunken condition and that unless the man was immediately resuscitated he would die. The pulmotor was rushed to the tailor shop, where all efforts to revive him failed. Dr. K. V. Arminen attended the man and was assisted by Jailer Johnson.

Hihnala is survived by a widow and five children, living at 121½ First avenue west. At the time of his death he was working as a tailor for A. E. Jackson, 17 Lake avenue north. The body has been removed to the Crawford undertaking rooms, where the funeral arrangements will be made some time today.

BRYAN DENIES TOKIO STORY.

Washington, Jan. 29. — Secretary Bryan said today there were no pending negotiations between Japanese and the United States over a measure which would prohibit the importation of Japanese goods made by laborers under 14 years old and which, it was said, Japan considered in conflict with treaty provisions between the two countries.

Baron Makino, Japanese minister of foreign affairs, in reply to questions in Tokio yesterday said negotiations were in progress with Secretary Bryan with the object of eliminating alleged discriminatory measures either adopted or pending in the United States.

TALKING TO MISS KELLER

Herald Reporter Interviews Wonderful Blind and Deaf Girl.

Reads Lips With Her Fingers---Is Believer in Socialism.

One fails to get the perspective when "talking" with Helen Keller.

When one meets with some strange phenomenon or some object that has attracted interest for years, the strength of the impression grows upon you later; you fail to grasp immediately the wonder of it all.

In her room at the Spalding, seated next to Miss Macey, her instructor, a girl who has been blind and utterly without the faculty of hearing carried on a conversation today with a Herald interviewer, expressing clearly and without perceptible hesitation opinions upon the current topics of the day.

As has been said—one fails in the earlier moments of the somewhat awed impression to grasp the wonderful significance of it all.

As Miss Macey introduced the writer, Helen Keller put out her hand as naturally as and as unaffectedly as a person in possession of the five senses.

Miss Macey told Miss Keller to ask the reporter what paper he was from. She asked the question, and holding her fingers on the lips of the reporter repeated the name of the paper.

One would naturally think that interviewing Miss Keller would prove a very difficult task; but on the contrary, with the assistance of Miss Macey it proved nearly as simple and direct as carrying on a conversation with a person possessing all his faculties.

"I like the West," said Miss Keller. "It is young and enthusiastic and vigorous. Somehow it is full of new ideas. One of the joys of my tour is that I can come once more to the West. I like the people and I enjoy the ideas they have."

The next remark Miss Keller made struck the interviewer as being odd, and yet it aptly and wonderfully illustrates the marvelous faculty of obtaining visual impressions that has been cultivated by Miss Keller.

"I like Minneapolis," said Miss Keller. "I liked its lakes and parks. It is one of the most beautiful cities I have ever been in. I liked it better than St. Paul; I think it is more beautiful."

Miss Macey explained that Miss Keller had been taken for an automobile ride around the city and that the various objects of interest were explained to her.

"She will remember Minneapolis as you or I would recall the various objects of interest we saw," said Miss Macey. "The faculty of forming visual impressions and retaining them is indeed one of the remarkable characteristics of Miss Keller."

Imprisoned in the darkness of blindness, never having heard the sound of the human voice, one would spring readily to the belief that the existence of Helen Keller was anything but a pleasant one. After seeing and talking with this wonderful woman the belief that one would naturally form is just as readily cast aside.

Reads Good Literature.

Miss Keller reads the best literature. The Bible is her favorite study. She declared that she was very fond of William Morris, of Walt Whitman, of Shelley and of Bernard Shaw. When Miss Keller mentioned the name of several of her favorite poets she gestured in enthusiasm, as you have seen a child express rapture.

In response to the inquiry of the reporter, Miss Macey asked Miss Keller if she were happy.

"Of course," came the response, and it seemed as if she expressed wonderment, surprise even, at the mere asking of such a question.

"I am happy," Miss Keller declared, "perhaps because everyone is so good to me. People make life interesting. But there are many things to interest me; and there is little time to be idle."

Reads the Lips.

Helen Keller can read the lips of the ordinary person with extraordinary facility. The letters R and L cannot be read by the fingers, as they are formed back in the throat. There it requires guess work and imagination to make a ready lip reader. It was the really marvelous ability of Helen Keller to quickly supply meanings that were lacking that first attracted attention to the child. This faculty has assisted wonderfully, according to the statement of Miss Macey, in the acquirement of the education that has created people all over the world to wonder.

Miss Keller is a Socialist. One of her chief objections against some of the cities she has visited upon the present tour, has been, she said, "I did not like the slums of Minneapolis," she confided, "but really no city can be perfect, just as none of our friends can be perfect.

Likes to Travel.

"I like to travel, because it gives me the opportunity to meet people. Sometimes I become very tired, but there are so many other things to compensate for the fatigue of traveling. I love to read, especially poetry. The works of Bernard Shaw are one of my chief delights. Some of the things Mr. Shaw has said I agree with. I love the work of Walt Whitman—but to me the Bible is one of he most wonderful of all works, one of my chief delights. Some of the most delightful hours of my life are those spent in my library at home."

Miss Macey declares that Miss Keller is alive to all of the live issues of the day, to all of the important questions or movements of the world. Her life has been a large one, particularly busy. Three of the articles Helen Keller has written have been embodied in the Congressional Record.

During the day Miss Keller will be driven around the city, and she will leave Duluth, says her teacher, with a distinct impression of the city—one almost as clear and well defined as that received by a person possessed of the faculty of sight.

The senses of touch and smell are abnormally developed. Miss Keller can feel and sense things that an ordinary person could never comprehend in the least, and her sense of smell is so well developed, says Miss Macey, that Miss Keller uses this sense in securing a mental idea of her surroundings.

Miss Keller will lecture tonight at the Lyceum and the advance sale was so heavy that seats have been placed on the stage.

SUPERIOR MERCHANT'S COMPLAINT DISMISSED

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headache, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications. Agent, Wirth's Red Cross Drug Store, 13 W. Sup. St.

CLAIM GAIN IN THE ST. PAUL GRAFT CASE

Defendants Not Mentioned in Testimony of Woman.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the defense in the trial of Martin Flanagan, former chief of police of St. Paul, and Former City Detective Fred Turner, jointly charged with bribery, contended today at the resumption of the trial that it had scored temporarily in the testimony given by Dorothy Hazzard, the former resort keeper, from whom, it is alleged, $1,000 was collected for police protection, because of the failure of the witness to connect either Flanagan or Turner with any conversation in which the payment of the money was discussed, the state intimates the end is not yet, and some sensations may follow as the trial proceeds.

The Hazzard woman resumed the stand under direct examination today.

Testimony of Willie Wolff relative to the collection for Flanagan of protection money from a woman of the underworld, was in part confirmed by the woman, who testified that she paid $1,000 with the understanding that she would be permitted to conduct a resort without fear of interference by the police.

Wolff, the state's star witness, was excused as a witness late yesterday.

The prosecution will introduce several more witnesses before closing its side of the case.

DULUTHIAN SAW BATTLE

D. A. Fitzpatrick Watched Juarez Fight From Hill Half Mile Away.

Sickening Sight as Cannon Balls Tore Ranks to Pieces.

D. A. Fitzpatrick has just returned from New Mexico, where he, J. O. Harris of Bemidji and C. E. Miesse of Chicago went to look over some land being plowed for alfalfa for the Southwestern Alfalfa Farms company, of which they are directors. While on their way down there they stopped over in El Paso and saw the now famous battle of Juarez in which Gen. Villa and his rebels defeated the Federals most decisively. This battle lasted for three days, taking place on Nov. 18, 19 and 20. Mr. Fitzpatrick brought back with him some very gruesome pictures taken on the battlefield.

"It was a rather sickening sight," said Mr. Fitzpatrick to The Herald, "but since it was taking place, I am glad I saw it. I was a stranger in El Paso so I headed right for the Elks' club, first thing. There I was greeted cordially and as some of the fellows were just about to start out in autos for the scene of the fight, which was only two miles away, they invited me to go with them and I accepted. We went out two afternoons and saw some heavy fighting. We stood on a hill about a half mile away from the fighting and had a splendid view of it. There was hand-to-hand fighting of the fiercest sort, and cannon would tear ranks to pieces. We could see men suddenly leap in the air and fall over dead or wounded, see the latter try to help themselves out of the way and could even hear the screams of the dying. It was an awful but a wonderful sight."

To complete his adventures, the sleeper in which Mr. Fitzpatrick was riding was wrecked as the train was entering Kansas City. The whole side of it was torn away but none of the occupants was injured.

VANDERBILT YACHT MAY BE TOTAL LOSS

Appears Likely to Pound to Pieces Under Heavy Seas.

Colon, Jan. 29.—The yacht Warrior, belonging to Frederick W. Vanderbilt, was in a bad position today and appeared likely to go to pieces at any moment in the heavy breakers rolling over her, according to a wireless message received here today. She went ashore Monday off the Colombian coast.

The members of the crew still are on board, but are afraid they will have to risk jumping overboard into the high seas as the only chance of saving themselves.

It is believed here that the United Fruit company's steamer Frutera is standing by but is helpless in the storm.

WILL SUE FOR LOSS OF HUSBAND'S AFFECTIONS

MRS. THOMAS F. MANVILLE, JR.

Mrs. Thomas F. Manville, Jr., says she will sue her father-in-law for $100,000 for alienating her husband's affections. She was a show girl when young Manville married here. His father threatened to have the marriage annulled because he was not of age, whereupon they went to Baltimore and were married again. They announced at that time that they were going to get married in every state so as to foil papa. This was in 1910. According to Mrs. Manville, papa got the better of her in the end for her husband was dependent and he finally left her so that he could have access again to the parental pocket book. She has sued for divorce.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

PAPER BAGS USED TO CARRY BOMBS

Witness in Trial Says He Fired Thirty-Five or Forty.

New York, Jan. 29.—The skull and cross-bones as the sign with which members of the gang of blackmailers that have terrorized the East Side stamped their letters of threat, were identified on the stand in the court of general sessions by Anthony Sadaitys, called by the prosecution as a witness in the trial of Angelo Sylvestro, accused as a blackmailer. Sadaitys testified he had seen a block of wood, fashioned with leather cut in the form of skull and bones, in the possession of the leader of the gang.

Under cross-examination the witness, known among his fellows as "Burke," told calmly of his own criminal acts as a blackmailer.

"How many bombs did you 'shoot?'"

"About thirty-five or forty, I don't just remember."

Bombs were carried through the city streets in paper bags, the witness said, and dynamite in suitcases.

CONTROL RADIUM PRIVATELY MINED.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Members of the house mines committee have tentatively decided that the proposed radium bill should provide for Federal control of radium ores and the finished product, without authorizing the withdrawal from entry of carnolite lands. The committee's plans are to permit the development of the radium-bearing lands by private enterprises, and at the same time give the government control of radium production.

It was virtually agreed to recommend the construction of a government-owned radium reducing plant at some western point to be selected later.

LIVE SPORTING GOSSIP

By BRUCE

FAR be it from us to dip the meddling spoon into the gravy of controversy that Mons. Aksel Holter and several members of the Duluth and St. Paul Ski clubs have entered into. Like countless others we have stood upon the sidelines and ravenously enjoyed the scrap, the end of which is not yet.

Upon another part of this page will be found what Mr. Holter declares to be his ultimatum. One would gather by the temper of the remarks that Mr. Holter hates himself—but then that is neither here nor there.

The great big vital part of the whole controversy is that the people of this section of the state want the ski tournaments of old—and the majority of the followers of the sport will probably approve of the methods that bring out of the present condition of misunderstanding clear sailing and clean sport.

There was a time when Duluth was the Northwestern, aye, the national home of the ski sport in the United States. To all intents and purposes that time has pathetically passed. One would humbly suggest that some of the big men of the local club would muster energy and adopt measures that will serve to put the sport solidly upon its feet.

Merchants and business men of this city might possibly be interested in the proposition to make Duluth the home of the national tournaments. This city is the logical home of the big tournaments. Let all of the other clubs hold their tournaments and then hold the big tournament of the season here, making it the climax of the season, the scene of the serious efforts to set up new world's records.

It is nearly certain that money will be raised here for the erection of one of the greatest ski slides in the world. It is only stating the truth to say that the old slide is entirely out of the competition with some of the modern slides of the Northwest. It is inadequate for the needs of the club.

With one of the greatest slides in the United States, as the new slide will certainly be, and Duluth the home of the national, the annual tourneys would be worthy of the serious efforts of the men of all of the associations that have the welfare of the sport at heart.

The Herald has been the medium of the interchange of the utterances of several parties to the controversy. It is high time the wordy war ceased. The Herald sporting editor is ready and willing to offer his services in a mediatory sense and would rejoice to see the game placed upon the solid footing that so fine and ancient a sport as the ski sport deserves.

This paper desires to urge upon those of various opinions the many qualifications that Duluth possesses as the permanent home of the national tournaments—and this is regardless of whether Duluth returns to the National association or remains as one of the leaders of the International Amateur association.

This city numbers among its citizens thousands of followers of the sport and it is situated right in the very heart of the ski country. It is easy of access and possesses, moreover, excellent facilities for taking care of those who come to participate in the tourney and those numerous others who come as spectators.

Make Duluth the great center of the ski sport of America—that should be the energetic aim of every member of the Duluth Ski club.

Offering a Suggestion.

TAKING ourselves among those who profess to be numbered among the friends of Walter Miller, we would offer the humble suggestion that Walter is injuring his standing in the wrestling world by steadfastly refusing to take on a persistent challenger, when there remains not the least excuse to hang an objection upon.

Walter surely can't say that Waino Ketonen isn't well known. He beat Chris Jordan in straight falls. Miller can't say there won't be money enough for him. The Greater Duluth Athletic club officials yesterday declared that they would guarantee Miller any reasonable amount for his end. And the little Pole surely can't say that he is only going to wrestle men of his weight in the future.

Ketonen will make 148 ringside for Miller—or he will go below that weight pound for pound for Miller—and he will wager Miller a dollar for every dolar of Miller's on the result of the contest.

As one who admires Walter for his many qualifications as a wrestler, the writer agrees with many other followers of the sport that the little Pole can only lose the faith of his friends by refusing to meet a wrestler merely because he looks like one of the very greatest in the world.

Along Comes Old Age.

TURN the page to Coulon, dear. Thanks. Please turn on the light. There now. Kindly reach my glasses off the mantle.

Johnny Coulon, as Jimmy Barry of this city can tell you, was brought up in the Logan Square district of Chicago. Among the amateurs of the Windy City he shone like a new red automobile with enamelled white trimmings. He was the natural boxer; he toppled 'em over with seeming ease and worked like the man born to the use of gloves.

Then came George Siler. He is dead, heaven rest the bones of old George. Refereed the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight, the Gans-Nelson and others—of course you all remember him.

George took the little John across his knee, figuratively speaking, and corrected all of the boxing faults of the youngster and then with infinite care and loving kindness taught the youngster the rudiments of the game, that they used in the dead and distant past.

And so there blossomed forth, as the rose blooms in the spring of the year, or the lilac bush sheds forth its luxurious loveliness, one of the real masters of the ring. He grew and prospered. And then Papa Coulon took hold of the reins of management and the two—father and son—set resolutely forth upon the thorny path of pugilism searching for the bag of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The father grew ill. They do say that little Johnny was constantly at the bedside of the stricken man until the end. The old man had been the real, the guiding spirit of the boy. He had been mentor, stern reprover, father, pal and loving companion rolled into a composite whole of usefulness.

There is a story that traveled the rounds, saying that little John didn't even smile for months. He was heart broken. He didn't even fight the same. There was silent whispers that Coulon was gone.

Today Johnny Coulon is twenty-four years of age; the age when some of the boys of this broad and smiling land of ours are singing songs about dear old alma mater and setting their star at the presidency—if they happen to be of the right party.

At the age when life is unfolding her strange and mysterious complexities to many of the endless procession of males, the race of this young-old man has been run. He is through with the pugilistic game, it would seem.

The binding ropes of age, those fetters that generally handicap the struggle of man in later years, have struck at the pugilistic efficiency of Johnny Coulon, and one of the really great boys of this age and generation will probably step aside for some of the lusty youths who are clamoring for recognition at the top of the ladder.

Joe Tinker Denies Federals Get Only Down and Out Players.

Center Fielder Filched From Cincinnati—Lose Chapman and Graney.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—The Federal league derided yesterday the imputations made by leaders of organized baseball that the main body of the players induced to desert the new league were those who were nearing the end of their playing days.

"We are going after young ball players and we've got a lot of them," said Manager Joe Tinker of the Chicago Federals.

To substantiate his statement, he announced that Al Wicklund, a Chicago youth who played center field with Cincinnati last year, had signed to play with Tinker's team. Wicklund's career has been a short one, a brief season with the Dayton Central league club having preceded his purchase by Cincinnati. In his first game with Cincinnati played here, Wickland's hitting was a feature.

American league fans took heart last night when C. W. Somers, president of the Cleveland club, announced that Ray Chapman, the Cleveland shortstop, only last week had signed a two-year contract with the Naps, and Graney, another Cleveland man had accepted terms. Both earlier in the day were reported to have been on the verge of jumping to the Federal league.

Cleveland, Jan. 29.—Stirred by the loss of Pitchers Fred Falkenberg, Fred Blanding and George Kahler, Manager Joe Birmingham of the Naps arrived here yesterday from his home in Albany in an effort to prevent further inroads on his club by the Federal league.

Several members of the Cleveland club are still unsigned. Among these are Pitcher Mitchell, Catcher Fred Carisch, Outfielder Graney, Infielder Olson and First Baseman Johnston.

Philadelphia, Jan. 29.—The signed contract of "Jack" Coombs, one of the pitchers of the Philadelphia Athletics, was received by Connie Mack yesterday. Roy Bressler who pitched for the Harrisburg team of the Tri-State league last year also has signed for 1914.

New York, Jan. 29.—The signed contract of Roger Peckinpaugh, shortstop of the New York Americans, has been received by President Farrell.

The New York National league club has received the signed contracts of Infielders M. J. Stock and D. O. Robertson.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Jan. 29. — The 3-mile race was the feature of the international outdoor skating races here yesterday. Cody of Toronto won the race and the special prize offered for the leader during the greatest number of laps. The ice was in poor condition. Summary:

LOSS IS SLIGHT.

Tener Says Less Than Ten Per Cent of Stars Have Deserted.

Philadelphia, Jan. 29.—"There is not the room for dissension or discord in the game that there was in 1890," Governor Tener said here last night at a dinner given at the Pen and Pencil club in recognition of his election to the presidency of the National League of Baseball Clubs.

"In the present so-called war," he said, "less than 10 per cent of the real experts have left their respective clubs, while in 1890 75 per cent of the stars deserted.

"Any man or set of men can go into baseball, but it is unfair to spread reports of dissatisfaction or slave-driving. These men who are opposing organized baseball should be honest enough to admit that they are in the game for the money and should not spread improper reports concerning conditions."

Duluth and Canadian Soo Expect to Win Hockey Game.

George Wray, Protested Player, Will Be in the Lineup.

Team Standing.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Calumet	5	2	.714
Portage Lake	5	4	.555
American Soo	3	3	.500
Canadian Soo	3	5	.375
Duluth	1	3	.250

With George Wray back in the game the Canadian Hockey team will be in shape to give the Duluth Curling club team the hardest kind of an argument in the contest of this evening.

Wray is considered one of the fastest skaters on the other side of the tariff wall. This is the player who was protested by the officials of the Duluth Curling club. The protest was lodged with the officials of the national association and the player reinstated. The mere fact that Wray will be back in the game will add strength and speed to the Canadian Soo aggregation.

Calumet goes into the league leadership by virtue of the victory over the Canadian Soo team, Tuesday evening. Calumet won both of the Canadian Soo contests and thus passed the strong Portage Lake team in the race for hockey honors.

As was stated in the story of yesterday, the games here should be fast and strenuously played all the way through. Two wins for Duluth means that the local team will climb out of the cellar position. Never before during the present season have the local players been worked up as they are at the present time.

Canadians Are Confident.

Members of the visiting team are quartered at the St. Louis hotel. At Calumet they ran into some of the roughest playing ever encountered by a hockey team, according to the statements of the members of the team.

"In Duluth players are treated with more consideration than any other hockey center," said Capt. Elliott. "In the first game against Calumet we played the Michigan boys off their feet at times. In the second contest they went out to get us and they sure did some execution. Talk about being rough, some of the fans around these parts don't even know the meaning of the word. The official at Calumet couldn't see—you know he didn't want to—and we were put out of the running right from the start."

The game of this evening will start at the usual time and there will be skating after the game.

Following is the lineup:

Duluth—		Canadian Soo—
Beleck	g	Hesson
Linder (capt.)	p	Boissenau
Bogan	cp	(capt.) Elliott
Olson	r	Wray
Kahler	c	Yacabec
Grenner	rw	Wilson

CLABBY ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT

Middleweight Pugilist and Trainer Charged With Attacking Policeman.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 29.—Jimmy Clabby, middleweight pugilist, and his trainer, Arthur McQueen, were admitted to $1,000 bail each late yesterday after they had spent most of the day in jail on a charge of assaulting and resisting an officer.

It is charged that the two attacked C. E. Laurance, a policeman, in an alley early yesterday.

Witnesses of the affray said one of the accused snatched Laurance's night stick and struck him on the head with it.

The policeman is suffering from concussion of the brain.

FEDERALS PUT CRIMP IN THE HIGHLANDERS.

New York, Jan. 29.—As a result of a recent conference between President Frank Farrell of the New York Americans and President Joseph J. Lannin of the Boston Red Sox, the New York club is likely to get two more players from the Boston team before the season opens, it was said last night. Manager Chance is anxious to get infielders and pitchers, and as Boston is well supplied in both departments, the locals hope to benefit by a deal with the Red Sox.

The Federal league, which has taken "King" Cole, Zeider and Ford, and threatens to deprive the club of Sweeney and Cree, has left gaps in the lineup which only some deal can fill.

Alabama Man Becomes Southern Amateur Champion at Houston.

Houston, Texas, Jan. 29.—John Livingston, Springville, Ala., won the Southern amateur championship in trap shooting at the Sunny South handicap meet yesterday. His score was 97 out of 100.

At the end of the third day's shooting, Mark Arie, Thomasboro, Ill., was high gun with a total of 586 out of 625, and Livingston second with 584. Harry Stevens, New York, led the professionals breaking 185 out of 200.

AKSEL HOLTER EXPLAINS POSITION IN NATIONAL

Secretary of Ski Body Modestly Denies That He Is the Whole Works---Takes Credit for Organizing the Duluth Ski Club.

To the Sporting Editor of The Herald:

Well, sir, I never felt so good in all my life, as I do this very minute, having just enjoyed the contents of the article in your valued paper. I have had several clippings sent me, by charitable people in St. Paul, but I really would not have taken the time to answer it, had it not appeared in The Duluth Herald, the sporting editor of which seems to be of the impression that Holter is the whole thing in the ski association.

It is worth considerable to be accused of such an honor, at least, but don't believe for one single moment that Holter isn't getting his bumps, the same as any other national secretary will through years of service. The only difference between Holter and others, filling similar positions in other ascatons, is that Holter is still serving, and we can't recall, that one single vote has been cast against him during these ten years of his official duties as secretary of the National Ski association of America, and furthermore, the office has always been seeking Holter, and not Holter the office. Further: During his ten years of service, we find that the association has grown, steadily, surely, from a mere beginning of seven individuals, until today thirty clubs representing a membership of 1,500 individuals, compose the national body. Other associations have began life very promisingly, but they have died. Why? They have lacked the fireworks. Yes, sir, and true as you're born, Holter is the fireworks of the National Ski association of America, but it is thoroughly charged by the forty men, who compose the board of directors of the association, and if the sporting editor of The Herald could only have taken a peep in, during the convention a year ago at Ironwood, he would have owned up to the fact that a more perfect piece of machinery never turned the wheels of any national convention. So if anybody desires to know who the whole thing is in the national, I cordially invite that person to attend the convention at Virginia, Feb. 14. He will receive the surprise of his life, surely.

Right here, I might as well say, that it was Holter who organized the Duluth Ski club in the first place, then again, it was Holter who advised Duluth to withdraw from the National, but when he learned he had made a mistake, the same Holter advised Duluth to return, and he has been doing it ever since, but not alone, mind you. This the board of directors of the Duluth club knows.

As to St. Paul's charges of using unfair means. If any such can be proven, I shall immediately apologize. Let Duluth be the judge. Oh, yes, I make mistakes. Surely, but I am man enough to apologize, too, and I shoot it right out.

Regarding my standing on the amateur-professional question. I am in favor of amateur sport as much today as at any time in my life, and if it could be done, I would like to see amateur sport exclusively, but I was never in favor of organizing another association in order to bring this about. Probably more than one-half of our clubs are amateur clubs, but they support the National association, simply because it is the ski association of the United States, and they feel, if there are any changes to be made, those changes should be worked out by this association itself, and not by one or two clubs dropping out and organizing a new association. An amateur club has equal privileges with a professional club in the National, and the harmony that exists among the affiliated clubs, is vouched for by the fact that the workings of the association are not very much in the wrong.

Now I am mighty glad that the International Ski association has awakened. Outside of knowing of the letters having been sent to the clubs of our association, asking them to withdraw, I have failed to see any account of any activity on their part in any newspapers this winter, more than half of which is already gone by. Perhaps the activity of the secretary of the National Ski association made them think it was time for skiing again, and the dormant one woke up. I am happy to think I have been of that much service, as we are far from being selfish. It is the ski sport we are working for, and I can say, that if the International Amateur association meets with the success the National has enjoyed, and is still enjoying, we should soon see a tremendous activity throughout the Northwest. Go out and organize new active clubs, like we have done, and quit trying by letter-writing to induce clubs of our association to join yours, because, there is no honor in such proceedings in the first place, and it is waste of time. Get some fireworks charged and see to it, that they do things. That's the system.

This ends my contribution to this interesting bout. May it benefit us all! Thanking you, I am still,

AKSEL H. HOLTER,
Secretary National Ski Association of America.

LOCAL HANDBALL STARS MAY MEET ST. PAUL CRACKS

Negotiations Are on for a Series of Games Between Best Players of the Two Organizations; Duluth Wants Games to Be Played Here.

There may be a series of handball games arranged between the stars of St. Paul and possibly Minneapolis and the crack players of the local courts.

Announcement of the negotiations was made today by Physical Instructor Olson and William Dreves of the handball committee of the Y. M. C. A.

One of the contentions that at the present time is standing in the way of closing the agreement is the fact that the officials of the St. Paul Y. M. C. A. desire all of the games to be contested upon the Saintly City courts. In this event the Duluth players would be asked to pay all of their own expenses.

The Duluth players have offered to defray the expenses of the St. Paul players to come to Duluth for a series of games, and in the event of a tie the deciding games will be played in St. Paul.

The St. Paul court is ten feet longer than the Duluth court and the St. Paul players use a larger ball than the players have been in the custom of using here.

For the past few years this very series has been agitated. Duluth has some of the fastest players in the Northwest and it is believed that under fair conditions they would stand a very good show with the St. Paul stars.

Following is the schedule of the tourney for the championship of the city in the doubles:

Class A.

Petkoff and Lavine vs. Olson and Johnson.

Barry and Pease vs. Lauterbach and Kingston.

Hanson and Wisted vs. Lohmann and Kritchfield.

Wendtland and Sturm vs. McLean and Solie.

Dr. Clark and Dreves vs. Krank and Denny.

Class C.

Berquist and Wood vs. McLennan and R. Smith.

Peiffer and Sullivan vs. Patton and Broad.

Harbinson and Jensen vs. C. W. Higgins and T. Clarke.

Si Clark and Thomas vs. Bishoff and Mace.

Johnson and Thompson vs. Honigman and Honigman.

Haackenson and Harrington vs. T. Higgins and Flaaten.

Moffett and Lewis vs. Strong and Chinnick.

Foster and Dr. Gillepsie vs. Carson and Batholdi.

Schneider and Larson vs. Kleitsch and Kleitsch.

DATE AGREED UPON FOR THE KETONEN-CARR MATCH

Secretary Harris of the Greater Duluth Athletic club yesterday received a long distance telephone message setting the date of the mat battle between the wonderful Hitle Waino Ketonen and Joe Carr for Tuesday evening, Feb. 10. The two mat gladiators will meet at the Auditorium arena and the articles of the contest call for two falls.

In Ketonen the fans of Duluth will see a marvelous athlete in action. This statement is not mere conjecture; the little Finn has been working out here now for three days. The toughest of the city have been brought in to test the ability of the boy who beat Chris Jordon in two straight falls at Salt Lake City, and the masterly way he has handled his opponents, the really remarkable number of holds he has exhibited and the judgment of time he has shown, stamp the little Finn beyond the shadow of doubt as one of the very greatest in the world, indeed, if not the greatest middleweight in the game.

Ketonen and Yokel.

Fans here have seen and marveled at the ability of old Mike Yokel. When something like 100 fans will shake their heads dubiously when asked what would be the outcome of a meeting between Yokel and Ketonen, some indication may be given of the ability the Finnish champion has shown since he started his training here for the contest with Carr.

Arrangements have been made to have Chris Pearson come in from his farm on Lester river and work with the boy. Arrangements are also being made to have Ketonen complete his training for Carr in public in order that any of the fans may have the privilege of watching the little fellow fit himself.

One of the most remarkable things about the wrestling of the little fellow is his judgment of time. It was this unusual quality that made Frank A. Gotch the greatest wrestler in the world.

By judgment of time is meant the exact and precise time needed to execute any move. In the knowledge of when to make a move Ketonen is a master of his craft. He appears never to strain or heave unnecessarily hard, but with seeming ease throws his opponent off balance and at precisely the right time executes leverages that result in falls.

Duluth has in its midst a real wrestler. Every so often a born master of the mat shows up. It is too early as yet to say too much of this boy, but if the opinion of the followers of the game who have seen him work, if the opinion of the veteran, Martin Johnson, is worthy of consideration, then it surely is that the boy who has been tenaciously camping on the trail of Yokel for the past three months is one of the real wrestlers of the past ten years.

In Carr, a physically perfect man and one of the strongest of all the middleweights, not excepting Yokel in the mere matter of physical strength, Ketonen will meet an opponent well worthy of the large line of wrestling stuff the little Finn has uncorked in his training here.

Committee Has Outlined Lively Play for Next Three Nights.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Interest in the curling game is not to be allowed to lag.

For fear the members would not take enough interest in the regular "scrub" games, the games committee has prepared a new contest similar to the "President-Vice President" match recently played. In this case, however, the losers are to pay for a supper for the winners. The rule compelling a skip to play his full rink, allowing the substitution of a lead only, will be vigorously enforced.

The schedule that has been prepared for the contest is as follows:

Thursday Night.

J. L. Lewis vs. F. Kleffman.
J. D. Rooney vs. M. P. Flanagan.
Dr. Bullen vs. Dr. Blacklock.
E. A. Wellner vs. McIlhargey.

Friday Night.

W. M. West vs. F. L. Coventry.
L. O. Kirby vs. E. C. Kleffman.
A. Schirmer vs. M. J. Moran.
Dr. Thomas vs. Robert Murray.

Saturday Night.

F. W. Strang vs. W. Webb.
Dr. Butchardt vs. B. A. Middlemiss.
H. E. Martin vs. C. C. Alexander.

Flanagan's rink is the first to issue a challenge to Kleffman's quartet, the holders of the Klass buttons, and the match will be played some time this week.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—In order to secure a court ruling upon the question of the $13,000 tax money claimed by Hibbing in the Stuntz township matter, which County Auditor Halden refuses to pay over to the village without a court order, the village has retained Attorney H. F. Green of Duluth to start proceedings. Some time today the Duluth attorney will begin mandamus proceedings before one of the judges at Duluth to compel the county auditor to show cause why he is withholding the money. The proceedings will be of a friendly nature designed to get a court ruling on a vexed problem.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A lemon tree in full bloom with fifty blossoms and a similar tree on which there is a lemon nearly ripe are among the possessions of the local park board in the municipal greenhouse.

LIKE COOK BOOK.

"Tested Receipts" Prepared By Chisholm Ladies' Art Club Popular.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Tested Receipts," the cook book recently placed on sale by the Ladies' Art and Study club is proving to be a very pleasant and useful affair. Contributed receipts were supplied by prominent woman all over the Mesaba range and were so arranged by the committee that the several groups can be easily identified. Miss Constance Whitton of the school faculty had charge of designing the advertising a feature. Local business men contributed liberally to the advertising pages and are greatly pleased with the book. Five hundred copies were printed on the first order and from the manner in which they are selling it is doubtful if this number will suffice.

VIRGINIA STUDENTS IN PRACTICAL ROLES

Can Be Called on to Aid People in Different Kinds of Work.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superintendent P. P. Colgrove of the local schools has started an innovation in the way of practical demonstration of what the pupils learn in schools by issuing an order that students can go to the homes of citizens to help out in various ways.

For instance, housewives of the city who desire a little dainty sewing done at their houses, can telephone the sewing department of the high school and a member of the sewing class will answer with needle and thimble ready to design a dress or complete a doily. A charge will be made for the work and the money will be kept by the pupil doing the task.

Can Make Cookies.

If company is expected and a few cakes, cookies or pies are needed a telephone message to the domestic science department will bring a skilled cooking student who can manipulate the pots and pans with no waste and turn out a meal for a family of four at a cost of 12 cents apiece.

Carrying the idea a little farther Superintendent Colgrove has arranged for the construction of mission tables and chairs, neat footstools, window racks, book cases and numerous other articles made by the skilled artizans in woodwork that will be sold to the citizens of Virginia.

HIBBING NOT LOSER.

Discrepancies in Coal Bills Can Be Rectified.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sensational disclosures made at the council meeting Tuesday evening as to discrepancies in the amount of coal received by the village and the amount charged continue to be the absorbing theme for discussion here. It is stated that the village will not lose in the long run as the village will compel the concern from which it buys coal to make good the shortage as this can be done by withholding from future allowances enough to make up the shortage. The affair created a big sensation and promises to be a live theme for some time although it is not expected any criminal proceedings will be instituted.

"SAFETY FIRST" IS THEME OF AFFAIR

Iron Range Employes Given Pointers By Rock Island Official.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company entertained at a banquet given last evening, about 250 employes in the train and engine departments. This was the fourth annual banquet. Thomas Owens, superintendent was toastmaster and explained to those present that the idea of the meetings was to get ideas from one another which will improve the system and lessen the chances of damage to property and injury to person.

Several suggestions were made by different employes and Mr. Owens assured the men that they would have the immediate attention of the officials.

Safety First Advocated.

The key note of the evening was the "Safety First" movement now receiving so much attention on the American railroads. L. F. Shedd, who has charge of this work on the Rock Island railway, was the principal speaker and gave some very interesting remarks along this line. Figures given by Mr. Shedd proved conclusively that good results came from an education of the employes to the fact that there is a safe way of doing everything. The lecture was illustrated by moving pictures taken by Mr. Shedd on the Rock Island system in which actual employes of that system took part. All showed the right and wrong way of doing different kinds of railroad work.

The banquet was served by the First Presbyterian church and the music for the occasion was by the Two Harbors Marine orchestra.

Tonight another banquet will be served to the shop employes and program will be very similar to last night's.

TO ELECT CHIEF NEXT WEDNESDAY

Chisholm Council Puts Over Matter Until Next Week.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of the absence of President Hackett the village council yesterday afternoon did not act on the appointment of a new fire chief, the matter going over until next week.

C. L. Goodell of Duluth urged the council to look over the rock crusher at Buhl before making a purchase.

A transfer of George Neally's liquor license was made to Jones & Stull, the new proprietors of the Neally hotel.

Johnson & Watne, general contractors, complained that Plumber R. E. O'Brien was holding them back on their contract and asked relief from the council. The question of ventilated plumbing fixtures was taken up and the chairman of the board of health recommended that the ventilated system be installed. It was decided to have this included and the contractors were given an extension of nine days.

Park Superintendent Arthur Bischfold was instructed to make no further changes in the plans and specifications for the service building at the green house and received instructions to bring any matters of this nature to the attention of the council. All work except that which is absolutely necessary will be deferred now until spring.

COLDER

It got cold enough this morning, but the worst is yet to come. Mr. Richardson says that the mercury will go as low as 15 deg. below zero tonight, and there will be brisk winds accompanying it. The freeze that followed the thaw yesterday has made walking about as disagreeable as one can imagine—and dangerous, too.

There was a snow storm on a year ago today. The sun rose this morning at 7:37 and will set at 5:06 this afternoon, giving nine hours and twenty-nine minutes of sunshine, two minutes more than yesterday.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The disturbance centered over Lake Superior caused rain, sleet or snow during Wednesday or last night in the western lake region, Red river, Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys and Southwestern states, and warmer weather over most of the lake region. A cold wave of considerable intensity covers the entire Northwest, the Eastern slopes and Southwestern states. A 'norther' prevails from Kansas southward to including Texas. Severe cold weather may be expected at the Head of the Lakes this afternoon, tonight and Friday."

GURNEE UPHOLDS HICKEN'S STAND

Police Prosecutor Declares Licenses May Be Given Corporations.

Police Prosecutor W. H. Gurnee sustains the position of Safety Commissioner W. A. Hicken that saloon licenses may be granted to corporations.

Under the state law saloon licenses are automatically annulled upon the death of the licensee. To protect themselves against this contingency a number of saloonmen are forming corporations. The attorney's opinion agrees with Commissioner Hicken's statement that licenses may be revoked, employes arrested and punished and the traffic regulated as well when the license is issued to a corporation as to an individual. Issuing saloon licenses to corporations is not a new move, as a number have been issued in that manner for years past.

ORIGINAL ELK TALKS TO LODGE

J. L. Norris Relates Origin and History of the Great Order.

Many members of Duluth lodge, No. 133, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, attended the meeting last night to hear J. L. Norris tell of his participation in the founding of the order.

Mr. Norris was one of the fifteen men who signed the first constitution of the organization which has now grown to be one of the greatest in the United States. He told how he and six other actors, to promote good fellowship and keep in touch with one another, formed a little club known as the Jolly Corks. That was Nov. 24, 1867. They remained under that name until Feb. 18, 1868, when the organization enlarged and became the nucleus of the present national organization. Mr. Norris gave a most interesting talk and was given a hearty reception.

FORM FARMERS' CLUB AT ADOLPH

Agricultural Agents Report Excellent Progress in Farming Sections.

A new farmers' club, known as the Elm Creek Farmers' club, has been organized at Adolph, according to K. D. Van Wagenen, county agricultural agent, who has returned to the city from a visit to Adolph and neighboring communities.

As Adolph is located on the boundary line between St. Louis and Carlton counties it will receive attention from both county agricultural agents. A meeting was held last week by the new club at which both agents were present. Samples of milk brought in by different members of the club were tested and talks were given and stereopticon views shown.

The two agents also conducted a meeting in Hermantown at the Garfield school at which members of the Garfield, Jackson, and the Farmers' Produce clubs were present. The subject of herd improvement, weighing and testing milk was discussed and stereopticon views were shown.

Seven clubs throughout the county have asked for short courses. The courses will be furnished later in the season. The schedule planned is as follows:

March 24, 25, 26.—Jackson Farmers' club, Duluth.

March 20, April 1, 2.—Garfield Farmers' club and Farmers' Produce club, Duluth.

April 7, 8, 9.—Farmers' Improvement club, Adolph.

April 21, 22, 23.—Homestead Farmers' club, Molde.

April 27, 28, 29.—Svea Farmers' club, Palo.

May 1 and 2.—Bear River Farmers' club, Bear River.

Other clubs may have short courses after this schedule has been disposed of, according to Mr. Van Wanganen.

TAKE LESSON FROM THE U. S. SAYS TAFT

Tells Canadians Popular Government Should Not Be Fetich.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—"I sincerely hope that our experience may give you warning and cause you to take prompter measures to prevent plutocracy reaching the danger point," Former President William H. Taft said here last night in an address before the Literary and Scientific society of the University of Toronto.

Canada, he said, had the advantage of profiting by the mistakes made in the United States, and had already shown discretion in avoiding them. Speaking on popular government, Mr. Taft said that it should not be made a fetich.

Dealing with woman suffrage, he said its advocates would have to justify their attitude either by showing that as a class women suffer by nonparticipation in government, or if they are given the franchise, that they would materially improve "the wisdom and patriotism of the electorate."

FORTY EXPOSED TO TYPHUS GET AWAY

Government Will Try to Find and Watch Them.

New York, Jan. 29.—The sixth case of typhus fever to reach this port within the last month arrived Monday on the steamer Rochambeau from Havre, but was not discovered until yesterday at Ellis island. The patient and a number of other steerage passengers from the Rochambeau were sent to Hoffman island, but about forty others who had left Ellis island when the case was discovered were on their way to various destinations and could not be found.

The public health authorities at Washington were notified, however, and it was expected measures would be taken by the Washington officials to watch these immigrants and isolate them if they show any signs of having contracted the disease.

WHAT TO DO FOR NEURALGIA

The one great symptom of neuralgia is pain; the one great cause is lack of nutrition for the nerves, in plain language starved nerves.

There are two things to do for any form of neuralgia. Apply heat to the affected part to soothe the pain, and feed the nerves by taking a tonic containing the elements needed by them. Heat, as afforded by the hot flannel, hot water bags, etc., lulls the inflamed nerves into temporary quiet. It does not cure. Not until the nutrition of the nerves is restored will the inflammation subside.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills furnish to the blood the needed elements and the blood conveys them to the nerves. The only way of getting food or medicine to the nerves is through the blood. Remember that.

Neuralgia is a general term. It means inflammation of a nerve. It is given different names according to the nerve affected. Sciatica is neuralgia of the sciatic nerv . Application of heat will soothe the pain in all forms of neuralgia and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will correct the condition that caused it.

Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., will send you a little book on "Home Treatment of Nervous Disorders" for the asking.

STRIKE CUT DIVIDENDS

Losses of Street Railway Company in 1912 Reflected in Report.

The showing made by the Duluth Street Railway company according to the figures in the annual report for the last year issued today, was affected largely by the results of the street railway strike, which took place from Sept. 9, 1912, to Nov. 6, 1912. Although the gross earnings of the company increased to the extent of $200,655.15 during 1913 over those of 1912, the dividends for 1913 on common stock were reduced from 5 per cent to 4.25 per cent, and the dividends on preferred stock remained stationary at 4 per cent.

The officials of the company say the losses from the strike were great, and that it has taken rigid economy on the part of the corporation to recover.

The report shows that the gross earnings for 1913 were $1,283,514.30 against $1,088,359.11 for 1912. The total number of revenue passengers carried during 1913 was 25,335,606 against 21,132,003 during 1912. The number of transfers redeemed during 1913 was 4,294,066 against 3,716,619.

Extensive improvements were made by the company last year, the total cost of which was $63,066.65. The largest single improvement was the building of the sub-station in the East end, which cost $21,330.52. New cars and equipment cost $7,948.13; new tracks, $19,174.62; conduit and feed wires, $10,304.95; real estate and buildings, $3,651.90; miscellaneous, $656.53.

CASSIDY SENT BACK TO JAIL DURING TRIAL

Court's Action Surprises Both Prosecution and Defense.

New York, Jan. 29.—Joseph Cassidy, until recently the Democratic leader of Queens county, was remanded to jail in Brooklyn last night at the close of the second day of his trial in the supreme court on the charge of receiving a bribe from William Willette, Jr., former member of congress, who was convicted last week of purchasing a judicial nomination in 1911. With Cassidy to jail went Louis T. Walter, Jr., on trial as the alleged go-between for Cassidy and Willette.

The action of Justice Walter Jay Cox in remanding the defendants, who have been out under $5,000 bail, came as a surprise to the defense and prosecution. The court gave no explanation of the move.

REMEMBER CULLOM GAVE BACK $25,000

Friends' Gift Rejected for Fear It Would Be Misconstrued

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Former Senator Shelby Cullom, who died a comparatively poor man, returned to personal friends a purse of $25,000 three years ago while he was still a member of the senate.

This was recalled today in connection with a delegation of Republicans to attend the funeral in Springfield. He caused return of the money lest their motive might be misconstrued.

No corporations were on the list of donors, who were headed by Judge J. Otis Humphreys. At that time it was thought the late Mrs. Cullom would outlive the senator, and the purpose of the subscription was to make certain that she would have an income in the event of Senator Cullom's death.

The senate does not appoint official committees to attend funerals of its former members, but the entire membership of the foreign relations committee, of which Mr. Cullom was so many years chairman, attended the services at his home here today.

DANIELS OPPOSES FOUR BATTLESHIPS

Thinks One Year Naval Holiday Plan Not Practicable.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Secretary Daniels declared before the house naval committee today that an international agreement for a total cessation of naval construction would be preferable to a one-year naval holiday, and that while he hoped for ultimate disarmament among all the powers, it would be impracticable to suspend naval activities without a combination of at least two of the world's greatest nations.

He believed that with a consideration for the tax burdens of the people, two new battleships was the minimum program of naval efficiency for the United States, and saw no reason for the navy general board's program for four battleships.

Secretary Daniels said he saw nothing in the international situation to change his views.

PORTER TELLS VIEWS ON BANK REGULATION

Morgan Man Says State Should Distinguish Between Institutions.

New York, Jan. 29.—W. H. Porter, a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., was a witness today before the state senate committee which is investigating private banks with a view to enacting legislation for their regulation.

He expressed the opinion that firms like his should be exempted "because they are not doing business with the class of people the committee desires to protect."

"Because dishonest people become private bankers," he continued, "should not make the big bankers liable to legislation that would hamper the proper conduct of good business. Regulation is a difficult problem, but it cannot be done by forcing the private bankers who accept a minimum deposit of $1,000 to abide by the same laws as state banks. These banks serve a useful purpose. They are convenient to a certain class, and they might be given some latitude because of that fact."

Mr. Porter added that J. P. Morgan & Co., accepted no deposits of less than $10,000, on which they paid from 2 to 3 per cent.

Easy Way to Remove Objectionable Hairs

(Beauty Culture.)

Progressive beauty specialists are rapidly adopting the new, painless method for removing superfluous hairs and the result is that the costly and painful electric needle treatment is fast being discarded. The treatment is inexpensive and very simple—just make a paste with a little of the powdered delatone and water and apply to hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes rub off and with it comes every trace of hair. Washing leaves the skin firm and spotless. Be sure, however, that you get the real delatone.—Advertisement.

FILTH AND THE FOOD SUPPLY

Women's War for Cleaner Markets.

By MARY L. CHAMBERLAIN.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau).

"Bread was lying in a box of potatoes. A woman came in and bought a loaf. It was wrapped in a piece of dirty newspaper picked up from the floor. The woman storekeepers has blood poisoning in her hand and goes to the dispensary every day."

This excerpt from a report on a Boston grocery store indicates conditions which can be matched in every city and many small ones.

Insufficient number of inspectors, lack of information about the distribution of food supply, and general apathy of consumers guarantee filth, rottenness and disease as a sauce for our meals. Men have swallowed this seasoning unsuspectingly and laid their troubles to the cook. But the women—the cooks and the housewives—refuse to be blamed without cause. From Boston to San Francisco they are on the job, enlisted in municipal leagues, housewives' leagues and consumers' leagues to get pure food, clean food, safe food for themselves and their families.

In Boston, the Woman's Municipal league has just completed an investigation which shows the proverbial "peck of dirt" can be eaten daily where nobody cares and nobody bothers about the food supply. The condition of the shop described above is not an extreme example of shops in the Hub. The report, just issued by the league, maintains that dirty conditions are to be found in a large number of stores, particularly of the small neighborhood type.

In fact, the investigation of city markets conducted by the league reveals many "horrors" of which the consuming public has long been in blissful ignorance. During the year a systematic inquiry covering the whole city of Boston was made into the condition of fish and meat markets, provision shops and groceries selling green vegetables, meat or fish. In all 2,447 such shops were inspected, 644 of them in Boston proper. The work was done either by Thomas McCrack-en, how assistant professor of education at the University of Utah, or by the two regular inspectors employed by the market committee of the Woman's Municipal league. Throughout the investigation the league had the interest of the Boston board of health.

The tables prepared from the data collected substantiate the sensational descriptions of individual shops. In the city proper, for example, 29 per cent, or nearly one-third of the 644 shops, are rated as "bad." Of the 2,447 shops in all districts, 376 (15 per cent) are listed as "bad," 1,126 (46 per cent) as medium and 945 (39 per cent) as good. In determining the grades, a system of credits was used, suggested by reports of state boards of health in certain western states. The sum total of credits possible for any shop to obtain was twenty, each question on the card covering a certain number of points. Any shop which failed to get 10 is rated bad, those with a rating between 10 and 15 inclusive are called medium, and those with 16 and over, good.

All the shops have been marked upon huge maps of the city with blue stickers for good shops, green for the medium, red for the bad. By this graphic device it is possible to see at a glance the characteristic quality of markets in any neighborhood or in whole sections.

The larger shops maintain, with few exceptions, a standard of cleanliness in excess of any reasonable demand which can be made by customers. As the report states, if they alone were concerned "the matter might probably be left to the progressive spirit and high standards of the majority of dealers." But the health and economic usefulness of a large part of the population especially recently arrived immigrants, depend greatly upon the food supply obtained in small shops near their homes in Boston, as in other cities, wherever ignorance and poverty are herded together the market problem is a serious menace to the standing of living.

In these small neighborhood shops the food is handled freely, the wrapping paper used is sometimes newspapers bought from Chinese laundrymen or from junk dealers, flies are thick on the food and cats roam around at will.

In one grocery an inspector who found a fat gray tabby buried snugly in the macaroni remarked that it was a queer place to find a cat. The owner agreed it was indeed funny because "she usually like to lie on the spaghetti!"

In some shops (273, or 11 per cent of the total) the toilet is directly connected with the salesroom and in many (566, or 23 per cent) the living room adjoins the shop. The report makes the comment that we have long since put an end to the manufacture of clothing for the community in tenement houses, but we are as yet indifferent to the grave danger from the storage and sale of the food of the community in such houses.

The Boston Woman's Municipal league does not make concrete recommendations for the regulation of markets. It suggests, however, the advisability of an ordinance which might obviate the dangers of the combination shop and living apartment, and the establishment either by the city itself or by an association of business men, of model markets in the natural shopping centers of the city. Most of all, the league desires, through such an investigation, to educate the consumer as to what he has a right to expect in the way of sanitary care and cleanliness in the distribution of food.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

ON PUBLIC UTILITIES

Charles Russell of Brainerd Speaks to Crookston Club.

Gives Organization His Views on Handling of Problem.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the local Commercial club needed anything to spur the members on in the campaign just launched to secure 1,000 members the splendid address delivered before the club last evening by Charles A. Russell of Brainerd at its annual banquet was most timely. He discussed the broad question of "Public Utilities," a theme that is especially apt at this time.

The dinner was served at 6:30 and after the splendid menu had been enjoyed, there was a veritable "feast of spirit and flow of soul." President H. W. Misner, who was re-elected for the ensuing year, presided, and briefly outlined the whirlwind membership campaign which will be started next Monday, a business men's luncheon at "a quarter a throw" starting the affair off next Monday noon, with a big rally Monday evening. "A membership of 1,000," is the slogan, and the campaign has the enthusiastic backing of the club and the general public.

Subject Broadly Handled.

The subject of public utilities was handled by Mr. Russell from a very broad viewpoint. The speaker made it plain that upon the service given either through corporate or public ownership, the prosperity of a city to a great extent rested. He delved deep into the vital points of the subject, and illustrated his points by concrete examples of how conditions had been remedied in other places.

As the water and light franchise in Crookston expires a year hence, the subject as related to water, light and power service, was of special interest to the people of Crookston. He having studied every phase of the subject closely, his treatment of it was very illuminative, and there is, as a result, a more practical understanding of the subject than heretofore, as a result of his address.

Control Is Important.

He believes that all public service corporations should be under the direct control of a state board, appointed by the governor. He did not believe the board should be elective, taking the ground that in case of a board elected by the people, politics would, to a great extent, determine the personnel of the board, and the speaker has a very poor opinion of politics in general.

COPPER COUNTRY BIRDS.

Annual Poultry Show Is Being Held at Houghton.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 29.—With more birds on display than ever the eighth annual poultry show of the Copper Country Poultry association began Tuesday in the Amphidrome. Earl J. Hemingway of Green Bay, who has been judge of the poultry exhibits for the past few years, will again act in this capacity.

As usual the Roycraft farm of Sidnaw, Mich., has the largest number of entries and will compete for all prizes put up by the association. The prizes consist of the same as last year, the Matt Haug cup being the first on the list for the best display of ten birds of one variety. Walter S. Prickett of the Roycraft farm has also donated a handsome cup for the best lot of ten birds of one variety of the partiecolored varieties. In addition to the cup prizes for the best exhibits, several cash donations will be awarded.

International Falls, Minn., Jan. 29.—The traveling hoist for carrying pulpwood and dumping it in the river which is under construction just west of the United States customs office at the dock, is about ready to go into commission. This hoist is built on a track and travels about the distance of a block. The company has erected a substantial wooden building near the customs office also.

GIRL'S BURNS FATAL.

Calumet Young Woman Expires From Her Injuries.

Calumet, Mich, Jan 29—Miss Grace McDougall, age 22 years, died at the Calumet & Hecla hospital Tuesday, as the result of an accident on Friday last when she was seriously burned while attempting to light a fire with gasoline. The girl ran through the house and out the front door where she was noticed by two men. The men took the girl with her clothing all aflame and rolled her in the snow and she was later removed to the Calumet & Hecla hospital. Her condition was critical from the time she was taken to the hospital and little hope was given by the physicians attending her. She was in great pain, her body being badly burned and her hands and face also.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Marjory McDougall of 810 Portland street, five sisters and one brother. Her brother, Alec McDougall is a member of the Red Jacket police force.

INDIANS WANT MONEY.

Cheyennes to Ask Uncle Sam to Release Trust Funds.

Aberdeen, S. D., Jan. 29.—Indians of the Cheyenne reservation in Western South Dakota are on the eve of a tribal council, to take the form of a strong protest to the government to relieve suffering among them by opening up for their use the trust funds accruing from the sale of Indian lands to homesteaders.

They want the government to open up the funds held in trust, letting them have money due them.

NON-RESIDENTS ARE NOT LISTING LANDS.

Ryder, N. D., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Business men of Ryder are doing some lively hustling to get a list of unoccupied lands in this section filed with the Soo road. While it was expected that some resident land owners might list their lands, the number is extremely small. They are evidently too well satisfied to care to sell, but there is great disappointment over the small number of listings made by non-resident owners of lands. These were expected to be anxious to sell, but on the contrary they seem disposed to hang on and let their lands increase in value as a result of the activities and development work of the men who are actually here.

YOUNG LIND HAS LEFT FOR MEXICO

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 29.—Norman Lind, son of John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson in Mexico, accompanied by his sister, Jennie Lind, left last night to join his father at Vera Cruz. It was said Young Lind would probably remain with his father during the balance of the latter's stay in Mexico.

His sister will return in a few weeks.

WOMAN CONVICTED OF KILLING HUSBAND.

Ipswich, Minn., Jan. 29.—Mrs. Maude Giffin of Leola, charged with the murder of her husband, George Giffin, last spring, was convicted here by a jury of second degree manslaughter, the penalty for which is $1,000 fine and not more than one year in the county jail, or both, or from two to four years in the state penitentiary.

Mrs. Giffin went into hysterics and fainted when the verdict was returned. She shot and killed her husband in a quarrel on March 31, 1913. A change of venue to Edmunds county was granted. An attempt to lynch the woman was frustrated shortly after the murder occurred.

Detroit Sewer Blows Up.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 29.—An explosion of gas in a street sewer sent manhole covers flying skyward, tore up pavements, shattered windows and wrecked outbuildings in the western part of the city late yesterday. The district affected covered a dozen or more blocks. No one was seriously injured, but there were scores of narrow escapes from death as the heavy pieces of iron and paving blocks were scattered about.

Damage to pavements is estimated at $25,000, while the loss to private property probably will exceed that amount.

FOR CENTRAL MARKET.

Idea Once Dropped in Fargo Again Being Agitated.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question of a central market is to be put up to the city commission next Wednesday. That body fixed a date for hearing the advocates of the plan and will thresh the proposition out from all angles.

For some years the plan has been suggested. Two years ago it advanced so far that the council passed an ordinance selecting a site and designing the market. Mayor Sweet vetoed it because of the city's financial condition and his personal objection to the site chosen.

WORK AWAITS WOMEN FROM UNDERWORLD

Minimum of $8 a Week for Those From Resorts.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 29.—All the women of the segregated district of this city who will be willing to take honest employment after the closing of the resorts by the police on March 1, will be hired for various tasks at a minimum wage of $8 a week.

This statement was made by Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts of Washington, D. C., superintendent of the International Reform bureau. The speaker said the women would be hired by a society recently organized for that purpose by Stanley Finch, who is in charge of the Federal campaign against white slavery.

"The social evil is a direct expense of $21 a year to every family in the United States, whether living in the city or country," Dr. Crafts told the City club. "In addition to this, 12 per cent of all disease is traceable to the evil."

Dr. Crafts predicted that the abolition of the vice district of St. Louis would raise rather than lower values of real estate on the street.

Attorney General McReynolds declined to interfere with the execution of the law after President Wilson signs the bill. The mission workers say many of the inmates of the district are destitute—some of them without street clothing.

MARKET HAS WEAK TONE

Wheat Closes Lower on Liberal Offerings and Light Demand.

Flaxseed Scores Sharp Break in Sympathy With Foreign Situation.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 29.—The market was slightly weaker at the close. May wheat closed ⅜c off and July ¼c off. May durum closed ¼c off.

Oats closed ⅛c off at 36¾@36⅞c. Rye closed unchanged at 52½@55½c for the best grades, and barley unchanged at from 44 to 66c.

At Winnipeg, January oats closed at 33½c bid and May at 36⅝c bid.

Puts on Minneapolis May wheat closed at 88⅝c bid and calls at 89c bid.

After a firm opening and ruling strong today during the early trading under the impetus of higher cables and good buying the wheat market showed moderate weakness up to the closing hour. For that liberal offering and a slackening up in the foreign markets was responsible. At the outset, it was reported from Chicago that Armour and other large operators were buying on an extended scale, and then to counteract that came the intimation that Baltimore exporters were offering to resell hard wheat at ½c less than a week ago. Taken on the whole, the market was of a nervous order. The one thing it was felt that a sharp upturn might be brought about through possibilities of damage in the extension of the promised cold wave into wheat territory as the plant has only a light snow covering in many sections. Furthermore a marked full-ing off in receipts, is predicted from now on.

At Buenos Ayres, wheat closed higher with a large actual clearances at Argentine ports and small country arrivals. Wheat inspections at Duluth today came to only 30 cars against 95 last year, while there were only 38 cars all grains on the tracks for the day. Receipts at Minneapolis were 181 cars, compared with 361 a year ago and at Winnipeg they fell off to 86 cars as against 458 last year.

May wheat opened unchanged at 90⅛c and sold off ⅜c up to the final hour. The July option opened unchanged at 91⅝c and weakened ¼c, changed at 91⅝c and weakened ¼c. May durum opened unchanged at 90c and sold off fractionally.

Flax Breaks Badly.

Weak cables were responsible for a sharp slump in flaxseed today. At Buenos Ayres the seed closed 1⅞c lower and at Antwerp it was off 1⅞c. That condition led to a break at Winnipeg at the opening and the market here followed suit, with weakness accentuated through heavy offerings on the way down.

The May option monopolized the session's trading. It opened unchanged at $1.53⅛ and after a slight firming up when a decline of ⅝c had been recorded, the slump continued till a drop of 1⅞c had been chalked up at the noon hour. The break was resumed and the close came finally at the low of the day, 2⅝c down at $1.50¾. The July option closed at $1.52¾, nominally.

At Winnipeg January flax closed at $1.25½ bid; May at $1.31¼ bid and July at $1.33½ bid.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Duluth grain men advise that the situation in feeds is in very unsettled condition at present. Large stocks are being held at all points and they are being pressed for sale at every opportunity. For that the heavy importations of Canadian screenings are said to have been in a great measure responsible. It is estimated that 60,000 tons of this have been received at Chicago, and that about 35,000 tons were brought to Duluth before the close of navigation.

The Minneapolis cash market was firm, with a good demand for the top grades. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at from 1¼c over May to 1c under May, and velvet chaff at from ½c to 1c under May. There were moderate sentered flour sales. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from 88¼c to 90½c and cash No. 2 northern at from 85¼c to 87¾c.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Steadier American cables and firmness in Manitoba offers caused some covering at the opening and values were ¼d higher and following the opening July advanced ¼d. There is a better demand for parcels and the forecast of Argentine shipments for the week was disappointing. There is an apathetic trade with stocks liberal but the undertone is generally steady. At 1:30 p. m. prices were ¼d higher.

"Corn—Opened unchanged and later declined ¼d. The steadiness at the opening was due to firmer American cables, later declining on pressure of Broomhall's Russian news eable says: "The weather generally very cold but wheat is mostly protected by a good snow covering. The cold weather has conditioned corn and there are larger shipments. The shipment of this cereal together with barley has slightly relieved the depression in freights. Stocks of wheat at interior points and railway terminals are large and shipments, although over those of a year ago, are very disappointing, considering the demand and the size of the crop. The market continues firm."

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "Gossip on wheat and corn last night was more favorable to the buying side on breaks. Wheat traders said that they preferred the bull side, as a cold wave is due. One of the largest of the local traders said he was bullish on the news he received from the best people in the Northwest, who intimate that there is to be a sharp reduction in receipts."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Tends Upward on Cold Wave Prospects.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Prospects of crop damage from a cold wave tended today to hoist the wheat market. The majority of traders, however, were inclined to be cautious in buying on bulges, and preferred to take advantage of setbacks. A forecast of smaller shipments from Argentina counted against the bears. Prices opened a shade to ⅝c higher, dipped temporarily, and then rose more strongly than before.

Absence of export inquiry brought about a subsequent reaction. The close was weak, ⅛ to ⅜c net lower.

Word that crop damage in Argentina had been greatly exaggerated gave the bears an advantage in corn. Wheat strength, however, acted later as more than an offset. The opening was ¼ to ⅛c lower, and there was a slight additional sag, after which a rally took place to above last night's level.

Profit taking by longs resulted afterward in a decline. The close was weak, ½@⅝c to ¾c under last night.

Oats showed independent firmness due to reports that the yield in Argentine would be light and be of inferior quality.

Provisions hardened owing to steady prices for hogs. Initial sales varied from the same as last night to 5c higher, and the market made a further upturn.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Supply Liberal and Bear Faction Attacks Prices Vigorously.

Weakness of Industrials, Particularly Steel, Undermines the Market.

New York, Jan. 29.—The reduction of the English and French bank rates failed to stimulate bullish operations in this market and prices readily fell away when pressure was applied. The only reflection of improved conditions in European monetary markets was active buying of stock for foreign account.

London and the continent bought 30,000 shares, chiefly Canadian Pacific, Steel, Amalgamated and some of the minor railway shares. Bears concentrated pressure on influential stocks, particularly Steel and Reading, acting on the theory that a substantial reaction was overdue.

The unfavorable character of December statements of various railroads and industrial companies furnished a pretext for bear selling. Losses of most of the active shares were limited to fractions, and bidding up of individual stocks gave the list as a whole an irregular appearance.

Price movements were conflicting at the beginning of today's trading. Reading and Steel were lower and the Harriman shares advanced. Pressed Steel Car jumped 4¼ points on the declaration of the first dividend on the common stock since 1904. Canadian Pacific rose 1½ and Utah Copper 1.

Disappointing response of the market to the reductions in foreign discount rates encouraged more activity on the short side and prices took a definite trend downward. Steel, the target for concentrated selling, broke below 65.

Rumely common broke 2½ to 13 and the preferred 5⅞ to 29½, the lowest figures ever reached. These stocks were quoted at 101 and 103½, respectively, in 1912. The general market showed more stability.

Fresh selling orders were distributed late in the day on which some shares sustained losses of a point. Official denial that Reading would segregate its coal property led to a selling of that stock.

The market closed weak. Stocks were liberally supplied to purchasers which encouraged the bear faction to attack prices vigorously. Weakness of industrial stocks, particularly Steel, had much to do with undermining the market for standard railroad shares.

WAR AND BUSINESS.

Philadelphia Ledger: What would a war with Mexico do to American security prices? At first such a calamity would put them down, but later on prices would very likely rise to a high level. Still later there would be another great depression. Such at least is precedent.

After the Civil war had been in progress three years, leading Northern railroad stocks had more than trebled in value. Later on, or after the war was over, a big decline occurred.

Pennsylvania Railroad shares, as an example, were 7 or 8 per cent higher while the battle of Gettysburg was being fought than they are today. The labor riots in Pittsburg, a dozen years after Appomattox, reduced Pennsylvania stock to its lowest point on record, about $27 a share, compared with more than $60 when Lee was invading Pennsylvania.

The stimulant of a war on all kinds of business means larger railroad traffic and increased earnings. But, of course, there are other influences working adversely which are felt more slowly but just as surely. England has not yet fully recovered from the billion of dollars expended on the Boer war, and the land acquired by conquest in South Africa has not repaid the debt, so far as monetary return is involved.

When Sumter was fired upon, the value of Southern property was placed at $4,500,000,000. When Lee surrendered, the value had been reduced to $2,000,000,000. That included, however, the property represented by 4,000,000 slaves.

War in the long run is a destroyer of values and not a creator of values. While the temporary stimulant may advance prices, war is like borrowing money from a bank—it must be paid back some time.

FORTY-NINE PERISH IN COLLISION OF STEAMERS ON COAST OF VIRGINIA

85 TAKEN ALIVE OUT OF WATER

Old Dominion Line Steamship Monroe Sinks Ten Minutes After Crash.

Passengers Hurled From Berths to Death in the Ocean.

Fog Causes Disaster and Hinders Rescue Work By the Nantucket.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 30.—Forty-nine persons went down to death today when the Merchants & Miners' liner, Nantucket, sunk the Old Dominion liner Monroe. Wireless lists forwarded by Capt. Johnson of the Monroe returning with the survivors on the Nantucket, show:

Lost—Passengers, 25; crew, 24. Total, 49.

Saved—Passengers, 30; crew, 55. Total, 85.

Capt. Johnson of the sunken Monroe and all his officers but one were among the saved. The lost officer was Second Engineer Gateley.

Eighty-five survivors rescued from the sea and huddled on the Nantucket, which was limping along with a crumpled bow toward Norfolk today, are the only ones who know all the story of how the two big ships, picking their way through a blanket of fog—one bound north, and the other bound south—met with a crash near the Winter Quarter Shoal lightship.

coast stations started every available agency of rescue in action, but not soon enough.

SANK LIKE A PLUMMET.

While the Nantucket backed off, lowered boats and began sweeping the misty sea with her searchlights, the Monroe, her passengers pitched out of their berths in night cloths, sank like a plummet.

In the swirling vortex of the sinking ship men shouted and women screamed through the mist. The Monroe went down so quickly that there was little time for launching boats, and it is believed that the only refugees were those saved at once by the Nantucket.

The lost had scarcely a chance to realize that death was upon them before they were struggling in the sea. The doomed passengers of the Monroe, fast asleep in their cabins when the two vessels came together, went down to death with only time for a shriek of despair.

Only those kept awake by the snorting sirens that wailed their useless warnings through the fog, knew when the vessel struck. The rest, thrown from their berths by the force of the collision, heavy with sleep, had barely time to struggle to the deck of the sinking vessel before they were plunged into the water.

Not ten minutes intervened between the time the blunt bow of the lumbering Nantucket crashed its way into the vitals of the Dominion liner and the time the latter slid under the waves. The eighty-five rescued, were lifted

RAILROADS' WRIT ENDED

Court Dissolves Injunction Against Missouri Attorney General.

The Claimants of Excess Charges May Select Their Own Courts.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 30.—Injunctions against John T. Barker, attorney general of Missouri, preventing him from proceeding with suits to recover $24,000,000 excess freight and passenger charges made by railroads while the Missouri rate cases were in litigation, are dissolved in an opinion by Judge Smith McPherson, filed in the Federal court today.

The original injunction brought by railroads to prevent enforcement of Missouri's 2-cent passenger and maximum freight rate laws also was dismissed, in accordance with the recent decision of the United States supreme court upholding the laws.

In addition, the court held the $10,000 bond put up by each railroad in 1905 when the state rate laws were enjoined has no reference to those persons who have paid excess rates or passenger fares and they can recover whatever is due them.

"The injunction bond," declared Judge McPherson, "does not limit any person as to his claim for recovery of overcharges.

Can Sue in State Court.

Judge McPherson appointed Nash Adams, an attorney of this city, as a master to adjudicate all claims brought in the Federal court for excess charges, declaring, however, that claimants might sue for recovery of overcharges in any court they choose—state or national. The court declared it would retain jurisdiction over only such claims as might be filed before the master for adjudication.

Judge McPherson declared it was for the claimants to select their own courts.

"Persons who have paid excess rates can come into the United States and have their claims allowed by the master," said Judge McPherson, "but those persons who do not thus elect to come into this court will not be bound to do so by any order of this court. They are left free to go to such court as they may elect."

Non-Residents Involved.

Attorney General Barker had opposed the court's right to appoint a master. Mr. Barker contended, under the decree of the higher court, Judge McPherson's only duty lay in dismissing the cases "without prejudice," taking no cognizance of how the excess charges were collected.

Judge McPherson pointed out there were many persons who had paid the excess rates who were non-residents of Missouri.

"By what authority," said the court, "the attorney general (of Missouri) can act for such persons, is not made known."

BOMB WRECKS PART OF CHICAGO STORE

Italian Proprietor Tells of Letters From Black Hand.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—A bomb, the second recently, was exploded here early today in the doorway of Nicholas Acceturo's grocery store in the Italian quarter. The front of the building was wrecked, members of two families were thrown out of their beds and many windows were broken.

Three men who are believed to have planted the bomb escaped in a high-power automobile. Acceturo said he had received two Black Hand letters each demanding $1,000, but that he had refused the demand.

NOTE TELLS OF PLIGHT OF AMERICANS

Two Captured By Mexican Federals May Have Been Shot.

Villa's Forces Begin Movement to Attack Torreon.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 30.—Two Americans, one of them R. W. Harwood, an Oakland, Cal., newspaper man, were led out from San Ti Juan, Mex., shortly before nightfall Wednesday, under a guard of Mexican Federal soldiers, and are believed to have been shot.

Three miles south of the border Harwood managed to slip a note to a Mexican who passed them on the road. The note was addressed to a San Diego newspaper man.

The letter, which has reached this city, declares that the two American prisoners had been compelled to confess they were smugglers in order to avoid "increasing the suspicions of the Federal authorities, who were told by some peons that we were rebels." The other man, the letters say, was Mortimer Miller.

No Equipment for Prisoners.

According to the Mexican who mailed the letter, the guard of six Federal soldiers carried no supplies, and aside from a small blanket which one of the Americans had, there was no covering.

This had convinced the officials along the border that the prisoners were not being taken to Ensenda for trial, as the Mexican authorities asserted, but were being led beyond into the mountains, where they would be subjected to the law of "la fugas" beyond the sight of Americans on this side of the line.

According to the letter, Harwood expected he and Miller would be held until the other six of the party were captured by the Federals. Four of the other six were captured yesterday in the mountains south of Santi Juana and are now held in jail. The others have been cornered by troops in a mine three miles south of Garcia. The troops are waiting at the entrance to starve them out.

The Mexican authorities in San Ti Juana refuse to say anything regarding the capture of the Americans. I-

SAYS HE SAW LABOR CHIEF IN HIS CUPS

McDonald Charges Gompers Was "Gloriously Drunk" at Seattle.

"Liar!" Retorts Gompers in Mine Workers' Convention.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 30.—That Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was "gloriously drunk" at the Seattle convention of the federation, was the charge made by Duncan McDonald of Illinois at the convention of the United Mine Workers of America today.

During the prolonged cheers, "liar" and "slanderer" were hurled at McDonald by Gompers, who sat on the platform.

"I am glad Mr. Gompers is here so I can say what I want to," said McDonald, in beginning his reply to the speech made yesterday by Mr. Gompers. I said there were boozefighters in charge of the American Federation of Labor, and I'll prove it.

"At the Seattle convention, I had a room with my wife at a hotel next to the room reserved by the resolutions committee. The first Saturday night we could not sleep for the noise made by a bunch of drunks in the next room.

Went to the Room.

"I appealed to the clerk of the hotel, and the noise grew louder. Then I went down to the hotel office and the night manager called Jim Duncan on the phone and told him they would have to get out of the room; that they were disturbing all on the floor.

"The noise grew fierce and I finally knocked on the door of the room and was asked to come in and have a drink. When the door was opened, there sat Sam Gompers at the head of the table, gloriously drunk, with a bottle of booze in his hand."

The statement threw the convention in an uproar and it was some time before order was restored.

While the confusion was at its height, Gompers called McDonald a liar and a slanderer. During his talk yesterday Mr. Gompers declared that of the eleven members of the executive council of the federation, eight do not use liquor at all, two are very moderate drinkers and that he himself takes

THE LEADERS IN THE GRAND JURY'S POLICE INVESTIGATION

WARREN E. GREENE, County Attorney.

C. E. LOVETT, Foreman of Grand Jury.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF JURY WILL BE ACTED ON

Dice Games Must Go; Poolrooms Will Be Investigated.

Cases of Six Officers Will Be Taken Up Separately.

Following the recommendations of the grand jury, Commissioner William A. Hicken will issue orders abolishing dice shaking and gambling of any sort in Duluth cigar stores or other places.

The past policy of the police in breaking up professional gambling wherever it can be unearthed will be continued.

Poolrooms will be thoroughly investigated to rid them of minors or free them of objectionable features, followed by constant supervision as soon as arrangements can be made.

The cases of the six police officers, two of whom are recommended for retirement or resignation, two for censure, and two for close observation, will be taken up individually and considered on their merits.

"The public safety division welcomes suggestions from the public at all times," said Commissioner Hicken this morning, in discussing the report of the grand jury. "It is equally willing to receive complaints, all of which will be given careful consideration and acted upon according to what our best judgment dictates will be for the furtherance of the interests and welfare of Duluth. The public safety division wants it known what it is doing at all times; it has no secrets nor anything to conceal.

"Naturally, I am gratified by the report of the grand jury, as is Chief Troyer."

An Old Case.

Inquiry as to the identity of the policeman who had been given the Keeley cure and reinstated on the force developed that the occurrence happened years ago, when Commissioner Hicken had no close connection with the city government. The man in ques-

TROYER AND HICKEN ARE COMMENDED

"$40,000 Graft" Dwindles to $150 and Even This Is Disproved.

Jury Says Law Was Never Better Enforced in Duluth.

No Protected Gambling and No Public Prostitution Exists in City.

After a conscientious, painstaking and thorough probe of the charges of graft, corruption and inefficiency, which have been repeatedly heaped upon the heads of the department of public safety and the police force, the January grand jury finds the accused not guilty as charged in the indictment of the morning paper.

The inquisitorial body which has been in session since Jan. 7, and which has been conducting a probe of the police department since Jan. 12, wound up its work last evening when it presented its final report to W. A. Cant, judge of the district court. The report was made public at 7 o'clock last evening.

Except for the recommendation that W. A. Hicken, commissioner of public safety, dismiss two members of the present force of eighty-five, suspend two others and reprimand another pair, the jury's report is a testimonial to the honesty and efficiency of the department as a whole.

Graft Stories Exploded.

The $40,000 graft story of the News Tribune was thoroughly investigated and found to be one manufactured almost out of whole cloth. The books of Madame Gain, former resort keeper, were examined by the jury and the total amount which could be found on her books credited as payments to members of the police force was $150, between the years 1901-02-03, although the books covered the entire period between 1901 and 1913.

Of the $150 purported to have been paid to policemen, the books showed that $95 is supposed to have been paid over to two policemen who were discharged from the force and are now dead. The balance of $55, contained in five entries, concerned five members of the present force.

False Entries.

The grand jury on further examination found that the first entry was dated April 17, 1901. It purported to record a payment of $25 to a certain policeman to be given to the chief of police. Madame Gain swore before the jury that C. H. Troyer was then chief of police. Police records were then examined, and the fact was developed that Mr. Troyer did not become chief of police until Jan. 1, 1902. The officer to whom the money is alleged to have been paid on that date was not at that time a member of the police force.

The grand jury found the testimony of Madame Gain, the News Tribune's star witness in the $40,000 graft story, to have been manufactured. "Another of these entries," says the report, "was plainly written in the book very recently, the ink being the same as that used in the transactions recorded in November and December, 1913. In view of the above situation, taken in connection with other evidence which

SAYS NEW GUINEA PEOPLE EAT BABIES

Missionary Also Tells of Death of German Explorer.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 30.—Rev. H. A. Malley, a young Congregational missionary who arrived on the liner Ventura from the Antipodes, asserts that cannibalism still exists to a large degree in New Guinea. Babies and little children are the principal victims, according to Malley, who also brought details of the death of the German explorer, Werner, in the tangled wilds of the island.

"I learned of the fate of Werner from his partner, Winzer," said Mr. Malley, "with whom I traveled when he came back to Papua. Last August the two Germans set out for the interior in search of radium. They were accompanied by guides and a large party of native carriers. After they had gone some distance they quarreled and parted, Winzer returning to the coast and Werner continuing into the wilderness.

"Some time later the guides returned with the tale that the party had been surprised by cannibals. The natives fled, but Werner was speared, clubbed to death and, according to the guides, eaten. Later investigation disclosed the camp of the cannibals. Nothing was found but the bones of the explorer."

WORKED OUT ESCAPE PLAN

Andrew Loben, Arrested for Stealing, Writes Letters to Himself.

Caught at It and Goes to Stillwater on Old Charge.

While incarcerated in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of burglary, Andrew Loben, 41, an ex-convict, evolved a brilliant idea of "putting one over" on the prosecution and the court when he was brought to trial. His plan, however, did not work and today Andrew is on his way to the twine factory at Stillwater.

Loben on Dec. 15 last stole 400 empty sacks from the D. G. Cutler company's warehouse, Eleventh avenue west. The next day he added insult to injury by trying to sell the sacks back to the comupany. The job was a crude one and he was placed under arrest charged with burglary. The grand jury indicted him for the crime.

Loben is said to have confessed to W. E. Magner of the Cutler company. However, when arraigned before the court on the indictment, he pleaded not guilty.

While awaiting trial, Loben conceived the idea of writing a letter to himself from a fictitious person named Johnson, who states in the missive that he and not Loben, is the guilty culprit and that he is sorry that an innocent man is being wronged. Loben also wrote a similar letter to the Cutler company.

Loben, after writing the letters, wrapped them in a neat package, which he addressed to the postmaster of International Falls and asked the jailer to mail for him. The jailor suspected his game and intercepted the plot. The letters were turned over to the county attorney's office.

Loben's note to the postmaster was to the effect that the letters had been handed to him to mail by a friends and that he carried them around in his pocket until after he had left International Falls. "Johnson" stated he had gone to Canada where he could not be found.

Has Bad Record.

Loben will not be prosecuted for stealing the sacks but he will serve time for an old offense committed in Lake county. Just as Loben finished serving time in the penitentiary at Waupun, Wis., he was met at the prison gate by the sheriff of Lake county, who arrested him on a charge of forgery committed in June, 1910.

Loben was brought back to Minnesota and arraigned before the court. He pleaded guilty to the charge and Judge Dancer, who received the plea, paroled the man on the theory that his experience in Wisconsin would be a sufficient lesson to him.

He came to Duluth from Two Harbors and shortly afterwards got into new trouble. He was arrested on the burglary charge which has been pending against him recently.

This morning Loben was brought before Judge Dancer and his parole on the Lake county sentence revoked. H. F. White, third assistant county attorney, moved the court to dismiss the burglary charge and the request was granted.

The prisonar was turned over to Sheriff Emil Olson of Lake county, who will take him to Stillwater.

POLICE WILL DANCE LATEST STEPS AT ASSOCIATION BALL

All the new tango steps, the hesitation waltz, Brazilian maxixe and the Argentine, will be permitted at the twenty-fifth annual ball of the Duluth Police Relief association, to be held Monday evening at the Armory. But to avoid any objectional dances, officers will be stationed throughout the hall, watching that the other policemen do not infringe on propriety.

As long as the new dances are performed properly, the police will make no objection. There will be no special tango or hesitation music for the ball, but the dancers will have the right to dance the tango during the two-step numbers and the hesitation during the waltz numbers.

W. H. Gurnee, assistant city attorney, in answer to an inquiry made by Chief Troyer, stated in a communication received by the latter this morning that the dance may continue after midnight. The ordinance relating to dance halls, states Mr. Gurnee, does not affect the Armory. The communication to Chief Troyer follows:

"Mr. C. H. Troyer, chief of police: "Dear Sir: You inquire whether or not it would be contrary to the dance hall ordinance for dancing at the policemen's ball, to be held at the Armory next Monday night, to continue after midnight.

"You are advised that in my opinion, the provisions of Ordinance No. 333, commonly known as the dance hall ordinance, applies only to public dance halls, duly licensed, pursuant to the terms of the ordinance.

"The Armory is not a public dance hall, and has no license as such, and the proposed ball of the Duluth Police Relief association is not a public dance, within the meaning of the ordinance; therefore there can be no objection to allowing dancing at this ball after midnight. Yours very truly,

"W. H. GURNEE,
"Assistant City Attorney."

NO DULUTHIAN YET FOUND WHO IS MENTALLY PERFECT

Best Record Made on Test Published in The Herald Is Fifty-five Seconds.

Are any Duluthians mentally perfect? Judging from the results of the test adopted at the recent Race Betterment congress, and which was published in The Herald last evening, they are not.

The object of the test is to strike the letter "a" out of the heiroglyphics selected by those at the head of the Race Betterment congress, which was held at Battle Creek, Mich. If the letter can be stricken out in all the words in the short time of thirty seconds, that person is mentally perfect. The jumble of letters adopted for the test and which was used this morning to try the city and police officials follows:

Lske evavy dawma kzaje xatzs cnjaf aruja ahalv iwige fkakp xmvwa parka sugho rvis yraea zaqwb qiaje mygpa chaih angao ymljd fnazd Wdaks gsbnc azeqa grhng nayvk zlaah spqva iaucf akiwr ikdaf tafta puwqa rayxe yoirr vboyx laehu qnhra kaqul. Commissioner Hicken was the first man tried and he accomplished the work in 75 seconds. Judge Windom was the slowest man, but he claims that a man's hand does not work as fast as the brain. And there you are. The record this morning was made by Fred Johnson, secretary to Chief Troyer, who accomplished the test in 55 seconds.

It took Chief Troyer 80 seconds; Capt. Fiskett, 75 seconds, and Clerk of Court John G. Ross, 75.

It is almost impossible to accomplish the test in thirty seconds, or even fifty seconds. A test made this morning to draw 101 lines, there being that many "a"s in the list, took exactly 30 seconds. It is good practice, however, and created quite an interest in the city hall and police headquarters this morning.

FOG HALTS BOATS IN NEW YORK HARBOR

Tieup of Steamer Traffic Is Complete for First Time in Years.

New York, Jan. 30.—New York and its adjacent waters were enveloped in fog until nearly noon today. Water traffic in the early hours was suspended and the movement of trains and cars in and near the city was badly delayed.

Down the bay and in the lane to the ocean, the tie-up of steamer traffic was absolute through the morning. Not a liner came in over night and the marine stations, for the first time in years, had nothing to report.

The steamer Cedric, which left her dock yesterday afternoon, was forced to anchor off the Statue of Liberty for nearly twenty-four hours. Other ships held up by the fog were the Graf Walderesee of the Hamburg-American line, which sailed for Hamburg yesterday; the Albingia of the Hamburg-American Atlas service, bound for West Indian ports; the Morro Castle of the Ward line, for Havana, and the City of Montgomery of the Old Dominion line, for Savannah.

Beware of Boils—THEIR Very Appearance Denotes a Blood Condition That Requires Prompt Action

At the first appearance of pimples and boils the blood should be given a good searching internal bath with S. S. S., the greatest blood purifier known to man.

This remarkable remedy has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In a few minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder, to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the skin that cause boils and other skin eruptions.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process under control that remarkable changes are observed. The eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of renewed health. That strange moody, morbid feeling of depression is fled and the entire system responds with surprising energy.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store. Beware of any effort to sell you something claimed to be "just as good." If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to The Swift Specific Co., 309 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

SALOON KEEPER FINED.

William Crook of Two Harbors Pays $100 to County.

William Crook, Two Harbors saloon keeper, who was tried and convicted in the Lake county division of the district court last December, was fined $100 by Judge Dancer this morning.

Crook was represented in court by his attorney, A. E. McManus, who paid over the money to Frank Kempffer, clerk of the district court of Lake county, who came to Duluth from Two Harbors in connection with court matters to be disposed of before Judge Dancer.

ALEXANDER AGREES WITH LAKE BOAT MEN

Favors Modifying Seamen's Bill to Meet Their Objections.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, Jan. 30.—Chairman Alexander of the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries, has come out strongly against the La Follette seamen's bill unless it is amended so as to take care of lake shipping in a more reasonable manner.

Mr. Alexander told a delegation of lake ship owners yesterday that he favored the adoption of his own bill, which gives local steamboat inspectors the power to say what the lifeboat equipment of vessels on the Great Lakes and land-locked waters, like Puget Sound, shall be.

Under the terms of the La Follette bill, the life boat requirement is greatly in excess of any reasonable demand, according to the lake ship owners, and they have been presenting their objections to the La Follette bill on that ground.

TWENTY-TWO TRUE BILLS RETURNED

Grand Jury Completes Its Work and Reports to Judge Cant.

Twenty-two indictments and six no true bills have been returned by the January grand jury, which completed its work when it turned in its final report to Judge Cant in district court at 7 o'clock last evening.

The jury reported but one indictment and one no true bill on its final report, the other indictments and no true bills having been presented to the court earlier in the month, just before the starting of the investigation of the police department by the inquisitorial body.

The indictment which was returned last evening, was not made public, the defendant not being in custody. The defendant exonerated by the returning of the no true bill was never arrested.

Tearing Down 1,000 Billboards.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 30.—The work of tearing down nearly 1,000 billboards in St. Louis was begun today by Building Commissioner McKelvey, when with fifty men he attacked billboards near the heart of the city. Only eighty-five billboards in St. Louis comply with the ordinance.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

WOMEN policemen, an accomplished fact in Chicago and Denver, are being urged for Brooklyn and other Eastern cities generally by Martha Kinchin, a social worker, to decrease the danger of girls drifting into white slavery. Of the necessity for such protection she said:

"If we had women police in every park, railroad station, dance hall, moving picture show and the larger restaurants, we would be making great strides toward a successful battle with the system of white slavery. Girls are afflicted with a great amount of false modesty, and they are ashamed to go to a regular policeman and tell him of a personal encounter they may have had with some young man. Brooklyn is not free of white slaves. There are also young men roaming about looking for girls and experiences. I have had proof of it in Atlantic avenue. A young man stopped me. 'Shall I call a taxi?' he whispered. 'Shall I call that policeman?' was my answer, and he left hurriedly."

Duluth has fortunately been quite free of white slavery, and little reason exists for the employment of policemen such as recommended by the Brooklyn social worker. The issue has been raised occasionally, but the only cases which had any foundation in fact were unearthed and prosecuted by the local police department. In the principal railroad stations matrons or other social workers attend to the welfare of women entering and leaving the city.

TAGGART WILL NOT SEEK SENATORSHIP.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 30.—After two days of conferences with political leaders, Thomas Taggart, Indiana's member of the Democratic national committee, has issued a formal statement that he will not be a candidate for the United States senate. In his statement, Mr. Taggart says that he will support Senator Shively for re-election.

Calls Carfare "Income Tax."

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30.—Labor leaders headed by James E. Cowles of New York, advocated public ownership of street railroads and railroad transportation on all cars, at a hearing before the legislative committee on street railroads. Mr. Cowles declared that a 5-cent fare was virtually an income tax levied on the salary of every patron.

APPALLING NUMBER OF MURDERS IN THE COUNTY

Grand Jury Urges Restrictions on Sale of Firearms.

Half as Many Homicides as the City of London.

Citing the recent shooting affair at New Duluth in which Neil J. Mooney, a patrolman, was murdered, as an example of the need of new laws governing the sale and use of firearms, the January grand jury, in its final report made public at 7 o'clock last evening, strongly recommended the passage of legislation which would fix some responsibility upon dealers in firearms and other deadly weapons.

The grand jury investigated at some length the record of murder and homicide cases in St. Louis county for the past few years and found what is considered an appalling condition of affairs. Touching upon this phase of its investigation, the grand jury reported the following to the court:

"Our investigations revealed facts of a startling nature. We found that during the last four years, from Jan. 1, 1910, to Jan. 1, 1914, sixty-five homicides were committed in St. Louis county. These facts are so appalling that we feel it our duty to call special attention to them. The following table shows the number of homicides committed during that period:

Year 1910—
Murder in first degree	5
Murder in second degree	3
Murder in third degree	2
Manslaughter in second degree	1
Total	11
Year 1911—
Murder in first degree	12
Murder in second degree	2
Murder in third degree	1
Manslaughter in second degree	2
Total	17
Year 1912—
Murder in first degree	11
Murder in second degree	1
Manslaughter in first degree	5
Manslaughter in second degree	4
Total	21
Year 1913—
Murder in first degree	8
Murder in second degree	1
Murder in third degree	1
Manslaughter in first degree	5
Manslaughter in second degree	1
Total	16
Grand total	65

"It will be observed that of these cases thirty-six were for murder in the first degree.

Some Comparisons.

"In order to give an adequate conception of the prevalence of this awful crime, we have gathered some statistics regarding homicides in the principal cities of the country. We find that during the year 1911 the number of homicides to every 100,000 of population in the leading cities of the country are as follows:

Manhattan and the Bronx (New York city)	1.8
Boston	0.2
Philadelphia	0.5
Brooklyn	0.6
Chicago	0.7
Minneapolis	0.9
San Francisco	0.8
Seattle	0.3

"For a period of ten years, from 1901 to 1910, inclusive, the number of homicides were as follows:

Manhattan and the Bronx (New York city)	5.1
Boston	4.6
Philadelphia	3.7
Brooklyn	4.2
Chicago	8.4
Minneapolis	2.7
San Francisco	11.2
Seattle	7.6

"According to the census of 1910, the population of St. Louis county was 163,274. In order to make allowance for increase of the population of the county, we will assume the average population during the last four years was 175,000. The average number of homicides per year during that time was 16.25, or 9.28 to the 100,000 population per year. Of this, the average amount of murders in the first degree is 5.15 annually.

"England has a population of more than 34,000,000, and the average number of homicides committed in that country annually does not exceed 300. In other words, the number of homicides committed in St. Louis county annually are about 100 more in proportion to the population than the annual number of homicides committed in England. The greater certainty of arrest, conviction and punishment in England is undoubtedly the principal reason that fewer homicides are committed there in proportion to the population than in this county. This is not the fault of the officers of the law, of our prosecuting attorneys or our judges, but is due to other conditions.

Twenty to One.

"Judge Cant, in an address given in 1908, made the following statement:

"This county of St. Louis, during the past year, with perhaps 150,000 people, has, roughly speaking, nearly half as many homicides as London, with 6,000,000 people; that is, we are about twenty times as lawless in this respect as they. A citizen stands about twenty chances of being killed intentionally by violence in this county as against one chance which he would stand if he were a resident of London.

"Uncontradicted evidence was submitted to us which shows that a large percentage of men of foreign birth, of certain nationalities, carry revolvers. The evidence tended to show that of one nationality nearly every man was armed, and that it was a common thing among them to gratify their revenge on persons who had injured them, and that they carried their grudges for many years, expecting sometime to be able to get their enemy.

"One case showed that this had been done after a lapse of three years, and that the party who was shot fully expected during that time, that he might be killed without warning and without an opportunity to defend himself. This is one of many cases that have been brought to the attention of the county attorney. The recent sad affair at New Duluth is only another evidence of the reckless sale of arms and ammunition, and the still more reckless use of the same in the hands of parties who have not the descretion or the disposition to properly use them.

"In view of the conditions which now exist in this county, it is the opinion of the grand jury that laws should be enacted which will fix some responsibility upon the dealers in arms and ammunition. We believe that no revolver or other deadly weapon should be sold except to persons who have made application to the chief of police or other officer, and his permission to purchase and carry the same is obtained."

PEACE PACT WITH COSTA RICA FRAMED.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Secretary Bryan and Joquin Calvo, Costa Rican minister, have agreed upon the terms of a new treaty by which the United States and Costa Rica agree to arbitrate for at least one year all questions arising between the two countries which cannot be adjusted through diplomacy. This is the eleventh of the peace treaties agreed to by Mr. Bryan and the diplomatic representatives of foreign powers, and seven already have been signed.

ELLISON IS ARRESTED

Two Complaints of Petty Larceny Against Theatrical Manager.

"Eight Widows," It Is Alleged, Never Started on Road.

Charles Ellison, who has been operating a school for acting and a theatrical agency above the Happy Hour theater, 131 West Superior street, for the past few months, was arrested early this afternoon on two charges of petit larceny.

The complaints against Ellison are made by R. H. Ring and C. F. Bradfield, who claim that the defendant took $15 from each of them on a promise that he would teach them how to act, place them in a production and that they would be earning money as actors on Jan. 1, 1914. They claim in their complaints that Ellison has failed to keep his word and that his teaching has not amounted to anything; that they were never placed in the sketch and that they are not yet on the stage. Each of the two young men accuses Ellison of obtaining $15 from him.

Ellison came to police headquarters shortly after the complaints were made against him, and being unable to give bail, was placed in a cell. He will be arraigned in police court this afternoon on the two counts.

In the "Eight Widows."

According to both King and Bradfield they came to Ellison's office on Dec. 11 and after a conversation paid him $15 each to take the course in his school. They were instructed and then placed in a show known as "Eight Widows," they claim. Ellison promised them, the complaints read, that the show would be on the road by Jan. 1.

Ellison will probably plead not guilty and the trial will be set for some time next week. The police have received many complaints against Ellison in the past, but have never been able to place a specific charge against him.

On Jan. 3, Chief Troyer and a Herald reporter obtained affidavits from Pearl Adison, Anna Dimback and Pearl Day, in which the three girls declared they never learned anything at the school and that they never made any money. Anna Dimbach claimed that she paid Ellison $23 and that he had refused to return the money to her, after he had failed to place her on the stage, as he had agreed.

Pearl Adison was the only one placed on the stage, but the show was stranded at Hibbing after a week's trip. She never obtained a dollar for her work, she stated in her affidavit.

LONG ILLNESS ENDS.

Mrs. Anna Fargo, 15-Year Resident of Duluth, Dies.

Mrs. Anna Fargo, 70 years old, for fifteen years a resident of Duluth, died early this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. M. Weaver, 611 Boulevard avenue. She had been ill for several years and for the last eight weeks she was confined to her bed.

Besides her husband, Wyman Fargo, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Weaver, and one son, Claud Fargo of Fort William, Ont. The latter arrived here last Tuesday.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the residence. Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church will officiate, and the body will be taken to Minneapolis for interment.

VALUES SHOW BIG INCREASE

Personal Property Gains 66 Per Cent; Realty 20 Per Cent.

Former Omissions Reflected in Gain for the Last Three Years.

Duluth's assessed valuation of personal and real property has shown a remarkable increase in the last three years, according to the annual report of City Assessor J. Allyn Scott.

The personal property valuation has jumped $4,827,986, or 52.8 per cent in the three-year period. Adding to this amount for the purpose of comparison, one-twelfth of the money and credits assessment, or $1,202,656, the gain is $6,030,552, or 66 per cent. The increase in real estate for the same period was $6,549,028, or 20 per cent. The report includes detailed tabulations of the assessed valuations and the tax rates for the last ten years.

An interesting feature of the assessor's summary is that relative to assessments for special improvements, particularly as it throws light upon the city's share for street intersections and storm sewers where pavements are laid. This will be of more value next year, as the assessor's office has had charge of the making of these assessments for only a few months. To Jan. 1 the total of paving assessments forwarded to the council was $148,804.49. Of this amount the property was assessed for $124,242.47, or 83.49 per cent, while the city's share was $24,562.02, or 16.51 per cent.

Commenting upon the personal property assessment the assessor states that it is impossible to say at this time what effect the new law recently passed by the legislature will have upon that to be made this year, but he predicts it will result in a material reduction in many lines. He partially ascribes the big increase of the last three years to the addition of much property which was heretofore omitted.

During the summer Assessor Scott and his assistants visited most of the unplatted property in the city, which will result in a more equitable assessment than it has been possible to obtain in the past.

Work on the big map showing the improvements affecting all property and the topography of individual lots has been pushed. It now contains the tentative figures from which will be made up the real estate assessment for 1914. Under the new law the assessor has been obliged to revalue and reassess every parcel in the city, including both land and buildings. It has been the policy to obtain the true considerations of all sales, which serves as one of the best possible guides in arriving at accurate valuations.

A card system is being completed which will supplant the duplicate tax books which have been used up to the present time. The assessor explains that the new system will be more flexible than the old and will not only save much time and labor, but will enable the department to keep an accurate check upon the assessment.

GO TO CHURCH ON FEB. 22

The Nation-Wide Movement Strikes Duluth—Washington's Birthday Chosen.

Interest in Religion Aroused By Plan in Other Cities.

The "go to church" movement has reached Duluth and the inter-church council is urging its observance.

Feb. 22 will be the Sunday on which particular stress will be laid on church attendance. That is believed to be a most appropriate day in view of the fact that it is the birth anniversary of George Washington, the first president. In this way, it is believed, not only will the attendance be larger than usual, but there will be a general observance of a much neglected anniversary.

This movement has been sweeping the country of late, and, it is claimed, has been exceedingly successful everywhere. It is believed that many men who have neglected church for a long time, after the ice has been broken by observing the movement, will resume the practice of earlier years. In many cases, it is claimed, this has proven to be the result of a "go to church" Sunday.

St. Ignace Child Burned.

St. Ignace, Mich., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—When Mrs. Alex Belonga, living in St. Ignace township, visited the house of a neighbor for a few minutes, her son Hamel, 3 years of age, procured a box of matches from the cupboard and ignited his clothing. A 4-year-old brother quenched the fire with a pail of water, but not until the younger had been burned fatally. The child died shortly after the arrival of a physician.

RED CROSS MAY END CHINESE FLOODS

Gets Permission at Pekin to Raise $20,000,000 for Work.

Pekin, Jan. 30.—The American Red Cross society has been granted by the Chinese government a year in which to obtain $20,000,000 to carry out a project for controlling the river Hwai, whose overflows have hitherto caused every year great loss of life and damage to property.

A preliminary agreement to this effect was signed today by Paul S. Reinsch, American minister to China, and representatives of the Chinese government. The plan for obtaining the money is to float a 5 per cent loan.

The Hwai traverses Southern Ho Nan and Northern Ngan Hwei and runs into Lake Hunk Eseu. It rises and floods the surrounding country very extensively every year. The relief of the sufferers from the inundations costs thousands of dollars.

FRIENDLY SUIT TO SETTLE DISPUTE.

An action in mandamus directing the county auditor and the county treasurer to appear in court on Feb. 7 and show cause why about $6,000 in taxes included in the October apportionment of 1913 should not be paid to the township of Stuntz, was begun today.

The action is a friendly suit to determine a dispute which has arisen between the officials of the village of Hibbing and Stuntz township. The money involved was collected as taxes on the Albany mine property.

The property in question was annexed to the village of Hibbing about two years ago but through a mistake of the officials of the village the fact was not certified to the county auditor and consequently the assessment rolls were not changed accordingly.

As a result, the taxes on the property have been paid to Stuntz while in reality the money belongs to the village. The October apportionment of taxes is on this property being held up by the auditor until the merits of the claims of both Hibbing and Stuntz is decided in the courts.

LOTTERY FEATURE CARRIES BIG LOAN

Prussian Government Disposes of $90,000,000 Treasury Notes.

Berlin, Jan. 30.—The success of the new $90,000,000 Prussian loan was announced officially today. The loan, issued in the shape of treasury notes, constitutes a new type of public security in Germany, as it is redeemable by annual drawings covering a period of years. The entire redemption will take sixteen years, but holders who do not wish to withdraw their money when their notes are drawn are to be allowed to convert them into 4 per cent bonds.

This lottery feature of the new financial transaction was adopted by the government because of the failure of various public issues in 1913.

It is thought probable that a further issue of about $50,000,000 will be made later this year. These large sums are for the expansion of the railroad and canal systems of Prussia and for other productive purposes.

APARTMENT HOUSE IN CHICAGO BURNS.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—There was no loss of life in the $300,000 fire which destroyed the New Bedford apartment building in Oakwood Boulevard here last night, so far as search of the ruins disclosed today. The fire started from a boiler explosion and the 300 tenants were driven into the street.

RENEWS DEMAND FOR EQUIPMENT

Oneota and Hazelwood Club to Insist on Fire Protection.

At the next meeting of the Oneota and Hazelwood club its members intend to renew the agitation to have fire fighting equipment provided for the district. It is proposed to ask the city to build a small hall on "no man's land," located at Thirty-ninth avenue and Traverse street, which is believed by the residents of the section to belong to the park board.

The residents say that they do not intend asking for a full crew, but will be satisfied if the place is only equipped with a combination hose and chemical. They aver that such equipment would be sufficient to meet the demands of the community for several years.

Members of the club say that their district greatly needs the protection. Alarms sent from the district require long runs on the part of the department, it being necessary for the firemen to come either from the West Duluth station on Central avenue or from No. 2 fire hall on Eighteenth avenue west. In either case the department has a run from a mile to a mile and a half.

With a hose cart located in the center of the district it is claimed that 50 per cent of the fires can be taken care of without further aid. The majority of the fires calling on the department for the long runs are said to be of a minor nature which could be easily taken care of by the few men located in the center of the district.

REVOLUTIONIZES STEEL WELDING

Remarkable Demonstration of New Process Before Railroad Officials.

For the first time in the history of the Northern Pacific railroad an engine tire-welding job, which usually takes from four to five days, was accomplished in less than four hours. The work was done by the oxy-acetylene process. Five spots in the tire, the smallest four inches long and three-sixteenths of an inch deep, were placed in condition during the time.

A number of officials of the railroad, among them being General Master Mechanic Zwight of St. Paul, witnessed the work, at the Garfield avenue roundhouse. J. A. McDonald of the Duluth Boiler works superintended the job.

The quick time made in welding the steel tire will, in all probability, revolutionize the method now in vogue of fixing tires. It has been the custom to place the tires on large lathes and grind the flat spots out. This process would take from four to five days. The officials of the railroad are said to have been highly pleased with the experiment.

CULLOM'S BODY ON WAY TO SPRINGFIELD

Follows Same Course as That of His Friend, Lincoln.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—The body of Former Senator Shelby M. Cullom was sent on its journey here today over the same road which, nearly forty-nine years ago, carried the body of his great friend, Abraham Lincoln. Sunday afternoon at Springfield, Ill., the body will be lowered into a grave near that of Lincoln, to rear a national monument to whom Mr. Cullom devoted the last years of his long life.

The steel car in which the funeral party arrived here from Washington was switched to the Chicago & Alton train due at Springfield at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Tomorrow the body will lie in state at the state capitol, where, among the throngs expected, there will be a few of the patriarchs in whose memories still live the days when Shelby Cullom and Abraham Lincoln were in their prime. Among them, too, will be some of those who were with Cullom at the little railroad station of those days when he read the telegram from Washington that Lincoln was dead.

The train today was bound for the same spot, and through districts where Cullom followed his leader, Lincoln, in political campaigns, and every foot of which he came to know later through his own campaigns which elevated him to the governorship of the state and finally to the United States senate.

CALL LEVER BILL UNFAIR TO NEGROES

Resolutions Adopted at New York Meeting Demand Its Defeat.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Lever bill for an agricultural education fund, now pending in congress, was attacked as standing for race discrimination, at a mass meeting held in Cooper Union last night under the auspices of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Resolutions were adopted demanding the defeat of the measure in the senate.

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the New York Evening Post, chairman of the association's board of directors, declared the bill failed to provide for an equitable division of the fund between white and negro colleges. He also declared that the bill represented a dangerous attempt to secure Federal ratification for a policy of rural discrimination in the South, since in depriving negroes of agricultural education, it was in line with the movement for segregation and curtailment in farm holdings.

KILLS FOUR BEARS IN WINTER DEN.

Aitkin, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of Aitkin men employed as a surveying crew on a drainage ditch in the northern part of the county arrived home this week. In the party was Fred Heuer, who shot a bear and three cubs while in their den. One of the cubs was eaten while in camp.

THREE RESIGN FROM QUEBEC COUNCIL.

Quebec, Jan. 30.—J. O. Mousseau, chairman of the private bills committee of the Quebec legislature, and Achille Bergvin and L. P. Berard, members of the provincial legislative council, have sent their resignations to Premier Gouin. Charges were made against the three men recently in the Montreal Daily Mail that they accepted bribes to help pass a bill incorporating the Montreal Fair association.

SAYS WIFE CAN SIGN HUSBAND'S CHECKS.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 30.—A wife who signs her husband's name to checks is not a forger under decision of Judge George W. Allen.

Mrs. Wright, plaintiff in a divorce suit against P. Carlson Wright, was arrested after having signed his name to two checks. She said her children were in need and her husband had failed to provide for them.

The court declared she not only was within the law, but her act was proper.

VOTE TO ASK FOR WASHINGTON WILL.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 30.—The house of delegates has passed the senate bill requiring the governor to make formal request of J. P. GOMPERS DEFENDS A. F. OF L. BEFORE THE MINE WORKERS

Tells What It Has Done to Aid Copper Strikers.

Denies Council Is "Worm-Eaten" and That He Is "a Scab."

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 30.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, defended that organization and its executive council in a speech late yesterday before the convention of the United Mine Workers of America, against charges made by Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, Duncan McDonald of Illinois and others in the convention. Moyer charged that if the copper strike in Michigan should be lost it would be due to the inactivity of the executive board of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Gompers declared it would be impossible to levy an assessment for the copper mine strikers of Michigan and denied that the organization is reactionary, fossilized, worm-eaten and dead, and that the executive council is made up of "booze fighters."

Accusers Will Talk.

After Mr. Gompers had concluded, McDonald announced he would speak to the convention in the morning, and asked the federation president if he would be in the city. He said he would remain here as long as he possibly could and still keep an engagement in New York city at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Mr. Moyer said he also would speak this morning unless called out of the city before.

Frank J. Hayes, vice president of the miners, introduced Mr. Gompers and explained that he appeared before the convention to answer the charges against the federation and its executive council.

"Taking the newspaper reports as a criterion," Mr. Gompers began, "the most important work this convention has done has consisted of attacks on the American Federation of Labor and its officers and discussing whether the president's salary shall be increased $1,000 a year. I don't know if the charges in the newspapers are true, but if was printed that it was declared in the convention here that the American Federation of Labor is reactionary, fossilized, worm-eaten and dead. Is this statement true?"

McDonald Admits Statements.

Amid loud cheers, McDonald said: "I made those statements and others like them."

"Of the eleven men who compose the executive council, eight never touch a drop of liquor. Two of the men are as moderate drinkers as any men who ever take a drop of drink. For myself, I take a glass of beer when the day's work is done. I challenge any man to prove otherwise than that I am as good a man, mentally and physically, as I ever was, and I reached my 64th year last Tuesday.

"Fossilized and dead mean the same, but I submit that an organization can't be these and at the same time reactionary, for that means going backward. The history of the organization shows that it is not dead."

Quoted Letters.

Mr. Gompers here directed attention to a number of letters which, he said, were over the signature of Duncan McDonald, and published in a Chicago newspaper in 1911. He read from one of these a statement which tended to show the cost of living in the fourteen years preceding had increased 60 per cent, and that the increase in wages amounted to 20 per cent. He said the miners would not admit that they were 40 per cent worse off than they were fourteen years before.

McDonald interrupted to say he obtained the figures from a statistician employed by the Federal government, and that they applied to all classes of laborers as a whole.

"I suppose I shall have to submit to interruption from every one of the 1,510 delegates if they desire," said Gompers. "They have their rights here as delegates, while I have none. "It is absurd to say that the miners, the tailors, the carpenters, the women who work in the sweatshops or any of the toilers of the land, if you please, are worse off now than fifteen years ago. The statement is so bereft of reason that I prefer to leave it with you than try to answer it myself."

As to Industrial Unionism.

Mr. Gompers denied that the Federation had placed obstacles in the path of industrial unionism, but on the contrary, he said, had encouraged it wherever possible and had urged the amalgamation of kindred trades.

"The American Federation of labor cannot say 'you must amalgamate,'" he continued. "Would the miners obey, if the Federation should say 'you must separate?' We have as much authority one way as the other. It is an outrage to lay the failure of industrial unionism to the federation. The men and women in the labor movement are human beings and cannot be moulded in an instant to suit the desires of anyone. They must be made to see the advantages of the movement first."

The speaker referred to the Rochester convention of the federation, and resented that he was charged with being a "scab at heart," which charge he said had been made by McDonald. "By God, that is more than a human can be expected to stand," declared Mr. Gompers.

He said he had passed over many insults, but this one could not be overlooked. He said McDonald denied in the convention that he had made the statement, and that was sufficient.

As to Copper Strike.

Mr. Moyer said his speech had been correctly reported, when asked by Mr. Gompers, who then turned to the charge that the executive board had been inactive in regard to the copper strike.

"I have given and will continue to give all that is in me to further the strike of the copper miners," declared Mr. Gompers. "No accusation could be more unjust than that of Mr. Moyer. Talk about the American Federation of Labor not raising money! You may not know that the miners only pay 8 cents a year to the American Federation of Labor. That is all the other organizations affiliated with the Fedcration pay. Do you think we can accumulate a large defense fund on that tax?

"Mr. Moyer says it cost about $30,000 a week. The federation could raise only $90,000 in six months if every organization were to pay. That would run the strikers only three weeks, and the organizations have sixty days in which to meet the assessment."

Mr. Gompers read a list of all the unions affiliated with the federation, stating after each name whether it would be able to meet an assessment. He said only about two-thirds of the list could pay.

Would Mean Disruption.

"An assessment would mean the disintegration of the American Federation of Labor, for the constitution provides for the expulsion of any union which does not meet the assessments. In all the history of the federation, only twelve assessments have been tested.

"It is just as reasonable to charge the loss of the fight of the Southern Confederacy to Jeff Davis as it is to charge the loss of the Michigan strike, if it should fail, to our executive council. The Confederacy lost because its resources were exhausted. Jeff Davis could not supply funds when there were no more, and neither can the executive council."

Mr. Gompers detailed in chronological order the steps the executive council had taken to further the strike, and told of the efforts put forth to obtain Federal investigation of the Michigan and Colorado strikes.

"Not a thing was asked," said Mr. Gompers, "that we did not do, except to levy an assessment; and that was impossible. Who, now, can truthfully charge the executive council with inactivity or neglect?"

Mr. Gompers denied that the delegates from the United Mine Workers of America to the convention of the American Federation of Labor had ever been insulted.

Just before adjournment it was announced that the proposition to increase the salary of the president of the miners from $3,000 to $4,000 a year, had passed by a vote of 1,753 to 1,697.

United States Senator John W. Kern of Indianapolis telegraphed President White that he would arrive in Indianapolis at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

CHINA'S RECOGNITION OF CONFUCIANISM NO BLOW TO CHRISTIAN MISSIONS

New York, Jan. 30.—Political rather than religious significance is attached by officers of foreign mission organizations to the action of the Chinese administrative council yesterday prescribing the worship of heaven and of Confucius by the president of the republic. The news brought from Pekin by dispatches to the Associated Press caused regret that Confucianism should receive state recognition, but no alarm for the prosperity of the missions maintained by the American churches in China.

American missionaries regret the dissolution of the Chinese parliament and the recent monarchial tendencies shown by President Yuan Shi Kai, but they retain confidence in repeated assurances the president has given of his friendliness toward the Christian religion. Recent letters received at headquarters here from Christian workers in the Chinese field testified to this belief.

Fears Irreligion.

"I think," said Dr. F. M. North, secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church in charge of the Chinese field, "that President Yuan Shi Kai is concerned that there shall not come to China a period of irreligion. Our missionaries who know him say he believes it essential that his country shall not lose its ethical strength.

"It is to be regretted that the question of religion in China has not remained open; but we have no doubt of the president's friendliness. He has said the ethics of Christianity are essential to the Chinese republic, and his nieces are now being educated in one of our schools in Pekin. This does not mean that they have embraced Christianity; but it is a sign of Yuan Shi Kai's good will and his recognition of the value of our missions."

Dr. North received a letter yesterday from James W. Bashford, Methodist bishop of China, which made no reference to the Confucianist movement. He considered this omission evidence that the situation was causing Bishop Bashford no alarm.

Congregationalist View.

Edward Lincoln Smith, corresponding secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions of the Congregational church, agreed in a measure with Dr. North. "It looks to me," he said, "like an effort on Yuan Shi Kai's part to conserve the old religion. I do not believe it will interfere with our work. We have just had proof of Chinese friendliness in a request from the government of Sanshi, an interior province, that our mission there take entire charge of the public school system in a large section of the province. The government offered to furnish and equip the schoolhouses and make an annual grant of $2,800 if the board would supervise the work."

On behalf of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church, Dr. A. W. Woodruff Halsey, secretary of the home department, said lately:

"We are opposing the move toward Confucianism for the good of China herself, rather than because we believe it will hamper the work of our missionaries there. It would be a backward step in the progress of China, for it would permit the unscrupulous to mix religion with business and politics."

See Reactionary Tendency.

Missionary workers here recalled that the Chinese provisional Constitution demanded religious freedom, and they agreed that the move by the administrative council, which Yuan Shi Kai, they hear, practically controls, indicated reactionary tendencies. In a recent report to the state department, the American charge d'affaires at Pekin took this same view. He pointed out that the revolution which established the republic discredited Confucianism because it was associated with the old order. At that time Confucian temples were destroyed or turned to secular use.

Foremost in the movement to restore Confucianism was Dr. Chen Huan Chang, who has the degree of director of philosophy from Columbia university. He is remembered here as one of the brightest Chinese that ever attended Columbia, and his influence in China has been marked. At the head of a company of Chinese scholars, he did his best to have Confucianism designated as the state religion, without, however, depriving the people of religious liberty.

Missionary workers here believed that the action of the Chinese council would not retard the Christian movement in China if it did not tend toward curtailment of religious freedom, which not only the Christian converts of the republic, but members of other denominations, demand.

Regret, Not Surprise.

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—Regret, but no surprise, was expressed by men here interested in foreign missions when they learned of the establishment of Confucianism as the state religion of China. Much of the organized effirt in this country to prevent such action centered in this city.

"There is nothing very surprising in Yuan Shi Kai's action," said Rev. Frank S. Dobbins, missionary secretary of the Baptist Foreign Missionary society. "I think it is a political move purely. Yuan is in a very precarious position, and I imagine he is willing to take any step which confirms his position with the masses.

"I do not anticipate any trouble for our mission workers as a result, although, if the government insists upon their performing any of the formal acts of Confucianism worship, there will be trouble. It is peculiar that the scholars of China have not decided among themselves whether Confucianism is a religion or not. It does not treat of God or gods; it has no sacrifices, no prayers. It is rather a system of ethics, treating of the relation of ruler and subject first, and then of the relation of parent and child.

"Personally, I feel no chagrin at the institution of Confucianism as a state religion, but I would have been very deeply distressed if Christianity had been adopted. We do not want Christianity adopted anywhere as a state religion."

Rev. William H. Roberts, former moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, said:

"I do not think the move will injure the mission work of any of the Christian churches."

NARROW ESCAPE FOR "SAMSON"

Powerful Lion Springs on Performer in "Movie" Play.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 30.—Heads of the moving picture studios here and leading performers in the "movie" colony in the San Fernando valley received news of the death of Fritz Schindler, the American moving picture photographer, with deep regret. They recalled the narrow escape from death of J. Warren Kerrigan in a recent production of "Samson" by the Universal Film Manufacturing company.

Kerrigan was playing the title role, and during the scene when the "youthful Samson" comes to close quarters with a powerful lion and breaks its jaws, the animal sprang upon him, knocking him down, and causing blood to stream from his body in a dozen places. J. Warren McDonald, director of the company, and two cowboys who stood near by, emptied their revolvers into the beast's body, killing it.

Had Over Fifty Rehearsals.

Animal trainers were busy with the lion for two months preparing it for the scene. More than fifty times the 'king of beasts' had been put through the scene by the trainers, and in each instance the experiment was a success.

Mr. McDonald had issued instructions that Kerrigan should open the lion's jaws with his bare hands and then carry out the struggle with it. The camera man was to stop a moment while the lion was drugged by a physician, and the struggle was then to continue until the animal was overcome by the narcotic, Samson making the grand climax by throwing the beast from him, apparently dead.

Beast Changes the Act.

Samson came forward and met the lion, and as it snarled and roared he took its jaws in his hands. A short struggle ensued and then the camera was stopped, the doctor stepped forward, and just as the end of the needle of the hypodermic syringe touched its skin, the beast sprang back with a roar and then leaped upon Kerrigan.

McDonald, the director, fired into the animal's heart, and the bullets from the revolvers of the cowboys entered its head.

SAYS SKUNK ODOR PROLONGED HIS LIFE.

Columbus, Ind., Jan. 30.—According to John Vorwald, a dealer in furs here for 40 years, the skunk is the greatest fur-bearing animal in the world.

"The odor of skunks has prolonged my life," says Mr. Vorwald. "Whenever I feel badly I go into the furroom of my store and get a good, strong whiff of skunk. Then I always feel better. I knew a little boy once who had sore eyes. He saw what he thought was a strange kitty in the yard and poked it with a stick. The kitty was a skunk and the child's eyes were filled. Cure of the soreness, however, resulted.

"Skunk fat is good for croup, and I have regular customers who take all the fat I can get off the pelts brought to me. Then the skunk fur is as fine as one is able to buy anywhere."

Mr. Vorwald pointed to a skunk pelt that had just been brought in and declared it was the finest he had seen in the years he has been buying fur.

LOW GRADES FOR TRAFFIC

New Railway Route in Alaska That Would Avoid Glaciers.

Shorter Distance From Tidewater to Montanuska Coal Field.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Prof. Lawrence Martin of the University of Wisconsin, one of the greatest living authorities on glaciers and glacial movements, in a communication just received by Gilbert H. Grosvenor, director of the National Geographic society, substantiates his claim to the discovery of a new railway route in Alaska, connecting Portage or Passage bay, on the west side of Prince William Sound, to Turnagain Arm. Although the United States Geological survey, in a bulletin made public Jan. 1, states that "some excitement has been caused by the discovery of a feasible railway route" connecting the above two points, Prof. Martin points out that the discovery was made by the 1910 Alaskan expedition of the National Geographic society, under his direction.

Will Avoid Glaciers.

The government bulletin coincides with the report made by Prof. Martin to the society's research committee chairman, to the effect that the new route, by the use of a tunnel about two miles long, will avoid the glaciers and yield low grades for both in and outbound traffic, and that the distance from tidewater to the Matanuska coal field will be reduced by it to about 136 miles, with only one adverse grade, and that a low one.

Prof. Martin quotes from his report as follows:

"We feel certain that, including the cost of the long tunnel, a railway only eleven or twelve miles long and practically at sea level could have been built from Passage canal to Turnagain Arm for much less than the $5,000,000 used in the construction of the sixty-five miles of the Alaska Northern railway from Sekard to Turnagain Arm. This would have resulted in a marked saving of distance, and an elimination of nearly all of the glacier complications which still threaten the Alaska Northern railway. If the government does purchase and extend this railway it may still be cheaper to adopt the Passage canal terminal, as could possibly be done with the shortest route and the longest necessary tunnel for less than $2,000,000.

Free From Icebergs.

"The harbor in Passage canal was shown by soundings made by us in 1910 to be quite as good for ocean steamships as Resurrection bay, upon which Seward is located. Practically no icebergs float into Passage canal, or Prince William Sound from Port Wells. The possible disadvantage in this respect could never be as great as that which will come to Seward if the Bear glacier, at the mouth of Resurrection bay on the western side, advances a quarter to a half mile and sends floating icebergs into the path of the ocean steamships there. The maximum possible activity of the glaciers tributary to Passage canal and to the head of Turnagain Arm could never be such a menace to the building and maintenance of a railway as are the Spencer and Bartlett glaciers on the Alaska Northern railway, particularly if the railway were protected by a tunnel in the critical areas of snow slides and glaciers near Passage canal. The Bartlett glacier, though now inactive, could, by a very moderate advance, completely block the northern pass across the Kanal mountains. Indeed, the railway goes so close to the glacier that even the slightest advances will do great damage. The Spencer glacier constitutes an even greater damage to the railway."

TESTING FLYERS FOR WAR USES

Cross-Country Flying Continued at the San Diego School.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Cross-country flying is being continued at the army aeronautical school at San Diego, Cal., and while no records have been made exceeding the American passenger record established by Lieut. Thomas Milling almost a year ago, word has been received of two excellent cross-country flights made by two of the other military aviators now at the school. One was on Jan. 9, by Lieut. H. E. Post, and extended from San Diego to Wachesta, Cal., a distance of ninety-five miles. On Jan. 13 Lieut. J. E. Carbury, the winner of the Mackay trophy of this year, made a flight of 115 miles from San Diego to Venice, Cal. Several of the machines in use by the army aviators at San Diego have been fitted with large fuel tanks for extended cross-country flying, giving them a range of action of about six hours.

Nothing further has been done by the advisory committee in connection with starting the Langley memorial aerodynamic laboratory. It had been assumed that a site for the laboratory building would be available in the eastern extension of the Potomac park, but when it came to getting a permit for the erection of laboratory buildings the judge advocate general of the army gave it as his official opinion that the law prevented the war department from devoting the ground in Potomac park to anything except a recreation park. The judge advocate general said, in his opinion, that the only method whereby a permit could be legally granted would be under a special authorization from congress. This matter will be brought to the attention of congress at the earliest possible date.

Quiet preparations have been under way at the Washington navy yard for almost a year past for the construction of what is known as a wind tunnel to experiment with the best form of aeroplane models. There are experimental tunnels of this sort in existence in the national laboratories of other countries, notably in connection with the British air craft factory, the French laboratory of M. Eiffel at Paris, that of the German national laboratory and of the Russian laboratory at the University of Moscow. The largest of these is six feet by six in section, while the tunnel at the Washington navy yard is to be 8½ feet square. It probably will require a building 100 feet long to house the tunnel. Contracts have been let for the dynamos and fans to furnish the air blasts, and air speeds up to sixty miles an hour have been provided for.

Some of the experts of the advisory committee say that much higher air speeds than this will be required and mention 200 miles an hour as the possible maximum. The whole subject of aviation is so new that even the experts are decidedly doubtful as to just what will be required in the way of experimental apparatus. All of the branches of the government, from the bureau of standards to the weather bureau, that possibly will be of assistance in this connection have been called upon officially to co-operate.

HALF A GALLON IS IN DISPUTE

What and Who Shall Decide Size of Beer Barrel?

Washington, Jan. 30.—In addition to regulating monopolies in restraint of trade, enacting a seaman's bill and a few other little measures of that sort, congress may be called upon to regulate the size of beer barrels the country over, and just at this moment Commissioner of Internal Revenue Osborn is cogitating over the problem of whether he will stand pat for a 31-gallon barrel or recommend that the United States standard for beer containers shall be 31½ gallons.

In support of the larger barrel, about fourteen state commissioners of weights and measures are either in Washington or are carrying on correspondence with their representatives, senators and the internal revenue commission.

One of the latest to arrive is Thure Hanson, commissioner of weights and measures from Massachusetts, who sang his song of woe into the ear of Representative Winslow of Massachusetts, a member of the house committee on weights and measures.

The trouble seems to have originated in the old-fashioned arithmetic books of our ancestors. In those delightful old dog-eared volumes, the beer barrel is given as something containing 31½ gallons. In accordance with this, many states passed laws recently requiring the brewers to place 31½ gallons of the hop fluid into the chuggy little casks which large men in blue overalls carry into the swinging doors of thirst emporiums.

"We can do that," said the brewers, "but if so we will run afoul of the Federal statute which requires that we place an extra stamp on all barrels over 31 gallons in capacity."

An extra stamp means one more dollar. One more dollar for a measly half gallon of beer, it is declared, would put many a brewery out of business. Hence the predicament.

Commissioner Hanson called on Internal Revenue Commissioner Osborn. He found him so tied up with patronage matters that a half gallon of beer more or less did not seem to worry him. However, the matter seems to be such that Mr. Osborn will have to decide within a few days whether he will stand pat on the regulation United States 31-gallon barrel or bow to the widespread influence of the old New England arthmetic and raise the size half a gallon.

DO WOMEN DO THE BUYING?

The literary fellows have a habit of stating a truth in the form of a question. In selecting the above caption I have followed this idea. I think the answer will immediately come to the mind of nearly every person who belongs to what we call the newspaper-reading class. As a matter of fact, 99 per cent of all the commodities in the average store are purchased by women.

The newspaper stands first as an advertising medium because it is peculiarly a home institution and, therefore, sustains an intimate relation to the family circle. It is for this reason that it makes a strong appeal to women.

Did you ever stop to think of the wide range of a woman's purchases? Women not only purchase all the commodities that are for her personal use, such as her own apparel and household furnishings, but in many instances she actually buys nearly everything that goes into the home, including the wearing apparel for her children and her husband. Of course she selects the furniture for the home, the carpets, the rugs, the curtains. Also the utensils for the kitchen and everything that facilitates the management of the culinary department; but she also in many instances buys her husband's shirts, his socks, his neckties and even his underwear. In many instances it is her pleasant duty to select the husband's shaving soap, and to discover those little comforts and conveniences that are not brought within the range of his busy mind. If there is a boy in the home she is very apt to buy his clothing because her practical mind can select that which is in the best taste and is apt to wear the longest. She is more interested in the garden, has more time for enjoying its pleasures and delights and hence she buys the seeds and the garden tools. Of course she buys the musical instruments for the home, and if there is a victrola in the house her educated musical taste naturally leads her to select the records. Ninety per cent of all the new novels and even the more serious books of erudition and travel are largely read by women. Therefore it follows that she is the heaviest customer of the book publishing houses.

With this brief survey of woman's purchasing powers it is easy to see that the newspaper, because of its intimate relation to the woman's sphere of action, must stand first as an advertising medium for nearly all commodities that are sold in the average store. The newspaper is not only the best medium because of its direct relation to the housewife in the home but because it reaches the members of the family at the best hour of the day when their minds are most receptive. This is true of the morning paper and the evening paper. Other literature that comes into the home is read at leisure moments. The newspaper is quickly and promptly read because its life is only twenty-four hours and tomorrow its news will be stale and uninteresting. It is, therefore, the medium for quick and decisive results—for making an immediate and definite impression upon the mind of the reader.

All this emphasizes the need of great care and study in preparation of "copy." Anybody can write the mushy stories in the body of a magazine and most anybody can write the "news" matter in the paper, but not every man can write the kind of advertising copy that will attract attention, that will convince and persuade the possible customer.

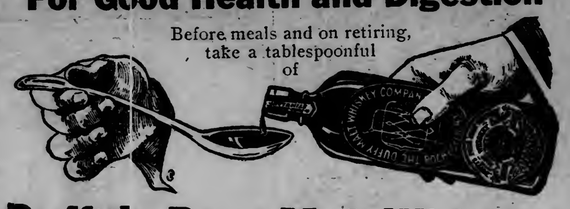

The chief characteristic of good advertising copy must be decisiveness and lucidity. Advertising copy must say a great deal in a few words. The space is valable and the impression must be quickly made on the readers' mind. Spending two days in writing an advertisement of 300 words is not a waste of time or gray matter. An advertisement should be written and rewritten until it is a model of incisive English. Hasty and imperfect copy is a waste of time and money.

If we accept all these propositions then it is easy to accept the conclusion that an advertiser in a newspaper should use large space. It is not possible to carry out any of these ideas in small space. The attempt of a merchant to tell "the story of his past life" in two or three inches of newspaper space is always a pitiful and grotesque fizzle. The wonderful development of modern newspaper advertising makes it impossible for the merchant to attract attention in small space. He is buried and lost in a mass of big advertising of merchants who are doing big things in a big way. But even if he succeeds in attracting attention he cannot say anything worth while in small space. There is something about the bigness and boldness of a large ad that arrests immediate attention and inspires confidence in the advertiser. The average reader says to himself, "No merchant could afford to advertise in that way if he did not do a big business and if he does a big business it is a sure sign that he has earned the business through enterprising, up-to-date merchandising." The same arguments in behalf of the use of big space also apply to the use of strong, clean-cut Roman type, the kind that is easily and quickly read by the average reader in the average home. To the man who knows the attention value of clean, strong, plain type, the use of smaller types such as Old English type and freakish letters is almost a crime. What is to be gained by the advertiser who prints an important message to the consumer in type which the consumer cannot read?

WANTED 300 POUNDER, TOOK ONE MUCH LESS.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 30.—George Washington Jump and Mrs. Nick Newman were married here in the restroom of the Cole county courthouse by Judge J. P. Fromme. Jump advertised for a wife several weeks ago in the local newspapers, specifying, among other things, that she must be six feet in height and must weigh 300 pounds.

Later he revised the physical qualifications, there being few applicants who could come up to the standard. His last advertisement simply called for a good-looking, agreeable woman less than 50 years old. There were several bushels of letters in response to this ad. The bride weighs 135 pounds and is 5 feet 6 inches in height.

Of all the applicants, Jump favored Mrs. Newman from the time he first saw her, and the courtship was brief.

Mrs. Jump is above middle age and has had previous matrimonial experience. She has four children. Jump was a bachelor. He said he wanted a wife because he was tired of his own cooking and housekeeping and was lonesome.

The surname Mouse denoted at first a man of great courage; while Mr. Ratt got his name from the fact that the first bearer of the name was a wise person, who gave "counsel" to the king.

FLAYS POLICY AS TO MEXICO

Mondell of Wyoming Denounces Wilson and Bryan Methods.

He Talks at McKinley Day Dinner in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa. Jan. 30.—Describing the Mexican policy of the Wilson administration as the work of "amateur theorists," "dreamers acting on impulse when not on prejudice," Representative Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming arraigned Secretary of State Bryan in the course of an address at the McKinley day dinner of the Young Men's Republican Tariff club here last night.

"The policy toward the government of Huerta in Mexico, temporarily pursued by the Taft administration to emphasize our abhorrence and disapproval of the methods by which that government was established," said Mr. Mondell, in part, "was allowed to drift into a state of aimless vacillation while the present secretary of state traveled on lucrative lecture tours.

"Fatuous and Fantastic."

"The only feature of our attitude toward Mexico that appears to have any element of fixity is the fatuous and fantastic theory that we shall decline to hold official ratifications with any government people on this hemisphere may establish, unless composed of persons and inaugurated under conditions entirely compatible with our ideas of what ideal government shall be. And so we have drifted—making ourselves ridiculous in the eyes of the world and isolating ourselves from the opportunity of protecting Americans and other foreigners in Mexico and their property.

"We are holding as prisoners of war hundreds of women and children and constituting ourselves the aiders and abettors of, and to a certain extent the apologists for outlaws, bandits and murderers of the stripe of Zapata and Villa.

"Retarding Peace."

"While all this is going on, and in spite of the admitted good intentions of the president, our attitude is retarding rather than aiding in the establishment of peaceful conditions in Mexico.

"I am very glad to credit the best intentions in the world to the president and to the secretary of state, in connection with our foreign affairs, but good intentions cannot save us from disasters which amateurs, theorists, dreamers acting on impulse when not on prejudice, are likely to bring upon us."

Other speakers were United States Senator Boise Penrose of Pennsylvania and James T. Treadway.

STATE SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota supreme court today rendered the following decisions:

St. Louis County.

Carlos J. Kinzel, appellant, vs. Boston & Duluth Farm Land company, respondent.

1. Where a complaint in an action for compensation for services rendered alleges the reasonable value thereof, and also that defendant agreed to pay a certain sum therefor, and there is no election at the trial upon which theory, quantum meruit or express contract, plaintiff will proceed with the trial and both issues are retained in the case, plaintiff is at liberty to prove either the agreed or reasonable value, and recover a verdict accordingly.

2. Where, in such a case, a general verdict is returned for defendant, a judgment rendered thereon is res judicata, and constitutes a complete bar to a subsequent action for the reasonable value of the services, even though no evidence thereof was presented on the trial of the first action.

3. The rule applicable to the situation is that the former judgment concludes the parties as to all issues that were or could have been litigated therein.

4. The primary question of plaintiff's employment was necessarily litigated in the former action, for it was expressly in issue therein, and for this reason Rossman V. Tilleny, 80 Minn., 160, is distinguishable.

Order affirmed. BROWN, C. J.

Ramsey County.

Edward Stevens et al, respondents, vs. Wisconsin Farm Land company et al, appellants.

1. In an action to recover the reasonable value of services rendered in effecting an exchange of property, evidence of the value of the property received by the principal is proper.

2. Evidence of customary charges of brokers in similar cases is proper, but in order that a customary charge may be decisive of the amount of recovery, a custom must be established so definite, uniform and well understood that it may be assumed the parties contracted with reference to it, and in effect made it a part of their contract.

3. If an agent contracts in his own name without disclosing his principal, the other contracting party is entitled to hold either, but not both. If he sue both, however, the only remedy of defendants is by motion to compel him to elect. They cannot move a dismissal as to either. The option as to which shall be held rests with plaintiff, not with defendants.

4. Where error in the case bears only on the question of the amount of damages, a new trial may be granted upon that issue alone. Where defendant's testimony admits a certain amount, plaintiff may be given the option of accepting that amount in preference to taking a new trial.

Order reversed and new trial granted on issue of damages only, unless plaintiffs shall elect to proceed in accordance with opinion.

HALLAM, J.

Becker County.

John Meland, appellant, vs. A. F. Youngberg, respondent.—

1. Where a written contract for the sale of personal property is complete in itself and fails to disclose the existence of a warranty, parol evidence is not admissible for the purpose of proving a warranty.

2. Whether the written contract expresses the entire agreement of the parties must be determined from the contract itself in the light of the subject matter with which it deals and of the circumstances attending its execution.

3. Parol evidence is admissible for the purpose of proving fraud and deceit.

4. To maintain an action for deceit based upon false representations it is incumbent upon plaintiff to show that he relied upon such representations and was deceived thereby to his injury.

5. If a purchaser relies in part upon his own examination as to the character and condition of the property and in part upon the representations of the adverse party and is deceived thereby to his injury, he may maintain an action for such deceit.

6. But if the purchaser undertakes to and does investigate and determine the entire matter for himself, and is afforded an opportunity to make his investigation as full and complete as he chooses, and he then accepts the property, he cannot be heard thereafter to assert that he relied upon misrepresentations of the adverse party. In the instant case it is held that the admitted facts bring plaintiff within this rule.

Order affirmed. TAYLOR, C.

Hennepin County.

(N. Silverstein), Mayer Greenberg, respondent, vs. R. Copilovitch, et al, defendants; C. E. Van Duzee, appellant.—

1. In an action on a promissory note guaranteed by one of the defendants it is held that the only question for submission to the jury was whether the defendant knew that one of the makers had been or was to be released from liability upon it; and that the evidence justifies the jury's finding that he did.

2. There were no errors affecting the issue submitted to the jury.

Order affirmed. DIBELL, C.

Ramsey County.

Isadore Kulberg, et al, respondents, vs. National Council of Knights and Ladies of Security, Appellant—

Rules and regulations of a fraternal benefit association concerning procedure for expulsion of members are valid and binding if not so grossly unfair as to be contrary to public policy; and an appeal within the order from an expulsion may be made a condition precedent to the right to resort to the courts.

To render the requirement of such an appeal operative, there must be a hearing in accordance with the laws of the order; but mere irregularities of procedure short of substantial denial of the hearing contemplated by the contract of the parties are remediable in the first instances only as provided therein.

As against defendant's request for a directed verdict in an action upon a benefit certificate, evidence held sufficient to take the case to the jury on the question whether the hearing pursuant to which assured was expelled was such as to derive the court of jurisdiction because no appeal was taken within the order.

The burden of establishing the fact of such hearing was on defendant.

Evidence held insufficient to establish a valid expulsion, in that it indicated the order was based, in part at least, upon evidence taken at a time and place of which assured had no notice, or else he was justified in so believing.

Evidence held to show neither acquiescence in the order of expulsion nor abandonment of membership.

Defendant having clearly indicated its intention to refuse further recognition of assured's membership, subsequent tender of dues and assessments was not necessary to keep the certificate of membership in force; but a recovery would be subject to deduction thereof.

Evidence upon the affirmative defense of a valid expulsion, after hearing, for certain offenses against the order, including misrepresentation of age, being such that the court would have been justified in charging failure to establish it, and this being the only issue submitted, and there being no other proper to be submitted, admission of testimony tending to refute the charge of such misrepresentation was without prejudice to defendant, though irrelevant.

Judgment affirmed.

PHILIP E. BROWN, J.

Aitkin County.

State ex rel., H. A. Graves, respondent, vs. C. H. Haugen, sheriff, Aitkin county, appellant—

Certain matters of practice in habeas corpus proceedings, relating to jurisdiction of court commissioners and hearing on appeal, determined.

The determination of a committing magistrate will not be disturbed on habeas corpus where the record discloses evidence reasonably tending to support it.

Order reversed.

PHILIP E. BROWN, J.

Ramsey County.

Jacob Ruder, respondent, vs. The National Council of the Knights and Ladies of Security, appellant—

1. Where a letter is deposited in the mails, postage paid and properly addressed, there is a strong presumption that it reached its destination in due course of mail. Applying this presumption, the jury was justified in finding that a cashier's check testified as having been mailed to defendant in payment of an assessment, was received by it. The jury was also justified in believing that the check had been mailed.

2. The trial court did not err in answering a question asked by a juror.

3. Rosenstein vs. Court of Honor, 122 Minn., 310, followed and applied to the effect that a by-law of defendant adopted after a benefit certificate was issued, and changing the limit of time for bringing an action on the certificate, is not binding upon the certificate holder or his beneficiary. Laws 1907, Ch. 345, Sec. 8, does not apply to benefit certificates issued before its enactment.

4. It was not error to decline to permit the jury, on its request, to have a transcript of the testimony of a witness given on a former trial.

5. It was not error to refuse to permit a letter in evidence to be taken into the jury room, the letter being read to the jury instead.

6. It was not prejudicial error to sustain objections to questions calling for declarations of the deceased to the effect that he intended not to pay assessments in the future.

Order affirmed.

BUNN, J.

Scott County.

The C. W. Raymond company, appellant, vs. Sam Kahn, respondent—

1. In a so-called conditional sale contract by which the seller retains title to the property and the right to recover it on default of the buyer, when the seller exercises this right and retakes the property, he cannot thereafter maintain an action to recover unpaid installments of the purchase price.

2. Whether partial payments made by the buyer are forfeited, in the absence of language to that effect in the contract, when the seller recovers the property, is not decided.

3. It is not a condition precedent to the maintenance by the seller of an action in replevin to recover the property, that he return or tender to the buyer partial payments made or notes given for unpaid installments.

4. Where in an action of replevin, the answer demands the restoration of the property to defendant, a demand before suit is not necessary.

Order reversed and new trial granted.

BUNN, J.

Mille Lacs County.

Mary A. Potts, respondent, vs. M. St. P. & S. M. Ry. Co. appellant—

In an action in ejectment, by the answer of defendant turned into a condemnation proceeding under sections 5423-4, G. S. 1913, it is held that the award of damages is excessive, and that a new trial should be granted unless plaintiff consents to a reduction of the verdict.

Order affirmed on condition.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger. Agent, Wirth's drug store, 13 West Superior street.

LINDBERGH NOT TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Will Be Candidate for Re-election to the House.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Congressman C. A. Lindbergh of Minnesota stated positively yesterday that he will not be a candidate for governor. He expects to run again for congress and may try for the United States senate in 1916, when Moses E. Clapp's term expires.

Mr. Lindbergh has been urged to become the candidate of the Progressive party for governor and recently wrote to a number of Minnesotans inviting their advice as to whether he should run for governor as a Republican.

"I can say one thing," he said, "and that is that I am not and won't be a candidate for governor. A couple of my friends have urged me to get into the race, but I have told them I will not. I am engaged in a certain line of study, which I would pursue, even if I were not in congress. The duties of the governorship, if I were elected, would take me away from that work, besides forcing upon me other things for which I have no taste."

Mr. Lindberg indicated that the senatorship was an open matter with him. He thought seriously of making the race against Senator Nelson in 1912, but concluded not to. He may run in 1916, believing that he will have a better chance for election against Clapp than he had against Nelson.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Attest Your Superiority By Obeying the Laws.

Perhaps a queen can do no wrong. However that may be, she can establish a poor precedent. And this Queen Mary of England did the other day when she refused to comply with a regulation designed to protect the treasures in one of London's famous museums.

She wasn't recognized by the doorkeeper when she sought to enter and was requested like any other human being to relinquish her umbrella. She refused and argument ensued. Naturally, she was recognized before matters went very far and quite naturally amid profuse apologies from all hands, the highest to the lowest, she was admitted bearing the umbrella in triumph.

It isn't at all probable that the good queen of England would commit any nuisance with her umbrella. But she did commit an offense against law and order and set the loyal subjects of her domain a very bad example by refusing to comply with a very seemly regulation maintained in the interests of her possessions. Her insistence that an exception be made in her favor is not compatible with the highest ideal of queenliness. How can it be expected that lesser folk will observe the laws when those who represent them consider them of no consequence—even refuse to support them.

About half the world is busy all the time, persuading, arguing and cajoling either themselves or some one else as to why they should be exempt from this law and that rule, laid down for the protection of society and its projects. For that reason, there should always be a ready acquiescence to all rules among those in high places.

It may seem a very simple thing to relax some rule in order that the individual may be accommodated. It is equally true that some of these rules and regulations do not amount to very much. But if they exist they should be enforced. If each rebellious individual will look at the matter from the angle of "the greatest good to the greatest number," almost all of them will be found to have a reason for being and obedience to them will be freely accorded.

Without rules and laws this old world would shortly be in a very undesirable state. Remember this when inclined to rebel at some simple regulation which appears more a matter of red tape than a protectionary measure. If you wish to be classed among the intelligent, you are bound to respect law and order.

DULUTH BOY TANGOES HIS WAY THROUGH UNIVERSITY

"Tangoing his way through the state university as a cut rate teacher" is the idea being worked out by a Duluth boy, Louis Bergtold, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bergtold of 2107 East Fourth street, and he has all the business he needs to keep him busy during his spare hours.

The tango is being taught along with the other latest dances for the sum of $1—all of them for that one price—and news of the fact of the wonderful bargain was given to the public on a neatly typewritten poster hung in the university postoffice bidding students to:

Dance Dance Dance Dance
the Latest Dances.
The Castle Walk
The Hesitation Waltz
The Boston Waltz
"The Real Tango"
All the Above Taught for $1.

Should there by any chance be found among the gazers on the little sign any novices or uninitiated persons whose feet have not advanced to that intellectual stage at which they can trip the light and meaningful tango, they need not go away with spirits downcast. Just below the first section of this little poster there is another that whispers to the curious public these secrets:

For the Beginner
Waltz
Two-Step
Schottische
Three-Step
It Costs $1 to Learn These.

Mr. Bergtold told a reporter of the Minneapolis Journal the following facts about his plan:

"I put up the sign whenever my finances get low. Do I get returns? Well, do I? All I can attend to, Profs? No, none in my class. Don't fancy I'd like teaching profs. Where do I give the lessons? Over in the gym in the wrestling room during the noon hour. The new dances, of course, are about the only ones the fellows want to learn. Don't think much of the tango myself. It's getting old. I like the Boston best. It's always fascinating."

HELEN KELLER AMAZES LARGE AUDIENCE WITH HER LECTURE

Blind and Deaf Girl Says Miracles Are Wrought Every Day---Brilliant Mind Is Revealed in Her Answers to Questions By Audience.

"Put thought into your senses and see what miracles are being performed every day," said Helen Keller, the deaf and blind girl who gave a lecture at the Lyceum theater last night which was heard by an audience which filled every seat in the theater.

"Miracles do happen and a great one has happened to me," she said, "I was blind, but now I see; I was deaf, but now I hear, and I was dumb, but now I speak. All of this comes through my hands of course, and we live by each other. It was through the efforts of others that I found myself, my friends, my father and mother, and my soul. It was a labor, but it is through labor that we find contentment. But you who have all of your senses to help you, just look around you and see the wonders that abound, for even the starless night of blindness has its wonders and beauties."

Mrs. Macy, Miss Keller's teacher, who has been with her for twenty-six years and who has been eyes, ears, and voice to her during all of her education and growth, prefaced Miss Keller's talk with an interesting sketch of her life and the methods used in giving her contact with the world and her friends. "Every bit of her knowledge has had to come through concentration of the hardest sort," she said, "and no one knows the hard struggle it has been for her."

Mrs. Macy told of her constant courage, cheerfulness, eagerness to learn, and her wonderful patience.

After Miss Keller's talk the audience was given an opportunity of asking questions and her ready replies gave evidence of a wonderfully quick and brilliant mind.

Some one asked if she was a suffragist and she replied, "Yes. If men need the ballot, why not women?" and in explaining her view on militant methods she said, "It is the same as when the American men threw overboard the tea at the 'Boston tea party.'"

"What is your chief entertainment?" brought the instant answer "Talking."

In response to a question as to how she gained her first conception of God, she said through works of Phillips Brooks and the writings of Swedenborg.

Dr. William Forney Hovis introduced the speakers.

A BOOKMARK TO SAVE EYES

Dr. John Neely Rhodes of Philadelphia describes in the Ophthalmic Record of Chicago what he calls a "reflecting book mark," intended to call the reader's attention to the presence of injurious reflection of paper. When the paper is highly glazed the reflection is noted at once and the angle of the page is altered to avoid it. But when the high glaze is absent the reflection is often unnoticed and gets in its vicious work all unknown to the victim. In such a case a bit of bright material on the page will catch the reader's eye and warn him of his danger. Writes Dr. Rhodes:

Book publishers and binders should be urged to bind their publications with one of the devices attached, or at least with a ribbon, to which a marker might be fastened, in order that every book reader may be educated to see his danger.

The marker should be stamped out of bright aluminum or tin, and have printed or stamped on it instructions telling how a book may be held to produce the injurious reflections, and also how it should be held to avoid them.

I want to emphasize the fact that it is a mistake to hold even dull paper at such an angle as would cause it to reflect vicious light into the eye if the paper were shiny. I firmly believe that all readers' eyes should receive less injury if their books or papers, no matter as to color or condition, were held at such an angle that reflected rays from the illuminating source could not enter the pupils.

Does Away With the Glare.

Persistent use of this contrivance with book or paper will, I hope, soon render the reader as much afraid of glare as some of our patients already are of germs. About a year ago I made a demonstration of this evil to a prominent optician, and he seemed wonderstruck, but when I met him again some months later he told me that he was sorry I had called his attention to the matter, for now he could scarcely get away from the blamed thing.

It would be well for bookkeepers, stenographers and even mechanics to take one of these devices with them in their labors so that they might avoid working in a glare, by placing the instrument on their account books, or on any bright object over which they are engaged.

Rays from glazed paper are injurious and printing should not be done on such paper. If, however, a reader is educated to hold properly his journal or book, he can read on glazed paper without injury—but the paper must be held flat, not rolled or curved.

How to Use the Marker.

Place the printed side of the marker against the page of your book, then follow the conventional method, take the book in your left hand and turn your back to the light so that the light shines over your left shoulder. Now, shift the position of your book until the reflected light is pouring directly into your eyes. Holding the book in this position for a few minutes will teach you the bad effects of glare. Just tilt the book the least bit, and notice the relief caused by the disappearance of the reflection—it is a lesson you will never forget.

Notice that this phenomenon occurs when the book is held in what teachers consider the best position. The truth is, that for reading it matters not which shoulder the light shines over, nor does it matter which hand holds the book, if the holder is ambidextrous. If one who is writing is not ambidextrous, but, for example, right handed, then the holding of the book in the left hand leaves the right hand free for writing, and, at the same time, keeps the writing itself out of all shadow.

I understand that the New York city board of education has a rule which directs the student to hold his book at approximately 45 degs. He who formulated that rule evidently knew nothing about the conditions which cause a glaring reflex. The relative position of the source of illumination with respect to each child governs the angle at which the book must be held.

New York Sun: The editor at the Wisconsin experiment station, desiring a complete reference library of the resources of the state, sent a circular letter to the horticultural, dairying and other agricultural organizations of Wisconsin asking for copies of their "last reports."

Most of them came all right, but one organization wrote: "Our last report, we hope, is not yet published, but we take pleasure in sending under separate cover a copy of our latest report."

THE G. O. P. THAT WAS.

Our good friend the Warren Register, but lately the staunchest of Republican partisans and now the staunchest of Bull Moose partisans, seems to be getting itself rather intricately entangled in its political alliances.

The occasion of it was a recent remark in these columns that the Democratic administration had already done more for the country and its people than the Republican party as it has lately been constituted would have done in a thousand years of continued power.

This innocent—and literally true—remark so excited the Register that apparently it forgot its new political alliance, and it plunged into a very long and very ardent defense of the Republican party that was, including a glowing panegyric of the glories of the party of Lincoln.

These glories are very real, dear and needlessly huffed neighbor, but they are embalmed in history.

The Herald was not speaking of the Republican party that was, but of the Republican party of Taft and Root and Smoot and Aldrich and Penrose—the Republican party of the Chicago convention—the Republican party so lost to its older glories and so infested with its newer iniquities that even so loyal a follower as the Warren Register had to hold its nose and avert its face and set foot on the wandering trail of the big Bull Moose.

How much would THAT party have done for the people in a thousand years of continued power?

Time to get your bets down on the groundhog.

A FAIR AND PROFITABLE STATE LAND POLICY.

The St. Peter Free Press, which has been unduly suspicious of the campaign for the adoption of an intelligent and constructive state land policy, shows signs that it is not beyond the reach of conviction. It says:

> The Duluth Herald's suggestion that the state adopt a humane and businesslike land policy, by creating a reclamation revolving fund to reclaim its lands by drainage, land-clearing and road-building, is to be commended, provided that this fund be kept within reasonable bounds. If, however, every dollar received for bonds sold is to be invested for improvements, in order to hasten the sale of the lands for private gain, as seems to be the aim of the land speculators, we had better call a halt right now. The state should improve its land sufficiently to get them in proper shape for reclamation, but it should retain a reasonable profit out of the sales, and that regardless of how it may affect the land speculators.

Now there isn't a word in this with which The Herald is not in the heartiest accord. The Free Press, in fact, in those words approves and supports every item in The Herald's program of state development.

Its fears, we are certain, are groundless. These fears are that the reclamation fund may be too large, that the profits of reclamation and the full proceeds of land sales may go to increase it, and that private land speculators may benefit by the state's activities in reclaiming its lands before offering them for sale.

The reclamation fund should be large enough to meet the current demand by homeseekers for state land; but nobody urges that it be large enough to reclaim all the state's holdings forthwith. Reclamation and sale should work out from community centers, in an orderly and business-like manner, and the reclamation fund should be large enough to carry out this plan, and no larger.

The profits of reclamation—and there will be a profit in every step of it—as well as the original value of the land, should go directly into the permanent funds when the reclaimed lands are sold. Only the cost of reclamation should be returned to the revolving fund. Thus the state's holdings will be sold and settled more quickly and more profitably, and the permanent school funds will grow at a more rapid rate.

The Free Press need have no fear that there is anything whatever in this program that will give any undue advantage to private land speculators. Indeed, there is greater fear that if private land speculators see the state, with its large holdings of land, getting into the land business as it should, they will seek to avert this deadly competition by opposing the program we have described.

Drainage and road-building necessarily will benefit land adjacent to that owned by the state, including government land as well as land privately owned. But such benefit will have to be paid for, through assessments for a pro rata share of the cost.

Partial clearing of state tracts is on an entirely different basis. Where the state clears, say, ten acres in a forty-acre-tract and offers it for sale with the cost of reclamation and a reasonable profit added, far from benefiting owners of adjacent land, this puts a handicap upon them unless they are prepared to do what the state is doing—clear a part of their holdings and offer them for sale on as good terms as the state offers. If they cannot do this, the state's lands will be sold and settled first.

Indeed, if we were a holder of idle lands for speculation, we should greatly fear the state as a competitor, under the broad policy proposed, because obviously we could sell no lands until the state's holdings were disposed of and settled.

In the state land policy thus suggested, there is a profit in each step of reclamation; there is a profit in adding untaxed lands to the tax rolls, there is a profit in turning idle acres into wealth-producing acres; there is a profit in developing the state and increasing its annual output of riches from the soil.

It is a policy of development and progress, to be exchanged for the present policy of stagnation and retrogression.

The demand for mosquito netting is reported to have fallen off in Cuba. The market on it is rather slow here too, just now.

THE REGENCY INCIDENT.

We note a disposition on the part of the ultra-loyal Eberhart newspapers to justify the governor's supplanting of John Lind on the board of regents of the state university, on the ground that Mr. Lind resigned.

It is true that he did resign; but it also seems true that, because of the distance between Vera Cruz and St. Paul, his resignation unfortunately did not reach the governor of this state until after he had been supplanted.

So the governor's intent to wreak political vengeance by the use of his power of appointment to the board of regents stands as it was, affected no whit by the resignation that came after the vengeance had been carried out.

The Northfield News has the right of it:

> The governor no doubt now regrets that he had been in such haste to appoint a successor to Mr. Lind as member of the board of regents of the state university. Had he waited a few days longer Mr. Lind's declination to accept reappointment would have reached him, and have proved a complete justification for action which, without it, has been criticised on the ground that the governor intended to put a slight upon a prominent political opponent and a possible political rival.
> If that had been the governor's purpose he was exceedingly ill advised. He should have known that Mr. Lind is entirely beyond reach. Established as the special envoy of in public confidence, any attempt to slight him could only react to the governor's disadvantage as has been seen.
> Nor does the fact that Mr. Lind had already mailed his resignation entirely clear the governor of the imputation. He knew nothing of it and cannot now plead in justification a communication of which he had no hint. His action must be judged on its merits, for, for all he knew, Mr. Lind may have desired to retain a position in which his services had been of marked value to the state.

The governor's action must, indeed, "be judged on its merits," if merits are to be found in it. The resignation that came after does not alter the damnation of the intent.

Here's hoping that when the mercury took that tumble Wednesday night it didn't suffer a sprain that will keep it from getting up again.

MUNICIPAL MUSIC.

Portland, Maine, has just completed a year of a unique form of municipal ownership—a city-owned pipe organ.

And it has been a year that proves the gift—it was a gift, of course, for American cities have not yet generally reached the point where they are spending public money for pipe organs—to have been a wise and far-seeing one.

The enterprise is managed by a city music commission. An organist of high ability is paid a regular salary. Musical courses were given in the winter at five dollars for twenty entertainments. Free concerts were given on Sunday afternoon. In the summer a course of fifty concerts was given for a twenty-five-cent admission fee. Public recitals, too, were given on special days.

As a result, interest in good music has been widely awakened; and this is strongly to the community advantage. Incidentally, the organ has been self-sustaining. The receipts, eleven thousand dollars, gave a surplus of $2,335.

Maybe, if some music-lover with money would give Duluth a pipe organ or endow an orchestra, similarly good results would follow here.

A Wisconsin paper refers to Champ Clark's daughter as "a White House bud." Rather an unnecessarily mean reminder of the maximum stage reached by her father's ambitions.

RECKLESS AND IRRESPONSIBLE DEFAMATION OF THE CITY'S CHARACTER BITTERLY REBUKED.

Every community knows the type of tawdry jade who seeks to distract attention from her own foulness by screaming out attacks upon the characters of her betters.

Such a jade has been publicly detected and scathingly rebuked in Duluth.

No more stinging rebuke of lawless and irresponsible abuse and defamation by a public print ever has been recorded than is contained in the report of the grand jury, made after nearly three weeks of careful and searching investigation of the charges against the department of public safety and the attacks upon the good name of the community made by the Duluth News Tribune.

For months that newspaper, pursuing some ugly hidden purpose of its own, has been harrassing and defaming the police department. Called before the bar of public opinion at an open mass meeting and asked to justify its course, it failed miserably, and when it was stingingly rebuked by resolutions adopted almost unanimously, it demanded grand jury action.

It got it—but that grand jury action did not produce the results it has sought to gain by browbeating and bullyragging and blackmail. A week before the grand jury had concluded its work, realizing that an investigation could not produce the results it sought because there was nothing to produce, the News Tribune turned its blackmailing and browbeating efforts to the state capitol, and sought to blackguard the governor of the state into setting aside the local officials, and further spreading the News Tribune's reckless defamation of the good name of the city by another "investigation" under state auspices.

The result of it all is what the News Tribune in its front-page headlines and black type seeks to distort into a justification of its lying abuse and trumped-up charges, and what in its editorial page whine it calls an "abundant, copious, dripping whitewash."

"The News Tribune has at no time charged graft," it says editorially.

Its representative at the recent mass meeting declared that the News Tribune had examined the books of a certain notorious woman of the underworld, and that these books showed payments of graft, amounting to forty thousand dollars. "And some of them," added the News Tribune representative; "were made during the present regime!" The News Tribune also procured country-wide publicity of this charge.

The grand jury, too, has examined those books. It found what purported to be "graft" entries, the first dated April 17, 1901, and the last Oct. 11, 1903—all more than TEN YEARS AGO. THE TOTAL WAS A HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS.

The character of these entries may be sufficiently illuminated by the first one. In the morning paper's production of the grand jury's report, in black type appears the statement that the book showed a record on April 17, 1901, of a payment of twenty-five dollars to a certain police officer to be given to the chief of police. In type much less conspicuous appears the grand jury's discovery that on that date the officer mentioned was not a member of the police force at all, and that Mr. Troyer did not become chief of police until a year later.

Moreover, the grand jury finds that some of these decade-old items, upon which the News Tribune rested its libel of a community, were manifestly "written in the book very recently, the ink being the same as that used in the transactions recorded in November and December, 1913!"

These disclosures are merely pieces from the same bolt of which this whole campaign of community defamation has been manufactured.

The News Tribune surely found, in this record-forging madame of the half-world, a fitting companion to kennel with during its debauch of reckless and untruthful abuse and misrepresentation of the city that is unfortunate enough to house it!

No police department on earth is flawless; neither is the Duluth police department. After the News Tribune had spent months in malignant searching, assisted by a corps of detectives, and after the grand jury had examined carefully every witness it could reach, six out of the eighty-five members of the police force are found deserving of criticism and discipline—the offense in every case being of a class that may be described as "bonehead."

That done, the grand jury proceeds to say that with these exceptions, it finds "no cause for criticism of the personnel or of their efficiency."

Chief Troyer is praised as "an able, efficient and honest official who has in the past proved his worth to the city of Duluth," and the grand jury believes that "he should be commended for the department which he has built up"—and which the morning paper, to serve some evil greed or grudge of its own, has spent months in seeking to tear down.

Commissioner Hicken, too, is warmly praised for his "upright and fearless attitude," and his work is commended—good work and sound which the News Tribune has spent malignant months in seeking to undo.

Of the News Tribune's absurd attempt to discredit the report of the grand jury by assailing its membership and motives, no word need be said. It is simply another proof that no person, no organization, no authority, is safe from abuse and misrepresentation so long as a shameless and irresponsible newspaper is permitted to reel in the gutters of a prolonged orgie of mudslinging, abuse and falsification, bent on gaining its sordid end at any cost of falsehood, libel or blackmail.

The Herald had hoped that the stinging public rebuke of this campaign of community-defamation by the recent mass meeting would end it.

Next to its own self-respect, The Herald puts its longing for a contemporary it can respect.

There is nothing pleasing or profitable to us in the spectacle of a prostituted newspaper detected and exposed in its wretched and ugly conspiracy to wreak its vengeance or satiate its greed at the sacrifice of the good name of the community to which it owes loyalty, not such black treachery as this. It is still less pleasing that the culprit should be a near-by and local contemporary.

We shall hope that the wretched affair has run its course. We shall hope that the morning paper will live it down, and profit by it to make itself respectable and self-respecting.

If so much of the fair fame of the city of Duluth were not involved, we should have been glad to pass it by in silence, face averted from our neighbor's shame. That being impossible, we can only say our say, and then pass on to other things more pleasant and sweeter to the taste and memory.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Patrick Daniel Norton, a member of congress from North Dakota, was brought up on the plains of that state and taught to rope steers just as a childish routine chore. He is a smiling, good-natured looking young person, but, as the saying is, he won't take no sass from no one.

There was one occasion, though, when Norton deliberately ran away from a fight. He was a lad about 10 years old and a boy four or five years his senior came along and called him several mean names. Norton came back with all the depreciatory epithets he could think of, whereupon the other boy started after him. Noticing that the other lad was nearly twice as big as he was, Norton decided that the discreet thing to do was to run. Accordingly, he went down a convenient highway as rapidly as he could.

He did not see the other boy for a long time after that and when he did the incident had slipped from his mind. Then Norton went away to school and to college and ten years rolled around. One summer when he was home from college, Norton was driving a farm team along the road when he saw ahead of him a man on a wagon. The man was the same chap who had made him run that time to avoid a one-sided fight.

They had met a few times since that day, but this meeting was noteworthy for the fact that Norton chanced to recall the day the other fellow chased him. He hadn't thought of it before for several years, and now the recollection gave him a feeling of humiliation.

"To think that that guy once made me run!" reflected Norton. "Huh!"

The more he thought about it, as he drove along, the more he regretted he had not put up a fight even if he got licked. Nothing could be less brave than to run away from a fight.

He speeded up his team and overtook the man.

"Mornin', Pat?" said the man, cordially.

"How are you, Sam?" greeted Norton.

"By the way," went on Norton, pleasantly, "do you remember the day when we were kids that we called each other names and you chased me up the road?"

"Now that you speak of it, I do," replied the man.

"Well," remarked Norton, "I don't hold it against you at all, but I just happened to think of it and it sort of hurts my pride to think that I ran away. So I guess we'll have to fix it up."

"What do you mean?" asked the man.

"Simply this: I'll never feel right about it 'til I've given you a licking. I'm sorry, but that's the notion I've taken about it."

"But you can't lick me," pointed out the man.

"I'll show you," said Norton, and he began to take off his coat.

He did show him, too.

Representative James Manahan of Minnesota is a young person with the hair and complexion of a Scandinavian, but the pedigree of an Irishman. And he has a knack at plausible argument. He will argue about anything at all and often can convince one that he is right.

From earliest boyhood Manahan liked to argue. One of the things he used to argue about was the distribution of household chores. It was a great disappointment to him that he could not have been born into a larger family where many hands would make light work. He had only eleven brothers and sisters, and so each one had a great deal of work to do. Manahan always contended that he got more than his share of chores simply because he was good-natured.

"I am perfectly willing to do it," he would say, when his mother assigned him to a task, "but I want it understood that I always do much more than my share."

And he would take ten or fifteen minutes to emphasize this point and make it perfectly clear.

One day, in exasperation, his mother said:

"Jimmy, you'll drive us all crazy with your constant talk, talk, talk. You'll never be fit for anything when you grow up unless it would be a lawyer."

That served as a suggestion and young Jimmy determined then and there to be a lawyer.

These are times, you know, of "investigations." It is a dull day when congress hasn't some kind of an investigation on. Jimmy Manahan was looked upon in Minnesota as a busy little investigator. He did a lot of investigating of Pullman rates and charges for both the lowers and the uppers were made lower. This investigating turn of mind began to show itself in little Jimmy at an early age.

He always desired to know what was inside of everything. Once his father saved and struggled until he had enough money to buy a threshing machine. They tested it out, found it in good working order and the day came for the threshing. Neighbors came to help in the work and it was to be a big event. During the noon hour they missed little Jimmy. He was out investigating the workings of the thresher and had it all apart. Not a man among them could put it together again. The threshing had to be postponed until they could get a man from the factory to come on and undo Jimmy's investigation.

How the Judges "Make the Law."

Arthur L. Corbin in the Yale Review: Judges make decisions unpleasing to large numbers of people, and when criticized they generally reply that they could not have decided otherwise than they did—that the "law" compelled them. Surely, we should not recall a judge or criticize his decision if he has acted under compulsion. If there is a man higher up, the blow should be aimed at him. But we shall look in vain if we look beyond the judge for any responsible individual. The fact is that the judge is a lawmaker. He acts under no compulsion different from that under which anyone else acts when making any kind of a decision. The decision is doubtless the product of contending forces and influences, but we must leave to philosophers and theologians the age-long dispute over free will. The judge's will is as free as the banker's will or the will of the homicide. He, like other men, must be held responsible if we wish to secure results. The result of his action is "the law"; and experience has proved that if we wish to prevent the action we must lay hands on the actor.

A Wise Child.

Woman's Home Companion: "Willie," sadly said a father to his young son, "I did not know till today that last week you were whipped by your teacher for bad behavior."

"Didn't you, father?" Willie answered cheerfully. "Why, I knew it all the time."

Keeping Up With Minnesota Editors

Press Comments on Current Events.

Drags State University Into Politics.

Roseau Region: Governor Eberhart has removed John Lind from the board of state university regents because the latter exercised the independence of opposing the machine Republicanism Eberhart represents. It is only natural that the thousands of admirers John Lind has in this state should resent the governor's act in dragging the state university into politics. It was very unfair on the part of the governor to treat Lind as he did while the latter was away from the state, being in Mexico on a high mission in behalf of the United States. Mr. Lind has devoted much time and given freely of his fine intellect towards the building up of the university during the six years he has served as chairman of the board of regents. Honest in convictions as he is and too independent to serve the purposes of the Eberhart machine, he had to suffer humiliation. In his place on the board, the governor appointed a Minneapolis busines man, Partridge by name, who is at the head of a concern that has a number of salesmen constantly on the road in this state. The governor needed these men to strengthen his political chances, and as a result Lind had to be removed.

For a Better Understanding.

Remer Record: The latest idea, which is doing much for both country and town, is the community council. It is a get-together movement of all the people in a community with a view to mutual service in behalf of the common good. In this as in every community there could be much accomplished by such a council. Town and country people are alike, but they do not understand each other's problems because they do not associate together.

A Not Improbable Hypothesis.

Browns Valley Tribune: Thus far Dan Lawler of St. Paul seems to have the field all to himself for the Democratic nomination for governor. While Dan insists that he is a Democrat, he also insists on his own interpretation of what constitutes a Democrat. He repudiated James Gray when the latter was the Democratic nominee for governor, because Mr. Gray stood for certain temperance legislation. It looks very much as though Mr. Lawler was out as a candidate for governor at this time, not because he expects to win, but because he wants to annoy some of the Democratic leaders of the state who have refused to play Dan's game in the past.

After Bedtime?

Baudette Region: In some of these modern dances the girl looks as if she was being carried out of a burning building.

Right You Are, Frank.

Fairmont Sentinel: We predict that the non-partisan law will be repealed at the next session of the legislature. The politicians and office seekers are all up in the air under the present conditions.—Redwood Sun.

Not in a thousand years will it be repealed; more than likely it will be extended to include state officers. In the future men are to be selected for our public servants on their merits—not on account of the political tag they happen to wear.

It's Accomplishing Many Things.

Gheen Record: The way the parcel post is bringing the express companies to time is pointing the way to the government management, if not ownership, of all express business, and incidently shows the good points of healthy competition.

"If the People Want Him"!

New York World: "Theodore Roosevelt will be a candidate for the presidency in 1916 if the people want him," carols the Hon. Jake Riis. "If the people want him!" How ridiculous! What are the people for except to want the colonel for president?

The thieves and crooks and burglars and pirates and pickpockets and bandits and highwaymen may steal the nomination from him. After he has been to the trouble of nominating himself, the liars and fools and jackasses may forget to vote for him. Indeed, millions of undesirable citizens may be so lost to every impulse of patriotism that they will vote for somebody else. But all this has nothing to do with the will of the people.

Whatever the colonel wants the people want, and whenever the colonel fails to get it the people have been defrauded, even though the fraud be perpetrated by themselves.

"I Don't Think"—Dickens.

New York Tribune: George Grossmith, writing to a London paper of his origin of the slang phrase "I don't think," relates that, in spite of the recent claims to it, he ran it to earth in Dickens. He says:

"One afternoon I commenced rereading 'Martin Chuzzlewit' for the —th time, and halfway through the sixth chapter I found Tom Pinch regretting the departure of his friend Westlock and ruminating thus: 'I am a nice man, I don't think, as John used to say * * * to be feeling low on account of the distance between us.' There is nothing new in this world; doubtless as I read further I shall discover the immortal humorist inviting me to 'Come over here' and 'Keep smiling.'"

Exhortation.

Would you know how Alexander felt
When old Arbela's leveled plain
Was strewn with all the panoply of Persia put in flight?
Or what the mood of Caesar was
When Rome had loosed her hurricane
And swept away the last dread foe
Endangering her might?

Then do a good day's work my friend,
And rest contented of the end—
There never has been anything
To beat it for delight,
Or whether one has whipped a king,
Or taught a tenor how to sing—
'Tis happiness to do the thing
With all one's level might.

A lively sense of something done,
Or whether great or whether small,
About the going of the sun,
Is mighty comforting withal.
Fully many men since earth was young
Have lived to learn that this is so,
And in that consciousness have sung
Quite happily of evenglow.

'Tis not by power nor by pelf
A man is tickled with himself,
But that he had his work to do,
And did it like a man.
Or whether papering a wall,
Or Caesar subdivided Gaul—
To have the get-up, that is all,
As almost anybody can.

Ward Bosses Unveiled.

From "Immigration in Politics," by Prof. E. A. Ross, in the Century: Twenty-five years ago we knew as little of the ways of the ward boss as we knew of the megatherium or the great auk. The sources of his power were as mysterious as were the sources of the Nile before Speke and Baker. Now, thanks to Miss Addams and other settlement workers who have studied him in action from close at hand, we have him on a film. The ward boss was the discoverer of the fact that the ordinary immigrant is a very poor, ignorant, and helpless man, in the greatest need of assistance and protection. Nevertheless, this man has, or soon will have, one thing the politician greatly covets, namely, a vote. The petty politician soon learned that by befriending and aiding the foreigners at the right time, he could build up an "influence" which he might use or sell to his own enrichment. So the ward politicians became pioneers in social work. For the sake of controlling votes, they did many things that the social settlement does.

What the Irish Have Given Us.

From "Immigrants in Politics," by Prof. E. A. Ross, in the Century: The Hibernian domination has given our cities genial officials, brave policemen and gallant fire fighters. It has also given them the name of being the worst-governed cities in the civilized world. The mismanagement and corruption of the great cities of America have become a planetary scandal, and have dealt the principle of manhood suffrage the worst blow it has received in the last half century. Since the close of the Civil war, hundreds of thousands of city dwellers have languished miserably or perished prematurely from the bad water, bad housing, poor sanitation and rampant vice in American municipalities run on the principle of the Celtic clan.

One Virtue, at Least.

OUR BIRD FRIENDS

The person who keeps four or five cats with nothing to feed them on, allowing them to prey on our bird life, is a public enemy and the public should be made to realize it.

An owl will kill more rats and mice than a cat, yet the farmer kills the owl and keeps the cat.

"Unless man is willing to accept a place among the list of predatory animals, which have no other thought than the wolfish instinct to slay every living species save their own, he is bound by the unwritten law of civilization to save from annihilation the birds and beasts that still beautify the earth and make it interesting."

In our schools we need positive instruction on the value and importance of bird life.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 500 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

The following verses entitled "Bonehead's Banner Play" were asked for by a correspondent in the Open Court column. It was written by G. S. Applegarth, a well-known sporting writer; and the following copy was kindly furnished The Herald by Alton B. Heimbach:

Bonehead's Banner Play.

(By Appy.)

Bill Bonehead was the biggest boob and eke the fattest wit,
That ever wore a mask and pad or donned a catcher's mit.
His eye was true behind the bat, his whip was sure and quick,
He ran the bases fairly and was handy
with the stick,
But when it came to noodle-work, the manager would sigh,
The rooters tear their whiskers and the angels weep on high.
But William's own opinion was always quite the same—
He stood convinced that he put up a mighty heady game.
'Twas in a joust for blood and fame,
when savage waxed the fray,
That Bill broke all preceding marks and made his banner play.
The score stood nothing-nothing and the side had two men out,
When strolling blandly to the plate came great Jake Wienerkraut.
He cast a glance at Boney's bean and calmly paused to ask
Why one with such an empty nut should need to wear a mask.
This got the Bonehead's billy and he swore a mighty oath,
To put the jody onto Jake or bust a
bame—or both.
But now the sphere came hurtling by and Wienerkraut stood still;
"Strike one," the ump muttered. "Oiyoi," said Bonehead Bill.
Again the twirler heaved the pill,
again Jake cut it dead;
"Strike tuh," remarked the umpire.
"Hee-haw," said Bonehead Bill.
The third one was a fade-away and
Jakie spun around;
He missed it clean, but Boney muffed and dropped it on the ground.
"Come on and tag me out," said Jake,
as Boney grabbed the pill;
"All right, you great big lump of kraut," Bill Bonehead cried, "I will."
Away sped Jakie and away sped Bone-
head close behind;
To overtake and tag his man was all
he had in mind.
In vain the frenzied fans beseeched,
admonished and implored,
In vain they shrieked to "throw the ball," in vain they raved and roared.
Around first base spend Wienerkraut and on to second flew,
With Boney clinging to the ball and straining every thew;
And down to third went nimble Jake,
just out of Boney's reach,
But Bill the harder hit his feet and hung on like a leech.
Then homeward fled the taunting Jake
as lightly as the wind,
With Boney wheezing in his wake about one jump behind;
And ere the simp could realize the havoc he had done,
Jake Wienerkraut had crossed the pan and scored the winning run!
Then rose that mighty throng and what they did to poor Bonehead—
Ah, well, some things in this sad world were better left unsaid.

ARE THE STRIKERS GETTING JUSTICE?

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice in our daily papers that the grand jury of Houghton county, Mich., brought in a no true bill in the case of the deportation of Moyer, the president of the Western Federation of Miners. It seems to some of us that the special prosecutor who gave the copper kings to understand before he was appointed that he had evidence enough to convict all of the advisors of the strikers, is doing his duty to his employers, the copper kings.

Readers, does it seem possible that in the good old U. S. A. a man of Moyer's type, who has fought for the downtrodden miners for a great number of years, can be shot in the back, driven from a state that is in the Union, which our forefathers fought so bravely to preserve, can be assaulted, loaded on a train, gunmen sent with him, confined in a berth until he gets to the state line, and nobody convicted after having as many as seventeen, who were accused, to examine?

Does it not seem as if this grand jury was a frame-up? Does it not seem that Governor Ferris is also a cog in the wheel of the copper kings when he says he believes in labor unions and then says he hopes the findings of the grand jury are final? A CITIZEN.

WANTS STATEMENT FROM MERRITT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I see where Commissioner Merritt complains—and justly, I believe—of the discourteous treatment accorded him and Supt. Reed by the opponents of the new water schedule at the public meeting last Monday afternoon. They should have been allowed to present to the citizens assembled and, through the press, to the general public their arguments, reasons, etc., in favor of the new schedule. They were not accorded fair or considerate hearing and were not allowed to answer the objections voiced at the meeting. Neither were they allowed to refute, if it were possible for them to do so, some of the ridiculous statements made.

Now, Mr. Editor, as a taxpayer and water consumer (a stockholder of the department) I think Commissioner Merritt and Supt. Reed owe it to themselves and to the public to prepare and publish a signed statement giving their views, reasons, arguments, etc., in favor of the new schedule, stating therein what it costs the department—with all expenses figured in—to furnish water to its consumers, explaining fully the items, interest, etc., and what each amounts to. Also, if possible, give the actual or average expense of handling the accounts of the individual water consumer.

The taxpayers and consumers should be fully informed on the difficult phases of this and other subjects so they may intelligently understand the situation and form correct opinions.

I, for one, would like to know if the big fellows, as well as the little fellows, are paying their just proportion. Probably Commissioner Merritt can enlighten

AN AVERAGE CONSUMER.

Duluth, Jan. 29.

WATER RATES AND THE BIG CONSUMERS.

To the Editor of the Herald:

In the morning paper Mr. Merritt charges the water rate audience with being discourteous to Manager Reed and says: "Neither Mr. Reed nor myself had an opportunity to present our side of the case." As a matter of fact the audience called for something from Mr. Merritt and he was on his feet without interruption from a single person until he sat down. What more did he want in the way of opportunity? The only statement he made while on his feet was "These rates are right; I know they are."

When Mr. Hudson had completed his statement of the facts upon which the old rates were based Mr. Merritt asked him a question about the "good business of the city paying the power company for ten kilowatts of power to furnish the elevators with six kilowatts, assessing the patrons of the department for the other four." Mr. Hudson replied that he was not sufficiently familiar with electrical terms to answer the question, but if Mr. Merritt would reduce the question to a form of cubic feet and gallons he would and could answer it. Mr. Crane of the Northern Power company arose in the audience and told Mr. Merritt he would answer the question and did so, by stating that the city could afford under their contract with the power company to reduce the rates one-half to the elevators and the city would still make money. If Mr. Crane did not know his business it is safe to say he would not be holding the position he is with the power company.

When Mr. Reed began talking he started in to prove that Hudson was wrong in saying that "approximately 50 per cent of the revenue was paid by 10 per cent of the consumers." He started off with the statement that twenty-nine of the big consumers pay a little over $3,000 a month and that the total revenue is about $15,000 per month. He said the lowest amount paid by these twenty-nine was something over $60 and the average was about $40. The crowd caught him on these figures and he got all balled up and the crowd went away laughing at him. Now, take his figures alone, and he says he took them from the books, if twenty-nine consumers out of a list of ten or twelve thousand pay over 20 per cent of the total revenue are they not entitled at least to what might be considered a wholesale rate? If Mr. Reed had gone on as he was going he would have proved very shortly that even less than 10 per cent were paying what Mr. Hudson said the ten were.

I was criticized by a writer in The Herald of last evening because I was one of those who protested against the increased rate. As the attendance at the meeting was small I would like to state the laundrymen's case through The Herald and let the public judge as to the fairness of the new schedule.

In company with other laundrymen I went to the water office in December and had a talk with Mr. Merritt and Mr. Reed about the new rates. They both told us we should pay the city 8 cents per hundred cubic feet for our water, that it cost the city a trifle less than that. We got busy with a pencil and showed them that under the old rates we were paying 3.93 per cent more than 8 cents, almost 4 per cent more than cost, according to their own statement as to what that cost is.

Both Mr. Reed and Mr. Merritt agreed that we were then paying too much and said they would consider the matter and try to rearrange the schedule so we would have to pay about what they thought we should. We left them to think it over. Some days later we went back to learn if any readjustment had been made and was told there was "nothing doing," that the rates as promulgated would have to stand.

Under the new schedule our rate is increased to 15.71 per cent above the cost of 8 cents. In other words the city is making a profit of almost 16 per cent on the water we use. If the plant was privately owned the stockholders would consider a manager who could show that percentage of net earnings a pretty good man. The idea of municipal ownership is to get the service to the people at as near the cost mark as possible and the water department, under the present management, is not making friends for municipal ownership.

Think of where we would be owning a street car line and an electric lighting plant with this sort of management?

I have no means of knowing whether or not there is brains enough in the water department to figure out a fair and just schedule, if there is it is not in evidence in the schedule adopted. The "I am big enough for my job" and the "big consumer can be damned" attitude of the commissioner in charge may fit him all right, but it is not making friends for the commission form of government.

I cannot understand how any one listening to the logical and meaty address of Mr. Hudson can fail to see that a mistake was being made in adopting the revised schedule of rates. The address was educational in every thought, word and line, and those who did not hear it, or read it, should get a copy of Tuesday's Herald and read it. It is worth preserving. As to the vote of the commissioners I can only say I was surprised at Hicken's. I gave him credit for more business acumen. I did not think he was a man to play to the galleries.

The above figures on our rates were based on a bill for November of $72.75. Any one can take a pencil and do their own figuring on both the old and the new rates if they want to verify my figures. J. T. ARMSTEAD.

NON-SOUTHERNERS IN SOUTHERN CLUB.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Bitter factional controversies in the Southern Woman's club of Chicago, caused by charges that many members were not of Southern birth or ancestry, were settled at an extraordinary election yesterday under the personal supervision of Sidney S. Pollack, master in chancery. Mr. Pollack was appointed by Superior Court Judge Sullivan to reorganize the disrupted club, and he found that thirty-eight women on the club's roster were not eligible to membership. These women were not informed they no longer belonged to the club until they attempted to vote. The club has been divided since last May. At yesterday's election Mrs. John Willis Heatfield was elected president, defeating Mrs. Jeremiah Hallissy by twenty votes.

NEW COUNTY JAIL NEEDED

Grand Jurors Do Not Believe Work Farm Is Sufficient.

Four to Six Prisoners Found Occupying One Cell.

The fact that a work farm for city and county misdemeanants has been established recently does not justify the county commissioners in delaying the erection of a new county jail, in the opinion of the January grand jury, which submitted its final report to Judge Cant in district court last evening.

During its session the grand jury, as is customary, visited a number of the county institutions. Special attention was paid to the county jail situation. Several of the county commissioners and the sheriff were called before the jury as witnesses.

With reference to public buildings, the grand jury reported as follows:

"The grand jury inspected the county poor farm, the county jail and the city prison.

County Poor Farm.

"We found the county poor farm in a very satisfactory condition. During the last four years considerable land has been cleared and new buildings have been erected, and many necessary improvements made. Under the present efficient management the county farm will soon be self-supporting, or nearly so. The committee found nothing to criticize in the care of inmates or the management of the farm and hospital.

County Jail.

"The county jail is, everything considered, in perhaps as good condition as can be expected. The grand jury are of the opinion that the county needs a new and modern jail, located adjacent to the courthouse. The county has outgrown the present jail. We found in some cells from four to six prisoners, and the congested condition was so evident that we were impressed with the necessity of much larger quarters to take care of the present inmates, and in anticipation of the increase that is sure to come with the growth and development of the county. The county commissioners were called before the grand jury and questioned as to the reasons for the delay in building, and they gave as the only reason the fact that the joint county and city work farm was expected to relieve the present situation. Assuming that 56 per cent (the estimate given us by the commissioners) of the present inmates will be taken to the farm in the spring, the jail will still be inadequate for the needs of the county. The past growth of the various cities and towns in this county warrant a belief that even if the jail can be made to serve its purpose for the present, yet by the time a new jail can be built, the demands will be such that it will be absolutely a necessity.

"We visited the jail cells in the courthouse, and we find that they are very poorly ventilated. It is our opinion that this matter can be easily remedied at a small expense, and we call the special attention of the county commissioners to it and trust that our recommendations will be promptly acted upon.

"We further recommend that the county commissioners rearrange the grand jury room by putting in a semi-circular table for the grand jurors so that it will bring them nearer the witnesses.

City Prison.

"We found the city prison and the police headquarters in a very satisfactory condition."

EXPERT WILL BE SECURED

Industries of Duluth Offer Aid for Teaching of Foreigners.

Pursuant to the action taken at the Commercial club Tuesday night, when Dr. Peter Roberts of New York city recommended an expert instructor to teach English to the foreigners of Duluth and its suburbs, B. C. Wade, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has outlined several plans for such a course, and awaits action by the Y. M. C. A. and the educational co-operation committee of the Commercial club.

Mr. Wade announces that there will be no general campaign to secure finances for the work, as only the firms and corporations to be directly benefited will be called upon for contributions. It is admitted, however, that the whole of Duluth will be helped by the raising of the citizenship standard of the foreign population, and that good instruction of immigrants will add greatly to the progress and development of the city.

The flood of immigrants, especially from Southeastern Europe, is increasing rapidly, and the steel plant will bring many more here. Mr. Wade, like Dr. Roberts, is of the opinion that education is all that is necessary to help these new citizens overcome the effects of years of depression in their fatherland.

A large number of the industrial corporations have alredy signified their willingness to aid financially, and it is expected that the work will soon be begun.

FIREMAN CUT BY FALLING GLASS

Truckman Taufman Confined to Bed as Result—Fire Slight.

Gust Taufman, truckman at No. 3 firehall, was injured by falling glass last evening while attempting to break into the Litman Bros.' store at 330-332 East Superior street, where an overheated stove had started quite a blaze.

The fire alarm was turned in by Patrolman Riedel, who saw flames in the center of the store as he passed the building about 10:50 o'clock. Truckman Taufman was one of the first men to reach the burning store and in attempting to break through the front door, broke a large plate glass. The flying pieces of glass so cut Taufman's left foot and leg that he had to be taken to police headquarters, where his wounds were dressed by Police Surgeon Murphy. He was later removed to the firehall, where he spent the night and this morning he was taken to his home, where he is confined to his bed. It is expected that he will recover within a few days. Taufman lives at 614 East Fifth street.

The firemen had little difficulty with the blaze. The damage to the building and loss to the stock in the store will be about $400, according to Assistant Fire Chief Wilson.

The department answered two other alarms yesterday afternoon, the fires having been caused by overheated stoves and chimneys. They were at 608 Garfield avenue and 326 East Sixth street, the damage in each being nominal.

CRITICIZES ROAD POLICY OF NATION

Prof. Smith Says America Should Take Lesson From Europe.

Prof. L. S. Smith, director of the highway division of the University of Wisconsin, delivered an interesting and instructive illustrated lecture on the maintenance and construction of roads and pavements at the council chambers last night.

Prof. Smith criticized the taxpayers of this country for their "penny wise, pound foolish" policy of authorizing large expenditures for the laying of pavements and then refusing to allow sufficient funds for their proper maintenance.

"In Europe the repair and maintenance of a street begins the day after it is built," he said. "In this country maintenance begins the day after it is worn out." He asserted that this was not the fault of American engineers but that of the public which refuses to allow the engineers the money with which to keep the highways in shape. He asserted that the result is that pavements are often worn out long before the bonds issued for their construction run out. He declared that pavements should be selected after careful traffic surveys to meet the conditions of various localities.

DEDUCTIONS AT THE SOURCE

Time Has Expired for Claiming Them Under Income Tax Law.

Other Applications for Exemptions May Be Filed Until March 1.

Yesterday was the last day for filing of claims for exemptions and deductions at the source under the provisions of the income tax law, and considerable confusion prevailed among applicants at the internal revenue office at the Federal building. Deductions at the source must be distinguished from straight applications for exemptions, which may be filed until March 1.

In speaking of the regulations governing this phase of the new law, Attorney J. J. Robinson, who has been making a study of the act, said to The Herald today:

"The income tax law provides that exemptions and deductions may be claimed at the source by proper application to be filed at least thirty days prior to March 1, which was Jan. 29. The law itself does not provide for an extension of time to file such application except in cases of sickness or absence. In such cases the collector may allow such persons further time for filing the application or return as he may deem necessary, not exceeding thirty days. The practice, however, may be slightly different. Extensions might be granted by the collector in other cases but the law does not so provide, and I do not recall any treasury decision that allows an extension except in cases of sickness or absence.

"The claim for the specific exemption of $2,500.00 or $3,333.33 must be filed with the withholding agent. The treasury regulations provide as follows:

"'Any person subject to the normal tax of 1 per cent, the amount which is withheld or is to be withheld at the source, wishing to avail himself or herself of the exemption provided in paragraph C, Section 2, of this act ($3,000 or $4,000 as the case may be, or $2,500 or $3,333.33 for 1913) must file with the withholding agent not later than thirty days prior to the day on which the return on his income tax may be due, a notice in the following form:

SNOW AND ICE CONDITIONS

Considerable snow has fallen over the Northwest and northern sections of the East during the last week, but the amount of ice in the lakes and streams has remained practically the same, according to the weekly bulletin on ice and snow just issued by the United States weather bureau. A good part of the precipitation for the week was in the form of rain.

Practically all ice formations were in northern districts. The Missouri is now closed from Sioux City, Iowa, northward, the increase during the week being from four to five inches. The upper part of the Mississippi river is closed while only floating ice is reported between La Crosse and Keokuk. Southward the stream is entirely free.

Small increases of ice occurred in the harbors of the Great Lakes. The greatest thickness, however, is only about twelve inches. Compared with the same period a year ago there is generally less ice now over the Mississippi and Missouri river systems and in the upper lake region and more in the lower lake region and New England.

Snow from four to six inches covers the country from Spokane to Duluth and as far south as Southern Minnesota. Snows from three to sixteen inches prevail over the Central lake region, and in New England deep snow may be found as well as in Northern New York.

IS KILLED IN SAME LOCALITY AS FATHER.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30. — Henry Winkel, 15 years old, was killed by an automobile at Smith and Ramsey streets Wednesday night. It was on this corner that his father, Matthew Winkel, was killed by an automobile Nov. 25, 1913. The machine was driven by Clarence McGeary.

The boy was coasting on the Ramsey street hill and ran full into the machine as it crossed the street. His father was killed by a machine driven by Dr. D. D. Rogers.

BUTTER WEAK; EGGS STRONG

Price of Former Very Low for This Season of Year.

Hens Not Doing Their Duty; Good Supply of Vegetables.

A further weakening in the price of butter, and a slight advance in egg figures, are features of the Duluth produce market today.

The best creamery butter is now to be had at wholesale at 30@31 cents a pound, just 2 cents lower than a week ago, according to the Bridgeman-Russell company.

Figures on June storage are unchanged at 28@29 cents. The butter market is advised to be weak in all sections of the country, but no further decline, beyond perhaps, 1 or 2 cents a pound, is looked for. It is pointed out that at their present range butter prices are extremely low for the mid-winter season and that they are in fact getting down close to a summer basis. The butter make in this district is said to be steadily increasing and in the estimation of dairymen, it is likely to continue so, as it would require a cold spell extending over a period of about ten days to materially reduce the cows' flow of milk on properly equipped dairy farms.

The market in eggs is, on the contrary, more of a weather proposition, the supplying of the demand being dependent upon the day-to-day receipts, as there are now no storage reserves to fall back upon. It is said that when the dip in the temperature came along this week, stocks of eggs in dealers' hands were comparatively light. On that account the price range in them is likely to be uncertain during the next few weeks, and it is thought that it might easily work up to 40 cents a dozen again.

The demand for cheese is said to be increasing steadily with a heavier consumption reported both in Northern Minnesota and in the East. Quotations are unchanged through the list.

Oranges Are Cheap.

Oranges are a feature in fruits. They are selling on a much cheaper basis than a year ago and their sale has increased accordingly. Grapefruit is also being largely called for, and prices in it are 25 cents a case higher. California lemons are cheaper to the extent of 25 cents a box.

Both barrel and box apples are still being offered at the same prices as a week ago, but advances are predicted in the near future, as stocks are being rapidly depleted.

Florida strawberries are among the luxuries on the market, but the fruit is of exceptionally good quality, and its price has gone down 10 cents a box to 45 cents, during the last few days.

Vegetables Choice Good.

The choice in vegetables is good for the season, as shipments have not been interfered with through unfavorable weather conditions. With the exception of California celery and cauliflower, and Texas tomatoes, receipts of Southern and Western greenstuffs are now exclusively from Florida.

Marketings of potatoes from stations in this territory are reported by the Fitzsimmons-Palmer company to be comparatively light at present and quotations are firm at the list. Cabbage is scarce and high, being now offered at $3.25 in 150-pound crates.

Poultry Prices Unchanged.

Offerings of live poultry are merely nominal at present, and prices in that and in fresh dressed and frozen stock are unchanged from a week ago.

Michigan street branches of the various packing establishments report that the demand for meats in this territory has increased materially during the last ten days. Quotations today are as they were in every item in the list.

HYOMEI SOOTHES, PURIFIES, HEALS CATARRH ILLS

When you have frequent attacks of sneezing or head colds, tickling in the throat, dull headaches, crusts in the nose, raising of mucus or spasmodic coughing, and seem lacking in vitality, you are affected with catarrh—a disease that cannot be neglected since it often leads to a serious if not fatal ailment. The ravages of catarrh will in time wreck the health of even the strongest person. Besides, catarrh is so unpleasant—it makes your life miserable and annoys your friends.

At the first catarrhal symptom surely use Hyomei. It's the right-to-the-point remedy — you breathe it—no nauseating drugs to upset your stomach.

Hyomei is a combination of antiseptic oils that you breathe into the nose, throat and lungs in the natural way. Just put a few drops into the inhaler and breathe it in. The germicidal fumes mix with the air and at once penetrate to all nooks and crevices of the mucous membrane lining the breathing organs. It destroys the dangerous germs that may be lurking in the delicate tissues, and immediately soothes and heals the raw and inflamed membrane.

Boyce drug store sells Hyomei with an agreement to refund the purchase price to anyone who is not benefited. You surely can afford to try it on an offer like this. All druggists have it. Get the complete outfit, $1.00 size.

IS OLDEST MAN IN THE COUNTRY

Henry Dorman, Born in Washington's Time, Has Reached 115.

Lamar, Mo., Jan. 30.—At his home in West Liberal, Barton county, Uncle Henry Dorman recently celebrated his 115th birthday, and though he has been very feeble for the last three years he recognized all his old friends who came to offer congratulations. He is believed to be the oldest living man in America.

Dorman has documents to prove his age. Before he became an invalid he wrote a short autobiography which, with the records, is now in the care of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hattie Dorman, and which shows that he was born in Steuben county, New York, in January, 1799.

Steuben county then was on the western frontier, and George Washington was still alive. When Lincoln was born Henry Dorman was a schoolboy, and he was a young married man with children at his fireside before the first mile of railroad was laid anywhere.

In 1823 he married Miss Lucinda Parker and settled near Mount Washington, N. Y., where he cleared a farm and built a log cabin. For fourteen years he drove a team on the Erie canal.

Army records show that Mr. Dorman was 64 when, in 1863, he enlisted as a private in Company F, Seventh Michigan cavalry. He served under generals Custer and Kilpatrick and fought at Gettysburg, South Mountain Spottsylvania and around Richmond, and his right hand is now lame from a bullet wound. He had four sons in the Union army, one dying in Libby prison.

After the Civil war, Mr. Dorman came to Vernon county, Missouri, later removing to this city. Fifteen years ago members of G. A. R. post, No. 34, surprised him with a big celebration on his 100th birthday.

Few of his comrades remained to celebrate the 115th.

Up to a few years ago he busied himself with an old-fashioned scythe, keeping lawns around town in fine condition. He insisted upon working out of doors until he was 112, and declared he couldn't live without plenty of fresh air and exercise in the open.

Uncle Henry has never used intoxicants, but he has smoked and chewed tobacco virtually all his life. He is the father of ten children, all of whom are dead except a son, who lives in Michigan.

By a special act of congress on Feb. 7, 1908, Mr. Dorman's pension as a veteran was increased to $50 a month on account of his great age. His health now is such that he probably will not live to celebrate another birthday, but his record will go down in Washington as one of the oldest, if not the oldest, former soldier of the republic.

WILL DISCUSS THE INCOME TAX

Minneapolis Authority Will Speak Before Public Affairs Committee.

The next regular monthly meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club gives promise of being more than ordinarily interesting. It will be held at the club rooms next Thursday evening, dinner being served at 6:30 o'clock.

The income tax, new as it is, is very interesting to all business men, whether or not they are rich enough to have to obey its mandates, and as it is puzzling many people, the fact that one who has made a study of the tax will explain it and discuss it at this meeting will undoubtedly bring out a large crowd. This man is A. J. Edwards of Minneapolis, who is said to be exceptionally well posted on the new law. Lieut. Col. Eva, secretary of the club, says that it will be necessary for those who wish to attend to send in word at once in order that a place may be reserved for them.

ENDS COPPER COUNTRY TASK

Grand Jury Is Dismissed Without Finding More True Bills.

Every Union Member in Michigan Assessed to Aid Strike.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald).—Without making a further report, the special Houghton county grand jury which has been investigating cases arising from the strike of the copper miners was discharged yesterday by Judge O'Brien of the circuit court.

The jury refused to fix the responsibility for the murder of three British non-union miners at Painesdale, and suggested a further investigation by the sheriff's office.

Preliminary motions in the so-called strike cases were to be argued today.

The grand jury began its deliberations Dec. 15, and has been in session almost constantly since that date. Seven indictments and seven "no true bills" were reported, among the former being the true bill against Charles H. Moyer, president, and thirty-seven other members of the Western Federation of Miners, on the charge of conspiring to interfere with non-union miners.

The trial of the six deputies accused of second degree murder as the result of the killing of three strikers at Zeberville in August is docketed for trial in the Houghton county court, beginning next Monday. Special Prosecutor Nichols said he expected this case would consume at least three weeks, as the state has subpoenaed forty witnesses, thirty of whom are foreigners.

Levy on Union Members.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 30.—After a series of sharp, bitter skirmishes over resolutions which kept the conference in a turmoil, delegates representing every labor union of Michigan, in session here, imposed a weekly assessment of from 5 to 50 cents upon every employed union man or woman in the state, to provide a fund for the assistance of miners who are on strike in the Calumet copper region. The resolution practically allows each person affected to contribute the weekly amount which he feels he can afford. The assessment will be levied on about 70,000 persons, according to Claude C. Taylor, president of the State Federation of Labor.

A resolution urging the American Federation of Labor to call a nation-wide strike in sympathy with the Calumet miners was supported on the floor of the conference only by members of the local unions of the United Mine Workers of America. Other mine workers vigorously opposed the resolution, which was also opposed by the resolutions committee. It finally was tabled.

Militia and Ferris Criticized.

Almost all of the resolutions considered by the conference resulted in some criticism of the state militia and the manner in which Governor Ferris conducted his investigation of the Calumet strike.

Daniel C. Kelly of Grand Rapids, who represented the International Typographical union, declared Governor Ferris could have settled the strike had he gone to Calumet and investigated after the miners quit work.

"Instead he sent militiamen there—for what reason, I do not know," said Kelly.

After Kelly spoke, the conference referred to the executive committee of the state federation resolutions favoring a tonnage tax upon ore and the passage of a law placing the expense of militia maintenance upon the county into which the national guardsmen are ordered for service.

House Committees Selected.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Committees to investigate the Colorado and Michigan mine strikes have been tentatively selected by the house mines committee. Representative Foster of Illinois, chairman of the committee, with Representatives Byrnes of South Carolina and Taylor of Arkansas, or Evans of Montana, Democrats, and Austin of Tennessee and Sutherland of West Virginia, Republicans, probably will conduct the inquiry in Colorado.

Representative Taylor of Colorado agreed to head the Michigan investigators, and the tentative list of his colleagues includes Representative Hamlin of Missouri and Casey of Pennsylvania, Democrats, and Howell of Utah and Switzer of Ohio, Republicans.

Both subcommittees are expected to leave Washington for the West early next week, probably Tuesday. Places at which hearings will be held will include Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Trinidad in Colorado, and Houghton and Calumet in Michigan.

MAIL CAR BURNS ON C. M. & ST. P. ROAD.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Jan. 30.—The Overland Limited on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, left the track at Keystone, thirty miles west of here at midnight last night, and the engine, mail and baggage cars were turned over. No one was injured. The mail and baggage cars caught fire and were destroyed.

LOCKED IN VAULT WITH U. S. GOLD.

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—Locked in the air-tight gold vault in the basement of the United States mint in this city when the heavy steel door, fitted with a time lock, closed behind him, Clyde M. Taylor, a clerk, was rescued in an almost unconscious condition after other employes had spent more than an hour yesterday drilling a hole through the steel tumblers.

Taylor had carried a bag of gold clippings into the vault when the door, which weighs several tons, closed and the heavy steel bolts set automatically. Fortunately other employes had witnessed the accident and a powerful steam drill was immediately set to work.

TWENTY-FIVE PEACE TREATIES FAVORED

Senate Committee Votes to Recommend Immediate Ratification.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The senate foreign relations committee today voted to recommend immediate ratification of general arbitration treaties with Great Britain, Japan and other nations, twenty-five treaties in all. These have been pending since last summer when their original five-year limitations expired.

The vote in favor of the treaties was 11 to 2, with four senators absent. Senators O'Gorman, Democrat, New York, and William Alden Smith, Republican, Michigan, voted in the negative.

Affirmative votes were cast by Senators Bacon, Stone, Shively, Hitchcock, Williams, Swanson, Pomerene and Smith of Arizona, Democrats; Lodge, Root and McCumber, Republicans. Clarke of Arkansas, Borah, Sutherland and Burton had sent word that they favored ratification of the treaties.

WABASH RAILROAD IS ORDERED SOLD

Federal Judge Authorizes Foreclosure Proceedings With Krum as Master.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 30.—The sale of the Wabash railroad at foreclosure was authorized today by Elmer B. Adams, United States circuit judge.

Judge Adams directed that no bid for the property lower than $34,000,000 be accepted and that the sale be made without apraisement.

Chester H. Krum of St. Louis was appointed special master to execute the sale. His bond was fixed at $100,000. All bidders will be required to deposit with Mr. Krum $1,700,000 or $3,500,000 in Wabash first refunding or extension mortgage bonds.

700 FIREBUGS AT WORK IN MISSOURI

State Insurance Superintendent Makes the Declaration.

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 30.—Seven hundred "fire-bugs" are operating in Missouri, according to a statement made here by State Superintendent of Insurance Revelle at a hearing of the Missouri insurance commission on a proposed fire marshal law for the state.

"Those arson fiends have been driven out of other states by fire marshals, and have flocked to Missouri because they know there is no such office in the state," the superintendent said. "I can safely say that $1,000,000 of our fire loss last year can be attributed to incendiarism."

ANOTHER BIG TRUST FOUND

Smelting Combine May Be Attacked By the Government.

Action Would Rank With Prosecution of Standard Oil.

Washington, Jan. 30.—After months of quiet investigation, the department of justice has concluded that it has sufficient grounds for a suit to dissolve, under the Sherman anti-trust act, the American Smelting & Refining company, the so-called smelting trust. It is not probable that suit will be filed immediately, but it is understood that the preparations have gone so far that a bill in equity is being drawn by department attorneys.

It became known that F. W. Lehmann, former solicitor general of the United States, had been retained by the so-called trust, and it is possible he will confer with the attorney general before the department files suit. Mr. McReynolds said he had no engagement with Mr. Lehmann to talk over the case.

Capital Nearly $150,000,000.

Suit against the smelting "trust" is regarded here as of great importance, ranked only by the Standard Oil and Steel corporation suits. This view obtains, not only because the American Smelting & Refining company and the American Smelters Securities company, which it controls, have combined authorized capital of nearly $150,000,000, but because of the varied activities of the two concerns.

Has Perpetual Charter.

The parent company has a perpetual charter under the laws of New Jersey and deals in bar gold and silver, pig lead, copper and blue vitroil. It owns about twelve smelters and two refineries.

In the corporation manual for 1913 its smelting capacity is given at 5,500,000 tons per annum and its refining capacity at 460,000 tons. Through the securities company, its smelting capacity is increased by 2,650,000 tons and its refining capacity by 190,000 tons.

It directly operates many mines in Mexico, owns the capital stock of the United States Zinc company at Pueblo, Colo., the Carbon Coal & Coke company of Colorado, the stock of the American Smelters Steamship company, which operates steamers between American and Mexican ports, and is interested in other activities.

Among the Officers.

The officers of the refining company include Daniel Guggenheim, president; Barton Sewall, vice president; Edward Brush, vice president; W. E. Morris, secretary, and Isaac Guggenheim, treasurer. On the executive committee are S. R. Guggenheim, Edward Brush, S. W. Eccles, Karl Eilers, Daniel Guggenheim, Murry Guggenheim, Franklin Guiterman, F. W. Hills, William Loeb, Jr., J. K. MacGowan, W. S. Morse, E. L. Newhouse, H. A. Prosser, Barton Sewell, Simon Guggenheim of New York, Judd Stewart, Plainfield, N. J., and Joseph Clendennin, Baltimore.

The American Smelters Securities company owns or controls more than a dozen copper and lead mines in the United States and Mexico. In 1905 more than half of its $30,000,000 capital stock was acquired by the refining company and about five years later the remainder was taken up by that same company. Membership of its executive committee largely coincides with that of the refining company.

EARTHQUAKE IN WEST HEMISPHERE.

Washington, Jan. 30.—A pronounced earthquake was recorded on the seismograph of Georgetown university last night. The disturbance began at 10:56 and continued until 11:44 o'clock. The observers estimate that the tremors were about 2,000 miles distant in a northwesterly direction.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"Within the Law."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—"The Passing Show."

Amusement Notes.

Few plays of recent years have been so enthusiastically praised by the exacting dramatic critics of New York and Chicago as Bayard Veiller's absorbing new human interest drama of modern metropolitan life, "Within the Law," which will be seen at the Lyceum tonight.

"This play," says Acton Davies in the New York Evening Sun, "is set forward on the program as a melodrama, and the man who writes the advertisements calls it 'a drama of the minute'. It is both. The killing that is done in the course of the narrative is accomplished with a revolver that shoots smokeless powder and is rigged with a Maxim silencer. When the killer finally has the crime fastened upon him, he says to the police inspector, with the conscious pride of one who has done a good job with a high sense of artistic values: 'I guess that's the first time a guy was ever croaked with one of them,' and, as the inspector nods, the slayer continues: 'Some class, eh?' and strolls off to take his medicine.

"'Within the Law' has a story back of the shooting, in which a young girl goes to prison while not guilty, comes out and evolves a scheme for making society 'give up' without actually breaking the written statutes. She organizes a group of experts, and what they do to the police, who are powerless to convict them, makes the play."

The American Play company has engaged a remarkably able cast for "Within the Law," and the elaborate scenic production which is to be employed here is identical, even to the small details, with that employed in New York and Chicago where this stirring new play was designated the "dramatic sensation of the year."

That the greatest natural athletes in the world—the North American Indians—are as a race becoming weakened by the white man's civilization, is the statement of Bombay Deerfoot, the Sioux Indian, who is giving an entertaining act at the Orpheum theater this week.

Deerfoot is a graduate of Carlisle and Haskell schools, and was during his college days, one of the greatest athletes in America. He played on the Carlisle football team and the baseball team, and also represented the school in track and field sports, being a runner, jumper and shot putter. He played on the team in the days of Bemus Pierce, an all-American back.

"It cannot be denied," said Deerfoot, "that the Indians are not the race they once were. They seem to have been weakened by the sedentary life they are leading, and are easy victims to the white man's diseases. Tuberculosis, which was once unknown among them, has many victims, and it is undoubtedly caused by the fact that for centuries the Indians have been an outdoor people, and now they are adopting an indoor existence."

Next week's bill at the Orpheum will be headlined by S. Miller Kent in a dramatic playlet called "The Real Q." The playlet has been called "The Baffles of Vaudeville" and is said to be a thrilling little drama.

The week of Feb. 8 will be "Tango Week" at the Orpheum, and the motion pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle doing their new ball room dances will be shown.

Replete with good comedy, popular songs, and capable acting, "The Passing Parade," which opened at the Empress theater yesterday afternoon for the remainder of the week, is the best tabloid musical production presented here this season.

Max Field as Morris Greenbeck, the retired Hebrew merchant, is an able comedian, who has a string of jokes and sayings that are new. He scored a hit with his monologue number in the fourth scene, and later assisted by Miss Anna Fitink, presented a pleasing song program.

There is not much plot to "The Passing Parade," but the story is enough to keep the connection and afford many opportunities for chorus song numbers, dances and extremely funny situations. The principals, with one exception, are not very able singers, and yet they managed to score a hit with the large audiences last evening. Master Fred Tidmarsh possesses a falsetto voice, which is heard several times during the production. As Percy Greenbeck he proves a valuable asset for the comedy of the play.

The chorus is composed of eight girls, who appear in several costume changes during the production. They sing and dance exceptionally well, especially Miss Evelyn Bunnin and Miss Peanne MacKenzie, who present a duo dancing number occasionally.

An interesting film precedes "The Passing Parade," which will continue until tomorrow evening, together with regular daily matinees.

SURGERY TO CURE FIGHTING MANIA

Knife Is Used to Remove Blood Tumor on Brain.

Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 30.—A surgical operation to cure a man of a mania for fighting has been performed at a Fort Worth hospital. The patient is Mert Carey, aged 32 years. The physicians say that if he survives he will never again be subject to uncontrollable fits of temper.

The mania was due to a blood tumor on his brain. He was informed that the operation might cost him his life, but he said he preferred death if his mania must continue. When the fighting fit was not on him he was companionable and jolly and would never think of harming anybody. The spells came with the suddenness of a storm, and at such times he would fight anybody or anything. Frequently he was arrested on charges of assault, and he was taken from the city jail to the hospital for the operation at his own request. Describing his mania before being operated upon, Carey said:

"When these bad spells come upon me, try hard as I will I cannot control my temper. I've just got to fight. This is usually twice a month. I have daily attacks, but usually I can get off by myself and sit down and let them wear off. I can feel them coming. A jerking over my left eye always warns me I am about to have a fit of bad temper. Naturally I am peaceful. I like my friends and would not hit anyone. It's the thing in my head, this tumor, that causes these brainstorms. No matter what the consequences are I want to undergo the operation."

His mother told the authorities and physicians that it would be better for her son to be dead than to continue to disgrace himself and cause his family trouble.

Carey is an athlete of splendid physique and weighs 200 pounds. The attacks began when he was 16 years old, following a blow on his head while at play. Since then he had been getting worse. Two specialists, one from Paris, located the tumor and assigned that as the cause of his brainstorms, but they hesitated about performing an operation, especially as at that time the family had hopes of his recovering without it.

SUDDEN AITKIN DEATH.

Fred Grassman, Father of Duluth Woman, Is Called.

Aitkin, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Grassman, a highly respected citizen of Aitkin, died suddenly of heart disease Wednesday night shortly after retiring. He had been in apparent good health up to that time and died before medical aid could be summoned. He is survived by a wife and three daughters, Mrs. William Hoffstead and Mrs. Bertha Edstrom of Aitkin and another daughter in Duluth.

ELEVEN INDICTED IN BANKRUPT CASE.

New York, Jan. 30.—Federal indictments were returned yesterday against eleven men who were arrested recently on the charge of receiving assets of the bankrupt firm of Jacob Stern & Son, furriers, of this city. The indictment charges them with being concerned in a conspiracy to conceal the assets.

The Federal authorities here have been conducting an inquiry into alleged widespread bankruptcy frauds in which creditors have been cheated out of more than $1,000,000 and several other cases, it is understood, are under investigation.

CHICAGO BUYS REDUCTION PLANT.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—This city, which has been dumping its hundreds of tons of garbage into clay pits all winter and trying various experiments in treating it with acids, yesterday bought the garbage reduction plant which formerly handled the refuse by private contract. The property was acquired by condemnation for $275,000.

Farmer Killed By Train.

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 30. — John Gravel, one of the men who was injured Monday morning by being thrown from a sleigh when it was struck by the Northwestern passenger train, died at the Negaunee hospital Wednesday.

Mr. Gravel was a pioneer farmer and has resided at Little Lake for about thirty years. He was 68 years of age. His wife and family, who survive him, reside at Little Lake.

Will Scrutinize Records.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Definite information of land values on which to base land assessments will be obtained by the state tax commission by a scrutiny of records of the registers of deeds of the several counties of the state.

With the constitution providing assessment at full value, and with one-fourth value as the generally accepted rate of assessment, there are wide discrepancies in valuation in many districts.

HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Northern Beltrami County Man Accused of Illegally Selling Liquor.

Baudette, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Nixon, who has been in trouble before for blind-pigging, is again in the law's clutches. He was haled before his honor, Judge Norris, at Williams last Tuesday and after examination he was bound over to appear before the next grand jury, which meets Feb. 10, accused of selling a pint bottle of so-called whisky to a man at Cedar Spur. As Nixon was unable to furnish the required bonds he was taken to Bemidji to await his turn in court. Nixon a short time ago completed a sentence for selling without a government stamp, the sentence being imposed by Judge Amidon at Fergus Falls. It is said that Nixon has been engaged in the blind-pigging game for the past twenty-five years or more and during that time he has had a busy time dodging the sheriffs of the various counties in this state and North Dakota.

WOMEN AT KANSAS POLITICAL BANQUET.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 30.—Hope that the newly enfranchised women of Kansas will vote aggressively and not fall into the manner of the "many men in whom time and custom have dulled appreciation of the high privilege of suffrage" was expressed by Mrs. Charles F. Scott of Iola, wife of a former Kansas representative in congress, in an address at the twenty-third annual banquet of the Kansas Day Republican club here last night. Mrs. Scott was the first woman to address the club, and this was the first banquet to which women have been invited. About one-third of those present were women.

GRAFT CHARGES MADE BY NEWS TRIBUNE AGAINST THE POLICE ARE EXPLODED BY THE GRAND JURY

need not to be detailed, the grand jury declined to consider the testimony of the witness as reliable."

"Other Evidence."

It is understood that the "other evidence" referred to in the report was given by a witness who testified that he saw Madam Gain making the false entries in her book and that he told her at the time that if she attempted to use such evidence against the police department that he would "peach" on her.

The grand jury found that two police officers had been guilty some years ago of borrowing money from the keeper of a house of ill fame. "The evidence showed that the loans were repaid" states the report. The jury, however, does not excuse such a practice, but condemns transactions of such a character.

In this regard, the jury stated: "No city official or police officer should put himself under the slightest obligation to any saloonkeeper or any person doing an illegitimate business. While there was no evidence produced tending to prove that these privileges were abused or favors received in return for these loans, such practices should be stopped."

With reference to the permission given to Joseph Trudell to conduct his saloon on Garfield avenue from Nov. 16 to Dec. 18, 1913, without a license pending a transfer which was to be made, the jury found that the action of Commissioner Hicken was sanctioned by the custom of past years. It also found that it was a violation of the law and subject to criticism.

With reference to present conditions the jury found that all resorts in the red light district have been broken up and that there is no prostitution worthy of mention in the rooming houses. It is found that some of the women are following the business as an individual proposition but there are no established houses of ill fame.

No Protected Gambling.

With regard to gambling the jury found that although gambling had taken place in the city for a number of years it had never been protected, and there is no public gambling at the present time. One witness, a professional gambler, testified that he had passed money to the police. This charge was sifted down and it was discovered that he had never received any protection and that he had been arrested more often than any other gambler in the city. The jury reported that it did not feel justified in giving his testimony any weight.

Commissioner W. A. Hicken and Chief of Police Troyer were given the following testimonials:

"In Chief Troyer we find an able, efficient and honest official, who has in the past proved his worth to the city of Duluth, and we believe he should be commended for the department which he has built up, and we consider him invaluable in the position he now occupies.

"We have called attention in the foregoing to the present condition in Duluth as to gambling and prostitution, and to this we would add that the liquor laws have been properly and impartially enforced, and that concerning these vices the situation in this city was never in better condition. We feel that this is due to the upright and fearless attitude maintained by Mr. Hicken, the commissioner of public safety, and we commend his work, and urge that he continue on the lines that he has laid out."

One Dissenting Vote.

The report which was submitted to the court was passed by one dissenting vote, the following grand jurors taking part in the investigation and in framing the report: Foreman, C. E. Lovett; Milton M. McCabe, John A. McDevitt, Samuel Mahan, Edward J. Hipple, William T. Moyle, Charles G. Irvine, James S. Matteson, Louis Goldberg, Fred Manske, Joseph Macy, A. H. Markkanen, John W. Marvin, Sivert Lekoe, Hiram G. Inman, R. S. Manley, Thomas Torburn and Alex Guthrie.

It has been intimated by the News Tribune that the report which was presented was identical with that which was expected. It is believed that it was for this reason that a representative of the morning paper made a hurried trip to St. Paul a few days ago with the view of inducing the chief executive of the state to interfere with the local authorities in conducting an investigation of police affairs.

The morning paper also claims that the investigation was not a thorough one. In the face of this are the following facts: Ninety witnesses including gamblers, prostitutes, police officers, News Tribune reporters, and persons from other walks of life were called. A. G. Lunt, the Burns detective, employed by the News Tribune, was allowed to go before the jury and Joan W. Nagle, managing editor of the morning paper and a corps of sleuth reporters were also witnesses at various times. Every charge of graft which the News Tribune has ever made was sifted to the bottom. The accusers were brought before the jury and asked to divulge their evidence. All witnesses who could be reached by a subpoena and who knew anything about the frame-up were brought before the inquisitorial body. The grand jury devoted fifteen days to the police probe and the cost to the county was more than $1,000.

Report in Full.

The part of the report dealing with the investigation follows in full:

"The county attorney requested us to make a thorough investigation of the police department. Mr. Greene had given a good deal of time and labor to securing the evidence to be submitted to the grand jury, and assisted in conducting the investigation in a most thorough, able and impartial manner. We entered upon the investigation with a determination to secure all of the evidence bearing upon matters submitted to us, and to report such findings as the evidence might warrant.

Webber-Murphy Matter.

"The first matter submitted to us relative to the police department was the claim that Sergeant Webber assaulted a drunken man by the name of Pat Murphy while he was a prisoner at the police station. We found the following to be the facts: While an officer was booking the prisoner, Sergeant Webber came in and demanded his name, and in order, as he claimed, to induce him to give his right name, he slapped him in the face and twisted his wrist. The prisoner suffered no bodily harm at the hands of the sergeant. The conduct of Sergeant Webber was, however, in violation of the rules of the department, and he was reprimanded by Chief Troyer and otherwise punished.

"It is the opinion of the grand jury that Sergeant Webber was sufficiently disciplined for the infraction of the rules.

Officer Brouillette.

"It was claimed that Officer Brouillette arrested a business man of Duluth at the Soo station on the charge that he left dangerous explosives in the station, and that he was a dangerous character.

"The grand jury are of the opinion that the officer showed a lack of tact and good sense. Officer Monahan, whose name was mentioned in connection with the matter, took no part in the affair except to temporarily hold the prisoner at the request of Officer Brouillette. The refusal of Officer Brouillette to allow the citizen to identify himself was in direct violation of the telephone orders of the officer in charge at the police headquarters.

"Officer Brouillette was later charged with having framed up a case against a man by the name of Janetto, who ran a saloon at Twelfth avenue west.

"The evidence submitted convinced the grand jury that the action of the department in discharging the officer was warranted, and that there is no good ground for criticism.

The McCaskill Matter.

"Representations were made that Police Officers Callahan and Englert were guilty of misconduct in connection with some trouble at the house of Mrs. McCaskill, 17 Seventh avenue west.

"The evidence conclusively established the fact that the officers were guilty of no misconduct in connection with this matter, and that they simply discharged their duties.

The Elgin House Raid.

"The complaint in this case was that four policemen made a raid on the Elgin house on the night of Nov. 21, 1913, and arrested two young married couples and took them to the police station. This case was very thoroughly investigated, and all of the evidence it was possible to get was submitted to us.

"The grand jury found that a bona fide call was sent in to headquarters by the janitor at the Bell telephone office that there was trouble at the Elgin hotel. The department responded in the usual manner and found two young couples in the rooms from which the noise and disturbance seemed to come. They were taken to headquarters, where it was found that they were married.

"Had the young people availed themselves of the opportunity that was given them at the hotel to show their marriage certificates which they had in their possession, the unfortunate affair would not have occurred.

The Janzig Matter.

"In the matter of the arrest of Mr. Janzig the grand jury find, after a thorough investigation of the matter, that the officer was justified in making the arrest.

New Year's Celebration.

"It was alleged that violations of the liquor laws were committed by the proprietors of the St. Louis and Holland hotels. All of the evidence that could be secured was presented and we find as follows: that while liquor may have been sold, or offered for sale after 11 p. m., there is no evidence to indicate that it was done by connivance with or the knowledge of the police department, as instructions had been given to all of the hotels that the laws would be enforced on New Year's eve the same as on all other nights.

The Trudell Matter.

"Complaint was made that Joseph Trudell ran a saloon on Garfield avenue without a license, between the dates of Nov. 16 and Dec. 18, 1913. After investigating the matter the grand jury finds that this procedure, while sanctioned by the custom of past years and administrations, is a violation of the law, and as such is at least subject to severe criticism.

It is believed, however, that the public good will be fully served by making this condemnation of past offenses and demanding a strict enforcement of the liquor laws in the future.

Reinstating Officers.

"With reference to the policy of the head of the police department in reinstating officers who have been adjudged guilty of misconduct in connection with some trouble at the house of Mrs. McCaskill, 17 Seventh avenue west.

"The subjects which required the most time for thorough investigation were those relating to gambling and to alleged police graft in connection with houses of prostitution.

Gambling.

"The grand jury made a most thorough investigation of gambling houses. The county attorney called before us every professional gambler he could reach, and all other witnesses he thought might give evidence in the matter. Without question, there have been, from time to time, places where gambling has been systematically carried on during the last twelve years or more. Our investigations have made as far back as 1900. In all the testimony concerning gambling the evidence was unanimous with the exception of that of one witness, that although gambling has taken place in this city it has never been protected, and that no money or other consideration has been passed to the police department for that purpose. The only exception to this testimony as above noted, was the evidence of one witness, a professional gambler, who alleged that he had paid for protection over a long period of years ending in 1907. In view of the fact that it further appeared that this witness never received any protection, but, on the contrary, was arrested more often than any other gambler in the city, and in view of the fact that after he had mentioned parties to corroborate him, these parties, upon being called, flatly contradicted him, and in view of the incredible nature of the details of his story and his general reputation, this jury did not feel that it was justified in giving his testimony any credence.

"We find that gambling places had been established in various parts of the city during the last twelve years, but that they had been raided by the police from time to time, and broken up, only to be re-established in some other locality, to be in turn broken up.

Present Conditions.

"Concerning the gambling situation as it exists in Duluth under the present administration the unanimous testimony of the witnesses shows that while persons so inclined do, from time to time, gather together in rooms, hotels, clubs and private houses and engage in games of chance, there are no rooms or houses devoted to that purpose, and no gambling conducted as a business.

Houses of Prostitution.

"Inquiry was made into the question of prostitution as formerly carried on in this city, with particular reference to whether or not money was paid to any of the police. All of the persons formerly in that business who could be reached by subpoena or induced to attend, testified. With the exception of Madame Gain, they all stated that no graft or other money was ever paid, and that they had never heard any one claim to have made such payment.

"Mary Le Flohic, commonly known as Madame Gain, appeared before us, with her so-called 'graft books,' which were supposed to contain entries showing $40,000 of graft paid to members of the police department.

"These books were six in number and contained dated entries showing expenditures and receipts in the prostitution business which she formerly conducted in this city. These books covered intermittently the years from 1901 to 1913 inclusive. The entries were supposed to have been made in the books on the dates which they bore. A thorough examination of the books shows entries under dates in 1901-02-03 purporting to be records of payments of money to policemen. The total of these entries, the first of which is dated April 17, 1901, and the last Oct. 11, 1903, is $150. Of this, $95 is purported to have gone to two policemen who were discharged and are now dead. The balance of $55, contained in five entries, concerned four members of the present force.

"A further examination revealed the following facts: The first entry was dated April 17, 1901, and purported to record a payment of $25 to a certain policeman to be given to the chief of police. The witness testified that the chief referred to was Mr. Troyer.

"The facts are that Mr. Troyer did not become chief of police until Jan. 1, 1902, and the policeman whose name appears in the book was not on the police force until April, 1902, about a year later than the day on which the entry was supposed to have been made in the book. Such an entry on the day mentioned was, therefore, a record of an impossible transaction. Another of these entries was recorded as being a payment to a certain officer then on the beat. The facts are that the officer named was not at that time walking on a beat, but was engaged in other work. Another of these entries was plainly written in the book very recently, the ink being the same as that used in the transactions recorded in November and December, 1913.

"In view of the above situation, taken in connection with certain other evidence which need not be detailed, the grand jury declined to consider the testimony of this witness as reliable.

Present Conditions.

"All resorts in the red light district have been broken up; there is no prostitution worthy of mention in rooming houses, and we failed to find any substantial evidence tending to prove that there are violations of the laws in this respect, except that some women are following the business as an individual proposition.

"In this connection it also appeared that two of the police officers were guilty some years ago of borrowing money from the keeper of a house of ill fame. The evidence showed that these loans were repaid. The grand jury, however, condemns transactions of that character. No city official or police officer should put himself under the slightest obligation to any saloon keeper or to any person doing an illegitimate business. While there was no evidence produced tending to prove that privileges were given or favors received in return for these loans, such practices should be stopped.

Personal Grievances.

"Several petty personal grievances claiming inefficiency on the part of the police department were carefully listened to and in each case nothing was found to reflect upon the conduct of any employe of the department, and it is deemed unnecessary to devote further recital of details connected with the same.

Kick Book.

"It came to the attention of the grand jury that there is maintained at police headquarters what is known as a 'kick book.' This is a record of complaints made to the police by citizens by telephone and otherwise. In our judgment this book should not be considered a public record, but only such matters be given out as appear proper to the police authorities.

Individual Officers.

"Much time was spent in considering evidence concerning various delinquencies, serious and otherwise, affecting individual members of the police force. There are eighty-five persons connected with the police department. Of this number six have been found to deserve some measure of punishment. The commissioner of public safety has been advised by us that we recommend that two of these officers, for misconduct and general incompetence, be allowed to retire or be dismissed; that two more be suspended or otherwise disciplined; and that two others receive such treatment as the commissioner may deem best.

"With the exception of these six we find no cause for criticism of the personnel of the police department or of their efficiency. In Chief Troyer, we find an able, efficient and honest official, who has in the past proved his worth to the city of Duluth, and we believe he should be commended for the department which he has built up, and we consider him invaluable in the position he now occupies.

"We have called attention in the foregoing to the present condition in Duluth as to gambling and prostitution, and to this we would add that the liquor laws have been properly and impartially enforced, and that concerning these vices the situation in this city was never in better condition. We feel that this is due to the upright and fearless attitude maintained by Mr. Hicken, the commissioner of public safety, and we commend his work, and urge that he continue on the lines that he has laid out.

"Under the former city governments the political influence of individuals and organizations in making police appointments handicapped the department. We have received sufficient evidence to satisfy us that since the inauguration of the present administration marked improvement has been made and is still in progress.

Further Recommendations.

"In addition to the foregoing recommendations, we make the following:

"It appears that pool rooms in the city are frequented to a considerable extent by minors, who are thereby led into bad associations and taught bad ways. We recommend that the police give that matter more attention and endeavor to give these places a more careful inspection to the end that they may be cleared of young men. In one of these pool rooms, a game of rummy has been conducted. The commissioner has promised to have this stopped at once.

"Also, we strongly recommend that the laws be immediately, strictly and firmly enforced prohibiting dice and any other games of chance in cigar stores, candy stores and any or all other public places.

"Realizing the temporary authority of our body and the inadequate attention so frequently given to the recommendations of grand juries, we hereby insistently urge upon all public officials to whom our recommendations apply that they submit to the next grand jury a written report stating definitely the action taken on our recommendations, accompanied by a certificate from proper authorities that said recommendations have received proper attention.

"In the matter of the police investigation, this grand jury in closing its labors, cannot refrain from expressing its extreme appreciation of the able and efficient manner in which Warren E. Greene, county attorney, has placed the services of himself and his organization at its disposal—every matter coming before us has been carefully handled in detail, all witnesses that could have any bearing on the issues involved have been obtained if within our jurisdiction, and in short, every possible angle or sidelight available was submitted for our consideration.

"All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES E. LOVETT,
Foreman of the Grand Jury."
Dated at Duluth, Jan. 29, 1914.

THE DEADLY PARALLEL.

WHAT THE NEWS TRIBUNE CHARGED:	WHAT THE GRAND JURY FOUND:
Nov. 15.—Julius Janzig, tailor, 416 East Tenth street, arrested by Officer William F. Reidel for calling officer "cheap skate." Arrest unwarranted and demonstrated "bonehead" methods.	"In the matter of the arrest of Mr. Janzig, the grand jury finds, after a thorough investigation, that the officer was justified in making the arrest."
Nov. 15.—Patrick Murphy, "puny drunk," who was grossly abused by Sergeant Webber in the police station. Webber was charged with having used "brutal police methods."	"The prisoner suffered no bodily harm at the hands of the sergeant. The conduct of Sergeant Webber, was, however, in violation of the rules of the department and he was reprimanded by Chief Troyer and otherwise punished. It is the opinion of the grand jury that Sergeant Webber was sufficiently disciplined for the infraction of the rules."
Nov. 21.—Police severely criticized for blunder made in Elgin hotel raid. Chief Troyer referred to in the story as the "captain of framers." Two young couples were arrested and taken to the police station, where they exhibited their marriage licenses and were released.	"Had the young people availed themselves of the opportunity that was given them at the hotel of showing their marriage certificates the unfortunate affair would never have occurred."
Jan. 1.—Flagrant and open violation of the liquor laws charged in story concerning New Year's eve celebration at the local hotels.	"All of the evidence that could be secured was presented and we find as follows: That while liquor may have been sold, or offered for sale, after 11 p. m., there is no evidence to indicate that it was done by connivance with or the knowledge of the police department, as instructions had been given to all of the hotels that the laws would be enforced on New Year's eve the same as on all other nights."
Dec. 17, 1913.—Charles S. Mitchell of the News Tribune stated the following at a public mass meeting at the Armory: "Ladies and gentlemen, within the last week a reporter of the News Tribune had about a two hours' interview with the notorious Madame Gain. Madame Gain, who had a number of houses of ill-fame in Duluth (I don't know how many, and I don't know where they were, I confess). Madame Gain kept books. "Every day Madame Gain set down how much her places took in, how much came from beer, how much came from whisky and liquors, how much came from other sources. Every day Madame Gain set down what she paid out, and the pages of her books are redolent with the names of Duluth policemen. Not men who were on the force, but men who are on the force. "Madame Gain says: 'What is the use? Nobody will believe me.' But that is exactly the kind of testimony that has blown the lid off in St. Paul, and exactly the kind of testimony that has blown the lid off in New York city. That kind of testimony, ladies and gentlemen—there's lots of it—can blow the lid off in Duluth. "Commissioner Hicken wants to blow the lid off. That is worth the blowing. An employe of the News Tribune saw similar books kept by the notorious Nellie Blaine. They show the same state of affairs. Madame Gain says she has paid $40,000 for police protection in Duluth during the time she has lived here, and I will say that part of this was since Mr. Hicken came into business."	"Mary LeFlohic, commonly known as Madame Gain, appeared before us, with her so-called 'graft books,' which were supposed to contain entries showing $40,000 of graft paid to members of the police department. These books were six in number and contained dated entries showing expenditures and receipts in the prostitution business which she formerly conducted in this city. The total of these entries, the first of which is dated April 17, 1901, and the last, Oct. 11, 1903, is $150. Of this, $95 is purported to have gone to two policemen who were discharged and are now dead. The balance of $55, contained in five entries, concerned four members of the present force. "A further examination revealed the following facts: The first entry was dated April 17, 1901, and purported to record a payment of $25 to a certain policeman to be given to the chief of police. RECOMMENDATIONS OF JURY WILL BE ACTED ON tion has since become one of the most valuable and efficient officers of the Duluth police department.

"When a representative of the morning paper asked me if it would be my policy to give policemen the Keeley cure and return them to the force, I answered that whenever I could save a man like that I would be glad and willing to do it," said Commissioner Hicken. "Such instances are rather exceptional; they are not the rule. Drunkenness, or even drinking, will not be tolerated on the part of policemen on duty while I am at the head of the safety division. Over a month ago orders were issued that to take a drink of intoxicating liquor while on duty would be virtually equivalent to discharge. If policemen have business in any saloon they can attend to it, but they cannot drink in them while on duty and remain on the force under the present administration."

Minors In Pool Rooms.

The matter of keeping minors out of pool rooms and of otherwise regulating these has been before the commissioner for some time. He was planning to get accurate reports on all of them.

While dice shaking has been prevalent in the cigar stores no complaints have been made to the safety commissioner relative to the practice. Cigars or merchandise have been the only stakes, as far as can be learned there has been no dice shaking for money. This order will also eliminate the punch boards, etc., which are in evidence during the present season.

Commissioner Hicken said that regulating the sale and carrying of firearms is extremely difficult. He has had several conferences with Chief Troyer relative to the matter but thus far no solution has been reached. The only remedy suggested thus far has been the imposing of heavy penalties upon those convicted of this charge. Regulating the sale through hardware stores only partially cures. The men who are addicted to the habit carry only the cheapest kind of revolvers and many of them buy them in other cities before they arrive or through outside catalogue houses.

The Six Officers.

The six officers whose cases were touched on by the grand jury in a private conference with Commissioner Hicken were as follows:

Recommended for dismissal—Lieut. John Drennan and Patrolman W. F. Riedel.

Recommended for censure—Lieut. Herman Fritz and Detective Herman Toewe.

Recommended for close observation—Patrolmen Nelson Perry and A. V. Youngberg.

The jurors went over the cases of the six men and made the above recommendations to the commissioner. Lieut. Drennan had been accused of drinking and making remarks showing disloyalty to the administration and his superior officers.

Patrolman Riedel was accused of showing poor judgment as an officer and was not believed to be an efficient patrolman.

Lieut. Fritz was accused of having transacted some business for a former woman of the underworld. He was called on the carpet last summer, severely reprimanded by the chief and the commissioner, and promised to discontinue all relations with the woman, he ordered out the lifeboats.

Detective Toewe was accused of having borrowed $150 from a former resort keeper, giving security for the loan and later paying it back. This happened several years ago.

Patrolman Youngberg was accused of having publicly remarked, when he heard of the arrest of Fred Mooney for alleged conspiracy, that Mooney could not have been guilty as he was with him at the time. The officer did not stop to learn that conspiracy was the charge, and not actual dynamiting.

Patrolman Perry's case Chief Troyer refuses to discuss, as he says that the trial took place before Perry was appointed to the force, and that the men who appointed him knew all the circumstances. He has had a clean record since he has been on the force.

NOTE TELLS OF PLIGHT OF AMERICANS

is understood that the Federal authorities take them for leaders of a band of outlaws planning to overthrow Federal power in Lower California.

United States customs and immigration men declare the Americans undoubtedly are smugglers, and they hold to this view in spite of the letter received from Harwood.

Harwood in California.

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 30.—R. W. Harwood, mentioned in dispatches from San Diego as having been shot by Mexican Federals, formerly worked on newspapers in this city. His parents live in Sutter City, this state. The last heard of him by friends here was from Los Angeles, recently.

Villa Has Funds.

Juarez, Mex., Jan. 30.—Five million Mexican dollars so far received, is the amount of cash which the rebels under Gen. Francisco Villa possess to carry on their revolution. In addition, they claim possession of much personal property, stores, cattle and land certificated from rich families and valued at many millions.

The cash represents part of the wealth obtained within six months under the direction of Gen. Villa. It was accumulated from forced loans on banks, merchants, mines, the Terrazas and Creel families, and from taxation and import duties.

Rebel leaders said it would be impossible to estimate the actual wealth of the revolution, but if money was realized on all the property now in their possession, the proceeds would be sufficient to run the government in the rebel territory for several years, and the sources of revenue are increasing.

Gen. Villa underwent an operation yesterday which was necessitated by a bullet wound received months ago. His condition is not serious.

Villareal Governor.

Brownsville, Tex., Jan. 30.—Constitutionalist headquarters at Matamoras, Mex., announced the appointment of Gen. Antonio R. Villareal as governor of the State of Neuvo Leon.

Villareal has been a persistent opponent of the Diaz faction in Mexico. He was convicted in Arizona fifteen years ago of organizing a revolution in violation of the neutrality laws, and served a prison term of three years.

Move Toward Torreon.

Juarez, Mex., Jan. 30.—Movements of the rebels toward Torreon began on a large scale today. The bulk of their main army had encamped at Escalon, more than half way southward from Chihuahua along the Mexican National railroad, and more troops were joining them from the states of Durango and Coahuila. At the same time rebels were reported drawing in from the east ward with a view to attacking Saltillo and thus cutting off the Federal communication from Monterey.

Gen. Francisco Villa, as military commander-in-chief, directed the disposition of the troops, with the intention of personally directing the attack on Gen. Refugio Velasco's Federal garrison. It is likely that an attack on Saltillo will precede that on Torreon and that the general engagement at Torreon will follow after several days of vigorous skirmishing. At all events Villa proposes to put practically his entire army against the Federals.

Rebels the Stronger.

The Federal garrison is variously estimated at from 6,000 to 10,000, while the rebels' strength exceeds that number.

For a week trainloads of ammunition and provisions have been going southward from Chihuahua and been distributed at convenient points along the railroad.

Gen. Villa, at his headquarters in Juarez, today said he did not expect to go south for several days.

FORTY-NINE PERISH

from the icy water after their vessel had gone down.

Passengers All Below.

Both vessels had quieted down for the night, hours before the collision. Capt. Berry, on the bridge of the Nantucket, and the slowly pacing lookout had the deck to themselves as the vessel slowly skimmed through the fog and mist. Capt. Johnson kept the bridge of the Monroe. Thus, with sleep holding all but lookouts and officers and the dense fog enfolding the heaving sea, the two vessels neared each other in the murk.

As the Nantucket staggered back after the shock, Capt. Berry swung out his searchlight, and dimly the bulk of the settling Monroe loomed up through the drifting fog. Uncertain as to the fate of his own vessel, he ordered out the lifeboats.

Lost from view in the fog, they began the work of rescue. Guided only by the shrieks of the drowning, the boats picked up the survivors.

Used Searchlight.

When the searchlight's faint glow brought to view no more struggling figures, and when the shouts of the lifeboat crews brought no answering shouts from the sea the task was given up.

With her saloon crowded with drenched and suffering men and women, the Nantucket turned her gaping prow southward. Soon she fell in with the Dominion liner Hamilton, answering the cry of distress. Convoyed by the Hamilton, the Nantucket is making her way slowly to Norfolk. She will be met by the revenue cutter Onondaga, and was expected in port late today.

Capt. Johnson, aboard the Nantucket, began making up a list of the Monroe's rescued to be sent by wireless to Norfolk.

Suffered From Shock.

The shock—ten minutes from sleep to struggle in the cold sea—and the exposure, proved a grave trial to many of those saved. Wireless messages report a number in serious condition.

The Nantucket met with misfortune here about two years ago, when she burned and sank in the harbor near Locust Point and one of the crew lost his life.

The Monroe is the first steamer lost by the Old Dominion line during the half century it has been in operation. The steamer was valued at approximately $500,000, and her cargo as much more, making the total loss, exclusive of life, about $1,000,000.

Mrs. T. J. Woods, the only Norfolk passenger on board the Monroe, left passenger on board the Monroe, left on the ill-fated vessel for New York to reach the bedside of her dying husband. The fate of Mrs. Woods was not known today when a telegram from New York told of the death of her husband.

Rescued Passengers.

The list of the rescued passengers, transmitted by wireless from Capt. Johnson of the Monroe, aboard the Nantucket, follows:

Adolph Hamburg, New York.
Carl Nyland, New York.
A. F. McNair, Buffalo, N. Y.
H. Budwig, New York.
Alfred S. Tillett, Macarla Theatrical company.
Joseph R. Mann, Macarla Theatrical company.
J. N. Montgomery, Macarla Theatrical company.
R. S. VanWinkle, Nutley, N. J.
Thomas Welgand.
Henry Bossett.
J. J. Newby, sailor, U. S. N.
A. G. Brown, New York.
C. Rollins, Lawrenceville, Va.
Mrs. Rena Rollins, Lawrenceville, Va.
Louise Scott, New York.
Hilda Thackerny.
William James Moore, Macarla Theatrical company.
Mrs. T. J. Woods, Norfolk, Va.
Leona Ule.
John Williamson, New York.
Thomas R. Harrington, Bridgeport, Conn.
Mrs. Thomas R. Harrington, Bridgeport, Conn., (died after rescue).
Sallie McCombs, Macarla Theatrical company.
C. H. Davids, New York.
G. Williamson, New York.
Harry Ebber.
Adam McCoy.
C. S. Smith, New York.
James O'Connell, vice president of the American Federation of Labor and a member of the new Federal industrial relations commission.
R. Flanagan, Brooklyn.

Built in 1909.

The Monroe was built at Newport News, Va., in 1909. She was of 4,704 gross and 2,896 net tonnage. Her length was 345 feet, 9 inches; 46 feet, 2 inches beam and 28 feet, 6 inches deep. She was commanded by Capt. E. E. Johnson; Guy Heneley, first officer; J. E. Gateley, second officer, and John Perkins, chief engineer. Capt. Johnson is reported among the rescued.

The Monroe had a capacity of 243 first and second cabin passengers. She usually carried a crew of eighty-one men. At this time of year there is always a slump in the passenger traffic, accounting for the small number aboard at the time of the accident.

Clausen a Wisconsin Man.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 30.—W. C. Clausen, who perished in the steamer Monroe disaster off the Virginia coast early today, was connected with the Milwaukee Stamping company, and was on a business trip. He lived at 549 Sixty-fourth avenue, West Allis, a suburb of Milwaukee.

Mr. Clausen is survived by a widow and one child; also his parents, a brother and three married sisters.

Macarla Theatrical Company.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Macarla Theatrical company, six of whose members perished in the Monroe disaster, was sent out by William Woods, now in Boston as manager of the Boston theater. It opened the season recently at Newport News, Va. The play was a dramatization of a novel of the Southern Confederacy by Augusta Evans. The dramatist was Charles M. Jelleff of Baltimore, who was among those who met death.

The Miss Haviland, in the list of dead, was Miss Hilda Haviland, leading lady of the production, a New York girl. The Lewis in the death list as George Lewis of New York, stage manager. He also had a part in the play.

Marlo was a young actor. His home address is not known here.

Another actor who perished was B. B. Vernon, a New York man, formerly manager for a Western stock company. Miss Seville, also reported among the dead, is not known here.

At the offices of the Old Dominion line here it was explained that R. L. Etheridge, among the members of the crew saved, was the junior wireless operator. The chief wireless operator whose name was given here as F. J. Kuehn, was lost.

Full Life Saving Equipment.

Washington, Jan. 30.—"This is the first time in the history of the Old Dominion line that the life of one of its passengers has been lost at sea," said H. B. Walker of New York, president and general manager of the Old Dominion Steamship company, today. "The line was organized in 1867. Seven steamers have been in operation for several years.

"The Monroe was the staunchest of the lot. She was put into service in 1903. There was life saving equipment aboard for nearly double the souls she carried on this trip. Under the navigation laws we are required to have 100 per cent equipment at this season of the year. We had fully that. The Monroe carried boatage for over 300 and there was but 133 persons aboard her, all told."

Mr. Walker arrived here yesterday for a meeting at the Southern Railway company's office and will return to New York late today. He said Capt. Johnson of the lost steamer had been ordered to start for New York as soon as he landed from the rescuing ship.

Federal Inquiry Ordered.

A thorough investigation of the causes and circumstances resulting in the collision between the Merchants' and Miners' liner Nantucket and the Old Dominion liner Monroe, with its death list of forty-nine, was ordered today by the department of commerce.

Assistant Secretary Sweet instructed the steamboat inspection service to make an exhaustive inquiry.

Lieut. Curtis lost on the Monroe was appointed from Iowa and a son of Maj. E. H. Curtis, U. S. A. He had been at Fort Monroe taking examinations for promotion.

Lyons Was Albany Man.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 30.—Edward P. Lyons, lost with the steamer Monroe, was a native of Albany, N. Y., and formerly was a sporting writer in New York.

Nantucket Had Two Passengers.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30.—The Merchants' & Miners' line steamer Nantucket, which collided with the steamer Monroe early today off the Virginia coast, sailed from Boston at 5 p. m. Wednesday, for Newport News and Baltimore with two passengers and a crew of forty-five.

Charles H. Maynard, the Boston agent of the line, had received no word from the Nantucket, which was in command of Capt. Berry.

The Nantucket, which has been in the Baltimore-Boston service for a number of years, collided with a coal barge off Chatham on July 4, 1905. No one was injured but a big hole was torn in the side of the steamer.

need not to be detailed, the grand jury declined to consider the testimony of the witness as reliable."

"Other Evidence."

It is understood that the "other evidence" referred to in the report was given by a witness who testified that he saw Madam Gain making the false entries in her book and that he told her at the time that if she attempted to use such evidence against the police department that he would "peach" on her.

The grand jury found that two police officers had been guilty some years ago of borrowing money from the keeper of a house of ill fame. "The evidence showed that the loans were repaid" states the report. The jury, however, does not excuse such a practice, but condemns transactions of such a character.

In this regard, the jury stated: "No city official or police officer should put himself under the slightest obligation to any saloonkeeper or any person doing an illegitimate business. While there was no evidence produced tending to prove that these privileges were abused or favors received in return for these loans, such practices should be stopped."

With reference to the permission given to Joseph Trudell to conduct his saloon on Garfield avenue from Nov. 16 to Dec. 18, 1913, without a license pending a transfer which was to be made, the jury found that the action of Commissioner Hicken was sanctioned by the custom of past years. It also found that it was a violation of the law and subject to criticism.

With reference to present conditions the jury found that all resorts in the red light district have been broken up and that there is no prostitution worthy of mention in the rooming houses. It is found that some of the women are following the business as an individual proposition but there are no established houses of ill fame.

No Protected Gambling.

With regard to gambling the jury found that although gambling had taken place in the city for a number of years it had never been protected, and there is no public gambling at the present time. One witness, a professional gambler, testified that he had passed money to the police. This charge was sifted down and it was discovered that he had never received any protection and that he had been arrested more often than any other gambler in the city. The jury reported that it did not feel justified in giving his testimony any weight.

Commissioner W. A. Hicken and Chief of Police Troyer were given the following testimonials:

"In Chief Troyer we find an able, efficient and honest official, who has in the past proved his worth to the city of Duluth, and we believe he should be commended for the department which he has built up, and we consider him invaluable in the position he now occupies.

"We have called attention in the foregoing to the present condition in Duluth as to gambling and prostitution, and to this we would add that the liquor laws have been properly and impartially enforced, and that concerning these vices the situation in this city was never in better condition. We feel that this is due to the upright and fearless attitude maintained by Mr. Hicken, the commissioner of public safety, and we commend his work, and urge that he continue on the lines that he has laid out."

One Dissenting Vote.

The report which was submitted to the court was passed by one dissenting vote, the following grand jurors taking part in the investigation and in framing the report: Foreman, C. E. Lovett; Milton M. McCabe, John A. McDevitt, Samuel Mahan, Edward J. Hipple, William T. Moyle, Charles G. Irvine, James S. Matteson, Louis Goldberg, Fred Manske, Joseph Macy, A. H. Markkanen, John W. Marvin, Sivert Lekoe, Hiram G. Inman, R. S. Manley, Thomas Torburn and Alex Guthrie.

It has been intimated by the News Tribune that the report which was presented was identical with that which was expected. It is believed that it was for this reason that a representative of the morning paper made a hurried trip to St. Paul a few days ago with the view of inducing the chief executive of the state to interfere with the local authorities in conducting an investigation of police affairs.

The morning paper also claims that the investigation was not a thorough one. In the face of this are the following facts: Ninety witnesses including gamblers, prostitutes, police officers, News Tribune reporters, and persons from other walks of life were called. A. G. Lunt, the Burns detective, employed by the News Tribune, was allowed to go before the jury and Joan W. Nagle, managing editor of the morning paper and a corps of sleuth reporters were also witnesses at various times. Every charge of graft which the News Tribune has ever made was sifted to the bottom. The accusers were brought before the jury and asked to divulge their evidence. All witnesses who could be reached by a subpoena and who knew anything about the facts were brought before the inquisitorial body. The grand jury devoted fifteen days to the police probe and the cost to the county was more than $1,000.

Report in Full.

The part of the report dealing with the investigation follows in full:

"The county attorney requested us to make a thorough investigation of the police department. Mr. Greene had given a good deal of time and labor to securing the evidence to be submitted to the grand jury, and assisted in conducting the investigation in a most thorough, able and impartial manner. We entered upon the investigation with a determination to secure all of the evidence bearing upon matters submitted to us, and to report such findings as the evidence might warrant.

Webber-Murphy Matter.

"The first matter submitted to us relative to the police department was the claim that Sergeant Webber assaulted a drunken man by the name of Pat Murphy while he was a prisoner at the police station. We found the following to be the facts: While an officer was booking the prisoner, Sergeant Webber came in and demanded his name, and in order, as he claimed, to induce him to give his right name, he slapped him in the face and twisted his wrist. The prisoner suffered no bodily harm at the hands of the sergeant. The conduct of Sergeant Webber was, however, in violation of the rules of the department, and he was reprimanded by Chief Troyer and otherwise punished.

"It is the opinion of the grand jury that Sergeant Webber was sufficiently disciplined for the infraction of the rules.

Officer Brouillette.

"It was claimed that Officer Brouillette arrested a business man of Duluth at the Soo station on the charge that he left dangerous explosives in the station, and that he was a dangerous character.

"The grand jury are of the opinion that the officer showed a lack of tact and good sense. Officer Monahan, whose name was mentioned in connection with the matter, took no part in the affair except to temporarily hold the prisoner at the request of Officer Brouillette. The refusal of Officer Brouillette to allow the citizen to identify himself was in direct violation of the telephone orders of the officer in charge at the police headquarters.

"Officer Brouillette was later charged with having framed up a case against a man by the name of Janetto, who ran a saloon at Twelfth avenue west.

"The evidence submitted convinced the grand jury that the action of the department in discharging the officer was warranted, and that there is no good ground for criticism.

The McCaskill Matter.

"Representations were made that Police Officers Callahan and Englert were guilty of misconduct in connection with some trouble at the house of Mrs. McCaskill, 17 Seventh avenue west.

"The evidence conclusively established the fact that the officers were guilty of no misconduct in connection with this matter, and that they simply discharged their duties.

The Elgin House Raid.

"The complaint in this case was that four policemen made a raid on the Elgin house on the night of Nov. 21, 1913, and arrested two young married couples and took them to the police station. This case was very thoroughly investigated, and all of the evidence it was possible to get was submitted to us.

"The grand jury found that a bona fide call was sent in to headquarters by the janitor at the Bell telephone office that there was trouble at the Elgin hotel. The department responded in the usual manner and found two young couples in the rooms from which the noise and disturbance seemed to come. They were taken to headquarters, where it was found that they were married.

"Had the young people availed themselves of the opportunity that was given them at the hotel to show their marriage certificates which they had in their possession, the unfortunate affair would not have occurred.

The Janzig Matter.

"In the matter of the arrest of Mr. Janzig the grand jury find, after a thorough investigation of the matter, that the officer was justified in making the arrest.

New Year's Celebration.

"It was alleged that violations of the liquor laws were committed by the proprietors of the St. Louis and Holland hotels. All of the evidence that could be secured was presented and we find as follows: that while liquor may have been sold, or offered for sale after 11 p. m., there is no evidence to indicate that it was done by connivance with or the knowledge of the police department, as instructions had been given to all of the hotels that the laws would be enforced on New Year's eve the same as on all other nights.

The Trudell Matter.

"Complaint was made that Joseph Trudell ran a saloon on Garfield avenue without a license, between the dates of Nov. 16 and Dec. 18, 1913. After investigating the matter the grand jury finds that this procedure, while sanctioned by the custom of past years and administrations, is a violation of the law, and as such is at least subject to severe criticism.

It is believed, however, that the public good will be fully served by making this condemnation of past offenses and demanding a strict enforcement of the liquor laws in the future.

Reinstating Officers.

"With reference to the policy of the head of the police department in reinstating officers who have been addicted to drunkenness, it is our opinion that while in exceptional cases such reinstatement may be justified, there is no doubt as to the impropriety of the general application of such a principle, especially in view of the effect that such a policy has, or may have, upon the morale of the department.

"The subjects which required the most time for thorough investigation were those relating to gambling and to alleged police graft in connection with houses of prostitution.

Gambling.

"The grand jury made a most thorough investigation of gambling houses. The county attorney called before us every professional gambler he could reach, and all other witnesses he thought might give evidence in the matter. Without question, there have been, from time to time, places where gambling has been systematically carried on during the last twelve years or more. Our investigations were made as far back as 1900. In all the testimony concerning gambling the evidence was unanimous with the exception of that of one witness, that although gambling has taken place in this city it has never been protected, and that no money or other consideration has been passed to the police department for that purpose. The only exception to this testimony as above noted, was the evidence of one witness, a professional gambler, who alleged that he had paid for protection over a long period of years ending in 1907. In view of the fact that it further appeared that this witness never received any protection, but, on the contrary, was arrested more often than any other gambler in the city, and in view of the fact that after he had mentioned parties to corroborate him, these parties, upon being called, flatly contradicted him, and in view of the incredible nature of the details of his story and his general reputation, this jury did not feel that it was justified in giving his testimony any credence.

"We find that gambling places had been established in various parts of the city during the last twelve years, but that they had been raided by the police from time to time, and broken up, only to be re-established in some other locality, to be in turn broken up.

Present Conditions.

"Concerning the gambling situation as it exists in Duluth under the present administration the unanimous testimony of the witnesses shows that while persons so inclined do, from time to time, gather together in rooms, hotels, clubs and private houses and engage in games of chance, there are no rooms or houses devoted to that purpose, and no gambling conducted as a business.

Houses of Prostitution.

"Inquiry was made into the question of prostitution as formerly carried on in this city, with particular reference to whether or not money was paid to any of the police. All of the persons formerly in that business who could be reached by subpoena or induced to attend, testified. With the exception of Madame Gain, they all stated that no graft or other money was ever paid, and that they had never heard any one claim to have made such payments.

"Mary Le Flohic, commonly known as Madame Gain, appeared before us, with her so-called 'graft books,' which were supposed to contain entries showing $40,000 of graft paid to members of the police department. These books were six in number and contained dated entries showing expenditures and receipts in the prostitution business which she formerly conducted in this city. These books covered intermittently the years from 1901 to 1913, inclusive. The entries were supposed to have been made in the books on the dates which they bore. A thorough examination of the books show entries under dates in 1901-2-3 purporting to be records of payments of money to policemen. The total of these entries, the first of which is dated April 17, 1901, and the last, Oct. 11, 1903, is $150. Of this, $95 is purported to have gone to two policemen who were discharged and are now dead. The balance of $55, contained in five entries, concerned four members of the present force.

"A further examination revealed the following facts: The first entry was dated April 17, 1901, and purported to record a payment of $25 to a certain policeman to be given to the chief of police. The witness testified that the chief referred to was Mr. Troyer.

"The facts are that Mr. Troyer did not become chief of police until Jan. 1, 1902, and the policeman whose name appears in the book was not on the police force until April, 1902, about a year later than the day on which the entry was supposed to have been made in the book. Such an entry on the day mentioned was, therefore, a record of an impossible transaction. Another of these entries was plainly written in the book very recently, the ink being the same as that used in the transactions recorded in November and December, 1913."

careful inspection to the end that they may be cleared of young men. In one of these pool rooms, a game of rummy has been conducted. The commissioner has promised to have this stopped at once.

"Also, we strongly recommend that the laws be immediately, strictly and firmly enforced prohibiting dice and any other games of chance in cigar stores, candy stores and any or all other public places.

"Realizing the temporary authority of our body and the inadequate attention so frequently given to the recommendations of grand juries, we hereby insistently urge upon all public officials to whom our recommendations apply that they submit to the next grand jury a written report stating definitely the action taken on our recommendations, accompanied by a certificate from proper authorities that said recommendations have received proper attention.

"In the matter of the police investigation, this grand jury in closing its labors, cannot refrain from expressing its extreme appreciation of the able and efficient manner in which Warren E. Greene, county attorney, has placed the services of himself and his organization at its disposal—every matter coming before us has been carefully handled in detail, all witnesses that could have any bearing on the issues involved have been obtained if within our jurisdiction, and in short, every possible angle or sidelight available was submitted for our consideration.

"All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES E. LOVETT,
Foreman of the Grand Jury."
Dated at Duluth, Jan. 29, 1914.

THE DEADLY PARALLEL.

WHAT THE NEWS TRIBUNE CHARGED:	WHAT THE GRAND JURY FOUND:
Nov. 15.—Julius Janzig, tailor, 416 East Tenth street, arrested by Officer William F. Reidel for calling officer "cheap skate." Arrest unwarranted and demonstrated "bonehead" methods.	"In the matter of the arrest of Mr. Janzig, the grand jury finds, after a thorough investigation, that the officer was justified in making the arrest."
Nov. 15.—Patrick Murphy, "puny drunk," who was grossly abused by Sergeant Webber in the police station. Webber was charged with having used "brutal police methods."	"The prisoner suffered no bodily harm at the hands of the sergeant. The conduct of Sergeant Webber, was, however, in violation of the rules of the department and he was reprimanded by Chief Troyer and otherwise punished. It is the opinion of the grand jury that Sergeant Webber was sufficiently disciplined for the infraction of the rules."
Nov. 21.—Police severely criticized for blunder made in Elgin hotel raid. Chief Troyer referred to in the story as the "captain of framers." Two young couples were arrested and taken to the police station, where they exhibited their marriage licenses and were released.	"Had the young people availed themselves of the opportunity that was given them at the hotel of showing their marriage certificates the unfortunate affair would never have occurred."
Jan. 1.—Flagrant and open violation of the liquor laws charged in story concerning New Year's eve celebration at the local hotels.	"All of the evidence that could be secured was presented and we find as follows: That while liquor may have been sold, or offered for sale, after 11 p. m., there is no evidence to indicate that it was done by connivance with or the knowledge of the police department, as instructions had been given to all of the hotels that the laws would be enforced on New Year's eve the same as on all other nights."
Dec. 17, 1913.—Charles S. Mitchell of the News Tribune stated the following at a public mass meeting at the Armory: "Ladies and gentlemen, within the last week a reporter of the News Tribune had about two hours' interview with the notorious Madame Gain. Madame Gain, who had a number of houses of ill-fame in Duluth (I don't know how many, and I don't know where they were, I confess). Madame Gain kept books. "Every day Madame Gain set down how much her places took in, how much came from beer, how much came from whisky and liquors, how much came from other sources. Every day Madame Gain set down what she paid out, and the pages of her books are filled with the names of Duluth policemen. Not men who were on the force, but men who are on the force. "Madame Gain says: 'What is the use? Nobody will believe me.' But that is exactly the kind of testimony that has blown the lid off in St. Paul, and exactly the kind of testimony that has blown the lid off in New York city. That kind of testimony, ladies and gentlemen—there's lots of it—can blow the lid off in Duluth. "Commissioner Hicken wants to blow the lid off. That is worth the blowing. An employe of the News Tribune saw similar books kept by the notorious Nellie Blaine. They show the same state of affairs. Madame Gain says she has paid $40,000 for police protection in Duluth during the time she has lived here, and I will say that part of this was since Mr. Hicken came into business."	"Mary LeFlohic, commonly known as Madame Gain, appeared before us, with her so-called 'graft books,' which were supposed to contain entries showing $40,000 of graft paid to members of the police department. These books were six in number and contained dated entries showing expenditures and receipts in the prostitution business which she formerly conducted in this city. These books covered intermittently the years from 1901 to 1913, inclusive. The entries were supposed to have been made in the books on the dates which they bore. The total of these entries, the first of which is dated April 17, 1901, and the last, Oct. 11, 1903, is $150. Of this, $95 is purported to have gone to two policemen who were discharged and are now dead. The balance of $55, contained in five entries, concerned four members of the present force. "A further examination revealed the following facts: The first entry was dated April 17, 1901, and purported to record a payment of $25 to a certain policeman to be given to the chief of police. Such an entry on the day mentioned was, therefore, a record of an impossible transaction. Another of these entries was plainly written in the book very recently, the ink being the same as that used in the transactions recorded in November and December, 1913."

tion has since become one of the most valuable and efficient officers of the Duluth police department.

"When a representative of the morning paper asked me if it would be my policy to give policemen the Keeley cure and return them to the force, I answered that whenever I could save a man like that I would be glad and willing to do it," said Commissioner Hicken. "Such instances are rather exceptional; they are not the rule. Drunkenness, or even drinking, will not be tolerated on the part of policemen on duty while I am at the head of the safety division. Over a month ago orders were issued that to take a drink of intoxicating liquor while on duty would be virtually equivalent to discharge. If policemen have business in any saloon they can attend to it, but they cannot drink in them while on duty and remain on the force under the present administration."

Minors In Pool Rooms.

The matter of keeping minors out of pool rooms and of otherwise regulating them has been before the commissioner for some time. He was planning to get accurate reports on all of them.

While dice shaking has been prevalent in the cigar stores no complaints have been made to the safety commissioner relative to the practice. Cigars or merchandise have been the only stakes. As far as can be learned there has been no dice shaking for money. This order will also eliminate the punch boards, etc., which are in evidence during the holiday season.

Commissioner Hicken said that regulating the sale and carrying of firearms is extremely difficult. He has had several conferences with Chief Troyer relative to this matter but thus far no solution has been reached. The only remedy suggested thus far has been the imposing of heavy penalties upon those convicted of this charge. Regulating the sale through hardware stores only partially cures. The men who are addicted to the habit carry only the cheapest kind of revolvers and many of them buy them in other cities before they arrive or through outside catalogue houses.

The Six Officers.

The six officers whose cases were touched on by the grand jury in a private conference with Commissioner Hicken were as follows:

Recommended for dismissal—Lieut. John Drennan and Patrolman W. F. Riedel.

Recommended for censure—Lieut. Herman Fritz and Detective Herman Toewe.

Recommended for close observation—Patrolmen Nelson Perry and A. V. Youngberg.

The jurors went over the cases of the six men and made the above recommendations to the commissioner. Lieut. Drennan had been accused of drinking and making remarks showing disloyalty to the administration and his superior officers.

Patrolman Riedel was accused of showing poor judgment as an officer and was not believed to be an efficient patrolman.

Lieut. Fritz was accused of having transacted some business for a former woman of the underworld. He was called on the carpet last summer, severely reprimanded by the chief and the commissioner, and promised to discontinue all relations with the woman.

Detective Toewe was accused of having borrowed $150 from a former resort keeper, giving security for the loan and later paying it back. This happened several years ago.

Patrolman Youngberg was accused of having publicly remarked, when he heard of the arrest of Fred Mooney for alleged conspiracy, that Mooney could not have been guilty as he was with him at the time. The officer did not state how he learn that conspiracy was the charge, and not actual dynamiting.

Patrolman Perry's case Chief Troyer refuses to discuss. He says that the offense took place before Perry was appointed to the force, and that the men who appointed him knew all the circumstances. He has had a clean record since he has been on the force.

NOTE TELLS OF PLIGHT OF AMERICANS

is understood that the Federal authorities take them for leaders of a band of outlaws planning to overthrow Federal power in Lower California.

United States customs and immigration men declare the Americans undoubtedly are smugglers, and they hold to this view in spite of the letter received from Harwood.

Harwood in California.

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 30.—R. W. Harwood, mentioned in dispatches from San Diego as having been shot by Mexican Federals, formerly worked on newspapers in this city. His parents live in Sutter City, this state. The last heard of him by friends here was from Los Angeles, recently.

Villa Has Funds.

Juarez, Mex., Jan. 30.—Five million Mexican dollars so far received, is the amount of cash which the rebels under Gen. Francisco Villa possess to carry on their revolution. In addition, they claim possession of much personal property, stores, cattle and land certificated from rich families and valued at many millions.

The cash represents part of the wealth obtained within six months under the direction of Gen. Villa. It was accumulated from forced loans on banks, merchants, mines, the Terrazas and Creel families, and from taxation and import duties.

Rebel leaders said it would be impossible to estimate the actual wealth of the revolution, but if money was realized on all the property now in their possession, the proceeds would be sufficient to run the government in the rebel territory for several years, and the sources of revenue are increasing.

Gen. Villa underwent an operation yesterday which was necessitated by a bullet wound received months ago. His condition is not serious.

Villareal Governor.

Brownsville, Tex., Jan. 30.—Constitutionalist headquarters at Matamoras, Mex., announced the appointment of Gen. Antonio R. Villareal as governor of the State of Neuvo Leon.

Villareal has been a persistent opponent of the Diaz faction in Mexico. He was convicted in Arizona fifteen years ago of organizing a revolution in violation of the neutrality laws, and served a prison term of three years.

Move Toward Torreon.

Juarez, Mex., Jan. 30.—Movements of the rebels toward Torreon began on a large scale today. The bulk of their main army had encamped at Escalon, more than half way southward from Chihuahua along the Mexican National railroad, and more troops were joining them from the states of Durango and Coahuila. At the same time rebels were reported drawing in from the eastward with a view to attacking Saltillo and thus cutting off the Federal communication from Monterey.

Gen. Francisco Villa, as military commander-in-chief, directed the disposition of the troops, with the intention of personally directing the attack on Gen. Refugio Velasco's Federal garrison. It is likely that an attack on Saltillo will precede that on Torreon and that the general engagement at Torreon will follow after several days of vigorous skirmishing. At all events, Villa proposes to pit practically his entire army against the Federals.

Rebels the Stronger.

The Federal garrison is variously estimated at from 6,000 to 10,000, while the rebels' strength exceeds that number.

For a week trainloads of ammunition and provisions have been going southward from Chihuahua and been distributed at convenient points along the railroad.

Gen. Villa, at his headquarters in Juarez, today said he did not expect to go south for several days.

FORTY-NINE PERISH

from the icy water after their vessel had gone down.

Passengers All Below.

Both vessels had quieted down for the night, hours before the collision. Capt. Berry, on the bridge of the Nantucket, and the slowly pacing lookout on the deck to themselves as the vessel slowly skimmed through the oily calm. Capt. Johnson kept fog and mist. watch from the bridge of the Monroe. Thus, with all but lookouts and officers and the dense fog enfolding the heaving sea, the two vessels neared each other in the murk.

Suddenly the Nantucket staggered back after the shock, Capt. Berry swung out his searchlight, and dimly the bulk of the settling Monroe loomed up through the drifting fog. Uncertain as to the fate of his own vessel, he ordered out the lifeboats.

Lost from view in the fog, they began the work of rescue. Guided only by the shrieks of the drowning, the boats picked up the survivors.

Used Searchlight.

When the searchlight's faint glow brought to view no more struggling figures, and when the shouts of the lifeboat crews brought no answering shouts from the sea, the task was given up.

With her saloon crowded with drenched and suffering men and women, the Nantucket turned her gaping prow southward. Soon she fell in with the Dominion liner Hamilton, answering the cry of distress. Convoyed by the Hamilton, the Nantucket is making her way slowly to Norfolk. She will be met by the revenue cutter Onondaga, and was expected in port late today.

Capt. Johnson, aboard the Nantucket, began making up a list of the Monroe's rescued to be sent by wireless to Norfolk.

Suffered From Shock.

The shock—ten minutes from sleep to struggle in the cold sea—and the exposure, proved a grave trial to many of those saved. Wireless messages report a number in serious condition.

The Nantucket met with misfortune here about two years ago, when she burned and sank in the harbor near Locust Point and one of the crew lost his life.

The Monroe is the first steamer lost by the Old Dominion line during the half century it has been in operation. The steamer was valued at approximately $500,000, and her cargo as much more, making the total loss, exclusive of life, about $1,000 000.

Mrs. T. J. Woods, the only Norfolk passenger on board the Monroe, left on the ill-fated vessel for New York to reach the bedside of her dying husband. The fate of Mrs. Woods was not known today when a telegram from New York told of the death of her husband.

Rescued Passengers.

The list of the rescued passengers, transmitted by wireless from Capt. Johnson of the Monroe, aboard the Nantucket, follows:

Adolph Hamburg, New York.
Carl Nyland, New York.
A. F. McNair, Buffalo, N. Y.
H. Budwig, New York.
Alfred S. Tillett, Macaria Theatrical company.
Joseph R. Mann, Macaria Theatrical company.
J. N. Montgomery, Macaria Theatrical company.
R. S. VanWinkle, Nutley, N. J.
Thomas Weigand.
Henry Bossett.

Built in 1909.

The Monroe was built at Newport News, Va., in 1909. She was of 4,704 gross and 2,896 net tonnage. Her length was 345 feet, 9 inches; 46 feet, 2 inches beam and 25 feet, 4 inches deep. She was commanded by Capt. E. E. Johnson; Guy Heneley, first officer; J. E. Gateley, second officer, and John Perkins, chief engineer. Capt. Johnson is reported among the rescued.

The Monroe had a capacity of 243 first and second cabin passengers. She usually carried a crew of eighty-one men. At this time of year there is always a slump in the passenger traffic, accounting for the small number aboard at the time of the accident.

Clausen a Wisconsin Man.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 30.—W. C. Clausen, who perished in the steamer Monroe disaster off the Virginia coast early today, was connected with the Milwaukee Stamping company, and was on a business trip. He lived at 549 Sixty-fourth avenue, West Allis, a suburb of Milwaukee.

Mr. Clausen is survived by a widow and one child; also his parents, a brother and three married sisters.

Macaria Theatrical Company.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Macaria Theatrical company, six of whose members perished in the Monroe disaster, was sent out by William Woods, now in Boston as manager of the Bostock theater. It opened the season recently at Newport News, Va. The play was a dramatization of a novel of the Southern Confederacy by Augusta Evans. The dramatist was Charles M. Jelleff of Baltimore, who was among those who met death.

The Miss Haviland, in the list of dead, was Miss Hilda Haviland, leading lady of the production, a New York girl. The Miss in the death list as girl. The Lewis of New York, stage manager. He also had a part in the play.

Marlo was a young actor. His home address is not known here.

Another actor who perished was B. B. Vernon, a New York man, formerly manager for a Western stock company. Miss Seville, also reported among the dead, is not known here.

At the offices of the Old Dominion line here it was explained that R. L. Ethridge, among the members of the crew saved, was the junior wireless operator. The chief wireless operator whose name was given here as F. J. Kuehn, was lost.

Full Life Saving Equipment.

Washington, Jan. 30.—"This is the first time in the history of the Old Dominion line that the life of one of its passengers has been lost at sea," said H. B. Walker of New York, president and general manager of the Old Dominion Steamship company, today. "The line was organized in 1867. Seven steamers have been in operation for several years.

"The Monroe was the staunchest of the lot. She was put into service in 1903. There was life saving equipment aboard for nearly double the souls she carried on this trip. Under the navigation laws we are required to have 100 per cent equipment at this season of the year. We had fully that. The Monroe carried boatage for over 300 and there was but 133 persons aboard her, all told."

Mr. Walker arrived here yesterday for a meeting at the Southern Railway company's office and will return to New York late today. He said Capt. Johnson of the lost steamer had been ordered to start for New York as soon as he landed from the rescuing ship.

Federal Inquiry Ordered.

A thorough investigation of the causes and circumstances resulting in the collision between the Merchants' and Miners' liner Nantucket and the Old Dominion liner Monroe, with its death list of forty-nine, was ordered today by the department of commerce.

Assistant Secretary Sweet instructed the steamboat inspection service to make an exhaustive inquiry.

Lieut. Curtis lost on the Monroe was appointed from Iowa and a son of Maj. E. H. Curtis, U. S. A. He had been at Fort Monroe taking examinations for promotion.

Lyons Was Albany Man.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 30.—Edward P. Lyons, lost with the steamer Monroe, was a native of Albany, N. Y., and formerly was a sporting writer in New York.

Nantucket Had Two Passengers.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30.—The Merchants' & Miners' line steamer Nantucket, which collided with the steamer Monroe early today off the Virginia coast, sailed from Boston at 5 p. m. Wednesday, for Newport News and Baltimore with two passengers and a crew of forty-five.

Charles H. Maynard, the Boston agent of the line, had received no word from the Nantucket, which was in command of Capt. Berry.

The Nantucket, which has been in the Baltimore-Boston service for a number of years, collided with a coal barge off Chatham on July 4, 1905. No one was injured but a big hole was torn in the side of the steamer.

The Herald Sporting Gossip Is Reliable

LIVE SPORTING GOSSIP

By BRUCE

NOW while the majority of the sporting critics throughout the country are branding Willie Ritchie with acrimonious words and high power adjectives, it is interesting to note the remarks of Leach Cross, the educated dentist. Pressing a button we bid the entry of Mons. Cross.

Speak up Mr. Cross.

"Well, I will say this—I think Willie Ritchie the greatest lightweight champion we have had since the days of Gans. The only thing he lacks is ring experience. Give him the generalship of Tommy Murphy and I actually believe he would be better than Gans.

"Willie Ritchie could have whipped Battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast the best day either of them ever saw. Ritchie is all class. Wolgast was a slugger. Nelson could not whip any man who did not first break his hands upon him."

Some doughty gink, no doubt a politician or a matchmaker for some fight club, expressed the belief that it was the difference of opinions that was mainly responsible for the really exciting things of this world. Perhaps he was right.

A vast majority are of full fledged and golden brown opinion that Ritchie won from Wolgast when the Cadillac youth was far from right. And then comes the opinion of one of the shrewdest fighters of the day.

Let it go for Sweency. It may prove to be a great mystery, for Ritchie doesn't fight often enough to permit the follower of fistania to form an opinion of the merits of the boy who carts around the championship crown.

Here Is Tommy Burns.

TOMMY BURNS has just put an awful one over on the fight fans of California. Oh it was a peach! Another exclamation—Oh gee!

Since the defeat of Arthur Pelkey time has hung heavy on the hands of Thomas Burns it would seem. Mischief ever occurs to one when little hands and larger hands are idle. We grabbed that back in the Sunday school days. This should be a tremendous warning to plumbers and others who detest work.

Burns fought and knocked out a man named Clarence Brant. Good for Tommy, you say—wait a minute.

It so transpired as it does in fairy tales and other light forms of literature, that Thomas played the part of a villain.

Brant—and they even say—yes, yes—go on—well they even say—yes, yes—well they even say that Brant's first name is Clarence. He was the man knocked out by the former newspaper champion of the world. But it now turns out that Brant was a clerk in the store of Burns back Calgary way, and that he—heavens!—even sold neckties.

Thus do we see the ancient and noble profession of the white hopes sullied.

We wonder if Brant and this man Marks, or no. Burns, are acquainted with each other.

Some Pessimistic Chatter.

TURNING the more or less mildewed pages of some of the dogeared exchanges that one reads religiously in regard to sport matters and then turns over to others, we come in contact with the statement that the days of the Amateur Athletic union of the United States are numbered.

One of the reasons for this pessimistic discourse, we learn by reading further, is that recently the officials of the A. A. U. permitted professional and amateur boxers to mix freely on the same program.

The writer who declares the approaching end of the A. A. U. holds that the slackening of the lines of differentiation will result in the creeping in of the polluted kind of sports.

Ain't it terrible.

Outside of That, Yes.

THE other day the esteemed morning contemporary stated that King Cole, one of the leading catchers of the National league in 1910 and who enjoyed a great season with Milwaukee last season, had signed with the Federals.

Aside from the fact that King Cole is a pitcher and not a catcher, and aside from the fact that he never played with Milwaukee in his life, the statement of the morning paper came mighty near being authentic.

Thanks. You are vociferously welcome.

The Secret Is Out.

ON flaring headlines one of the newspapers of the beautiful little city of Detroit declares that the secret of the success of the Federal league is ready money.

One of the greatest successes of the world is ready money. Merchants, coal men, up-to-date tailors and flat owners will readily agree with the statement. If we are willing to admit that the Federal league has enjoyed any success to date, then most of us will also be willing to admit that the success has been the fruition of one of the things of this life that is hunted in and out of season—to wit, ready money.

Speaking further along the line of ready money, permit us to state that the success of the Federal league in the negotiation for players has been such that several of the magnates of the other leagues are seeking the shelter of one of the institutions organized baseball has always steered shy of in the past—the courts.

If the magnates of the two leagues go to war to determine the rightful ownership of players, some rulings may be handed down that will act as an ugly precedent in the dog days of the future.

This May Occur Again.

PLAYER LEWIS of the American association—a player, by the way, who was handed over to one of the clubs of the Northern league, and who refused to report—is out in the cold. He signed with the Pittsburg Federal league team and failed to make good. Now the player is out of a job, out some of the money the club agreed to pay him—and he has no place to go, nor has he any higher court of baseball to appeal his case to.

Other of the players signed with the various Federal league teams may find themselves up against the same thing. There will be no minor league to go to, no national commission to appeal to in the straightening out of difficulties.

Most of the effulgent stars of the baseball firmament are sufficiently imbued with gray matter to ask for and secure three-year contracts. Some of those leaping the fences of the protected baseball pasture, may find in the future that it will be back to the semi-pros for them.

TWO EX-CHAMPIONS ON THE WAY BACK

Bob Fitzsimmons Shows Much Old-Time Speed in Bout and Ad Wolgast Knocks Out Unholz in Two Rounds.

Williamsport, Pa., Jan. 30.—Robert Fitzsimmons, former heavyweight champion of the world, displayed much of his old-time speed and ring generalship here last night in a six-round bout with "Knockout" Sweeney of Cleveland. It was his first contest since he retired from the ring several years ago and pugilistic experts who witnessed the battle, declared he had "come back."

Fitzsimmons' blows were powerful and, while Sweeney remained in the ring for the limit, he was knocked down and took the count of nine repeatedly.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Jan. 30.—Ralph Unholz was knocked out last night by Ad Wolgast, former leightweight champion, in the second round of a scheduled ten-round bout after a game but hopeless fight. Unholz took the count of nine four times in the first round and once in the second and was reeling helplessly around the ring when, after one minute and thirty-five seconds of fighting in the second round, his seconds tossed a towel into the ring. Wolgast apparently had the Boer at his mercy.

St. Louis, Jan. 30.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of England, defeated Leo Kelly of St. Louis after eight rounds of snappy going here last night.

WINS THREE OF FOUR.

McLean, Chicago Skater, Takes Lion's Share at Saranac Lake.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Jan. 30.—Robert McLean of Chicago won three of the four senior events in the international outdoor skating races here yesterday. Ed Horton of Saranac Lake took the remaining senior, the 220-yard hurdles.

In the final heat of the 440-yard contest W. H. Jackson of Montreal sustained a bad cut above the knee and had to withdraw from the other races.

Summary: 44 yards, senior—Won by McLean; Horton, second; Lot Roe, Toronto, third. Time, 51 seconds.

One mile, senior—Won by McLean; Roe, second; A. J. Osiely, Cleveland, third. Time, 4:03.

Two miles, senior—Won by McLean; Roe, second; Jack Walter, Saranac Lake, third. Time, 9:02.

220-yard hurdle—Won by Horton, Fred Robson, Toronto, second; H. Stephanson, third. Time, 21 seconds.

Boys of 18 and under, one mile—Won by Louis Fortune, Saranac Lake; G. Paso, Saranac Lake, second; S. St. Pierre, Montreal, third. Time, 4:19 3-5.

THEY DEMAND RECOGNITION

Federal League Will Fight Organized Baseball Until Taken in.

Secretary Expects Recognition at End of Present Season.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—War between the Federal league and organized baseball will continue until the latter receives the new circuit into its fold, according to Secretary Lloyd Rickart of the Federals. Rickart said that the Federals would continue next year their raids on the players now with organized baseball whose contracts expired at the end of this season.

There are enough of these to cripple the big leagues more seriously than the present raid will do, if they jump, said the secretary, while the Federal league believes itself safe from counter raids because its recently acquired stars are under contracts, mainly for three years. The situation at the end of the season will be such as to force recognition from the American and National leagues, and as a third big league, the Federals will operate on equal terms with the others in 1915, its promoters believe.

Manager Evers of the Chicago Nationals, who reported at headquarters yesterday after a tour of the South, announced that a three-game series between the Cubs and the St. Louis Americans would take place at Tampa on March 4, 5 and 6, with a return engagement at St. Petersburg, Fla., later.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 30.—Howard Doyle, scout of the Cleveland Americans, arrived here yesterday to confer with First Baseman "Doc." Johnston in an effort to secure his signature to a Cleveland contract and prevent his going to the Federal league.

Fresno, Cal., Jan. 30.—Pitcher Leonard of the Boston Americans has telegraphed Manager Carrigan that terms are satisfactory and that he will sign his 1914 contract as soon as it arrives. Leonard turned down an offer from the Federal league. He has been holding out for an increase over his 1913 salary.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30. — Hugh Bedient, a Red Sox pitcher of the past two seasons, who was said to have been approached by Federal league agents, sent his signed contract to the Boston American club yesterday.

WITH THE MATMEN

At last there has come an utterance from the prince of silence, Old Mike Yokel.

In a letter to the sporting editor, the world's champion middleweight declares there is a possibility that he will give Walno Ketonen a contest—and there is also a chance that the match will be wrestled in this city.

On Feb. 1 Mike clashes with Harbeston at Ogden. Some time after that he may come East and it is then that he may consent to tangle with little Waino, the boy who is at the present time causing the eyes of the local followers of wrestling to stick out.

Speaking of Ketonen, officials of the Greater Duluth Athletic club have arranged for a public exhibition during the coming week, when all those interested in seeing one of the greatest wrestlers in all the world in his training stunt, will have the opportunity.

Karl Lehto reached Duluth yesterday and remained over between trains. Karl is hankering after a contest with Fred Beell. This match has been agitated among the followers of Lehto for some three years. It has been pointed out that Lehto has never as yet met a man of his weight. He has always been asked to give away pounds of weight. Beel and Lehto are somewhat similar in build and are almost of the same weight. Lehto claims that he is a much greater wrestler than ever before and is ready and willing to meet any man of his weight in the world.

Ernst Katyre, the Chicago middleweight champion, is another of the various middleweights of the country who are on the trial of Mike Yokel. The Chicago German, the Turner champion of the Windy City, is complaining because he is not being given an opportunity. It is claimed by close followers of wrestling that he is unable to make the 158 ringside limit.

Casting Defender's Keel.

Bath, Me., Jan. 30.—The lead bulb for the keel of the cup defender Defiance was begun yesterday. It will be several days before the bulbs will be sufficiently cool to smooth it off. It was cast under the direction of George Owen, designer of the boat.

NEW COURSE IS PROMISED FOR NORTHLAND CLUB

President T. F. Cole Has Purchased Strip of Land That Will Be Used in Laying Out Splendid New Golf Links Over Crest of Hill.

It is now stated by several prominent members of the Northland Country club that it is only a question of time until the club will have an entirely new golf course.

This action is made possible and altogether probable by the purchase by President T. F. Cole of the club of a tract of 160 acres back over the hill from the present course. As the story goes, the present course will be eventually cut up by streets and will be platted for city lots.

Tom Bandalin, one of the expert golf course constructors of the country, was requested to go thoroughly over the land in the vicinity of the present course and select ground that would be in his opinion ideally fitted for a new course. This was done and the tract of land that Mr. Bandalin pronounced would make a beautiful course was purchased.

Club House to Remain.

There will be no changes in the clubhouse in making the shift to the new links—when the time comes for the change. The takeoff will be near the clubhouse and play will then move up over the ground selected for the new links.

Golf players declare that the present course can never be made into really good links, owing both to the topography of the land and the nature of the soil, there being not sufficient sand in the soil mixture.

Mr. Bandalin went over the land surrounding the present club links and chose, after careful deliberation, the land that was later purchased by President Cole. The well known Chicago golf course constructer is authority for the statement that in the matter of topography, soil mixture and natural advantages, the strip of land now the property of Mr. Cole will make one of the best golf courses in the entire West, and Mr. Bandalin has built many of the Western golf links and has inspected all of the others.

The construction of the new links will mean that the Northland Country club will rank with the leading clubs of the United States.

During the past three years the growth of the Northland club has been amazingly rapid. Under the direction of President T. F. Cole and the directors the Northland has gone ahead until it is now recognized as one of the live golf institutions of the West. Its membership is increasing, and in general the club has taken high rank.

The construction of a new course will be the climax of the gradual growth and will be an eloquent testimonial of the high standing of the game in this district.

DULUTH WINS FAST GAME FROM THE CANADIAN SOO

Home Team Displays Best Form of Season and Outplays Visitors.

Not One Penalty Inflicted By Officials for Rough Play.

Team Standing.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Calumet	5	2	.714
American Soo	4	3	.571
Portage Lake	5	5	.500
Duluth	2	3	.400
Canadian Soo	3	6	.333

This is the comeback age—and the Duluth Curling club hockey team came back last evening to the extent of defeating the Canadian Soo seven by the count of 6 to 3 and in the performance displaying the best and cleanest hockey that has been shown during the present season.

Not once during the game was there a penalty inflicted, and at the close of the contest Manager Walker of the visiting team and the members of the Soo seven heartily declared that it was the cleanest game they have ever had anything to do with and that the Duluth players were the finest lot of sports they have encountered during the present league race.

As a result of the victory of last evening the Duluth team moves out of last place and the Canadian visitors drop to the cellar position.

Duluth Shows Form.

In defeating the visitors Duluth was called upon to show the best form of the present season. It was not so much due to any weakness upon the part of the visiting players as it was due to the improved team play of the home team, and the surprising exhibition of all-around improvement.

Duluth presented a somewhat shifted lineup. Arnie Olson was sent in at rover and young Russell Barkell, the ubiquitous youth, was shifted to right wing. With Helmer Grenner back at left wing the combination seemed to work with speed and precision.

Capt. Joe Linder played one of the best games the sterling leader has shown here. Time and time again Joseph pushed the puck the length of the ice, one of these long rushes resulting in a goal through the medium of a clever pass.

The Soo Is Off Form.

To give credit where credit is due, it is only fair to state that several members of the Soo team were playing the game strictly on their nerve. Wray, the recently reinstated player, and Elliott are suffering from injuries received in the two games with Calumet, and Wilson might be in better shape.

There was considerable doubt before the start of the game as to whether Wray would play. It was only after he tried out his game foot that he decided to go in and take a chance. The injury gave the much-touted player little opportunity to make use of his store of speed.

During the greater part of the first half the puck was kept in Soo territory. Hesson made several sensational and clever stops of the fusillade of shots that bombarded the visitors' net. It required 14 minutes for Duluth to register the first goal, little Barkell shooting the net unaided after a pretty rush up the ice.

In one minute and a half later Olson rushed the puck well into the Soo territory and then making a clever pass to Grenner to the right of the net, Helmer shot one of the neatest nets of the game.

Olson shot the next goal unaided in a pretty loft from the sidelines and in just a minute later caged the final net of the first half from scrimmage directly in front of the Soo net.

The Soo Then Braces.

During the second half the Canadian contingent braced and virtually outplayed the home team in many details of the game. All of the scores of the visitors were made in this half and Wray, little Yacaboc and Wilson, did some of the best playing that has been seen here since the appearance of the crack Victorias.

Yacaboc caged the initial score for the visitors in a little over a minute after the call of play for the second half, the little fellow taking the puck up alone and then lofting a beauty in.

In just a minute and a quarter, to be precise, after the goal of Yacaboc, Olson rushed the puck up the ice, neatly slipped it over to Kahler and the latter player shot it by the ever vigilant Hesson.

During many minutes of the evening Wray had been taking wild pegs at the old net. In seven minutes after the referee's bell Wray took the rubber up the ice and shot from near the sidelines. This time the shot, like that of old Man Bill Tell, was true, and the second score of the visitors was hung up and surrounded with a laurel wreath.

Kahler made the final score for the home lovers, shooting from scrimmage, and Wilson of the Dominion agregation made a long rush up the ice just before the close of the game and shot the home-sweet-home effort of the evening.

She was some game, lively in most of the spots, clean and well played.

Duluth excelled the visitors in effective team play and combination work, while the defense of Duluth broke up the majority of the combinations of the Soo boys before they reached the shooting zone.

It was clean and well played hockey and the game was immensely enjoyed by the throng.

Olson played some game, and the same must be said of every individual member of the home guard. For the visitors little Yacaboc, Wray and Wilson starred. The defensive play of Hesson was very good.

HOUGHTON LOSES ONE-SIDED GAME

Michigan Soo Defeats Portage Lake By Score of 4 to 1.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 30.—To the surprise of followers of Northwestern hockey, the Michigan Soo team last evening defeated the strong Houghton seven by the score of 4 to 1. The game was played on slow ice.

One of the regrettable accidents of the contest was the dislocating of Sicotte's shoulder just before the close of the first half. Sicotte collided with Murray, and the remainder of the game was played with six men on a side, Thompson of the Soo being withdrawn.

Hill and Murray scored in the first half for the Soo. Exeley received a pass from Trathen early in the second half and shot a pretty net. Godin shot the remaining two goals. Haug played a star game at goal for Portage Lake.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE.

Yale Will Play One Less Game Than Last Year.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 30.—Yale's football schedule for next fall, announced yesterday, contains nine games, one less than last year. Holy Cross and Lafayette have been dropped, and in their places will be the University of Virginia and Notre Dame. Yale has never met the two latter colleges in football before. With the exception of the game with Princeton at Princeton, all the games will be played in New Haven. The schedule:

Sept. 26, University of Maine; Oct. 3, University of Virginia; Oct. 10, Lehigh; Oct. 17, Notre Dame; Oct. 24, Washington and Jefferson; Oct. 31, Colgate; Nov. 7, Brown; Nov. 14, Princeton; Nov. 21, Harvard.

LAKES DEFEAT THE UNIVERSALS

Hardware Hockey Players Prove Too Fast, Winning By 7 to 1 Score.

The Lake Hardware hockey team showed real class last evening by defeating the Universals at the curling club, following the big game, by the score of 7 to 1.

Beanny Brown, Woods and Curly Harris played strong games for the winning team. Young Brown was all over the rink and was one of the strong factors in both defense and offense.

Both sides showed some real and unruffled hockey and the crowd was kept in a pitch of excitement and interest by the quality of play.

Beanny Brown shot the first goal in three minutes. Harris shot in the next goal after a pretty rush. Whitney shot the first goal for the Universals in twenty-one minutes of play.

In the second half Harris continued his stellar work of the evening by making two goals in the second half, Taylor making one and Brown two in the second period.

If the exhibition of last evening is a sample of the class of hockey that is being played by the Duluth Amateur Hockey league, the fans should want more of it. Some strong players are being developed in the league and in another year some of the youngsters will be crowding some of the present members of the curling club team.

The lineup:

Lakes—	Position	Universals—
Mahan	g	Wink
Harris	c	Whitney
Brown	lw	Smith
Taylor	rw	Anderson, Shearer
Woods	r	Woods

CATHEDRALS TO MEET STRONG Y. M. S. TEAM.

At the Cathedral school gymnasium this evening the Cathedral school indoor baseball team and the aggregation of the Y. M. S. will meet in what is expected to prove one of the best games of the season.

Both of the teams are among the strongest of the city, and being evenly matched, a strong and fast game is expected.

EASTER ISLAND NO EDEN,

Castaway Mariners Deny Stories of Its Attractions.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 30.—Let nobody looking for a native wife and an easy life in the South seas go to Easter Island.

This is the advice of seven prosaic seafarers, the last of the castaway crew of the abandoned schooner Eldorado, who have arrived here with a plain tale that puts to blush all the flights of fancy printed since Capt. Benson, master of the Eldorado, first brought word how he had left the better part of his crew on the island because the delights of life there had weaned them from all desire for civilization.

With one voice the seven proclaim that they were not married, either by native or any other rites; that nothing could have induced them to marry any Easter Islander they ever set eyes on, and that the only reason they did not leave sooner was that they had a prudent regard for their lives and believed they were sure to be picked up by a passing vessel if they stayed, whereas they ran a good chance to be drowned in a long voyage in an open boat. The women of Easter Island, they said, are very unattractive.

The seven castaways were picked up by the British steamer Knight of the Garter, after spending five and a half months on the island, and taken to Australia, where an eighth shipmate left them. There is now, they said, but one white man on the island, the British governor, who treated them with great consideration.

MAN PAYS WOMAN'S FINE AND HIS OWN.

New York, Jan. 30.—For smuggling a sapphire pendant with a diamond in it into this country from Europe last November, Robert T. Heitmeyer, a wealthy leather manufacturer of Hoboken, N. J., and Mrs. Edna M. Alexander were fined $1,000 each by Judge Martin in the United States courts here. Heitmeyer paid the clerk two $1,000 notes. Heavy penalties either in jail sentences or money were asked by the Federal district attorney, who said that the defendants, who pleaded guilty, were familiar with the customs laws when they returned from abroad.

F. J. Alexander, a salesman and a former husband of the woman defendant, was a spectator in court. He has a suit for $150,000 pending in the New Jersey courts against Heitmeyer for alleged alienation of his wife's affections. Mrs. Heitmeyer a few days ago obtained a divorce.

FEW MOMENTS! NO INDIGESTION OR SICK STOMACH — PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

Digests All Food, Absorbs Gases and Stops Fermentation at Once.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take Pape's Diapepsin, and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is astonishing. Please don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

PROCTOR'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH WILL BE DEDICATED NEXT WEEK

RT. REV. JAMES D. MORRISON, Bishop of Duluth.

REV. W. E. HARMANN. Rector.

The new Christ's Episcopal church of Proctor will be dedicated with impressive ceremonies on Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 10 and 11. The program for the ceremony has just been completed by Rev. W. E. Harmann, rector of the St. Peter's Episcopal church of the West end, who a year ago organized the congregation.

The services will begin at 7:45 o'clock Tuesday evening. Three addresses will be given. Rev. H. Julius Wolner of Virginia will speak on "The Church in the Past." Rev. A. W. Ryan will speak on "The Church in the Present" and Rev. Thomas W. MacLean, LL. D., will speak on "The Church in the Future."

The principal dedicatory services will be held Wednesday morning. At 10 o'clock the dedication sermon will be delivered and holy communion held by the Rt. Rev. J. D. Morrison, D. D., LL. D., bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth.

Following the sermon a meeting will be held by the deanery, at which Rev. Mr. Harmann will preside. During this meeting Archdeacon Herman F. Parshall of Cass Lake will speak on "The Work of the Church in the Small Towns."

On Wednesday afternoon addresses will be given by Rev. Wilfred Clarke, rector of the Lakeside church, who will speak on "Lenten Preparations," and by Rev. Frank C. Coolbaugh, S. T. D., of Hibbing, who will speak on "Lenten Methods."

Christ's church was completed within the past week by Contractor Peter Olson. The building is one of the most attractive churches in the northern part of the state. It is of frame construction with stucco finish and is tastefully decorated. Its main auditorium provides seating capacity for about 200 people in addition to large Sunday schoolrooms. A full basement under the church provides modern rooms for the church societies, a well equipped kitchen and a furnace.

With the exception of putting in some of the art windows the church has been completed. Many of these windows are memorial gifts from various societies. Two handsome art windows are the gift of St. Agnes guild of Adolph, an organization composed of ten small girls; another window is donated by the Ladies' Guild of Proctor and another by the Sunday school. The Masons of Proctor have presented the church with two handsome windows and two art windows were donated by the Proctor Odd Fellows lodge.

The congregation will begin its occupation of the completed church almost free from debt. The building has cost the members about $5,000 and with the exception of about $500, which has been secured by notes given by members of the church, the congregation will have no old bills hanging over it.

The parish was organized late in January, 1913, by Rev. Mr. Harmann. Early last summer preparations were made for building the church and money for that purpose was liberally subscribed. The construction work started in September and with the aid of the fine fall weather the work has been rapidly pushed to completion.

WAMPUS CLUB'S ANNUAL BANQUET

Seventy-Five Attack Wampus and the Big Gorge Is Success.

'Twas a stormy battle—the one fought last night by nearly seventy-five West Duluthians at Gilley's hall. The battle was that of obliterating from existence a "wampus" caught in the rocky fastnesses of the hillside by Martin Kennelley and a valiant band of warriors. This morning at 2 o'clock, according to the men who left the hall last, not a trace of the "wampus" remained.

Peaceful pedestrians on Central avenue, who were not aware of what was going on in the hall, braved the elements long enough to stop and listen and then hurriedly left the vicinity, believing the worst.

Inside the hall things were different, whatever the sounds might have been on the outside. Here hilarity reigned. Contrary to the conditions of the banquet given by the Wampus club a year ago, the "wampus" came to the table already neatly sliced. At a word from the toastmaster, M. J. Filiatrault, the guests fell to and quickly made away with everything offererd.

Since the days of the famous "Dynamite club" no affair of a similar nature has been held in West Duluth.

Songs, stories, instrumental selections and dialogues were given by Mr. Filiatrault, Dr. L. R. Lamphere, Oscar Anderson, Harry Collins, Henry Fedi, Ed Roach, E. J. Zauft, Sterling Rodgers, Martin Kennelley, Nick Winters, J. J. Moran, P. C. Smith, R. J. Baker, F. W. Watson, Bert Collins and a number of others. A humorous article on "What Is a Wampus, Where It Is Caught and How Killed" was read by Mr. Baker.

Following the supper a short program will be given at which some of the members of the church will render selections. The women in charge of the affair are Mrs. Lucien Merritt, Mrs. Ruth Merritt, Mrs. Edith Merritt, Mrs. H. Bevier, Mrs. L. L. Gilpin, Mrs. L. H. Merritt, Mrs. Harry Randall, Mrs. Harry Merritt, Mrs. E. Ward, Mrs. L. H. Grundy, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. O. M. Holmes. The reception committee will be Rev. W. Grant Fritz, pastor of the church; R. J. EXPANSION IN FREIGHT TRAFFIC

Marked expansion in its general freight traffic is reported by Canadian Northern railroad officials. The movement of freight over the road's branch from Duluth to International Falls is said to have shown a substantial gain since the first of the year, attributable to woods operations being now in full swing following favorable weather conditions. A heavy tonnage in ties and pulpwood is now being moved out by operators.

For the first six months of its fiscal year, from July to December, the Canadian Northern railroad's net earnings aggregated $4,070,700, an increase over the same period of 1912 of $587,700. Gross earnings were $13,364,900, a gain of $1,125,000. The road's mileage is now 4,558, a gain of 183 miles in the six months.

TO TEST CASHMAN RAILROAD LAW

Northwestern Pine Manufacturers Declare Rates Are Fixed Too High.

George F. Lindsay of Duluth has just returned from Minneapolis, where he was attending the annual meeting of the Northwestern Pine Manufacturers' association, to which he showed plans which have been made for a white pine exhibit by the association at the forest products exposition which is to take place in the spring at Chicago and New York.

The association decided to bring a test case against the Cashman distance tariff law to prevent an increase in freight rates, and empowered its railroad committee to go ahead with the matter. They declare that the lumber schedules fixed by the state railroad commission are much too high, but they have decided not to oppose the rates until the commission has made its order covering joint rates, which will fix the tariff on most Minnesota business. It is contended that the commission is placing a forced and unnecessary construction of the law. At any rate the matter will be tested in the courts.

MEETING POSTPONED.

The club will request the commissioners to devise some means to prevent the dumping of sewage into the lake. Everybody interested in this question is invited and will be given a hearing.

CARING FOR THE NEEDY

Associated Charities Will Continue Work of Providing School Lunches.

Mayor Prince Reports That Rockpile Will Be Reopened.

Several interesting matters were taken up for discussion and consideration at the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Associated Charities which was held yesterday afternoon at the Commercial club.

After the transaction of regular business, the board instructed its secretary to write to Messrs. Matteson & McGregor expressing the sincere appreciation of the board for the gratuitous auditing of the Associated Charities accounts for the past fiscal year.

The matter of providing for transient men was taken up. Mayor Prince stated that the welfare department of the city felt it its duty to look after these men and provide employment for them. He declared that work at the rock pile would be started within a few days.

School Lunches.

The matter of continuing and enlarging the work of providing lunches for ill-nourished school children, begun by the Associated Charities last October in the Franklin school was also discussed.

The principal it was stated, has cooperated actively with the Associated Charities and the teachers have devoted their time in preparing the meals. The value of the work was proven by the first report of Dr. J. H. Andres, the school physician, covering the month from Nov. 4 to Dec. 4, 1913. The report follows:

Weighed and blood examined—Nov. 4, 1913.

Shows an average increase in weight per child, 2¼ pounds.

Shows an average increase in condition of blood, 11 per cent Hb.

Normal—Weighed five children of about the same ages, average weight, per child, 75 pounds.

Second Report Due.

A further report will be furnished by Dr. Andres in a few days. The children were selected by the physician as particularly needing attention. A few weeks after having had the benefit of the school lunches, one of the girls was promoted one grade.

The board of directors unanimously agreed that the work should be continued in this school until the close of the school year, it having the hearty support of R. E. Denfeld, city superintendent of schools.

The children to receive lunches will be selected by the school physician and a small charge will be made, either in money or services, such as waiting on table, assisting with the cooking or washing dishes.

The finance committee reported splendid progress in raising the budget to carry on the work for the current year. A very cordial reception was met from those who were approached, it was stated.

Those who were present at the meeting were: Messrs. E. A. Silberstein, J. W. Lyder, W. I. Prince, F. A. Cokefair, C. F. Graff, G. L. Shoup, W. B. Strinkman, A. B. Siewert, G. W. C. Ross and Edna G. Meeker, secretary.

The railroad company paid the American Press association a certain fixed rate per line for handling the matter.

Midwinter navigation on Lake Superior is no job for striplings.

To sail on the icy waters of Superior without lighthouses or other guides to navigation, requires courage and the ability to withstand hardship.

One little gasoline fishing boat is still in operation on Lake Superior and will continue to make trips until the ice prevents her leaving port. The boat is the L. Goldish, and her route is along the north shore to a point sixty miles beyond Grand Marais.

Fishermen along the north shore continue their operations all winter, and the herring caught through the ice are frozen and packed in bags. It is to collect these bags of frozen herring that the little vessel makes her trips. The boat brings back a cargo of about forty tons of fish on each trip. The crew of the little vessel is composed of John Ellason, captain; John Larson, engineer; H. Ojard.

The accompanying picture shows the little boat covered with ice on its arrival from a trip this week.

HANSON IS NOT GUILTY

Arthur P. Young Sentenced to Seven Months in Jail.

At the order of Federal Judge Page Morris the jury in the United States court this noon returned a verdict of not guilty against Fred C. A. Hanson, former superintendent of the money order department at the local postoffice, who was arrested last fall on a charge of altering the books, for the purpose of defrauding the government.

Hanson, together with Arthur P. Young and Gust F. Lundgren, two of the clerks under him, were arrested early last September on charges of embezzlement. They were indicted by the grand jury two weeks ago and upon being arraigned, Hanson pleaded not guilty and the other two pleaded guilty. Hanson claimed that he was not to blame for the embezzling of the funds by both Young and Lundgren, who were under him.

Judge Morris sentenced Young immediately after the trial this morning to serve the next seven months in the Hennepin county jail. Lundgren will be sentenced on Feb. 27.

BOTHA WILL BE TOLD TO EXPLAIN ACTION

South African Parliament Opens With Riotous Scenes.

Cape Town, U. of S. A., Jan. 30.—Riotous scenes marked the opening today of the parliament of the Union of South Africa. It was apparent Gen. Louis Botha, the premier, and his cabinet ministers would be promptly called upon to justify to the country the iron-handed methods they adopted in dealing with the recent strike, particularly the deportation of ten labor leaders to England this week.

GERMAN EMBASSY PLANS REJECTED.

Berlin, Jan. 30.—The Prussian Academy of Architecture today declared unsuitable the plans for the new German embassy at Washington drafted by the court architect, Ernest von Ihne. It also disapproved of the plans of the three winners of the competition opened for the purpose by the government. The academy recommends a new competition, restricted to the four architects.

DERELICTS THE BOGEY MEN OF THE SEA

London Answers: The dismasted, battered hulk of a derelict, floating so low in the water as to be almost level with the waves, is, of course, a very great danger to navigation, especially in foggy weather.

The majority of derelicts are sailing ships laden with timber. They may have been dismasted and rendered absolutely helpless in storms, partly demolished by fire, by collision with an iceberg, or by the mere force of the waves themselves. The crew, unable to make their ship seaworthy, may have abandoned it in the boats, or have been rescued by some passing vessel, but, whatever their fate, their forsaken ship, if laden with wood, remains practically unsinkable and is driven hither and thither over the ocean, at the mercy of the winds and currents.

In course of time the swelling of the wood cargo may burst the hull asunder, but until this happens, or until the vessel is driven ashore and broken into matchwood against some ironshod coast, it will remain a terror to passing ships.

Sometimes It Is a Steamer.

Now and again a steamer may be rendered helpless owing to its machinery becoming disabled by shortage of coal, by fire or by the loss of its rudder or propeller in heavy weather. Its crew may decide to abandon it and take to the boats, but if they neglect to open the seacocks on their departure their ship may float for many a long day.

The erratic movements of some derelicts are almost uncanny. Not so very long ago a Norwegian sailing ship called the Crown left Nova Scotia for a South American port. It was laden with timber, and while still in the North Atlantic ocean was overtaken by a terrible storm, which dismasted and left it a battered wreck.

The crew, realizing it was useless to remain on board, abandoned it and took to the boats, never to be heard of again; but their ship, although it vanished completely for no less than three months, was sighted at the end of this time on the edge of the Sargasso sea, a good 700 miles away from where the disaster overtook it.

Soon afterwards it was sighted off Bermuda, but then disappeared again, and may still be drifting about the ocean.

Abandoned in Mid-Atlantic.

Another sailing ship was abandoned off Cape May. The crew endeavored to destroy it by fire on their departure, but, although it blazed furiously, the sodden, water-logged cargo eventually extinguished the flames.

A few weeks later the hulk was off the English coast and it was thought it would be dashed to pieces on the shore, but, altering its course, it proceeded to the southward along the French coast and was next seen near the Azores. Having got thus far, it proceeded to cross the Atlantic, and after covering fully 6,000 miles in its wanderings, finally drifted ashore near Panama.

Derelicts are sometimes salved and bring in a large sum in salvage money to the crews of the ships who tow them into port.

On one occasion an American steamer bound for Liverpool with a cargo of cotton ran out of coal off the north coast of Ireland. The sea was running high, and signals of distress were made to a passing steamer, which passed a tow rope to the helpless ship. But the towing wire snapped and the crew was accordingly taken on board the newcomer, while the disabled vessel was left to drift.

A Prize Worth Saving.

A Liverpool tug heard of the affair and, being doubtless aware of the great value of the cotton cargo, determined to find the derelict and to tow it into harbor. After a protracted search it came upon it and eventually took it into Belfast, little worse for its buffeting.

The enterprising tug netted no less than £7,960 for its share in the proceedings!

By an act of parliament, passed in 1896, the master of any British ship sighting a derelict is bound to report the fact to the nearest Lloyd's agent, so that if the adandoned ship is in the track of ships, a man of war may be sent out to destroy or bring it into port.

It is said that thousands of lots in Manhattan and Brooklyn, 5,000 office buildings and dwellings and several churches and cemeteries are to be sold for taxes.

HUMANS COULD LEARN LESSONS FROM ANIMALS

Folks in This Generation About the Same as They Were in All Previous Generations.

Edward S. Martin in Harper's Magazine: We should all be better, I think, and more contented, if we associated more with animals. They are perfectly old fashioned. They do not read the newspapers and they do not want to vote. They have other delightful virtues which Walt Whitman has enumerated. They think no much better of us than we are that it is an encouragement. They give so much to us in proportion to what they get that it shames our poor generosities. I respect considerably the idea that God made them to be, not exactly an example to us, but a suggestion.

Not one is dissatisfied, not one is demented with the mania for owning things.

Not one is respectable or unhappy over the whole earth.

I suppose they will continue to live in our changing world in spite of machinery, and we will have the benefit of their society. We have the habit of eating some of them, which is a very painful thought, but insures their continuance. Think what could be said in the newspapers of our terrible habit of killing and eating the kind and seemly animals, if it could be brought into politics or it paid anybody to take it up. Bernard Shaw disapproves of it, I believe, but it is not a topic on which as yet he has enlarged very much. Think how easy it would be to demonstrate the machinations of the wicked meat trust to rivet the animal diet on society, just as the armament makers are supposed to machinate to keep up war! But since we seem to be carniverous we keep right on eating meat, and I suppose a good many of our other habits will keep right along in spite of enormous ink sheds of remonstrance and expostulation, because we are so contrived.

"Folks Is Folks" After All.

We keep hearing that the world has changed so much; is changing so fast; and especially for girls. People wonder whether anywhere there are backwaters where children are being brought up as they used to be. The suggestion is abroad—very disquieting to a good many people—that everything in the world, including the institutions and the human beings, is about to be different from what it has been, and that the change is now in full course and going fast. Old fashioned people are getting rattled, and begin to inspect one another, with the kind of attention that one pays to menagerie animals, as examples of a species about to become extinct.

"Still, for the moment, it is permitted to deprecate these anxieties. Things do move, to be sure, but there are still considerations that may keep up hope in folks who have agreeable memories of the world as it lately was, and prefer that it should not do a lightning change into a brand new place peopled with complete strangers. We hear of the great change in children; how different nowadays they are taught, clothed, trained, by methods unfamiliar to most of their elders, to ends that seem hypothetical and untried. And especially the girls. We are constantly invited to predict what the girls are going to be and do, and what is going to happen to the world in consequence. The old-fashioned girls got married and—well—here we are! But these new-fashioned girls that are just about to be—can our old-fashioned world be altered sufficiently to suit them? Can the venerable institution of marriage have enough tucks let out in it to be a loose enough garment for their audacious requirements? Can man be trained to be wise enough or of a sufficient submissiveness for them to marry? And when they are done, will wary young men dare to love them?

Of course, if the girls are going to be different, it's a serious thing, unless the boys and all the rest of creation are nicely adjusted to the change in them. Either a sufficient proportion of the girls must match the rest of the terrestrial institution, or the institution must match the girls. Otherwise things can't go on.

But Babies Are the Same.

But babies being just the same as formerly, except that the great advance in medicine, surgery, sanitation and such matters has improved their chances of growing up, and young children now being not so different as might be supposed from what young children used to be, one naturally wonders at what age the great changes in life (which are understood to be proceeding in this generation) begin to touch the girls and make them different. I inquired about that of an expert man who has to do with the training of the young, and always has a lot of them convenient for observation during their pupilage. "When," said I, "do the modern girls begin to feel the influence of their times and begin to be different from their grandmothers at their age?"

He deliberated. "At about 40."

"Then you don't see any change in young girls and young women? You've known them by the hundred, intimately and over long periods of time, studied them more than anything else for nearly half a lifetime, and you say the new girls are just the same as the old?"

Even Girls Haven't Changed.

"Yes; just the same. The fashions change, but the girls don't. Sports have changed a little. Studies have changed; but the girls haven't. They are still the same girls, and do things very much as they always did, albeit they do different things now from what their grandmothers did. Their grandmothers, also, in their day did things different from what their grandmothers did. The conditions of life change; employments change; education follows new fashions; new opportunities offer, old ones dwindle in importance; the girls as they come along take up the newer fashions in all things. That makes them look different, and people think they are changed, and are going to change still more, and that there is going to be the new woman who is to be something that woman never was before. But that's a mistake. The girls don't change. They are just the same they always were, and they will keep on being so."

"And the new woman?"

"Why, bless you! the new woman is just the old woman in a new bonnet, adjusted more or less to enormous changes in the physical and mental apparatus of the world, learned in new branches, a reader of newspapers and many books full of undigested suggestion, unedifying quotation and very doubtful assertion. She used to ride on a pillion; now she rides in a motor car and often drives it herself. Of course, she goes faster than she did. So does all the world. She keeps her place in an advancing line—that's all. Her relation to life has not changed, but it would have changed unless she had kept up with the times."

A wild boar's tusk, on which the Lord's Prayer and the Apostles' Creed had been cut with a kris, or Malayan dagger, was presented as a wedding gift to his American teacher by a young Igorrote Filipino at Dagupan, Luzon.

GOLD BEARING EARTH ON FARM

Northwest Angle, Minn., Homesteader Has Struck "Pay Dirt."

Warroad, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. L. Randall, who has a homestead near the Northwest Angle, for some time has been under the impression that there was mineral in that vicinity and while digging his cellar discovered a bed of sand that showed indication of being gold-bearing.

A sample was sent to W. W. Bonner, an assayer, at Port Arthur, Ont., to be analyzed. The report says the sand contained 15 per cent gold to the cubic yard. Mr. Randall is still content to stick to his usual homestead duties, but hopes to some day get things in shape so that there is prospects of something doing in the mining line at the Northwest Angle.

COMPLETE TICKET TO BE DETERMINED

North Dakota Bull Moosers Not Agreed Upon the Subject.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the state meeting of the Bull Moosers to be held here in two weeks, the question of placing a complete state ticket in the field at the primaries will be decided. The meeting will be addressed by Mr. Ingalls of Kansas, a son of the famous senator.

The leaders of the party are divided as to the advisability of putting a ticket in the field. One element, believed, however, to be in the minority, opposes a state ticket and favors reaffiliating with the Insurgent Republicans.

Aaker for Governor.

Other Bull Moose leaders are extremely optimistic over the situation and insist that a complete ticket must be named and that they will win because of insurgent defection likely to result from a clash over the gubernatorial candidacy. H. H. Aaker, head of business colleges here and at Grand Forks, and formerly of Concordia college, Moorhead, Minn., is the man most strongly urged. Twice he sought the Republican nomination but failed. He was active in the insurgent Republican ranks until the last campaign when he became an ardent advocate of Bull Moosery.

Gen. Mathews left Larimore three weeks ago to come East. He was taken sick at Fargo and on reaching Minneapolis gave up his trip and went to the Hastings hotel. His condition became so critical that two Minneapolis and St. Paul physicians were called in. The family doctor from Larimore, W. H. Welch, also came here to attend Gen. Mathews. Mrs. Mathews and the Misses Maude and Sadie Mathews came here also to be near the general. His daughters were at the bedside when he passed away.

Gen. Mathews was born in Belfast, Ireland. He came to this country when a boy. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted from New York state and served three years. He later became a departmental commander of the G. A. R.

CAPT. McKINNON FINED.

Suffers Another Penalty for Violation of Navigation Laws.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 30.—A fine of $100 has been imposed by the Federal government through its Milwaukee office upon Capt. Donald McKinnon, part owner and engineer of the tug Martin, which with its consort, the barge Plymouth, was caught in the heavy November gale, which sent the Plymouth to the bottom with its crew of seven men. Recently United States Inspectors York and Gooding revoked Capt. McKinnon's license following a hearing.

McKinnon was cleared of all responsibility for the resultant loss of life in connection with the foundering of the ill-fated barge, but was found guilty of negligence for taking the Martin to sea in an unsafe and unseaworthy condition. The revocation of his license was also made because of the fact that he hired Capt. Louis Setunsky, knowing at that time that Setunsky's license did not cover the tug Martin.

ECCENTRIC MAN DIES.

Wealthy Southern Minnesotan Who Made Queer Pre-Nuptial Contract.

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 30.—Tennis J. Slingerland, one of the wealthiest, and one of the most eccentric characters of this section of the state, died at his home at Kasson. He was 90 years old.

Slingerland amassed a fortune by buying Dodge county land. He was one of the original stockholders of the Union National bank of this city and was still interested in the institution at the time of his death.

Slingerland became widely known, however, because of his eccentricities and especially because of the famous pre-nuptial ocntract. When Slingerland was married the second time, a contract was made with his wife that at the time of his death, were she living, she should receive only $5,000. Later, learning of his wealth and after separation, the wife applied to the district court for an amendment of the contract which was granted. The matter was carried to the supreme court, where again, the wife was upheld, making her entitled to her legal one-third of the estate. To prevent possible application for divorce the wife periodically visited her home. Slingerland was fond of rare books and is said to have owned one of the most valuable collection of books in the state.

A Doctor's First Question Is ____?

"How Are Your Bowels?" A Simple Remedy That Guarantees Good Bowel Action.

LIEUT. G. W. VAUGHAN.

Trace the origin of the commoner ills of life and almost invariably you will find that constipation was the cause. It is not to be expected that a mass of fermented food can remain in the system beyond its time without vitiating the blood and affecting the nerves and muscles. It congests the entire body.

The results are colds, fevers, piles, headaches, and nervousness, with its accompanying indigestion and sleeplessness. There is only one thing to do, and that is to remove the trouble; and when nature seems unable to do it, outside aid is necessary. You will find the best of all outside aids a remedy that many thousands are now using for this very purpose, called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Many hundreds of letters are received by Dr. Caldwell telling of the good results obtained, and among the enthusiastic letters is one from Lieut. G. W. Vaughan of 623 W. North St., Decatur, Ill. He is 72 and has had a bad liver and stomach since he came out of the army. He says he tried about everything, but never succeeded in getting permanent relief until he took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. He is never without a bottle in the house, and he is never without good health.

It has untold advantages over pills, salts and the various coarse cathartics and purgatives, for while these do but temporary good, Syrup Pepsin cures permanently. The effect of its action is to train the stomach and bowel muscles to do their work naturally again, and in a short time all forms of medicine can be dispensed with. It can be bought without inconvenience at any nearby drug store for fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being regularly bought by those who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

EVELETH SALOON MAN FINED $50

Also Scored By Judge for Giving Liquor to Minor.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis Baudek, a local saloon keeper, convicted in municipal court Thursday afternoon of selling liquor to a minor, was fined $50 and costs. The defendant's attorney asked for a stay of sentence to give the defendant time to consider the matter of making an appeal of the case to district court. He was given ten days' stay and his bond fixed at $100, which was furnished.

Judge Warns Saloonkeepers.

In passing sentence Municipal Judge Moylan took occasion to admonish Baudek and other saloon keepers in Eveleth, that the city ordinance forbidding the sale of liquor to minors would be enforced hereafter. He declared that the saloon men are apparently disposed to abuse the privileges granted them by the city. The harboring of minors in saloons must also be watched, declared the judge, it matters not whether such minors are relatives of the proprietors or not.

Bar No Fit Place.

"The barroom is not a fit place in which to bring up children," said the judge. Baudek was arrested on complaint of Rev. P. A. Schwarz that on Jan. 17 he sold to Tony Kovack, 17 years old, a glass of beer. The defense pleaded that the boy was a relative of the proprietor and had been doing chores around the barroom, that a customer had left a glass part full of beer on a table and unknown to the bartender the boy had taken the glass up and was drinking the contents when policemen entered the place and witnessed the act.

HAVE YOU HAD THE GRIP?

There are certain disorders, such as the grip, that especially debilitate and make the body an easy prey for more dangerous diseases. Ask those who have had the grip regarding the present condition of their health and most of them will answer: "Since I had the grip I have never been well." They still have profuse perspiration, the persistent weakness of the limbs, the disordered digestion, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart caused by the thin-blooded condition in which the grip almost always leaves its victim after the fever and influenza have subsided. They are furthermore, at the mercy of relapses and of complications, often very serious. In an attack of the grip there is a rapid thinning of the blood and not until the blood is built up again is complete health restored.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills quickly make the blood rich and red, drive out the lingering germs from the system and transform despondent grip victims into cheerful, healthy men and women.

Try the pills for any form of debility caused by thin blood.

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Get a box today and begin at once to regain your health. Write for for free booklet, "Building Up the Blood," to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

COLD WAVE DISAPPEARS

Warmer Weather Up to Saturday Night at Least, Promised.

Mercury 12 Deg. Below During Night—No Storm Expected.

Lay aside your heavy furs for today and tomorrow.

Warm, southerly winds, says H. W. Richardson of the United States weather bureau, will put the cold to rout, and bring up the mercury to five above tonight. The mild zephyrs began work early this morning, and temperatures over the Northwest were from 10 to 60 degrees warmer at 7 o'clock this morning than yesterday. The cold wave is working rapidly eastward, and the tail of it is just leaving Duluth.

The coldest last night was 12 below zero and at 7 o'clock this morning it was 11 below. In the lake region, the Ohio valley, and Upper Mississippi region the mercury was from 10 to 20 degrees colder this morning than it was twenty-four hours before.

Brisk winds are expected today and tomorrow and the sky will be partially clouded, but no snow is expected.

For Grey Hair

I Will Tell You Free How to Restore to Your Hair the Natural Color of Youth.

No Dyes or Other Harmful Method. Results in Four Days.

Let me send you free full information about a harmless liquid that will restore the natural color of your hair, no matter what your age nor the cause of your greyness. It is not dye nor a stain. Its effects commence after 4 days use. I am a woman who became prematurely grey and old looking at 27, but a scientific friend told me of a simple method he had perfected after years of study. I followed his advice and in a short time my hair actually was the natural color of my girlish days. This method is entirely different from anything else I have ever seen or heard of. Its effect is lasting and it will not wash or rub off or stain the scalp. It is neither sticky or greasy in use cannot be detected; it will restore the original natural shade to any grey, bleached or faded hair, no matter how many things have failed. It succeeds equally with both sexes, and all ages.

Write me today giving your name and address plainly, stating whether lady or gentleman (Mr., Mrs. or Miss) and enclose 2 ct. stamp for return postage and I will send you full particulars that will enable you to restore the original color of youth to your hair, making it soft, fluffy and natural. Write today. Address, Mrs. Mary K. Chapman, Box 441 F Exchange St., Providence, R. I. enterprises and has been trustee of the Christian Endeavor society, president of the Congregational Sunday schools and president of the Congregational club, and active in the chamber of commerce and the school commission of his native city. He was at the head of the great missionary exposition in Boston in 1911.

Rev. Dr. Thomas Conant, 70 years old, died suddenly at Montclair, N. J., Jan. 29, from heart disease. Dr. Conant comes of a family prominent in the affairs of the Baptist denomination for several generations. For many years he was editor-in-chief of the Baptist publication "Examiner," and later was associate editor of "The Watchman-Examiner."

Paul de Roulede, the French patriotic writer and politician, died in Nice France, Jan. 30, after a short illness, aged 68 years. M. De Roulede founded the League of Patriots and was an ardent supporter of the late Gen. Boulanger, whose attempted revolution in favor of the revision of the constitution in 1889 was a fiasco.

M. De Roulede was noted for his patriotic outbursts in the newspapers, and his writings led him into many duels. He was banished from France in 1900 for trying to substitute a plebiscitary republic for the parliamentary republic, and remained abroad for five years until he was pardoned. M. De Roulede was an officer in the French army. He was captured by the Germans at Sedan and was taken to Germany as a prisoner, but he escaped and rejoined his command. The literary work of M. De Roulede included poetry and romance. M. De Roulede was a lover of all kinds of sports and was much feared as an opponent in personal combats owing to his skill with the rapier and the dueling pistol.

BANK COMMITTEE MEETS IN PORTLAND

Hears Claims of That City to Regional Reserve Bank.

Portland, Or., Jan. 30.—Secretaries McAdoo and Houston, the organization committee of the new Federal reserve system, arrived today and began the hearing for the establishment of a regional bank here. The showing is being made that while 35 per cent of the bankers of Washington have indorsed Portland, not one Oregon bank has indorsed either Seattle or Spokane. The Portland bankers are urging a branch of the regional bank here if the main bank for the Pacific coast should be established in San Francisco.

Governor West urged the geographical location and advantages of Oregon. President A. L. Mills of the Clearing House association and head of the First National bank, dealt principally with Portland's position as a banking center. He said the city controls the banking business of the entire state of Oregon, 35 per cent of Washington and parts of Idaho and Montana.

EBERHART TURNS MOOSE

Not the Bull Kind, But the Loyal Order Variety.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor A. O. Eberhart and Mayor K. P. Keller will be prominent among the 150 candidates who will be initiated tonight into lodge No. 40, Loyal Order of Moose, at the club rooms, 13 East Sixth street. The drill team from Minneapolis lodge No. 38, under command of Capt. W. H. Johnson, will be in attendance.

TANGO DOWN STEEP HILLS

Hesitation Waltz and Swedish Polka Also Seen on Avenues.

Portly Citizen Descends With the Emergency Brakes Set.

It would appear that Commissioner W. A. Hicken or the minions of the uniformed law have nothing whatever to do with the tango and hesitation forms of waltzing that are being done upon the sidewalks these days. No, not in the least.

Since it went and sort of rained and then froze, leaving the sidewalks in a condition that would gladden the cockles of a curler's heart, tangoing and hesitating waltzing have been one of the features of the pedestrians' informal ball, or fall, just as you will.

This forenoon one of the prominent and portly cits of the village was descending Fourth avenue with emergency brakes on. Suddenly he lost control. Some one standing on level ground yelled to look out. But that didn't do the targoing cit any good. Why do people always yell that way?

As we understand this hesitation waltz, you do a graceful dip and then hesitate—after the dip. In the case of the citizen doing the sidewalk or the hesitation waltz, he also hesitated after the dip; hesitated until several mere acquaintances came to his aid.

Several Forms of Tango.

Regarding the tango, there are several forms. On the sidewalks of Duluth these slippery and shiny days, you can also get your choice of several varieties. There could be no better opportunity for Commissioner Hicken to study the effects of the dance.

A lady—a lovely one, to be sure—struck a smooth and extremely slippery portion of the Superior street sidewalk. No ballroom floor could have been one-half so smooth—or unyielding—but wait a minute.

The lovely lady, pulchritudinous and flirting with the embonpoint league, hit the smooth space with the right foot first. She glided gracefully out onto the shining expanse of the public sidewalk, attempted to recover her balance and then came over on the left foot.

Now you have seen the tango, no doubt; you know you do a sort of up and down motion—at least some do; this was just what the lovely lady did, with simple direction and without the least bit of affectation.

Up and down she went, and all the time doing the nicest glide. A large traveler passing on the front of an express wagon unthinkingly took up the refrain-ia, ta, dit-ta-da-la, ta-dit-ta-dum. And all the time the lovely lady tangoed in the center of the smooth ice.

Good While It Lasted.

Then suddenly she shifted too precipitiously on the left foot, and down she went. But while it lasted it was a fine little tango.

But back to the side hills—that is where the greater variety of figures—dance figures—are seen.

Coming down the slippery hills one can see serious citizens unconsciously giving indorsement to the tango craze. One large man in a fur coat did three turns, then the approved glide, and then slid gracefully on one foot while falling in mid-air. If that had been pulled in a ballroom the effect would have been wonderful.

When you get started down a slippery and icy hill you have to do what the conditions insist upon. Fifth avenue west was a bad place, but those possibly opposed to dancing in any form, have thrown sand upon the sidewalk and now the descent is made in the orthodox form.

But lovers of the tango need not be in the least discouraged. There are innumerable other hills that have not as yet had sand poured on their nice slippery sidewalks.

Added to the graceful dip of the hesitation waltz and the ups and downs of the teasing tango, there are other dances.

The Whirl.

For instance, there is the whirl that has long been one of the striking characteristics of the Swedish Polka. In this dance you grab a partner and remain in as small a circle as possible and whirl as much as possible. Among the Scandinavians and others who work on farms and dance until 4 in the morning and then go back to work at 5, this is one of the favorite terpsichorean efforts.

Coming down one of the sidehills of our city yesterday were a man and a woman. The woman was large and the man tall and attenuated, as is often the case in couples.

Suddenly the larger form began to whirl on the slippery ice. The beginning was slow, but the momentum gathered rapidly. As any gallant man would do in a similar case, the thin man grasped the large lady and attempted to stifle the whirl in its infancy. That is where he made a mistake. Possibly he had never studied the law of physics.

Anyway round and round they whirled, the smooth and polished surface of the sidewalk offering no resistance to the whirling pair, locked in the embrace of protection, which for all the world looked like the lighter entwainment affected by the dancing couples.

All things must end—the dance was precipitously terminated. The pair hit the rough ice and then the sidewalk in a beautifully executed double fall.

With a thaw in sight there will be few opportunities left to witness the tango and the other forms of dancing. But while the present brand of weather lasts, and if the police do not order sand thrown upon all of the sidewalks of the city, there will be much chance to become better acquainted with the dance that has caused much speculation among even the serious minded of our city.

GAIN CASE ONCE MORE ON TRIAL

Hoffman Brothers Testify That Woman Acted as Go-Between.

Arthur and Adolph Hoffman, star witnesses for the state in the prosecution of Mary Le Flohic, alias Madam Gain, on a charge of keeping a house of ill fame at the Clifton, now Elgin hotel, between June 24 and July 5, 1913, testified this morning.

Arthur Hoffman declared that Madam Gain procured a girl for him on three different occasions between the dates alleged in the indictment, and Adolph testified that he had been accommodated on one occasion. They both testified that they had bought beer from the woman on more than one occasion.

The Clifton was raided by the police on July 5. Officer Johnson, who had been "tipped off" by the Hoffmans as to what had been going on at the hotel, alleged that the woman procured a girl for him on the night of the raid. Detectives Toevre and Bradley made the arrests.

All day yesterday was devoted to the drawing of the jury. The following were selected to serve:

Walter Spearin, 525 Thirty-second avenue east; George R. Howe, 927 Ninth avenue west; John C. Green, Lakeside; W. G. Franklin, Gnesen; David H. Clough, 914 East First street; Charles Winters, 740 Lake avenue south; C. W. Holme, 1826 West Superior street; H. L. Palmer, 2033 Woodland avenue; Otto Hoffman, 400 Fourteenth avenue east; George H. Barnum, Jr., Board of Trade; Hjalmer Otterson, 2132 Piedmont avenue; Thomas Jenkins, Cotton.

Superior

EUGENICS LAW BLOW TO CUPID

Matrimony in Superior has had a decided falling off during this month when compared with January of other years. The cause County Clerk Leader will not state, but suspects that the new eugenics law has something to do with it.

Since Jan. 1 the county clerk has issued fifteen licenses. In January, 1913, the clerk gave out forty-four permits to marry. The first license this year was issued on Jan. 7, and Mr. Leader says only one has been issued so far this week.

"Either the young people feel reluctant to marry under the new law or else they are going to some other place to have the ceremony performed," said Mr. Leader. "I have not heard of any of them going to Duluth. The physicians in Superior have all been supplied with the necessary blanks to be filled out, so that an applicant may go to them before his appearance at my office. I don't know if any have been turned down by the physicians; at least, none of them have appeared at my office."

For Wife Beating.

Thomas Weaver, a Tower avenue saloon keeper, was arrested yesterday on complaint of his wife, who alleged that he had beaten her. Weaver was placed under $100 bonds for six months to keep the peace.

Many New Citizens.

Nearly 100 foreign-born residents took their oath of allegiance to the United States before the judge of the district court this morning. Nearly all of the applicants were able to give intelligent answers to questions put to them by the presiding judge.

Republican Meeting.

The Republican county committee will hold a meeting this evening at the municipal court room of the city hall. The committee will elect a chairman to take the place of William Perkins, who resigned after being appointed county judge.

TWO WIVES ASK DIVORCE RELIEF

One Claims Cruelty and the Other Desertion.

Two unhappy wives filed suit for divorce with the clerk of the district court today.

Mary B. Cosper, 28, is seeking a separation from Elmer E. Cosper, 49, who, she claims, has subjected her to a course of cruel treatment for several years. On one occasion he threatened to shoot her and on another he threatened to beat her with an iron poker, she asserts.

May Rose, 18, wants a divorce from Samuel Rose, 19, to whom she was married nearly four years ago. The decree is asked for on the grounds of desertion, Mrs. Rose declaring that her husband left her on Sept. 9, 1912. They are parents of one child, of whom the mother asks custody.

REVISE MINNESOTA MEDICAL COURSES

Students Will Have to Serve Awhile in the Hospitals.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Required work for medical students at the University of Minnesota will be reduced 600 hours during their course, and each senior student will be required to serve several months in hospitals as a clinic clerk, as the result of action just taken by the faculty.

Dr. J. C. Litzenberg, chairman of the curriculum committee, made these recommendations after several months of investigation of medical schools in this country and abroad. The committee now is engaged in readjusting the course, and schedules to conform with the new arrangement, and will report next Thursday.

APPORTIONING ESTATE.

Court Makes Order in Property of Alexander Lundstrom.

Four sisters and one brother of Alexander Lundstrom, who was killed on July 2, 1911, while in the employ of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, will share alike in his estate which is now being settled in district court. The claim for damages against the railroad company was settled by August Westlin, administrator of the estate, for $1,429.

Before the settlement was effected, Jonas Lundstrom, father and sole heir-at-law, died, and under the law the property which would have gone to him had he lived will now go to his family.

The amount left for distribution after the payment of all expenses and claims is $984.80. Judge Cant has signed an order apportioning it among the relatives of the dead man.

TO DO MACHINE STITCHING.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: Draw all the threads first and baste the hems, the edge coming through the center of the drawn threads. Loosen the tension of the machine and stitch the hem on the very edge. Remove the basting threads, hold the material in both hands, and draw the body of the garment away from the hem. Another way to do machine hemstitching is to place fifteen or twenty thicknesses of newspapers between the body of the goods and a folded piece of goods to form the hem. Stitch the edge of the paper, hem, and goods together, then tear away the paper.

For the bride who wishes to have even her "every-day" towels dainty there is no easier method of decorating them than by embroidering her initials in cross-stitch. A very good looking towel may be bought for 25 or 30 cents in a good quality of huck, and if the hem has a row of blue or pink dots or scallops the effect is even prettier. Then the letters may be worked in the mercerized cotton with tiny pink roses and green leaves on the cross bars of the letters. These designs may be purchased at the embroidery counter and may be done so quickly and with so little practice that one is more than repaid for the effort when one sees the dainty towel.

CORROBORATES THE ST. PAUL GRAFT STORY

Wolff's Charges Are Supplemented By Underworld Women

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Willie Wolff, recalled to the witness chair today by the state in the graft trial, corroborated the testimony given by Nina Clifford, the only other witness examined at the morning session, concerning the alleged bribery ring and the disbursement of moneys said to have been collected from resort keepers for police protection. Wolff was on the stand under cross-examination when the court took its noon recess.

How police protection money was collected from women of the underworld and divided among Former Chief of Police Flanagan, Former Detective Turner, May Burke and Willie Wolff was told on the stand yesterday when the Burke woman, the principal witness, testified that she received $250 as her share of $1,000 collected from former resort keeper, who, she said, was promised police protection. She told of the collection of money from several other women of the underworld, and described in detail the agreement entered into with the former police officers to obtain the "graft money."

Nina Clifford, another woman of the underworld, was placed on the stand shortly before adjournment.

SUES FOR SERVICES.

F. E. Johnson Asks for Lien on Property for $812.50.

Asking that his claim for services as an architect he adjudged a lien against a building erected at Hibbing for Bryan O'Rourke, M. B. Hull, R. Ortmann and James A. McIntyre, F. E. Johnson, architect, of this city today filed an action in district court against the owners of the property. Johnson alleges that he furnished plans and specifications for the building and that his services were worth $1,312.50. He admits he received $500, but is suing for the remainder, $812.50.

MARKET IS STILL WEAK

Wheat Closes Slightly Down With Lower Foreign Quotations.

Flaxseed Has an Upturn on Good Buying By Crushers.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 30.—The market was dull and steady up to the close. May wheat closed ¼c off and July ¼c off. May durum closed ¾c off. Oats closed ¼c down at 36½@36¾c. Rye closed unchanged at 52½@55½c for the best grades, and barley unchanged at from 44c to 66c.

At Winnipeg, January oats closed at 33½c and May at 36⅝c.

Puts on Minneapolis May wheat closed at 88⅝@88¾c bid and calls at 88⅞c bid.

The wheat market weakened fractionally today. That was attributable to lower Liverpool cables, quiet demand, and reports that the winter wheat plant is in perfect condition in practically every state of the territory. Weakness in corn at Kansas City and Chicago, attributable to expectations of heavy importations from Argentina, was also a bearish factor. Further, farmers' marketings of wheat in the Southwest are advised to be increasing as a result of the higher prices now ruling.

Intimation from Ottawa that the Canadian parliament had voted down by a majority of forty-five a resolution to place wheat on the free list was without market influence here, that result having been generally expected by operators. Though the question may be brought before the Canadian house later, it is thought that yesterday's vote means that the question is shelved for this session at least. The news was taken as a bearish factor at Winnipeg, the market there declining on heavy liquidation.

Receipts here continue light, inspections of wheat today being only 21 cars, compared with 94 last year. There were on the track for the day just 35 cars of all grains. There was loaded out from the Itasca elevator today into the steamer J. R. Dunmick 208,000 bu of hard winter wheat for storage. This brings the volume of wheat afloat in this harbor up to 1,434,000 bu.

May wheat opened unchanged at 89¾c, and it weakened ⅛c during the first three hours. The July option opened unchanged at 91⅛c and sold off ⅛c.

May durum opened unchanged at 89¾c and it also weakened ⅛c. July durum was quoted for the first time, opening at 90c and selling up ½c.

Flaxseed Closes Higher.

The market in flaxseed took on a reversal today ruling strong throughout the session. For that higher cables, and the general impression that the market had been oversold yesterday were the contributory factors. Good buying by crushers and of a speculative nature, appeared at the opening, resulting in the May quotation being run up 1⅛c during the first hour to $1.52, and rested at around that basis and ⅛c under for some time and then weakened in the late trading, closing at $1.51½, just ¼c up. The July option was not traded in and it was closed at $1.53½ nominally.

At Winnipeg, January flax closed at $1.26 bid; May at $1.31½ bid and July at $1.34.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Broomhall estimates world's shipments inclusive of North America at 8,000,000 bu. He predicts a fair increase on passage. Australian shipments were 2,464,000 bu and Indian, 40,000 bu.

The Minneapolis cash market was stronger, with good milling demand. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 1½c over May and ½c under, and velvet chaff ¾@1c under. May flour sales were reported moderate, but Eastern advices report a big sale of flour by a Northwestern mill at a concession to the buyer. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from 87⅞c to 90¼c and No. 2 northern at from 83¾c to 87¼c.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The market opened with moderate realizing ⅛d to ¼d lower and following the opening it further declined ⅛d. Lower American cables, pressure in Buenos Ayres, cheaper Manitoba offers and larger world's shipments this week other than from America with the Continental markets easier and a quieter demand from that center owing to milder weather, helped to encourage profit taking. The decline was checked by the steadiness in spot and the sharp advance in consols. At 1:30 p. m. the market was ¼d to ⅜d lower.

"Corn—Opened ⅛d lower with America and the weakness in Buenos Ayres. Later there was an advance of ⅜d with shorts covering and buying by a large firm here on a better spot demand and few old crop offers of Plata. At 1:30 p. m. the prices were ½d higher."

Buenos Ayres wheat closed ¼c lower and with some realizing on lower foreign markets and the desire to get foreign bids. The quality of arrivals for shipment was unsatisfactory. Corn was ¼c to ½c lower and was under pressure of favorable crop advices and the freedom of offers.

Argentine shipments of wheat this week were 1,600,000 bu, against 848,000 bu last week and 4,072,000 bu last year. Corn, 1,590,000, against 216,000 bu last week, 1,573,000 bu last year. Visible wheat was 2,136,000 bu, against 2,240,000 bu last week and 5,883,000 bu last year, with 2,024,000 two years ago. Corn, 1,020,000 bu, against 1,020,000 bu last week, 1,148,000 bu last year and 2,508,00 bu two years ago.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "Wheat traders who favor the bull side were disappointed at the market's action yesterday in breaking in the fact of the cold wave moving down from the Northwest into the winter wheat country as far as Lincoln, Nebraska, which reported 4 below. A majority of traders talk bullish, but do not stand any punishment. With weather conditions uncertain and cold weather predicted for next week traders said there is little disposition to sell wheat short for more than a quick turn. The top prices yesterday were the highest for several months."

The market in linseed oil at London has been strong of late attributable to the diminuition in the world's flaxseed supplies. With the falling off in deliveries of seed it is noted that market conditions in oil are just the reverse of those prevailing a year ago. Then forward oil was at a discount, whereas it now commands a premium running into about $10 a ton. The two extreme points touched there by oil at London during the past twelve months were $143.72 and $110, comparing with $235 and $126.25 in 1912 and $267.70 and $167.50 in 1911. The demand for oil from consumers is reported to have been very brisk lately and speculation has been stimulated to a considerable extent. These conditions in the oil trade account for the growing bullish situation in flaxseed.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Eases Off on Absence of Damage From Cold.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Wheat eased off today owing to the absence of any sign that cold weather was injuring the winter crop. Larger world shipments acted also against the bulls. The defeat of proposed changes in the Canadian tariff seemed to have little if any influence on the market. Opening prices varied from ⅛c decline to a shade advance. After hardening a trifle, quotations underwent a moderate setback all around.

News that flour was being exported to Brazil for the first time in years helped to check the decline The close was steady at ⅛c to ¾c net decline.

Prospects of continued saving of feed tended to weaken corn. Demand for shipment from Chicago appeared to have entirely ceased. Prices opened a shade off to ⅛@¼c up and then showed a disposition to sag.

Cheap offers at Galveston from Argentina prevented any decided reaction. The close was steady, ⅜@½ to ½c net lower.

Oats gave way with other grain. Selling pressure was not especially heavy.

Support developed for provisions on account of hog supplies being restricted. First sales ranged from last night's level to an advance of 12½c but the gains failed to hold.

Bank Clearings Gain.

New York, Jan. 30.—Dun's Review tomorrow will say: The volume of bank clearings this week was unusually large, the total at the principal cities amounting to $3,415,778,261, a gain of 20.5 per cent. This exceptional satisfactory exhibit is mainly owing to the remarkable expension at New York city, exchanges at that center being 26.4 per cent larger than last year.

FACE OF ROCK CLIFF BLOWN OFF WITH DYNAMITE.

Bringing down from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of rock with a single blast of dynamite is the method of quarrying used at the cement-rock quarries at Martin's Creek, Pa. The face of the cliff is 170 feet high, and the rock was formerly taken down in benches. The method now used, says the December Popular Mechanics Magazine, is to bore 6-inch holes down the face of the cliff from top to bottom. These are charged with dynamite, a total of 10½ tons of the explosive being used. All the charges are fired simultaneously and the explosive force is so great that the entire face of the cliff is blown off.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Reactionary Movement Is Checked and Prices Have Spirited Rise.

Gains of Two to Three Points in the Popular Shares.

New York, Jan. 30.—The reactionary movement of the week was checked definitely today, and prices rose in spirited fashion. The optimistic feeling in foreign markets was reflected in purchases for foreign account, which assisted the rise.

Gains of 1 to 2 points were well distributed through the list. The decision of the Federal courts against the railroads in the Missouri rate case led to the selling or some Western railroad stocks, shortly before noon, and Missouri Pacific reacted a point.

Bonds were firm.

Stocks made up part of yesterday's losses at the opening of the market today. There was a good demand for all of the leaders, many of which were quoted nearly a point higher. Pressed Steel Car gained 2½. Canadian Pacific 1¾ and Texas company and Reading 1.

Improvement in speculative sentiment caused the market to advance further. A slump in Rumely shares was disregarded as reflecting specific finacial difficulties confronting this company. Rumely common fell to 9 and the preferred to 36½.

The market was stimulated again by the announcement of the ready public absorption of some large bond issues. Buying of the low-priced railroad stocks was more general, and there was also a good inquiry for Steel above 65.

Shorts came into active competition with real buyers and prices were bid up rapidly. Investment strength of investment shares was the most potent factor in forcing a retreat of the short interest. Canadian Pacific gained 5 points and St. Paul and Union Pacific, 2.

The market closed strong. Bullish enthusiasm swept away all opposition and prices climbed abruptly. Gains of between 2 and 3 points were made in the popular shares. The new issue of New York state 4½ per cent bonds touched 108¼, a new high figure.

WOMEN SLAVE FOR PENNIES

Terrible Working Conditions Have Been Revealed in England.

Thousands Toil Eighteen Hours Daily for $2.25 a Week.

London, Jan. 30.—Down in the reeking East end of this richest city in the world, half-starved women and girls whose workrooms are squalid dens in tenements drive sewing machines as fast as their strength will permit from 6:30 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night, to earn a cent and a half, and sometimes less than that, an hour. In the millionaire city of Birmingham, mothers, with little children of 3, 4 and 5 years helping them, put hooks and eyes on cards all day, and sometimes all night, too, for a wage that averages 75 cents a week—384 hooks and as many eyes having to be carded in order to earn 2 cents.

A woman brush maker from the London slums recently told a select committee of the house of commons that she was paid 13 cents for filing 1,000 holes in the backs of hair brushes. Working hard, she added, she can fill 200 holes in an hour, and this woman, who now is 60 years old, said that she had slaved at her trade since she was 7 years old, that she never had had a holiday. Now her sight is failing and her hand is losing its cunning. Soon she will have to go into the workhouse or else starve.

Publicity For the Conditions.

The cases mentioned are examples of the horrors of "sweating" in this country—horrors which a committee under Lord Dunraven, some ten years ago, said could "hardly be exaggerated," and which have grown worse in the intervening time, but which one may hope to see at least mitigated in the near future.

Women like Mary Macarthur, secretary of the Women's Trade Union league, have been working for years to focus public opinion upon the scandal and lately have gained powerful supporters. Perhaps the most notable of these recruits is the American Duchess of Marlborough. At Sunderland house, her splendid home in Mayfair, was held recently the most representative and influential gathering ever got together in this country to consider the subject. At this gathering cabinet ministers, peers and peeresses, millionaires and labor members of parliament listened to the stories of women workers. Nearly $4,000 was subscribed in behalf of the organization to rid Great Britain of the evil which was described by Lord Lytton, the grandson of the famous Victorian novelist, as "this dry rot that is sapping the strength of the nation."

Among 2,000,000 women workers in England, the highest average weekly wage is $3.50 and even that figure is reached only by reckoning in the Lancashire cotton industry (an industry, by the way, absolutely dependent upon the United States) which stands alone among trades for women in this country so far as wages are concerned. And of this vast army of workers more than 300,000 earn less than $3 by their tollsome week's work, while thousands again are below the $2.50 mark.

Earn Less Than $2 a Week.

In the manufacture of silk and linen, for instance, two women in five earn less than $2.50 a week—despite the fact that a great economic authority, James Fife, has set down that sum as the least upon which a working woman in the provinces can exist—while in the hair trade a majority of women fail to reach this sum. In the English dress and corset making trades the percentage earning less than $2.50 a week is almost one in three, while in practically all the trades for women there are considerable numbers whose weekly earnings do not reach $2. Two of the remaining groups of trades, the pottery, brick and glass and food, drink and tobacco trades show much worse figures.

In the pottery trade employment is accompanied always by risk of lead poisoning. In that dangerous occupation the average wage is less than $3 a week, and one woman in three fails to achieve $2.50. Brickmaking, though free of poisoning risk, is terribly hard, and beyond the capacity of all but the strongest women. The excessive energy it demands is rewarded by the average wage of $2.75.

"Are there any women workers who are worse off than these?" was asked Mary Macarthur, who furnished many of the details.

Earn a Crust For Their Toil.

"There are more than 100,000 who are incomparably worse off," she replied. "These latter are the great army of home workers, whose hours, like the places in which they toil, are regulated by no law and who work feverishly on the poorest food. Weak tea and bread is the day-in, day-out diet of most of them. One penny an hour is the sum earned by most of the London women and girls who are shirt machiners and shirt finishers, who turn out artificial flowers and make the uppers of women's boots and children's shoes—and sometimes this hourly wage falls as low as three farthings, or 1½ cents and even lower. "It is no uncommon thing to find women who work from 5:30 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night for less than $2.50 a week. I know of many a shirt finisher who has to make eighty-four buttonholes before she earns 11 cents, and whose weekly taking averages about $1.25.

Even Children Are Slaves.

"Nor are the children idle. However young, their little fingers can link hooks and necessity sets them in motion. Often I have seen children of 3, 4 and 5 years, helping their mothers—but then, we never hear the end of child labor. In Nottingham children of 5 years engage in lace work, and in London they help in boxmaking, button carding and many other trades. Only a few years ago, a parliamentary return demonstrated that at least 144,000 children in full time attendance at school were employed out of school hours for wages, and that about 40,000 of them worked more than twenty hours a week."

THE ISLAND OF KAUAI.

Geological Survey: The Island of Kauai, the smallest of the four large islands of the Hawaiian group, contains 547 square miles, which is somewhat less than half the area of Rhode Island.

The highest part of Kauai consists of the mountain mass called Waialeale, which occupies the central part of the island. Waialeale peak is 5,080 feet above sea level. Kawaikini peak, about a mile further south, is over 6,000 feet high. The east side of Waialeale is almost vertical for 2,000 or 3,000 feet. There are numerous streams in the island, some of which have cut deep canyons with vertical walls. Waimea canyon is a most remarkable gorge for so small an island. It is 10 miles long, a mile or more wide, and 2,000 to 3,000 feet deep. Its coloring and sculpture are exquisite and somewhat resemble those of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. Kauai is the oldest of the larger Hawaiian islands, and consists of one central mountain mass, differing in this respect from Oahu, Maui and Haweii, each of which consists of distinct mountain masses that have been formed at different times.

On account of its great variation in topography the rainfall varies greatly in different parts of the island, ranging in most of the area from 15 to 200 inches annually, and on the summit of Waialeale probably reaching 400 inches. Thus, almost desert-like aridity and continual torrential downpours may be found almost within sight of each other. Every important stream on Kauai is drawn upon to a greater or less extent for irrigation. Water is in chief demand for the irrigation of sugar cane, but rice is also grown on the lowlands and in all the valleys. Pineapples are grown but are not irrigated. The population of Kaual in 1910 was 23,952. Of these about one-half are Japanese, Chinese and Portuguese. The island has no good harbor but will have one in the near future.

THE SCHOOL PLAYGROUND.

How large is your school playground? Henry S. Curtis, in a bulletin just issued by the United States bureau of education, declares that every city school building should have at least one full block of ground, whether the block is the usual city block of two or three acres, or one of ten acres, as in Salt Lake, Utah. The high school needs at least ten acres, he asserts. As for the country school, it ought never to have less than three acres of play space, and could profitably make use of ten acres, provided the grass is kept mowed.

Mr. Curtis shows that our schools have, in general, had very inadequate yards. During the past ten years, however, with the development of the play movement, there has come an increased demand for ground space around school buildings. The state boards of education in Pennsylvania and Virginia will not approve plans for new school buildings that do not provide for adequate playgrounds. In Little Rock, Ark., the standard of one full block to a school has been carried out with every one of the schools for white children. All but one or two of the schools in Pueblo, Colo., have a full block. In San Angelo, Tex., every school but one has two blocks at least, and two have ten acres of play space. The first school built in Gary, Ind., had two acres of playground, the second had four, the third eleven, and a lot recently purchased contains twenty acres.

"There is a very strong sentiment all over the country for larger school grounds," Mr. Curtis finds, "and yards are being augmented in many cities where there is an opportunity to purchase adjoining pieces of land at prices that are not prohibitive. Cities are often paying as much as $10,000 or more per acre for such land. Two years ago the city of Houston, Tex., secured a bond issue of $500,000 for enlarging the yards of several of its old schools. The city of Galveston has recently voted a bond issue of $100,000 for the same purpose."

Whether in city or country Mr. Curtis considers ample school playground a vital necessity. "City children need a good-sized school yard because there is no other place to play. Country children need a large yard because at home there is no one to play with, except in the simplest games for little children." He points out that larger school grounds are demanded, not only for the sake of organized play, which has come to have a recognized value in education, but also for school gardening, open-air classes, physical training, and other activities that have made the school yard "nearly as important as the classroom in the conduct of a modern school."

STREETS ANNOUNCED AUTOMATICALLY.

Popular Mechanics: A device showing the number of the next street has been tried out on a Wichita, Kan., street car system. Each street stop, from one end of the line to the other, is given a consecutive number, and the passenger, on entering the car and asking the conductor, "Please let me off at Elmwood avenue," is told, "Your stop number is 20." The indicator in the front of the car shows at a glance just where the car is with reference to the desired stop, and the passenger rings the bell as No. 20 appears. For strangers, and for regular travelers at night or in stormy weather, the device has proved useful.

FORTY-ONE DEAD IS FINAL SUMMARY OF VICTIMS OF MONROE

More Bodies Are Sought Where Steamer Sank After Crash.

Federal Inquiry Begun With Many Points in Question.

Some of Those First Reported Lost Are Among Survivors.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 31.—An officially revised death list shows that forty-one perished when the Old Dominion liner Monroe went down in fifteen fathoms of water off the Virginia coast after collision in a fog with the Merchants' & Miners' steamer Nantucket.

Of those who perished, nineteen were passengers and twenty-two were of the crew. There were aboard the Monroe 139 persons.

Wireless reports from a wrecking steamer on the scene of the disaster say no bodies have been recovered.

Investigation of the disaster was completed today by the United States steamboat inspectors, but they will not make public their findings before Wednesday.

Seek for Causes.

With the final tragic summary written, interest here today centered in ascertaining the causes that led up to the accident. The versions of the officers of the steamer Nantucket, which early yesterday crashed into and sank the liner Monroe of the Old Dominion Steamship company, and of survivors have been told. It now remains for the Federal government to determine officially the cause and other facts connected with the collision.

The revised list of victims and rescued showed that of the forty-one persons whose lives were lost, nineteen were passengers and twenty-two were members of the crew. Of the ninety-nine persons saved, thirty-nine were passengers and sixty were members of the crew.

Federal Inquiry Begun.

ACQUITTED OF PLOT TO MURDER HUSBAND

Mrs. Reuter Found Not Guilty After Being Once Convicted.

Bartlesville, Okla., Jan. 31.—The jury in the trial of Mrs. Laura M. Reuter today found her not guilty of complicity in the murder of her husband, Charles T. Reuter. This was Mrs. Reuter's second trial, the first one last autumn having resulted in a conviction carrying a sentence of life imprisonment.

Mrs. Reuter sat unmoved while the verdict was read. She had been ill throughout the trial, which lasted more than a week, and had heard the evidence and arguments while lying on a cot in the courtroom. The case was given to the jury late yesterday afternoon.

Former Society Woman.

Mrs. Reuter, who formerly was a society woman in Tulsa, was charged with conspiring with Guy D. Mackenzie, a wealthy Tulsa contractor, Grover Ballew, Mackenzie's chauffeur, and Joseph Baker, a friend of Ballew, to murder her husband, an attorney. Reuter was shot and killed in his home in Tulsa on the night of May 5, 1912.

A week later Mackenzie, Ballew and Baker and Mrs. Reuter were arrested charged with plotting to murder Reuter. Ballew, in a signed confession, said that Mackenzie had paid Baker $200 to "put Reuter out of the way," and that he (Ballew) drove the automobile in which Baker rode to the Reuter home to shoot the attorney.

Mackenzie and Baker were convicted and are now in the penitentiary. Ballew was shown leniency because of evidence he gave for the state.

CULLOM'S BODY LIES IN ILLINOIS CAPITOL

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31.—Snow lay deep in the streets through which the cortege bearing the body of Former Senator Shelby M. Cullom made its way to the capitol today, where the body will lie in state until tomorrow, when the funeral will be held and interment take place.

A guard of honor, consisting of thirty-six members of the Illinois National Guard, plowed its way behind the hearse and on either side of it. At the capitol the coffin was borne along a pathway banked high with snow, and placed in the center of the rotunda.

In the corridors were American flags, while the circular balcony railings of the dome above were draped in black. Flowers in profusion softened the gloom of the scene.

No Service Held.

There were no services. Militiamen stood silently at the four corners of the coffin, while others directed the crowd that poured in at the east entrance and dispersed north and south through other wings.

There were ten pallbearers, all active and all of this city. Mr. Cullom's circle of acquaintances was so great that it was decided to have no honorary list, which, to include all of his intimates, would have been too long.

Every part of the state will be represented at the funeral tomorrow, and it is expected that the remnant of the pioneers who recall the Lincoln-Douglas debates, at many of which young Cullom was present, will be well represented.

Buried Near Lincoln.

The funeral sermon will be preached by Rev. Donald MacLeod of Springfield, who was the Cullom pastor at Washington. Eulogistic remarks will be made by Governor Dunne and by Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman. Interment will be made at Oak Ridge cemetery, within the shadow of the monument marking the grave of Lincoln.

IS IMPROVING UNDER TREATMENT BY RADIUM

ROBERT G. BREMNER.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 30.—The condition of Representative Robert G. Bremner of New Jersey, who is undergoing radium treatment here, was reported today as improved.

INDICTS FOR REBATING

Federal Jury Accuses Swift & Co. and Three Railroads.

Northwestern, Pennsylvania and Ann Arbor Lines Involved.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Indictments charging rebating on the part of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, the Pennsylvania system, the Ann Arbor Railroad company of Michigan and Swift & Co., meat packers, were returned today by the Federal grand jury which has been hearing evidence for several weeks from special agents of the interstate commerce commission.

Swift & Co. are charged with obtaining alleged rebates from the Ann Arbor road by getting carload rates on less than car shipments.

The Pensylvania lines east of Pittsburg are charged with rebating to the W. H. Merritt Grain company of Chicago by allowing switching refunds to which the grain company was not entitled.

Northwestern Indicted.

The Chicago & Northwestern railroad is accused of granting rebates to David Rutter & Co., coal dealers, on shipments of coal from Little, Ind., to Evanston, Ill., by means of an improper combination of rates.

The single indictment against the Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis road charges six instances of rebating to the E. A. Eckart Milling company of Chicago. The road may be fined $120,000 on these points.

The Northwestern is liable to a fine of $120,000 on the six charges of rebating to the Rutter company, and the Pennsylvania and Pan-Handle are liable for $100,000 on the charges of rebating to the Merritt company if the charges are sustained.

The grand jury, which was called especially to consider the interstate commerce commission's charges, announced that it had not completed its work and will resume its deliberations Monday.

VICTIMS REFUSE TO PROSECUTE FORGER

New Jersey Man Surrenders to the St. Louis Police.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 31.—Elwood C. Williams, former councilman of Camden, N. J., who surrendered to the local police a few days ago and said he was wanted in his home city for passing three forged checks, will leave for home prooably today or tomorrow a free man.

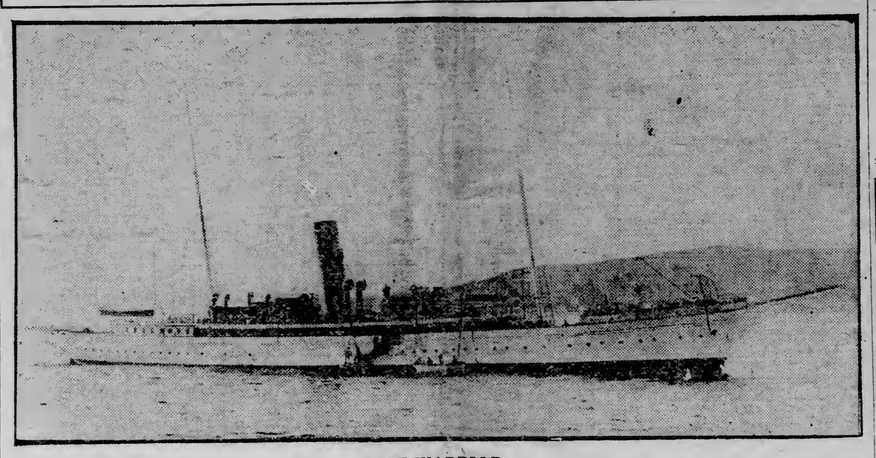

For almost three years Williams tramped from city to city, conscience-stricken and longing for a glimpse of his wife and child. Thursday he told the police he could stand the torture no longer. He said he was willing to be taken back to Camden and pay the penalty for his crimes.

A message from Camden today said there was no charges against Williams, nor would there be, as his friends on whom he passed the checks declined to prosecute him.

STREET CAR HELD UP IN ST. LOUIS STREET

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 31.—Two negroes armed with revolvers held up a crowded street car in the heart of the theater section here last night, fled with the conductor's money belt, and finally were captured after a battle with the car crew and a squad of policemen.

MAGNIFICENT YACHT IS BELIEVED TO BE DESTROYED

THE WARRIOR.

New York, Jan. 31.—Frederick W. Vanderbilt's magnificent yacht, Warrior, stranded off the coast of Colombia, probably has been destroyed. This was the information received by the United Fruit company today in a cable message from its representative at Colon. The company's liner, Almirante, took the Vanderbilt party off the stranded yacht, and later returned to save the crew of forty-eight men.

Today's message said: "Believed Warrior total loss."

The Vanderbilt party is on the Almirante. Dispatches via New Orleans last night said the position of the Warrior was perilous.

The Warrior is known as one of the finest of yachts. She is of steel construction, 282 feet long, has twin screws, and is equipped with wireless aparatus. She was built for Mr. Vanderbilt in Troon, Scotland, at a cost of $500,000, in 1904. She is schooner-rigged, with a large funnel and a graceful clipper bow.

SNOW BLOCKS CHICAGO CARS

Fall Is Twelve Inches and Drifts Pile Six Feet High.

Michigan, Indiana and Ohio Traffic Seriously Impeded.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Chicago was buried under a twelve-inch mantle of snow when business attempted to start today, and snow still was falling unabated. Although the official figures have the fall for the night as one foot, drifts were six feet deep and all local transportation was crippled, as were the telegraph and telephone services.

The weather bureau predicted that the snow fall would continue throughout today and probably tonight, but without extreme cold. The temperature here has remained above freezing and there has been less suffering than might have been expected from the first real snow of the winter. It has furnished temporary work for an army of unemployed men waiting for the opening of the ice harvest, delayed by the mild weather.

Man Found Dead.

The body of a well-dressed man, supposedly attacked by heart disease, was found in a downtown drift today.

The city street department and rail lines had 10,000 men removing snow from streets and tracks but the fall continued heavy up to noon and traffic was impeded seriously all day. Each man was paid $2.50 for his day's work.

An automobile patrol wagon, conveying prisoners to court, became stalled in a four-foot drift on the North side. A squad of policemen

ALIEN BUTTER BREAKS PRICE

The Tariff Reduction Has Brought Quantities From All Countries.

New York Dealers Admit Cost Will Stay Down.

New York, Jan. 31.—An influx of foreign butter from all parts of the world, due to the reduction of the tariff from 5 to 2½ cents a pound, has caused a decline in the New York wholesale prices of 1½ cents a pound since the first of the year.

Butter has been coming to this city from as far off as Australia by way of San Francisco. Three hundred thousand pounds from that country has been laid down here within the last two or three weeks. Butter has also been shipped from Argentina, Denmark and Siberia.

Holders Have Unloaded.

The shipments, butter dealers admitted, have created marked uneasiness in the wholesale market, with the result that there has been an unloading of various stocks.

Today the best grade butter was selling at 26½ to 27 cents a pound wholesale. The American demand for foreign butter has caused a rise of 2 to 3 cents a pound in some of the foreign markets.

It is generally admitted here that the price of butter in this country will be kept in the future at a lower average level than before.

Iowa Collector Named.

Washington, Jan. 31.—President Wilson today nominated for collector of customs for the district of Iowa, Christian A. Niemeyer of Creston, Ia.

RELIEF TRAIN IS IMPERILED

Nearly Ditched While Carrying Victims of Alton Wreck.

Steel Car Saves Lives of Passengers—Rail Found Broken.

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 31.—A special train bearing fifteen persons injured in this morning's wreck near here of the Chicago & Alton fast St. Louis train narrowly escaped another wreck when two cars of a fast fruit train were derailed a mile south of the scene of the passenger wreck, a short time after the special had passed. Unconfirmed rumors here are that attempts were made to wreck both trains.

The special train bearing the injured left for St. Louis at 6:30 a. m. It is not believed that any of them will die, and the condition of none of them was serious enough, in the opinion of their physicians to cause their being left in hospitals here.

Rail Was Broken.

The wreck of the St. Louis train was caused by a break in the rail over which a Chicago express for Kansas City had safely passed half an hour before. Breaking of the rail set the block system against the St. Louis train, and it was slowing up when it passed over the break.

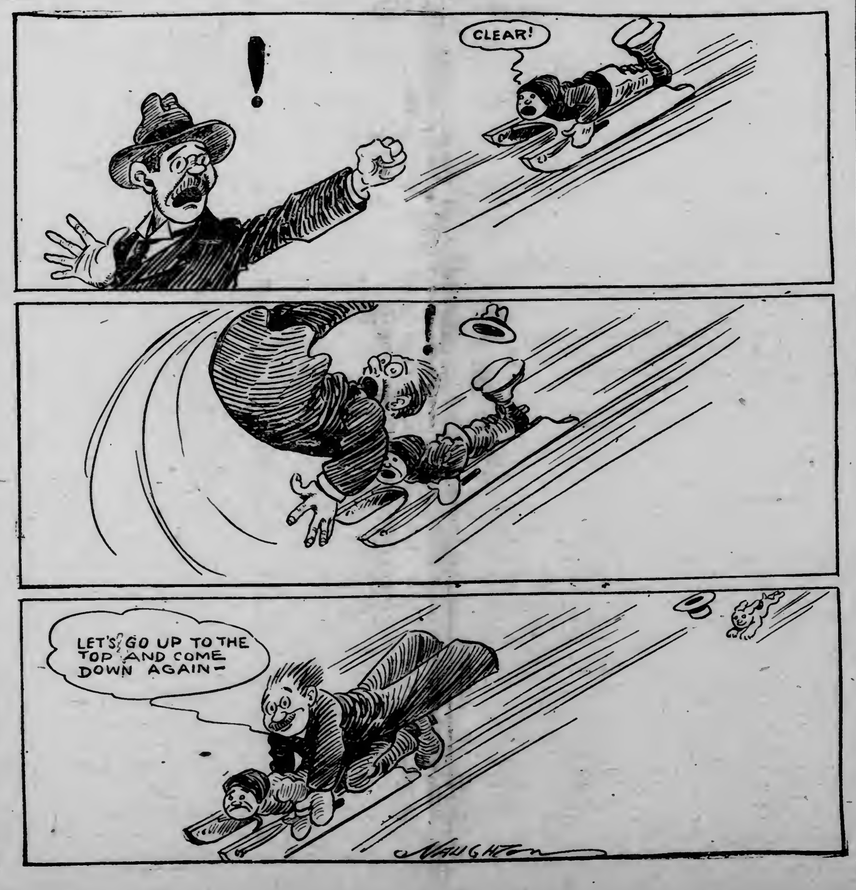

Passengers in the partly overturned sleeping cars were aided to escape by E. H. Reynolds of St. Louis, who was thrown from his berth by the derailment. He recovered himself and got

GOVERNMENT-OWNED WIRE SERVICE URGED BY INVESTIGATORS

QUOTED TO SHOW NEED OF GOVERNMENT PHONES

THEODORE N. VAIL,
President of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Burleson Gives Senate the Report Submitted to Him.

Expense of Ultimate Action Is Steadily Growing, It Is Said.

Theodore Vail Quoted to Show Necessity of Single Control.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Postmaster General Burleson today submitted to the senate the recommendations of the departmental committee appointed by him to investigate the practicability of government ownership of telephone and telegraph lines.

The report declares that "the only way to afford to the people the complete and modern postal facilities that the Constitution makes it the duty of the government to provide," is by carrying out these suggestions:

"One—That congress declare a government monopoly over all telegraph, telephone and radio communication and such other means for the transmission of intelligence as may hereafter develop.

Except Farmer Lines.

"Two—That congress acquire by purchase at appraised value the commercial telephone network, except the farmer lines.

"Three—That congress authorize the postmaster general to issue, in his discretion and under such regulations as he may prescribe, revocable licenses for the operation, by private individuals, associations, companies and corporations, of the telegraph service and such parts of the telephone service as may not be acquired by the government."

The recommendations are signed by Daniel C. Roper, first assistant postmaster general; Merritt C. Chance, chief clerk, postoffice department; and John C. Koons, superintendent division of salaries and allowances, composing the committee. They were accompanied by statistical information collected after one of the most exhaustive investigations ever undertaken by the postoffice department.

Only Country Not in Line.

The report states that the United States is "alone of the leading nations which has left to private enterprise the ownership and operation of the telegraph and telephone facilities," and that practically all of the economists who have treated the subject are agreed that telegraph and telephone facilities should be controlled by the government.

It declares further that Theodore N.

TWO NAMED ON THE I. C. C.

Daniels of New Jersey and Hall of Colorado Are Nominated.

Chosen By President Out of Fifty Men Suggested.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Winthrop More Daniels of Princeton, N. J., chairman of the New Jersey public utilities commission, and Henry Clay Hall of Colorado Springs, former president of the Colorado Bar association, were today named as members of the interstate commerce commission by President Wilson. The senators from New Jersey and Colorado were consulted about their appointments late yesterday.

The two commissioners will fill the vacancies caused by the death of John D. Marble and the resignation of Charles A. Prouty. Congressmen, for weeks, have been urging no less than fifty different candidates.

Colorado Men United.

Mr. Hall was recommended by practically the entire Colorado delegation, who urged that their state was entitled to representation on the commission. Mr. Daniels is practically a personal choice of the president because he was an intimate friend and long time associate in college work. The president, it is understood, intended from the first to name Mr. Daniels, but examined the field carefully, hoping that he might not be required to weaken the New Jersey public utilities commission, in whose progress he took a personal interest.

Mr. Daniels graduated from Princeton university in 1888 and went back there four years later as an instructor, finally becoming professor of economics and public finances, on which subjects he wrote text books in use in many colleges. During the summer months, he was engaged in writing financial editorials for the New York Evening Post. In 1911, when Mr. Wilson became governor of New Jersey, he appointed Professor Daniels to the public utilities committee of New Jersey, of which he was later made chairman. He has always been a Democrat and stumped the state in various campaigns. He is 46 years old.

Hall Native of New York.

Mr. Hall is a graduate of Amherst college in the class of 1881, is a native of New York and is 54 years old. He was counsel to the United States legation at Paris from 1888 to 1892, but removed to Colorado Springs, Colo., on account of his health. He was general counsel of the Colorado Springs & Gulf Railway company and many other companies. He was a lecturer on law for a good many years, and in 1905 was elected mayor of Colorado Springs on the Democratic ticket. He was president of the Colorado Bar association from 1911 to 1912.

King and Queen Going to Paris.

London, Jan. 31.—King George and Queen Mary will pay a state visit to President Poincare in Paris in April.

Representative Levy of New York appeared at the trust hearing before the judiciary committee.

234 IN DANGEROUS TRANSFER AT SEA

Passengers Are Taken Off Steamer United States By Cameronia.

Glasgow, Scotland, Jan. 31.—The Scandinavian-American liner United States crept into the Clyde today, having been forced to turn back on her voyage from Copenhagen to New York by the bursting of a cylinder on Thursday, when 200 miles from the Scottish coast.

The 234 passengers on board were transferred off Greenock to the Anchor liner Cameronia, under dangerous conditions owing to the high wind and heavy sea in the Firth of Clyde. They descended to the waiting tenders on storm ladders rigged to the sides of the vessel. Many of them were so nervous that they were carried down by the Danish seamen.

"DO SYMPATHIZING BY THE TELEPHONE"

Wisconsin University Man Talks About Spreading of Disease.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—"Keep away from homes where outbreaks of contagious diseases have occurred," said Dr. A. S. Alexander of the University of Wisconsin in an address to the country life conference here today. "Do your sympathizing by telephone, and then there will be less prospect that somebody will be called on to express sympathy with you."

Dr. Alexander said that contagious diseases were spread generally by carelessness, such as insistence on visiting the persons afflicted, and that with proper care there should be no difficulty in protecting the public against contagion.

MARRIES SISTER OF HIS BROTHER'S WIDOW

E. C. Converse, Retired New York Financier, Takes Bride.

New York, Jan. 31.—Edmund C. Converse, retired banker and financier of New York and Greenwich, Conn., was married here yesterday to Miss Mary Edith Dunshee of this city. No formal announcement had been made, and none of Mr. Converse's friends knew that he contemplated matrimony. The ceremony took place at St. Thomas' church.

Mr. Converse, who is 64 years old, was for many years one of the prominent financiers of this city. His bride, who is 48, is a sister of Mrs. J. B. Converse, widow of Mr. Converse's late brother.

REFUSES TO MODIFY RULE

Grain Dealers May Not Buy Grain Consigned to Them.

A decision has just been rendered by the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission denying the application of the Cargill Commission company of Duluth and the Northwestern Fruit Jobbers' association, et al, of Minneapolis, for a modification of the rule promulgated by the commission on Nov. 29 last, wherein licensed grain and agricultural commission merchants in Minesota are prohibited from buying for themselves any consignments made to them of grain or other agricultural products or farm produce, from selling the same to any subsidiary company or corporation with whom such licensee may have any interest.

After careful consideration the commission finds that it would not, in its judgment, be conducive to the interests of the producers, shippers and dealers of the Northwest to make any charges in the rule as requested.

Discussing the decision this morning, F. E. Lindahl, manager of the Cargill Commission company, said that at the hearing before the commission on Dec. 18 they only asked for permission to handle consignments as they might see fit for customers who are active members of either the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce or of the Duluth board of trade, regardless of whether the grain is disposed of to a subsidiary company or not, provided that the written request and instructions of the consignors to do so are filed.

Mr. Lindahl agreed that the existing rule is fair in designing to prevent abuses in the handling of grain consigned by outsiders, who may not be actively in touch with the market, but he thinks that an exception might have been made in transactions between dealers who are members of the exchanges at Duluth and Minneapolis, and especially where formal instructions had been filed.

WILL UNITE IN PROTEST

Duluth May Take Lead in Opposition to Dam Project.

Cities on Both Lake Huron and Lake Superior Affected.

F. B. Spellman, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee of the Duluth Commercial club will broach the matter of making an organized fight against the damming of the Soo river and thus raising the level of Lake Superior, to the public affairs committee of the club when it holds its monthly meeting next Thursday night.

Mr. Spellman proposes that invitations be sent out to similar organizations in all of the ports on Lake Superior to hold a meeting here or at some convenient point so that organized opposition to the plan may be made and that some scheme may be formed to make the fight effective.

It may be that ports on Lake Huron will be invited to participate in such a movement for they will be affected as well. Vessel men say that the damming of the Soo river will cause a lowering of the Huron water level, which will injure business at the ports along the lake just as much as it will here, docks and other constructions being arranged for present levels and not lower or higher ones in either lake.

The Commercial club of Superior has already taken action and is now awaiting action on the part of other organizations. Fort William, Port Arthur, Marquette, Houghton, Ashland and Two Harbors will likely be invited to take part in the protest to the international joint waterways commission, which has the matter in hand.

While Mr. Spellman, like most other people, does not expect to see such permission granted, giving the members of the international commission credit for possessing common sense, still he feels that protest should be made.

"If the ports affected," said he, "should view the matter with indifference, there is no telling what the commission might do, and as a matter of fact, if the citizens of such ports showed no interest the commission would be justified in granting the request of the Michigan Northern Power company. The matter is far too serious to pass unheeded. Suppose it should come about. Almost every dock at the Head of the Lakes would have to be rebuilt, basements along the water front would be flooded and in stormy weather even the first floors might be.

"As to Park Point, pretty soon we would have no Park Point for with the continual wash of a high level, augmented by the battering of occasional storms, the natural breakwater which makes Duluth harbor would be washed away. That would mean the end of what is now the Duluth-Superior harbor as a harbor of refuge below the interstate bridge. Strong protest must be made and the commission must be impressed with the seriousness of probable results."

GOVERNMENT-OWNED WIRE SERVICE URGED BY INVESTIGATORS

Vail, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, by his statement that the telephone business must be "under common control," and "sufficiently strong to constitute practically one system, inter-communicating, inter-dependent, universal," has himself pointed out that the most efficient telephone service can be attained only under a condition of monopoly.

Text of Report.

The report says:

"The private monopoly has no incentive to extend its facilities to unprofitable territory, but the government must serve all the people. This universal service is accomplished by the equalization of rates.

"In fixing rates, the policy of this government is to superimpose no charge for taxation, but only to see to it that the service as a whole is self-supporting. The private monopoly, on the other hand, must make a profit, and in providing for this, tends to increase its rates to the highest price that will not, by so greatly restricting the volume of business, impair the aggregate profit.

"It is obvious that the longer the acquisition by the government of these facilities is deferred, the greater will be the cost. Moreover, it is economic waste to permit private enterprise to build up vast properties that must eventually be taken over by the government in resuming its constitutional monopoly, at a cost out of all proportion to the value of the parts of such properties that may be utilized to advantage in the postal system.

Present Conditions.

"So far as the public generally is concerned, the entire telegraph service is owned and operated by two telegraph companies. Telegraph facilities have not been extended to the small towns and villages along with the government postal facilities, nor has the cost of the service been reduced in the inverse proportion that would seem warranted by the increasing volume of business transacted. Neither has the volume of business in this country, in proportion to the population, been as great as in countries where this facility is owned and operated governmentally.

"It is needless to enter into the manifold advantages and benefits that would accrue to the people from a universal telephone service. As it has done with the mails, it is the duty of the government to make this facility available to all of its citizens without discrimination.

Capital Totals $900,000,000.

"According to the best available data, the capitalization of the long distance and toll lines represents approximately $200,000,000 and the capitalization of the entire commercial network approximately $900,000,000 The cost to the government would be less than the appraised value, since it would be undesirable for the government to purchase the real estate holdings of the companies. Exchanges could be leased until accommodations could be provided in the postoffices and stations."

The report was sent to the senate in response to a resolution introduced by Senator Norris.

TAFT IS GUEST OF CANADA'S GOVERNOR.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 31.—William H. Taft arrived in Ottawa last night from Toronto, where he spent "two of the happiest days of my life," he said, and is the guest of the duke and duchess of Connaught at Government house. He was greeted on arrival by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, chief justice, and officers of the Ottawa Canadian club.

"I think it is possible," said Mr. Taft, "for general arbitration to be brought about that will ultimately lead to an arbitration court in which all nations of the world shall be able to lodge complaints against one another, with the hope of having them settled. Of course we cannot bring this into effect at once, as there will have to be several treaties made between nations, and the consummation of this object may be far in the future."

Mr. Taft will leave for New Haven this afternoon.

FORTY-ONE DEAD IS FINAL SUMMARY OF VICTIMS OF MONROE

Federal investigation were taken early today, on instructions from the department of commerce at Washington. Assistant Secretary Sweet of the department of commerce yesterday ordered a sweeping inquiry into the causes and circumstances that led to the catastrophe. The inquiry will be directed along three distinct lines, as follows:

Whether the masters of both vessels used every possible precaution to prevent the tragedy, including a low speed headway and continual use of fog horns.

Whether the terrible death rate among the passengers of the Monroe was due in any way to a lack of discipline among the wrecked ship's crew.

Whether the two vessels were in their proper positions prior to the collision.

Raise Question of Panic.

The question of a possible panic on the part of the crew is one to which the Federal authorities will direct their attention. Survivors, however, declare that little, if any, confusion followed the collision. All of them praise the crew for their splendid behavior.

P. B. Walker of New York, president and general manager of the Old Dominion Steamship company, arrived here today from Washington prepared to take up the investigation.

Some of the survivors, worn out by exposure and hardship, spent restless nights or lay on hospital cots, while others were on the way to their homes today. Some of them were recounting their horrible experiences of yesterday and gave graphic descriptions of the collision and the events that followed.

The Nantucket, which lay in her berth at the dock in a badly battered condition, was a solemn reminder of yesterday's sea tragedy. She was viewed by hundreds of the curious.

Milwaukee Man Saved.

W. C. Clausen of Milwaukee, Miss Hilda Thackery, leading lady of the Macarla Theatrical company; Miss Leona Soule of the same company, who had previously been identified as Miss Seville; F. C. Davis of Brooklyn and George Williamson of New York, who had been reported missing, are among the saved. Miss Thackery was removed to a hospital. She continued to cry "The Water! The water!"

W. C. Clausen of 549 Sixty-fourth avenue, Milwaukee, came ashore from the Nantucket wrapped in a blanket and went to the hospital with one foot slightly hurt. Clausen said the first he knew of the accident was when water came in upon him in his stateroom. He barely had time to get out and adjust a life preserver.

Capt. Johnson of the Monroe came from the Nantucket much depressed. He said he felt in no condition to talk and would wait until he can make an official report to his company.

O'Connell in Pajamas.

James O'Connell, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, was in his pajamas and bathrobe when he came off the steamer.

The following statement concerning the sinking of the Monroe was given out by Assistant General Manager E. E. Palen of the Old Dominion Steamship company:

"The Monroe left Norfolk at 7:40 and ran into a light fog when outside of the capes, and was proceeding cautiously on her route to New York, blowing a fog whistle every minute by an automatic time clock. She passed two vessels, stopping in each case when she heard their signals.

"When about half way between Cape Charles lightship and the Winter Quarter lightship she heard the fog whistle of the Nantucket off her starboard bow. She stopped and blew two whistles, which were responded to by the Nantucket. She again blew two whistles, which were not responded to, and imemdiately thereafter the crash came.

Life Rafts Saved Some.

"Capt. Johnson, who had been in the pilot house for several hours, immediately gave notice to the steward to awaken all the passengers, though the passengers were at that time rushing out of their staterooms. They were told to come at once to the boat deck.

"The life rafts on the forward deck of the vessel floated as the boat sank, and were instrumental in saving many lives.

"There was no panic at any time, nor was there any failure to take anybody aboard the lifeboats who could be found."

E. Walker, president and general manager of the Old Dominion line, through James Leyland, superintendent of the main line division, issued a statement in which he said that Capt. E. E. Johnson, master of the Monroe, launched lifeboat No. 1 with the aid of eight volunteers and then picked up twenty-seven persons who had jumped into the water just before the liner went under, making the total saved by this boat thirty-five.

Equally good work was done by First Officer Guy Horsley, who, after launching boat No. 3 with ten passengers, rescued twenty-four persons who had jumped from the deck of the steamer. Lifeboat No. 1 was smashed as she landed in the water, and No. 2 capsized.

Fourteen persons were saved by two boats from the Nantucket. One of the life rafts of the Monroe proved the means of saving the lives of six, while another saved four persons.

Second Officer J. E. Gatley went below immediately after the collision to ascertain the extent of the damage done. He found most of the passengers on the promenade deck. He tried to get them on the boat deck, but did not succeed. When the Monroe went down, he floated off on a ladder and was later picked up.

Gave Life Preservers to Women.

The law of the sea that women and children must be saved first cost the chief wireless operator of the Monroe his life. He was standing by boat No. 3 when he saw a woman without a life belt, and promptly gave her his. Mr. Walker's statement counts him among the dead. The woman was saved.

One of the passengers, a mining engineer, followed the example of the chief wirless operator. What became of him has not yet been learned.

To the list of those saved have been added, the statement says, the names of Mrs. J. M. Ray, E. P. Lyons and B. B. Vernon. Due to the fact that they were unconscious from shock when picked up, the names of these passengers could not be learned earlier.

The members of the crew known to have been drowned are:

Third assistant engineer, chief wireless operator, a quartermaster, two deck watchmen and two bow lookouts.

When the presence of another vessel was suspected by the officers of the Monroe, the statement adds, the vessel was immediately stopped and the whistle was blown once. The signal was answered by the Nantucket with two whistles. In reply to this the Monroe whistled twice, being answered in the same manner by the Nantucket. The Monroe kept her whistle going, but received no further signals, it is declared. A few seconds later the vessel was rammed by the Nantucket abaft the starboard side.

"Don't Tell Me He's Gone."

A dramatic incident in connection with the sinking of the Monroe occurred here at the ouice of Capt. James Leyland, superintendent of the Old Dominion lines. Mrs. J. E. Gately, wife of the second officer of the Monroe, age 23, and mother of three children, accompanied by the sister of Gately, stepped up to Capt. Leyland's desk with blanched face, unable to utter a word. She turned appealing eyes to her companion, who was on the verge of breaking down, but found no comfort.

"Don't tell me he's gone," she finally managed to gasp. "It's more than we can stand. We have been near your office for several hours, but have been afraid to inquire what became of him."

Capt. Leyland could do no more than say that he hoped that her husband had been saved by some passing steamer. Sadly the two women turned away. They had hardly boarded a trolley car, however, when word came to the office that the name of Gately had been placed among the saved. Two clerks were immediately sent after the women to tell them the good news.

out by breaking his window. The car door was jammed so that it was impossible to open it, but Reynolds obtained an ax and broke it in and aided in getting the frightened women and children to shelter.

Saved by Steel Car.

The lives of the passengers in the overturned sleeper were saved by the fact that it was a steel car. Their injuries were caused by their injuries were caused by being thrown from their berths. The engine and two baggage cars remained on the rails. Two wooden coaches left the rails, but remained upright, as did the following two steel sleepers. The third sleeper overturned in the ditch, and this is the car from which all the injured were taken. The next car, a wooden sleeper, left the track, but remained at an angle of 45 degrees.

The reports that wreckers planned the destruction of both the passenger and the freight train are denied by railroad officials, who state that the freight cars climbed the rail because of snow and ice. Traffic was tied up for two hours while a wrecking crew got the fruit cars off.

Turned Out in Nightclothes.

A partial list of the injured follows:

Miss Pearl Holmes, St. Louis, internal injuries.

J. G. McGee, Arkansas, internal injuries.

W. B. Smith, New York, cut and burned.

Fred Wehmiller, St. Louis, leg broken and back sprained.

L. Barnes, Malta, Mont., ribs fractured.

Most of those injured were in the sleeping cars, which they were forced to leave in their nightclothes and seek shelter in nearby farmhouses.

finally moved it out of the drift, while the prisoners jeered.

A derailed Halsted street car was lifted bodily by passengers and put back on the rails.

The suburb of Cragin was without street car service and some of its residents walked seven miles through the drifts to the nearest lines.

Michigan Trains Stalled.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 31.—The most severe Lower Michigan snow storm of the winter prevailed over most of that section of the state today. In several places trains were stalled, highways badly drifted and telegraph and telephone wires crippled. Near Saginaw, a Pere Marquette passenger train ran into the rear end of a freight train, which is said to have been stalled in a snow drift. Three members of the freight train's crew were injured and traffic was delayed several hours.

Indiana Snowbound.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 31.—As a result of the snow storm over Northern Indiana last night, street car interurban traffic was badly crippled and telephone and telegraph communication was interrupted. The snowfall was about ten inches, with six-foot drifts.

Ohio Trains Impeded.

Toledo, Ohio, Jan. 31.—A forty-mile gale out of the northwest, accompanied by blinding sleet that lasted nearly all Friday night and this morning turned into snow, put wire service out of commission between Toledo and Cleveland and south of here, and impeded the schedules of trains east and west.

SAYS SPIES ARE IN MINERS' MEETING

White of Mine Workers Makes Charge at Convention.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—Delegates to the convention of the United Mine Workers of America today were urged to aid in expediting the work that remains to be done before final adjournment can be taken. The program originally called for the closing of the meeting late today, but it is believed it will be impossible to finish by that time.

President John P. White, in asking that all the delegates aid in expediting the work, yesterday declared he had information that spies of a labor organization were present on the floor doing all in their power to cause dissension. He also said that men paid by other interests were attending the convention for the same purpose.

LOCK CASHIERS IN VAULT; ROB BANK

Two Louisiana Robbers Get Away With Over $4,000.

Logansport, La., Jan. 31.—Two masked robbers entered the State Bank of Logansport yesterday, covered the cashier, Smith Price, and his assistant, T. T. Calhoun, with pistols, robbed the safe of between $4,000 and $5,000, locked the officials in the vault and escaped.

STRAFFACIA WILL BE SENTENCED

Slayer of Rossi Likely to Get Benefit of Indeterminate Plan.

Joseph Straffacia, who on the night of March 2, 1913, shot and fatally wounded Frank Rossi following a quarrel over a game of cards at the Straffacia home, will probably be sentenced for his crime by Judge Bert Fesler in district court this afternoon.

Straffacia was tried twice on a charge of murder in the first degree. The first jury disagreed and the second found him guilty of the crime of manslaughter in the first degree. Under this finding of the jury, the court will not fix a definite sentence. Straffacia will probably be sentenced to serve from seven to thirty years in the penitentiary on the indeterminate plan.

Lawyers Disagree.

Testimony was taken in Judge Bert Fesler's division of the district court this morning in the lawsuit which is pending between J. De La Motte and J. W. Reynolds, two local attorneys who are at loggerheads over the proposition of splitting fees obtained in connection with the White Iron Lake fire litigation.

The cases were originally handled by Mr. La Motte. When disbarment procedings were instituted against him he turned them over to Mr. Reynolds who was acting at that time as his attorney in the disbarment matter. An agreement was made at that time as to the matter of fees. Mr. De La Motte's claim now is that that agreement was not kept by Mr. Reynolds.

BUTCHART LOSES HIS DAMAGE SUIT

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned yesterday by the jury in the damage suit brought against Martin West, a house mover, by Ray W. Butchart, automobile owner and chauffeur.

Butchart sued for $1,770. He claimed that on the early morning of May 30, 1913, while returning from Superior with his car, which he was driving north on Garfield avenue, he collided with a house which was being moved along the avenue.

Butchart asserted that the obstruction in the street was not properly protected. He claimed his car was damaged to the extent of $1,000, that a cut which he received on his head was worth $500 and that the time lost while the car was in the repair shop was worth $270.

NO "LIZZIE BOYS" WANTED

Librarian Refuses to Bar "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" When Buying New Books.

"We don't want any 'Lizzie' boys in Duluth."

For that reason there is to be no ban on "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" or any other of the Mark Twain books for children at the Duluth public library. The elimination of these books in many libraries of the country on the alleged grounds that they are not proper, meets with no sympathy from Miss Frances Earhart, local librarian.

The Duluth library has just received more than 500 new juvenile books, recently ordered by Miss Earhart, and one of the chief features of the collection is several sets of Mark Twain. Yes, and they include "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn." Miss Earhart expressed the opinion today that Mark Twain was one of the most popular authors among boys, and also that his books were among the most wholesome of juvenile reading.

"We don't want any 'Lizzie' boys in Duluth," said Miss Earhart. "The boys like the books and will receive no harm from reading them. We have purchased the Twain books for the main library and also for the West end and West Duluth branches."

There are many children's favorite books in the lot. There is "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which blooms perennially; "Swiss Family Robinson," which is a delight to boys and girls; the Uncle Remus stories, "Hans Brinker of the Silver Skates," "Toby Tyler," "Robin Hood," "Pioneer Tales," "The American Government" by Haskin, and scores of others.

In her selection Miss Earhart has steered away from the innumerable juvenile series, boosted strongly by many publishers but receiving scant approval from the best critics.

The new books of fiction of which there will be more than 500, will fill a long-felt want. Miss Earhart says that she has been unable to keep the public supplied with such books as "The Blazed Trail" by White, "The Virginian" by Wister, and other books by such authors as Fox, Parker and others. The fact that these books have had a long run only increases the demand at the desk of the librarian.

WOULD BUILD FOR FUTURE

Planning Makes Beautiful and Prosperous City, Says Municipal Expert.

Recommends More Parks and Playgrounds; Talks of "Model" Cities.

Proper city planning means more beautiful cities, larger families, healthier babies, more sanitary conditions, a happier people and greater financial gain, said Prof. L. S. Smith, director of the highway division of the University of Wisconsin in an illustrated lecture at the West Duluth Commercial club last night.

"Don't let the real estate men plan your city for you," urged Prof. Smith. "Secure the advice and assistance of an expert, as is done by progressive European cities. Lay the foundations of the city that is to be here 50 or 100 years hence. Give the real estate men a free hand and they will take the profits for today without regard to the effect of their activity upon the future. I know, for I am a director of a large real estate firm in Madison, and if no restrictions are placed upon us, we are no better than the rest. In European cities builders have to conform to the plan prepared in advance by the municipal government. In America personal liberty is held in such high regard that we say that if a man owns his land he can do as he pleases with it. But I believe the time is coming when we will follow the European idea."

Tells of "Garden City."

Prof. Smith explained the "garden city" plan which is being worked out in England. These model towns are located within an hour's ride of the big cities. The homes are built by capitalists who are satisfied with a return of 5 per cent upon their investment. The houses are generaly of stone or brick, with tile roofs, and are thoroughly modern throughout. They rent for $50 to $75 a year. Each has ample garden room and an abundance of open spaces, for under the contract but one-third of the ground can be used for building purposes. The other two-thirds are cultivated or are transformed into parks or recreation grounds. The residents are largely workmen employed in nearby factories.

Shown European Scenes.

Prof. Smith accompanied his talk with a series of photographs of European cities which have been designed by experts and many views of England's garden cities.

Referring to Duluth he asserted that the city could have been saved millions of dollars if it had been properly designed. Among other things, he said, that the blocks should have been longer and wider and that more space should have been devoted to parks and playgrounds where they could be utilized by the middle and working classes.

Answering the request of the club that the city institute mandamus proceedings to compel the Northern Pacific railroad to construct a subway at Smithville, City Clerk C. S. Palmer forwarded a copy of the resolution passed by the council giving the road until June 1 to build an underground crossing at that point. Commissioner Murchison sent a statement giving the history of the Polk street sewer. Both were referred to committees for further consideration and report.

FEW MENTALLY PERFECT CITIZENS

The mentally perfect citizens of West Duluth are few and far between, if the test of the Race Betterment congress is to be taken as a criterion of efficiency. Several attempts by West Duluthians this morning to cross the letter "a" out of the list of letters published in The Herald resulted in a dismal failure to come close to the time limit, 30 seconds.

Of the several attempts, J. H. Usenski came closest to the mark, striking out the 101 letters in 80 seconds; while L. J. Brotherton took the longest time, 125 seconds. "Joe" said he could do it next time in much less time if he only had a little practice.

Charles Iltis wanted to bet a house and lot that he could strike out all the letters in the time limit but he wanted to draw a line through the entire list of letters.

WEST DULUTH CURLERS

George J. Mallory is one of the "old timers" at the Western Curling rink. In addition to enjoying a reputation of being "some curler" on the ice, he has also an enviable reputation of being one of the best "fireside" curlers.

Mr. Mallory can tell more stories of "how the game should be played" than any other man at the rink. His "post mortem" is taken generally by other members as authentic.

GEORGE J. MALLORY.

Mr. Mallory is skipping one of the strong rinks at the club. His rink will be one of the strong contenders for the Esterly and Henricksen cups. The rink has been put out of the Bagley and Union Match events, but Mr. Mallory said that the members of his rink did not care for either of these trophies.

The members of his rink are: Maloney, lead; Mallory, Jr., second, and L. A. Barnes, third.

Three games were played last night at the Western Curling rink. Mel. Olson's rink defeated the strong Iltis aggregation by a score of 12 to 6 in the Union Match event. This places the Olson rink into the finals of the event.

Simpson won from Sullivan by a score of 8 to 6 in the Esterly event, and Wade's rink defeated Quinn by a score of 13 to 6 in the Henricksen event. The latter game places the Wade rink in the semi-finals of this event. The draw in the Henricksen is as follows:

Preliminary—	First Round—	Semi-finals—
Iltis	Wieland
Zauft
Evered	Mallory
Olson
Simpson	Brown
Sullivan
Wade	Quinn
Judson	Wade	Wade

FINES SHOW A DECREASE

Municipal Court Not Self-Sustaining for First Time.

Falling Off in Receipts Due to Law Enforcement.

The annual report of the municipal court, submitted today to Mayor W. I. Prince, does not contain a statement of disbursements, but a comparative statement of receipts and expenditures will show a deficit of some $4,000 to $5,000.

In other years the municipal court's receipts have exceeded its expenses, being more than self-sustaining. During 1913 the total receipts were $16,166.78, of which $11,839.88 came from the criminal division and $4,326.90 from the civil branch.

The budget allowance for 1914 is $22,700 and the expenses for last year ran fairly close to that amount.

"The decrease in the receipts of the municipal court was largely due to the dropping off of the criminal business, which may be attributed to the law enforcement policy which has been adopted by the commission," said Mayor Prince this morning. "Next year I expect that there will be a further decrease in the receipts of the police court through fines with a corresponding increase in the cost to the general fund of the city."

In 1912 the annual report of the municipal courts shows the receipts to have been $20,256.36, as against expenditures of $19,024.96.

During 1913 the court handled 5,138 criminal cases and 2,090 civil cases were filed. Of the criminal cases, 2,732 or about half, received suspended sentences, 2,176 being for persons arrested for drunkenness. For that offense, by far the heaviest of any other violations, 756 were committed to the county jail, 20 were dismissed, 42 forfeited bail and 310 paid fines aggregating $1,732.76. The report contains a detailed statement of the crimes charged against prisoners and the disposition of their cases.

Through its extension division the University of Kansas will give courses of lectures on moral education in a number of the largest cities of the state during the fall of 1913.

WILL LAW WORK OUT?

Cashman Distance Tariff Rates Subject of General Discussion.

Conflict Between Country Press and City Traffic Men; Case in Point.

The discussion of the Cashman distance tariff law seems to be unceasing, and traffic men in general, whether connected with railroads, municipalities or wholesale houses are unanimous in condemning it. The country press is almost unanimous in supporting it, claiming that the cities do not want it because "it gives the smaller towns a chance."

Whether the traffic men are right or not will be demonstrated after the law will have worked for a while. So far the working out of the law has not been satisfactory in many instances, but Senator T. H. Cashman of Owatonna, the author of the law, claims in letters he has written, that the railroads are working with a view of discrediting the law. This is denied by the roads' officials, who claim that the law cannot be worked out equitably.

Interstate Rates.

It is pointed out that in case a manufacturer in a small town—or any town for that matter—finds competition from outside of the state he is "up against it" for the interstate rates are not changed and it gives, in many instances, great advantage to the dealer or manufacturer outside of the state. The Minneapolis Tribune has the following illustration:

"The New Ulm Review has made an investigation of its own of the working of the Cashman distance tariff in that city. The chief industries of New Ulm are milling and the quarrying of building stone, both involving shipments in car lots.

"There are two large mills in New Ulm. Both buy large quantities of wheat and other grain, but most of this is ground under what is known as the 'milling in transit' rate. Under this rate the New Ulm mills ship their products as interstate commerce and the distance tariff does not apply. Hence, there is no benefit one way or the other.

"But the quarrymen notice a difference. Under the distance tariff they find they are able to ship to any city or town in the state as far removed as Minneapolis for precisely the same rate. Under the old rate there was a slight difference in favor of Minneapolis. The chief market for New Ulm stone is the Twin Cities, so the quarrymen see no benefit in a lower rate to the other towns, or in a higher rate to Minneapolis.

"The difference amounts to $5 to $7 a car over the former rate, which in the aggregate, counts into the thousands of dollars. The Twin City consumers must pay about 18 cents a cubic yard more for New Ulm stone, or buy stone elsewhere. If the New Ulm quarrymen cannot make the consumers pay the difference, they will have to reduce the price.

"The Review inclines to think that on general merchandise there may be a slight advantage under the distance rates. But in its larger aspect, the reasoning simmers down to the oft-stated principle of transportation that the actual distance a car is hauled has little to do with the cost of hauling. Cars of coke from iron range reach Two Harbors almost by gravity; it is down grade all the way. What if the cars had to carry as heavy a load back to the mines?"

The Drs. McClaran have removed their offices from 124 West Superior street to Suite 424 and 425 New Jersey Building.

FALSE FIRE ALARM FRIGHTENS CROWD

A crowd of people who packed the large assembly hall of the Superior high school, while witnessing a play given by the senior class, was thrown into confusion for a short time at the close of the play. Some boys wishing to play a prank on the crowd began ringing the fire alarm causing many of those present to become frightened. Members of the faculty who were present were able to quell the disorder before the crowd began making any rush for the doors.

RESORT KEEPERS TO APPEAR IN PERSON.

Resort keepers will hereafter appear in person in the police court to pay their regular monthly fines. This morning warrants were being issued for the various keepers of resorts, and these will have to appear before the court this afternoon or Monday. The warrants are for the purpose of being able to show court records of their arrest and subsequent fines. It is also intimated that the fines will be about the same as formerly, namely $50 and costs, or a total of $53.

Judge French Elected.

Judge J. B. French was elected chairman of the Douglas county Republican committee at its meeting last night held in the city hall. He will succeed Philip Perkins, who recently was appointed county judge. J. S. Gates was elected vice chairman.

GETS $200 A MONTH ADDITIONAL ALIMONY

Mrs. Clara D. Pease Will Share Former Husband's Fortune.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Clara D. Pease, former wife of Edwin A. Pease of Aurora, Ill., was granted an increase of alimony from $75 to $275 a month by Judge Scanlan in the circuit court here today. The new rate of alimony is based on a recent inheritance by Pease of property, the estimated income from which is $16,000 a year.

The increase is to be figured from Oct. 1, 1913, and $800 counsel fee was allowed Mrs. Pease.

Pease was given ninety days in which to file an appeal, and gave a $10,000 bond.

GERMAN HEIRESS IS BRITON'S BRIDE

J. H. MITFORD AND WIFE.

The biggest wedding Berlin has ever known outside royal circles was the marriage of Fraulein Marie Anne von Friedlander Ful to John H. Mitford recently. He is the fourth son of Lord Redesdale of England. She is the daughter and heir of the "coal king" of Berlin, who is said to be worth $25,000,000. It is estimated that $100,000 was spent on the celebration of the evening before the wedding and on the wedding itself.

HOW HE WROTE "THE INSIDE OF THE CUP"

Latest Novel of Winston Churchill Had Its Inception in a Political Campaign.

Rev. Herbert A. Jump in the Congregationalist: "I've just been reading a remarkable article on the Lord's Supper by Henry Preserved Smith."

With these words, somewhat unexpected on the lips of a popular novelist of the day and one of America's foremost progressive politicians, he opened the conversation. It was at the summer home he had rented on Lake Tahoe, in the Sierras, the place where, according to Mark Twain, the air is such as angels breathe.

"I read a great many books getting ready to write 'The Inside of the Cup,'" he confessed. "And besides that I talked to clergymen at conventions and over the dinner table, to business men on the street and when they sat in the seat of the scornful—in short, to everybody I could capture who had any light to throw on the problem set forth in that novel. Three years I spent on the book. Usually I can finish up a story in two years."

"The Inside of the Cup" is the religious fruitage in fiction of a red blooded American citizen's political experience. Probably no novel was ever born precisely as this one was. According to my recollection of Mr. Churchill's words, the tale of its genesis was in substance as follows:

His Experience in New Hampshire.

"Seven years ago I was outside this whole modernist movement and more or less indifferent to it. Unexpectedly I found myself in the New Hampshire legislature. As I began to look round I discovered the politics of the state, as of other states, were dominated by a railroad. The corruption was a thing of immemorial antiquity. It was universally taken for granted. But somehow it got into the heads of a few of us that the people were not having a square deal. So we began to fight, thirteen of us, and our opponents tried to make the number unlucky. It was an inspiring battle. They pitched into us for idealists, and slandered and abused us to their hearts' content.

"And then a strange thing came to pass. We discovered that the more we were persecuted, the more we found ourselves gaining higher levels of experience. And when I began to ask myself what it all meant, suddenly the answer came, this is religion. Any experience that elevates a soul into a sublimer life is a spiritual experience. When a man finds a cause he can live for absorbingly and for which, indeed, he would even care to die, then his personality becomes incandescent. It can fire other personalities. And this passionate enthusiasm for something is what to a true man makes life worth living."

Were In a Moral War.

He had been speaking with the fervor of a preacher. As he went on to analyize with keen insight that experience, it was the student who took the floor.

"About the time that I saw the really religious import of the struggle against monopoly and special privilege I was asked to be a candidate for governor. I went campaigning all over the state. Soon I realized that the hope of our cause lay in identifying it with the religious consciousness of the people. The war we were embarked upon was a moral war. But alas! the religious consciousness seemed to have gotten into a compartment by itself. What should be the logical instrument of its conversion? Through the church, of course—came the instinctive answer. The church is the custodian of religious values. The function of the church should be to identify religion with life.

"But soon it became clear that the church as at present constituted was impotent to inspire this moral sense in any broad and universal way. Its impotence was due to its failure to have the ear of the people. It was looked upon by many as a class institution. It was smiled at indulgently as a sociological back number. It was a mill trying to grind with water that is past. It was exclusively busying itself with dead theological discussions. Absorbed in its post-mortem enthusiasms, it was being passed by in pity, contempt or indifference by the rank and file. The function of the church must be interpreted. Its ideals must be vivified. It must be called back to real things. It was with this problem in mind that I wrote 'The Inside of the Cup.'"

Does not this narrative of its origin all but canonize Mr. Churchill's latest novel as one of the "books of the prophets?"

Optimistic Regarding the Church.

Mr. Churchill is boldly an optimist with respect to the church. Laughingly he admitted that his story concluded before it was time to report on the final outcome of John Hodder's experiment. "That is where we novelists have the advantage over your preachers. We can control our facts; you cannot control yours. But"—and his voice took on a deep seriousness as he moved into his confession of personal faith—"whatever happened in St. John's parish after the story ended, I believe the church is to last, and it is to become more democratic. To every spiritual reality there must be permanently some institutional or material symbol. Let us grant that the church is far from being as democratic as it ought to be. Let us admit that in our cities the plate is passed by well-to-do business men oftener than by wage earners. This is merely because the church is so frequently misused by those who have the control of it. The vested interests which largely finance the church promptly clap the extinguisher upon any too radical exponent of social Christianity.

"Organized Protestantism today is somewhat like a ship temporarily in the possession of mutineers. It began as an institution of the people; it now is an institution of the favored classes, but it will become again an institution of the people. This is demanded by its founder. Many enthusiastic letters commending my story have come to me from Socialists. What does this mean but that a vast number of the socially serious minds of our age want the church, if only it can be in truth a church of the people, by the people, for the people? The democratizing of the church, moreover, will come from a more perfect appropriation of the message of Jesus. Some of the truth he uttered two thousand years ago is only now for the first time penetrating our consciousness. Probably there is more truth yet to come—like the light of distant stars that has been on the way to us for centuries, but it still far off. And even the philosophers are helping us to understand the Christ. Many of the new school of philosophers are building their universe on the point of view of the Nazarene."

DULUTH CURLERS OUT OF PORT ARTHUR 'SPIEL.

Port Arthur, Ont., Jan. 31.—Shaver of Virginia is the only outside ring that remains in the bonspiel events. Yesterday afternoon Dunlop of Duluth was beaten 12 to 3 by J. The finals in all of the events will be fought out among the local rinks, unless Shaver puts some of the local curlers out of the running.

FEW REBELS LEFT IN CAPE HAITIEN.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Only a small force of revolutionists remains in Cape Haitien, Haiti, and the town is quiet. Most of the rebels there have left for Port Au Prince, where the next developments are expected. Commander Bostwick of the gunboat Nashville so reported today.

MEN'S RIGHTS DISREGARDED

So Says Judge Cullen in Talk to New York Bar.

Minnesota Law and One Court Decision Are Criticized.

New York, Jan. 31.—Military intervention in civil affairs, with the sanction of state governments, and modern political tendencies generally have fostered in courts, in legislatures and in the people themselves a disregard for the most fundamental principles of human rights, claimed Edgar M. Cullen, former chief judge of the court of appeals of New York, in an address last night at the annual meeting of the New York Bar association.

Speaking of recent cases in which military power had usurped the right of civil authority, Judge Cullen said:

"I always believed that the subordination of the military power to the civil was an axiom in a free country, and the first cases to which I shall call your attention involve a repudiation of that principle. They arose in the state of West Virginia in 1912.

West Virginia Case.

There had been great violence and disorder during a strike on the part of the coal miners, and the law had been openly defied. The governor of the state suspended the writ of habeas corpus and declared by proclamation a state of war to exist in a portion of the country of Kanawha. The civil courts were open and unobstructed, the country town in which they were held being outside of what the courts of that state have called the "martial zone." The petitioners had been tried and sentenced by military commission. They sought their release on habeas corpus, which was denied them by the supreme court of the state by a divided court."

This, said Judge Cullen, had been done in defiance of the Constitutions of the United States and West Virginia, the latter providing that "the military shall be subordinate to the civil power; and no citizen, unless engaged in the military service of the state, shall be tried or punished by any military court for any offense that is cognizable by the civil courts of the state."

At Mercy of Governor.

"In such cases," said the speaker, "the constitutional guarantees of life, liberty and property have ceased to be operative and efficacious.

"The practice placed the life and liberty of every citizen of a state at the mercy of the governor, who might declare a state of war, whether conditions justified the step or not. The decisions of the courts dealing with the case exalted the military power beyond any height hitherto known in this country."

The speaker also questioned the value of the Minnesota law which provides that details of the execution of a criminal shall not be printed in a newspaper, when the Constitution of the state says "the liberty of the press shall forever remain inviolate." He argued that incompetency or brutality on the part of the officer charged with the execution could not, under the circumstances, be brought to the attention of the public.

Criticized Minnesota Decision.

Judge Cullen cited a recent decision of a Minnesota court, which held that an action would lie against a rich man who opened a barber shop with the motive of injuring another, and not for the sake of his own profit. Under this ruling, he said, it would be possible to proceed against an automobile manufacturer who recently admitted his employes to share in his profits, because other manufacturers might claim that the example set was exciting their employes to discontent, might lead to strikes.

W. J. BURNS WILL SPEAK AT LYCEUM MONDAY

Greatest Living Detective to Discuss Municipal Problems of Duluth.

Problems of the greatest interest to the people of Duluth will be discussed next Monday evening by William J. Burns, conceded to be the greatest living detective, in his lecture on "American Citizenship" at the Lyceum theater.

One of the first big cases he had, was the "mystery arson" cases of St. Louis. There had been a number of serious fires in that city, the origin of which was shrouded in mystery. None of the detectives who had attempted to solve the mystery, had been able to secure the slightest clew. It was suggested to young Burns that he try his hand at solving the problem and much to the surprise of every one he had the culprits behind the bars in a few weeks.

This established Burns' reputation. He entered the secret service of the United States government, and in the words of his chief, John Wilkie, he became "the star" of the service. For twenty-two years he was in the service of the government, and some of the greatest cases in the history of crime in this country were handled by him. The Ohio legislative scandals, the San Francisco graft cases, the Oregon land fraud cases, the Los Angeles dynamite outrages, and the Rosenthal murder case in New York, for which Police Lieutenant Becker is now awaiting execution, are among the recent and more noted of the cases that have made the name of Burns a terror to evil doers everywhere.

In 1911 Mr. Burns was made the detective of the American Bankers' association, having more than 11,000 banks in its membership, thus making it the largest single client in the world.

BISHOP DISPROVES SUFFRAGETTE STORY

Visits Holloway Jail and Finds Prisoner Not Suffering.

London, Jan. 31.—The militant suffragettes' appeal to Rev. Arthur Ingram, bishop of London, to take up the cudgels against forcible feeding, has failed. The bishop visited Holloway jail, in accordance with his promise and with the consent of the home secretary. His investigation revealed nothing to justify the militants' charges that three of the suffragette prisoners in Holloway were suffering excruciating torture while being fed.

The bishop talked with Miss Rachael Peace, one of the suffragette prisoners. He discussed with her a statement made by Miss Florence Ansell, who after her release from Holloway told a suffragette meeting that she had heard shrieks and moans twice daily from Miss Peace's cell.

No Signs of Distress.

The bishop, in a letter to the Women's Social and Political union, says:

"I found Miss Peace in the 'remand hospital,' which is 300 yards from the 'convicted hospital' where Miss Ansell was lying. Miss Peace lay on a comfortable bed, fully dressed and in a well warmed cell. Her face was fully rounded and she showed no signs of emaciation or distress."

Miss Peace informed Bishop Ingram that she had never shrieked, and had never been put into a padded cell. She is undergoing an eighteen months' sentence for arson.

The only complaint Miss Peace made was that she had not been released, like the other suffragettes, under the provision of the "cat and mouse act." Bishop Ingram informed Miss Peace that he was authorized by the home secretary to tell her she would be released immediately if she would undertake to refrain from committing criminal acts of militancy.

Would Give No Promise.

Miss Peace replied that she was unable conscientiously to give this promise.

The bishop's report on his visit concluded:

"She said nothing to me about forcible feeding. If Miss Ansell heard shrieks, they could not have been uttered by Miss Peace. • • • The fears you express in regard to her condition are not borne out by the facts."

Clark in Iowa Campaign.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Speaker Clark left yesterday for Muscatine, Iowa, where tonight he will address a campaign meeting for Henry Volmen, Democratic nominee for congress to succeed the late Representative Pepper.

THREE DAMAGE SUITS FILED

Workmen Demand $38,050 of Railroads and Shenango Furnace Co.

Railway companies are defendants in three personal injury and wrongful death actions filed yesterday with the clerk of the district court. The claims aggregate $38,050 in the three suits.

The Great Northern Railway company is defendant in two of the actions. In one case, Gust Kapsotes, track man, is asking $20,000 for injuries which he received on Oct. 25 last and Abel Laitinen is seeking $10,550 for injuries which he sustained on Sept. 28 last.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company and the Shenango Furnace company are joint defendants in an alleged wrongful death action brought by Steve Malkovich, administrator of the estate of Dan Malkovich, who was killed May 8, 1913, while employed at the Webb mine, Hibbing. The maximum of $7,500 damages is being sued for.

Kapsotes, in his suit against the Great Northern alleges that he was inexperienced in his work, which consisted of removing rails from a track under repair in the Great Northern yards at Kelly. One end of a rail swung around and struck him on the leg, fracturing the bones and necessitating treatment at a hospital for thirty-seven days. The company is charged with negligence.

Laitinen declares that he was driving an automobile along the public highway on the day in question, when a train running at a high rate of speed smased into his car and demolished it. He narrowly escaped being killed. As a result of the collision, Laitinen alleges that the left side of his face, nose and lips have been paralyzed.

Dan Malkovich was assisting at the Webb mine in the work of loading ore cars. Something went wrong with one of the cars and it dashed down an incline, striking a loaded car on which Malkovich was stationed. He sustained injuries from which he died eight hours later. Malkovich was 16 years old. The administrator charges that the company was negligent in failing to keep the brakes on the car in proper shape. Malkovich is survived by his parents, three sisters and a brother, for whose benefit the action has been brought.

CHIEF'S DAUGHTER AND HUSBAND FREED.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 31.—Judge R. E. Lewis, in the United States district court here, ordered the jury to bring in a verdict acquitting Laura Cornelius Kellogg, daughter of an Indian chief and prominent in Indian affairs in Oklahoma, and her husband, Owen Kellogg, on a charge of conspiracy to impersonate government officials.

The Kelloggs, who live in Oklahoma, were indicted by a Federal grand jury on the charge that they had secured $150 from officers of a mining company of Denver on the promise that they would obtain from $25,000 to $30,000 of Indian money for investment in stock of the company. After obtaining the $150, it was charged, they represented themselves to be United States Indian agents in charge of $4,000,000 worth of funds of the Indians.

STOCKHOLDER HAS RIGHT TO SEE BOOKS

Steel Corporation Loses on Appeal of New York Case.

New York, Jan. 31.—The right of a stockholder to inspect the books of a corporation in which he has shares is affirmed by the appelate division of the supreme court. The court dismissed the appeal of the United States Steel corporation, directing that William Theile be given access to its records. The corporation maintained that its charter limited the rights of stockholders to inspect its books, but the court decided that the laws of the state overruled this provision.

Theile, who owned only one share of Steel stock, admitted he bought it to qualify in order to bring this suit.

JULIA FLAKE SENT TO GIRLS' SCHOOL.

W. T. BAKER HEIRS TO SHARE EQUALLY.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Charles H. Baker lost his suit to obtain the major portion of the $2,000,000 estate of his father, William T. Baker, by a decision of Judge McKinley in the superior court here.

Baker sued his brother, Howard W. Baker, trustee of the estate; Henry D. Baker, United States consul at Bombay, India; A. M. Baker and Mrs. Bertha W. Alling, the other heirs and children of W. T. Baker, who was at one time president of the Chicago board of trade.

Baker asserted that he was entitled to the major portion of the estate because of his assistance to his father in promoting the Snoqualmie Falls Water Power company, which furnished power and light to Seattle, Tacoma and other cities in the state of Washington.

Judge McKinley held that Baker was entitled to no more than an equal share with the other heirs.

WOMAN'S CHARGES FAIL TO STAND.

South Bend, Wash., Jan. 31.—Eleven residents of the North River country, accused by Mrs. Margaret Ross, prominent as a speaker during the last state and national campaign, of having driven her from her home and burned her cabin several weeks ago, were acquitted by a jury here. The formal charge was intimidation and coercion.

Schuster Acquitted.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 31.—William Schuster was found not guilty of murdering Otto Hoefer, a special policeman. The jury took six ballots and was out four hours.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

THE market recently has been much more favorable for municipal bonds than for some time past. Dealers in the East are taking all the municipal bonds they can find. Many issues that were offered without success in the spring have since been purchased privately and are no longer in the market. It is said that more than $10,000,000 of "municipals" have been sold "over the counter" (in small lots) by Boston bond houses since the first of October. Since October 15 the following cities have sold bonds on the basis stated: Springfield, Mass., 4.07; Buffalo, N. Y., 4.275; Auburn, N. Y., 4.39; Paterson, N. J., 4.50; Wilmington, Del., 4.47; Spartanberg, S. C., 4.46; Ashland county, Ohio, 4.75; Houston, Tex., 5; Ellensburg, Wash., 5; Chattanooga, Tenn., 5.58; Mulberry, Fla., 6; Buhl, Minn., 6.

Duluth's experience in the last year substantiates this statement. Last spring the city was unable to get any favorable bids upon an issue of $100,000 of bonds for the water and light department. Certificates to that amount were sold "over the counter" by Finance Commissioner Fred J. Voss, the issue being oversubscribed. Recently the city secured bids of par and interest, subject to contract, on two issues, one of $50,000 of park bonds, and another of $400,000 of refunding bonds. All of them run for thirty years and bear interest at 4½ per cent.

Married Men Ought to Save

because they must make provision for others as well as themselves, at a time when their earning capacity will be less than it is now.

Inasmuch as the cost of living advances in close ratio to the individual's increase in income, it is only the part of wisdom to open a savings account in the First National Bank and regard depositing in it an obligation which must be paid just as faithfully as the grocery or meat bill.

ECZEMA ITCHED NIGHT AND DAY

Kept Spreading, Covered Face and Hands to Elbow. Couldn't Sleep or Rest, Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured In a Week.

R. F. D. No. 1, Lawton, N. Dak.—"My little girl's eczema started with a sore in the back of her neck about as big as a ten-cent piece. It broke out in little pimples and they formed a circle. It itched night and day and she scratched it all the time and it kept spreading. It at last covered her face and hands up to her elbows. It itched and burned so she couldn't sleep nights or rest any time. It swelled her face all out of shape and her hands were swelled and she surely looked awfully as long as it was on her face. Her face and hands were as red as fire. Her clothing irritated her arms so I had to keep them wrapped with cloths all the time. She cried with it.

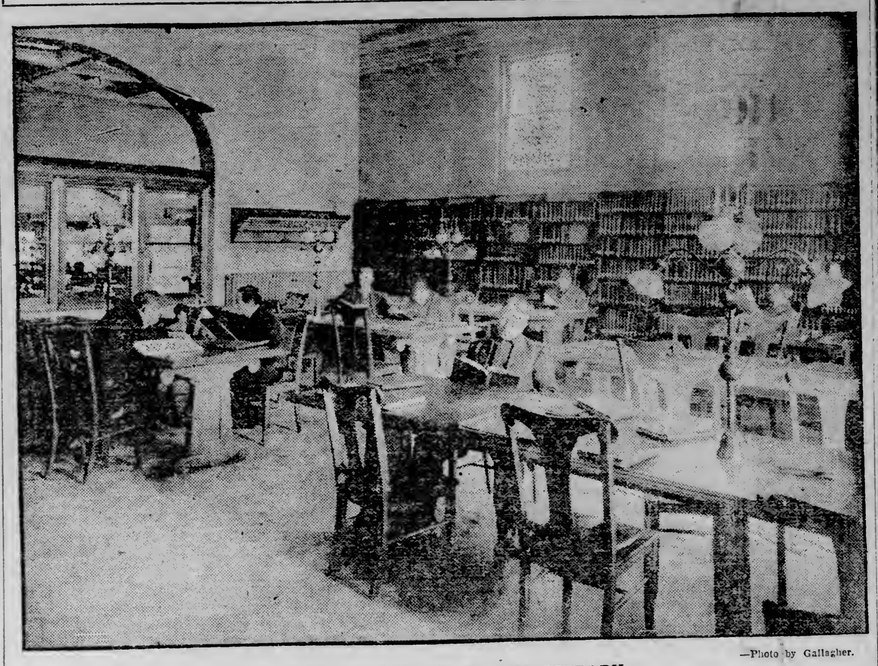

"She had the eczema about two weeks when I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper and I thought I would send for some. I put them on right away and in a couple of days she began to get better and she could sleep. In a week she was cured." (Signed) Mrs. Emma Dibble, June 10, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold by dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

POSSIBILITIES OF PUBLIC LIBRARY KNOWN TO BUT FEW DULUTHIANS, BUT NUMBER GROWING

THE READING ROOM AT THE LIBRARY.

Simply having a card and taking out books of fiction is but a small part of "using" the public library.

Few Duluthians have learned the possibilities of the Duluth Public Library. They may pay taxes to help support it, but rarely think of it except as a place to find a new novel, or perhaps an old favorite to read again.

But the librarians have been trained to make the library of use to the greatest possible number of people, and in as many ways as possible, the annual report issued but a few days ago showed that not only is the circulation of books increasing, but the percentage of the better class of literature borrowed from the library is steadily increasing.

The Duluth library probably is one of the most efficiently conducted institutions of its kind in the country. The current and standard literature contained on its shelves brings large numbers of Duluthians to its reading rooms every day, but the most popular place in the library is the general reading room. This is the large, well-lighted room on the southeast corner. Here the laborer, the school teacher, the minister, the business man, and club woman meet on common ground. From early in the forenoon to the closing hour at night this room is well filled and often crowded with busy readers. Among them are some "book worms" who may be found in the same chairs every day.

This room might well be called the magazine room, for upon its shelves and racks may be found almost any magazine published. The best material on politics, education, literature, science and other subjects is available. In addition to the large list of magazines which come weekly or monthly, there are bound volumes of most of the leading magazines in complete sets dating back twenty-five to thirty-five years.

To many readers these old magazines are a dead issue as the information seeker becomes swamped in the vast amount of material at hand. These, of course, very often secure the assitsance of the library assistants in locating the matter desired.

The Readers' Guide.

Others, however, are familiar with "The Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature," published monthly, and always available at the refernce librarian's desk. This volume is indexed alphabetically, giving the subject and author, and the place and magazine in which any article may be found. Those who are familiar with this index have no difficulty in finding matter on any subject treated in current periodicals.

Those who wish to locate articles on subjects treated some years back consult Poole's Index, which in the same manner covers periodical literature published years back.

The room adjoining the general reading room on the east side of the library contains current newspapers, bound sets of newspapers and many magazines. Full sets of the Duluth dailies from the earliest publications are available. Leading newspapers from all over the world also are available.

A collection of books of especial interest to debaters and other students of up-to-date public questions is contained in the reference room. Practically every question of the day is adequately and reliably covered. The titles of a few of the books in this set will give a clear idea of the importance of these works. Among these volumes are: "The Income Tax." "Woman's Suffrage," "Initiative and Referendum." Open vs. Closed Shops," "Municipal Ownership," "Direct Primaries." "Commission Form of Municipal Government," "Child Labor," "Capital Punishment," and many others.

The public library, in fact, offers information on almost every conceivable subject, and if a citizen by any chance should find a subject not covered, the librarian will probably purchase the necessary books.

Railroads

REORGANIZE ROCK ISLAND

Whole System Will Be Rearranged Under the New Plan.

Action Is Taken to Comply With Government's Wishes.

New York, Jan. 31.—Complete reorganization of the system of railroads originally known as the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific lines, including the abolition of its two holding companies known as the Rock Island company of New Jersey and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad company of Iowa, is likely to be announced in the near future.

Lawyers representing the system are at work on the details, which will probably be submitted for ratification to the interstate commerce commission.

Rock Island stocks were weak on the exchange today.

When these plans are carried out they will have but one company where three now exist, and the management and operation of the system will be under control of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway company, an Illinois corporation.

Meet Government's Wish.

It has been known for some time that the leading interests in these lines contemplated abolition of the holding companies, in conformity with the wishes of the administration at Washington. In abolishing them it will be necessary to provide for other issues of securities in place of the 1 per cent collateral bonds of the Iowa corporation and the stocks issued by the New Jersey corporation. It was thought possible in financial circles that the move might necessitate formal application for receivership, in which event the receivers or trustees would take charge of the railway company's stock for the collateral bondholders.

UNION LINE OPENS OFFICE IN DULUTH

This City Will Be Headquarters for the Northwest Territory.

Allen E. Ferguson, agent of the Union line, which is composed of the Pennsylvania railroad and other roads, has opened an office in the Palladio building and will be the representative of the line in this part of the Northwest.

Formerly the agency of the Union line was in Fargo. For more than a year Mr. Ferguson has been urging upon the general officials of the company the desirability and need of an office in Duluth. The efforts have been rewarded and Duluth will be the chief headquarters of the road in this territory.

"It was because the officials of the Pennsylvania lines have thoroughly realized the growing importance of Duluth as one of the centers of traffic in the Northwest, that the office was abandoned at Fargo and established in Duluth," said Mr. Ferguson today.

"We will continue to work the Dakota territory, but the business will be solicited by men sent out from the Duluth office. If the officials of the company hal not been thoroughly convinced that Duluth was one of the great traffic centers of the Northwest and was destined to be one of the great railway centers of the country, it is quite needless to say that the office of the Union line would not have been moved here.

"The Star Union line is a through freight line from the East, and the increased movement of freight to and from Duluth will, we believe, give us a great deal of business."

The establishment here of the office of one of the great lines of the country, points to the growth of the railroad business in this territory and most particularly to the growing importance of Duluth as a traffic center.

"WITHIN THE LAW."

Thrilling Drama Is Presented for First Time at the Lyceum.

Duluthians are having a long-waited-for opportunity to see "Within the Law." The play opened at the Lyceum last night and was presented again this afternoon and will make its final appearance here this evening.

It is a remarkable drama in many ways, and certainly is not lacking in thrills. The chief criticism of it as a drama is that it might have disastrous effects upon the criminally inclined, for it displays what may be done "within the law," acts that are really criminal, but so well covered that the authorities cannot reach the perpetrators. But as a thriller it is above criticism, for climax follows climax.

As nearly as one is able to judge, the play was written with a double motive. The first one was to show up the condition and temptation of employes in some big department stores, who are struggling to exist on a wage that is inadequate, and who are tempted to steal that they may bridge the chasm between requirements and resources. The other motive is clearly an assault upon police methods of obtaining evidence and of convicting prisoners. The third degree, ther espionage system used, the threats and all of the other methods much heard of but seldom seen by the layman, are shown in the play.

In brief, the play centers about a Mary Turner employed as clerk in the department store conducted by Richard Gilder. Thefts have been going on, and one day stolen articles are found in the pocket of her jacket, put there, as it turns out later, by the actual thief, a characterless girl who feared being caught. Mary was arrested, and despite her pleadings and declarations of innocence, is sentenced to three years in "stir," as the crooks call the penitentiary. When she comes out, an ex-convict, nobody will give her employment, and in despair she jumped into the river. Her rescuer proves to be an exceedingly clever crook, and the result is that she is taken up by a band of expert yeggs, dips, shop-lifters and others of that type, and soon becomes one of them. However, she dislikes the crudeness with which they do their work, laying themselves open to arrest at any time, and undertakes to reform the methods. She becomes leader of the gang, and by her brain work makes them more prosperous than ever, and at the same time keeping always "within the law." Having sworn to avenge herself on her former employer for sending her up the river, she proceeds to get acquainted with his son and finally marries the youth. After that, she reveals herself to the young man's father, much to his chagrin and rage. Later a stool pigeon used by the police undertakes to deliver the gang into the hands of his employers, and in the melee that follows the entrance of the police, he is shot by Joe Garson, one of the cleverest of the crooks, and in love with Mary. The shot is fired through a Maxim silencer, and the police do not know who to suspect until it is noticed that young Gilder is holding a pistol in his hand. To protect his wife, Mary, he said that he fired the shot because he thought the man was a burglar. Garson, fearing that Gilder's foolish admission would cause trouble to Mary, confesses that he did the deed, and there the play ends, Garson evidently later going to the chair.

The company presenting the play is a strong one and evenly balanced. Miss Jane Gordon as Mary Turner, William Lambert as Joe Garson, Westcott B. Clark as the detective sergeant, Miss Gertrude Shanley as Fannie, and Daniel Sullivan as Inspector Burke were probably the best of the cast.

GOVERNMENT LOSES ITS LAND CONTEST.

Mandan, N. D., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The government lost its suit aimed at Harry Grosberger of this city, and involving patent to a quarter section of land in Oliver county, in which the United States maintained that the presence of coal deposits was known to Grosberger when he proved up four years ago.

Under the coal lands law, homesteaders are barred from gaining patents, and had the government won the suit against Grosberger, it would have affected title to a large number of Oliver county properties, where lignite coal is plentiful.

NERVOUS MEN Restored to Health and Vigor!

Progressive Medical Doctors say: Every normally constituted and healthy man has a natural and abundant endowment of potential energy or reserve nerve power.

Units of nerve-energy are drawn from the blood and stored in the cellular substance of the brain and ganglia for use in the performance of involuntary function and voluntary action.

In a condition of absolute and perfect health, these reservoirs of vital power of nerves are well stored, and potential energy is so abundant that the whole physical or mental being is filled and thrilled with the triumphant consciousness of power.

Such a man possesses personal magnetism, and unconsciously inspires those who come into social or business relations with him with a feeling of his easy mastery over almost all conditions. The "American disease" is Neurasthenia, "brain fag," debility. Call it by what name you please, for we do not treat the name, but we do successfully treat the condition, and restore the patient to that health which is essential to his social and commercial success if he is to fill a man's place in the world.

The Napoleons of finance, the captains of industry, the men of affairs are the ones most afflicted. Perfect health, however, is all-essential to the man of lower position, as well as to the one who aspires to the highest. Many a man fails on account of a physical handicap to achieve the ambitions for which his natural mental qualifications fit him. The connection between mind and body is so intimate, and there inter-dependence so marked, that physical perfection is essential to the greatest achievement.

The nervo-vital diseases include nervous debility, decline, insomnia, melancholia, and diseases of graver nature which involve the brain and spinal cord and are of a paralytic nature.

The associated pelvic diseases are: Stricture, bladder, prostatic and kidney diseases; varicose veins, hydrocele, rupture (hernia), lithiasis (gravel) and diseases of the lower bowel.

We have made the cure of men our study. The effect of the treatment is to cure those diseases and to restore men to the full enjoyment of nature's best gifts to the normal physical and mental conditions that characterize health. Our offices are open from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m., at No. 1 West Superior street. All consultations are free.

Oliver Mining Company Held for Alleged Acts of Night Watchman.

Charging that A. E. Timms, night watchman and special officer for the Oliver Iron Mining company at the Sellers location, Hibbing, broke into his home and invaded the privacy of his wife's bedroom after the family had retired for the night, George Pasic, filed a $5,000 damage suit against the mining company in district court yesterday.

Pasic declares that the alleged trespass by the mining company officer took place on the night of Jan. 2 last. The plaintiff alleges that his wife was awakened and humiliated by the foul and insulting language claimed to have been used by the officer.

WILSON WANTS EARLY ACTION

Insists on Trust Laws Before Congress Recesses.

Leaders Seek to Expedite Work in Congress.

Washington, Jan. 31.—That President Wilson is insistent upon enactment of anti-trust legislation before an adjournment even to give members an early start in the congressional campaign, was made clear to congress yesterday.

Majority Leader Underwood of the house told his colleagues that the president desired the trust bills passed by all means, and that this had led to a general taking stock of pending legislation with a view to curtailing the legislative program as much as possible. The Democratic leaders are setting the limit for the session at June 1, and want to hew to the line in order to complete by that time all appropriation bills, trust measures, rural credit legislation, which the president also wishes passed this session, and other matters that cannot go over until a later time.

Representative Underwood is to confer with the president Monday on the subject of legislative program.

Newlands Sees President.

Senator Newlands, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, talked with the president on the pending interstate trade commission bill, and proposed legislation for a Federal supervision of railroad securities. The committee earlier in the day proposed amendments to the commission measure, which the chairman discussed with the president.

Hearings on the bills to supplement the Sherman law will be continued before the house judiciary committee today, with Representative Levy of New York as a witness. The house interstate commerce committee will resume hearings on the trade commission bill Monday. Chairmen of both committees plan to hasten the hearings in order to expedite the trust legislation program, but they have been handicapped so far by delay on the part of witnesses expected to attend.

DYNAMITE TOUCHED OFF BY BIG METEOR

Mine Foreman and Mexicans Tell of New Mexican Incident.

Albuquerque, N. M., Jan. 31.—The concussion caused when a huge meteor fell to earth in the Sandia mountains, twenty-five miles east of Albuquerque, Wednesday night, exploded a magazine containing dynamite at the La Luz mine, according to the story told by Donald Brown, mine foreman, and two Mexican miners. They declare the explosion completely wrecked the mine buildings.

According to Brown, he and his companions were playing cards in a cabin at the mine when they heard a roaring sound and saw the meteor falling. They say the meteor struck near the camp and that the thud of its fall was followed immediately by the explosion, which tore the cabin to pieces. A stove in the cabin was carried 200 yards and lodged in a tree.

Terrified, they said, they started for Albuquerque immediately on foot, without waiting to examine the meteor. A party under Dr. George T. Kirk, geologist at the University of New Mexico, has gone to the Sandia mountains to examine the meteor.

The tag sale is being held under the auspices of the Federated Trades assembly of this city and the proceeds will be sent to the striking miners and their families in Northern Michigan. The money will be used in buying food and clothing for the men, who have been on strike for the past few months.

The sale of tags will continue all day.

FIX LONGITUDES BY THE WIRELESS

Methods That Enable Explorer to Dispense With Chronometers.

London, Jan. 31.—A letter from the Bolivian survey commission dated Abuna River, Nov. 25, announces that the expedition commanded by Herbert A. Edwards of the British army has completed over 200 miles of the frontier survey and incidentally "inaugurated a new era in exploratory surveying." The expedition fixed all of its longitudes by wireless telegraphy from Porto Vallo, situated 120 miles from the base of operations. Time signals were received every night by means of a rough receiving set and a long wire which was rigged up on trees. Commander Edward declares that these methods will enable the explorer to dispense with chronometers and easily and accurately fix all longitudes.

SCRAP OVER SCRAP.

Junk Company Claims 200,000 Tons From Canal Commission.

Panama, Jan. 31.—Out of the sale to a Chicago house wrecking company of the old junk taken over by the Isthimian canal commission under its purchase of the property of the French Canal company, has arisen one of the largest claims filed against the canal government.

The wrecking company, which in 1911 bought the scrap, has filed with Col. George W. Goethals, chairman of the Panama canal commission, a claim for about 200,000 tons of scrap material which it declares should rightfully be delivered to it. The market value of the scrap is estimated at nearly $2,000,000.

Hearings in an effort to effect an equitable settlement of the claim have been begun by H. A. Smith, examiner of accounts of the canal commission, who is attempting to determine what scrap it was contemplated to sell under the contract with the wrecking company.

The company declares that it is not only entitled to all the scrap on which it based its bid of $215,000, but also to all material which originally belonged to the French canal company and has since been abandoned as junk by the canal commission. The company insists that this junk includes many French barges, dredges, tugs, scows, launches, dump cars and engines which the commission repaired and placed in service in the construction of the canal.

Col. Goethals said that he expected the courts probably would be called upon to settle the controversy, because the contract was loosely worded and ambiguous.

HINDU MYSTICISM ENTERS WILL CASE.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 31.—A suggestion of India's mysticism entered the $500,000 will contest of Frank H. Holyoke, a wealthy lumber dealer of Bangor, Me., when a swarthy, diamond-bedecked swami, wearing a turban blazing with gems and carrying a "magic wand," was called as a witness in the superior court in behalf of Sydney A. Holyoke, a son, who is endeavoring to break the last testament of his father.

The bulk of the Holyoke estate was bequeathed to Holyoke's twin nieces, Marjorie and Madeline Holyoke, while the two sons were cut off with $100 each. The elder Holyoke's unsoundness of mind and alleged undue influence are the basis of the contest.

The swami was called before the death of Holyoke in October, 1911, to administer psychic healing, he testified. He brought into court much of the paraphernalia of his art—the wand, Buddhistic symbols and brilliants supposed to exercise some talismanic power over humans.

The swami said his method of treatment was to lay a towel on his patient's body and then breathe through it. He declared he believed Holyoke perfectly sane.

RAILROADS TOLD TO KEEP OLD RATE.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Proposals of railroads in central freight association territory to increase from 1½ to 2½ cents a hundred their charge for stopping shipments of structural steel to be fabricated in transit, are disapproved by the interstate commerce commission. The carriers were ordered to continue in force for a period of not less than two years from March 1 the existing rate of 1½ cents.

EXCAVATORS FIND TOWER OF SILOAM.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 31.—News of the finding of the foundations of the Tower of Siloam has been received by Rev. Dr. Keller of the Episcopal Theological school from a friend in Jerusalem. This tower is mentioned in Luke xiii, 4: "Those eighteen upon whom the tower in Siloam fell and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem?"

The excavators, according to the message, "have discovered a long, well-cut Greek inscription which speaks of the presbyters and fathers, with Simonides, laying the foundation of the synagogue and the baths. These baths and the foundation of the synagogue are exposed. They have found the base of a circular building, the Tower of Siloam. They have found also a conduit leading from the spring. The conduit seen by Schinik in the 90's, wrongly thought to have been the oldest, is now shown to be above the spring."

ACCUSED OF OFFENSE AGAINST YOUNG GIRL

San Francisco, Jan. 31.—A warrant charging an offense against a young girl was issued here last night against Maury I. Diggs, former state architect, whose recent trial and conviction here under the Mann act, caused nation-wide comment because of its political complications.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pearring, a doctor's wife, swore to the complaint, alleging an offense against her daughter, Ida Pearring, 17 years old. New Year's eve is the time named, and warrants also were sworn to against John Gilligan and John Doe Fisher in connection with the same affair. "Fisher" is said to be an alias.

MAURY I. DIGGS.

Diggs' case under the Mann act is now on appeal.

RULING AFFECTS 20,000 MINORS.

Honolulu, Jan. 31.—Children born to alien parents resident in the territory of Hawaii are not eligible to entry as American citizens at mainland ports on the presumption that their territorial certificates of birth are conclusive proof of citizenship. Such is the purport of a ruling received from Washington by Secretary Mott-Smith.

Territorial birth certificates have been issued since Hawaii was annexed. In the last ten years more than 1,000 have been issued to Chinese and more than 6,000 to Japanese children, and heretofore they have been honored everywhere.

Twenty thousand minors born of alien parents, many of whom, as they near majority, have been expecting to enter into all the rights of citizenship, are affected. Many of them have recently been applying for certificates.

WOULD ENJOIN STREET CAR LAW.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—A suit to enjoin the carrying out of the unification-of-traction ordinance, providing through routing of street cars, universal transfers and one fare to all parts of the city, was filed in the United States district court yesterday. The ordinance was to go into effect at midnight Sunday.

The suit was filed by C. H. Venner of New York, holder of $40,000 worth of stock in the Chicago City Railway company. The ordinance is in violation of the Fourteenth amendment of the Constitution, according to the suit, in depriving Venner of his property without due process of law.

The Chicago City Railway company, owning the traction lines on the South side, the Chicago Railways company, owning lines in North and West sides, the city of Chicago, the Calumet & South Chicago Railway company and the Southern Street Railway company were named as defendants.

GROUNDHOG AS A FORECASTER

Six Weeks More Winter If He Sees His Shadow Next Monday.

Monday is ground-hog day, and according to the popular superstition the future prosperity of the merchant and coal dealer will be decided by the whim of this capricious animal. He is supposed to be snugly lying in his winter quarters in the ground at present, but next Monday, Feb. 2, is the day when he will make his winter forecast. He will push his nose through the snow some time during the morning. If the sun shines, he will decide that there will be six weeks more of winter, and curl up in his nest again for a long sleep, but if he fails to see the sun, he will decide that winter is nearly over and take his chances outside.

The weatherman has been in the spotlight this season nearly every day and has given Duluthians more surprises than for many a year. For that reason there will be more interest attached to the stunt of the ground-hog this year than for many years.

WOMEN PROVEN TO BE NEARER NORMAL MENTALLY THAN MEN

Make Better Time in the Race Betterment Congress Test.

Are the women of Duluth more nearly normal mentally than the men?

According to the results of the mentality test recently adopted at the race betterment congress held at Battle Creek, Mich., they are. Two young women at the city hall were tested yesterday afternoon and at their request their names are being withheld, but they made better time than the men.

The object of the test is to strike the letter "a" out of the following hieroglyphics in the short time of thirty seconds:

Lska evavy dawma ksaje xatzs cnjaf aruja ahaly iwige fkakp xmvwa parka sugho rvts yraea zaqmb qiajc mygpa ehaih angao ymijd inazd wdaks gsbnc azega grhng nayvk zlaah spqva iaucf akiwr hkdaf tafta ouwqa rayxe yoirr vboyx lachu qnhra kaqul vaiso rnhay tbcma bjezw uvaru oajba jmzao tutzb zkapd lhnaf batxz xslac dhxrd feqag ogadl gunka onawz fatdg. If any one can accomplish this feat on time, he or she is mentally normal.

With one exception all the city and police officials have taken 75 seconds and more to complete the test. The two young women accomplished the test in just 65 seconds and 66 seconds, respectively. Charles Palmer, city clerk, took 90 seconds and his assistant, Fred Ash, accomplished the feat in exactly the same time.

It took Judge Windom 90 seconds yesterday morning.

THREE HAVE CLOSE CALL IN SNOWSTORM

Father, Daughter and Another Man at Mercy of N. D. Blizzard.

Kenmare, N. D., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Effie Mestad, aged 14; her father, John Mestad, and John Kinser, nearly perished in Thursday's blizzard because the girl started to walk two miles in the face of the storm.

Her father set out to find her, and an hour later Kinser began a search for both.

The girl gained safety at a farm house, which her father also reached during the night.

Kinser was driving, and when his horse became fast in a snowdrift, he labored several hours in an attempt to free them. The result was that he was badly frozen and almost unconscious when searching parties rescued him.

TWO WILL FACE GRAND JURY.

J. Walter McDonald, Jr., and Frank Bobnich were yesterday afternoon bound over to the grand jury on charges of grand larceny. They are accused of having passed worthless checks, the former on the Henricksen Jewelry company, and the latter on the Fifth Avenue Clothing store. They were both bound over last week on a charge of passing worthless checks, but the complaints were changed by the county attorney and the prisoners were rearraigned in police court yesterday.

GIRLS CAUGHT; MEN ESCAPE

Immigration Officers Would Extradite Two Fort William Men.

Are Wanted for Bringing Girls Here for Immoral Purposes.

A case of importation of girls, aged 18 and 19 years, respectively, from Canada to Superior by Ray Denby and Jerry Pritchard, both switchmen on the C. P. R., and both residing in Fort William, Ont., Can., is alleged by United States immigration officers as a result of the arrest of one of the girls on a charge of forgery and check-raising, and the two girls are now in jail in Superior held under warrant of arrest by the United States immigrant inspector at Duluth, charging them with entering the United States for an immoral purpose.

The men in the case, are now believed to be in Fort William.

According to the testimony of the girls, both of whom had been working as waitresses in restaurants in Fort William, these two men bought their tickets from Fort William to Duluth on Jan. 5 last, and came with them, going to Superior. It is alleged that they traveled on their union cards as switchmen, and that they did not join the girls in the day coach until after they had left West Fort William.

It also is alleged that when they crossed the international boundary line at Ranier, Minn., the men were in the smoking car. After they were safely across the line the girls say the men came back and joined them and rode with them practically continuously until Duluth was reached. In Duluth they had dinner and the girls assert, went immediately to Superior, where they went to a certain hotel on Tower avenue and lived as married couples for about ten days, when their money gave out, and the men departed, leaving the girls to seek domestic work. This they did, but one of the girls working for a family on Ogden avenue, raised a check given her by her employer for $1.50 to $10.50 and took it to a department store in Superior, exchanging it for a suit and $3.50 in cash. This little deal apparently having been negotiated easily and without suspicion, the girl wrote out another check for $10.50 which she took to the hotel where she and Denby had been staying, and had no difficulty in passing it to the clerk for the face value.

Her arrest followed, but the girl refunded all the money with the exception of a few cents, and the case was dropped. Then the story of the manner of her arrival came out, resulting in the immigration inspector being called into the case by Chief of Police McKinnon and Detective Mead. A warrant was wired for covering all four.

The girls have received letters from the two men within the last few days and both are back in Fort William. In the meantime, government officers are looking into the matter of extraditing them from Canada.

LEGALITY OF ACT ATTACKED

Attorney in Contest Argues Unconstitutionality of Corrupt Practices Act.

The constitutionality of the corrupt practices act passed by the legislature of 1911 was attacked in an argument made before Judge Dancer today by S. F. White, attorney for John J. Gleason, mayor of Eveleth, who is involved in election contest proceedings brought in district court by Jacob S. Saari, defeated candidate at the November election.

Saari is contesting the election on two grounds. In one case he sets forth the usual allegations that illegal votes were cast and that the votes were not counted as cast and that if all of the votes had been counted as cast, he and not Gleason would have been declared elected. In the other case, a violation of the corrupt practices act is alleged.

Judge White, in support of an argument to a demurrer to the cause of action set up in the action charging a violation of the corrupt practices act, declared that the law was unconstitutional. O. J. Larson and Neil E. Benton, representing Saari, argued on the other side of the case. The question was submitted to Judge Dancer for his decision.

GARBAGE SHOWS SOME PROFIT

City's Collection System Success as Far as It Goes.

Garbage collection in Duluth showed a profit of $84.44 during 1913, according to the annual report of Mrs. Jeannette Baldwin, inspector in charge of that branch of health work.

The total receipts were $2,274.15, while the expenses were $2,189.71, including salaries and the money expended for new equipment and a new barn. The report states that the wagon in the West end does not have enough to occupy all its time so that it is utilized to relieve in the downtown district, where the business is too heavy for a single outfit.

Considerable trouble has been experienced in securing capable drivers, particularly since the establishment of the West end collection. Since Aug. 1 the department has had nine different men in its employ on the garbage wagons.

Mrs. Baldwin points out that the educational features of the garbage collection are valuable, bringing the people into direct contact with the health department and familiarizing them with the requirements.

HENRY SIEGEL & CO. ADJUDGED BANKRUPT

Court Reserves Right to Appoint Receivers Later.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 31.—Henry Siegel & Co. of Boston, one of the Siegel corporations for which receivers were appointed a month ago, was adjudicated bankrupt in the United States district court today. Judge Morton reserved the right to appoint receivers.

Immediately after the receivership proceedings last month, local creditors filed an involuntary petition against the company, which was opposed by receivers William A. Mable and John S. Sheppard, Jr. Today the receivers withdrew their objections and the company was declared bankrupt.

The property will be managed by the bankruptcy court for the benefit of creditors.

LESS WORK BY CONTRACT

City Will Handle Some of Its Own Jobs in the Future.

Commissioner Favors Gradual Departure From the Old System.

The city will begin laying pavements and doing other special improvements, working away from the contract system which has been followed for many years past, if the recommendation made by Commissioner Roderick Murchison, head of the works division, in his annul report is carried out.

The intention is not that the city shall abandon special improvements by contract, in one or two seasons, but to work into it graudally as results and finances permit.

"Conditions seem to be favorable for venturing towards the construction of street improvements by the employment of labor and the purchase of materials directly by the city," states the report, "and with the approval of your honorable body this method will be introduced and carried as far as results may justify."

Maintenance.

Referring to the maintenance division the commissioner states that experiments of the last season have convinced him of the impracticability of attempting to restore tar macadam pavements, and advises that in those cases where the pavements have been evident failures from the beginning that the city join with the property owners to construct entirely new streets.

"The burden of the division is a legacy of poor streets," continues the report, "and nothing more urgent than the transformation of these is now calling for attention. The city has experimented widely and to a large extent unprofitably, with street materials in the past, but has at least demonstrated the superiority of certain pavements. These are the higher priced pavements. They are also those of which no complaints have been made by the property owners who paid for them. Our aim will be to stand for the use of these materials wherever it can consistently be done."

The works division handled a vast amount of work the last year, the aggregate cost running well over $600,000. Of this amount the greatest expenditure was for street grading and paving, sidewalks, sewers and sprinkling, which aggregated $414,204.69. Grading and paving expenditures were $258,525.16; sanitary sewers, $75,816.80; storm sewers, $15,692.05; street sprinkling, $27,905.49; plank walks, $9,309.16; cement walks, $17,523.18, and miscellaneous, $5,422.83. The expenditures from the public works fund for other purposes was $157,023.40 and those from funds other than the public works fund amounted to $45,264.76.

KEEP TESTIMONY AS TO WRECK SECRET

Officers of Both Monroe and Nantucket Questioned at Length.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 31.—Testimony of officers of both the Monroe and the Nantucket, some of it taken while the Nantucket was bringing in the survivors, is being kept secret today. It still is in the form of stenographers' notes and will make fifty or sixty typewritten pages.

No official statement could be obtained today about it, but it is said that witnesses testified Capt. Johnson stopped the Monroe's engines when he heard the Nantucket's answering siren signal, and the lost ship was practically standing still when the Nantucket rammed her amidships and sheared her in two.

Other witnesses testified, it is said, that the Nantucket continued to steam toward the Monroe after the lost ship had blown two whistles three times.

Officers in Pilot House.

It is said that the testimony shows that Capt. Berry, the second officer, and the quartermaster of the Nantucket were all in the pilot house of their ship when the two vessels came together, and that the lookout on the Monroe saw the lights on the mast of the Nantucket about two minutes before the crash occurred.

The Monroe met light fogs intermittently after passing out of the capes, and had stopped frequently while they surrounded the ship. The Monroe was equipped with an automatic time whistle and that was blown at intervals of one minute.

When the heavy fog wrapped the vessel near Winter Quarter lightship, the Monroe, it is said, stopped, and after blowing her foghorn every minute, gave two blasts, but the Nantucket ploughed its way into the Monroe's starboard just above amidships at an angle of about 45 deg. The Nantucket backed away, the Monroe began to list, and ten minutes later sunk.

CAN COMPANY DENIAL FILED.

DEAFNESS

From All Causes, Head Noises and Other Ear Troubles Easily and Permanantly Relieved!

Thousands who were formerly deaf, now hear distinctly every sound—even whispers do not escape them. Their life of loneliness has ended and all is now joy and sunshine. The impaired or lacking portions of their ear drums have been reinforced by simple little devices, scientifically constructed for that special purpose.

Wilson Common-Sense Ear Drums

often called "Little Wireless Phones for the Ears" are restoring perfect hearing in every condition of deafness or defective hearing from causes such as Catarrhal Deafness, Relaxed or Sunken Drums, Thickened Drums, Roaring and Hissing Sounds, Perforated, Wholly or Partially Destroyed Drums, Discharge from Ears, etc. No matter what the case or how long standing it is, testimonials received show marvelous results. Common-Sense Drums strengthen the nerves of the ears and concentrate the sound waves on one point of the natural drums, thus successfully restoring perfect hearing where medical skill even fails to help. They are made of a soft, sensitized material, comfortable and safe to wear. They are easily adjusted by the wearer and out of sight when worn.

What has done so much for thousands of others will help you. Don't delay. Write today for our FREE 168-page book on Deafness—giving you full particulars.

"AIN'T NO SUCH THING"

"Specially Elected Grand Jury" Not Permitted Under Law.

"Special" Grand Jury Drawn in Same Way as Regular One.

For the enlightenment of those who have urged the calling of what they are pleased to term as a "specially elected" grand jury, Warren E. Greene, county attorney, states that the idea is ridiculous and absurd. The law does not permit it, he says.

According to the county attorney the only difference between an "extraordinary" or "special" grand jury and a "regular" grand jury is that the regular grand jury convenes at stated times during the year and that the "special" or "extraordinary" jury is one called between times or when the regular grand jury is not in session.

The supreme court in 1895 held that the district court has the power under the statute to discharge the grand jury impaneled at a regular term of court, adjourn the term to a future day and order a new venire of grand jurors to be drawn and summoned for such adjourned term. But the supreme court also held that the new venire should be drawn in the same manner as any other grand jury, from the body of the county.

A Polk county judge in 1894 discharged a grand jury because it had failed to return indictments in certain cases presented to its consideration. The judge told the jury that it had failed in its duty and that he felt that it was his duty to call another jury to take up the same matters. The court was adjourned and at a special term the new jury convened.

The presiding judge of the district court is the only one who has authority to call such a jury. The matter lies entirely within his discretion, says Mr. Greene.

URGES NEED OF HOSPITAL

Medical Inspector in Report Says City Should Build Institution.

First Unit Should Be Pavilion for Women and Children.

The need of a local hospital hospital for women and children is strongly emphasized by Dr. I. J. Murphy, medical inspector of the health department, in his annual report to Dr. H. E. Webster, health director.

He expresses the hope that a centrally located city and county hospital will soon be acquired and recommends that the first unit be a pavilion for women and children.

Dr. Murphy's report deals in detail with contagious diseases and the hospital situation in Duluth during the last year. It is in substance as follows:

"Our aim is now, as it has been ever since I took charge of this work under your direction three years ago—prevention rather than cure or correction. Every communicable disease found is carefully considered in order to prevent future cases. Tracing the cases to their sources and eliminating these foci has been productive of remarkable results.

"Space and time will not permit an exhausting review. However, the results are so striking that a few examples should be cited:

"The average of the total of diphtheria for the last three years shows 120 cases, with 7 deaths; for the three previous years the average was 555 cases, with 29 deaths.

"The average of the total of scarlet fever for the last three years was 214 cases, with 4 deaths; for the three previous years the average was 399 cases, with 16 deaths.

"Believing that figures and actions impress more forcibly than words for other facts the reader is referred to table No. 3.

"In our work formites infection has been practically disregarded, and the actual carrier or spreader has received the attention he should.

Tuberculosis.

"The total number of deaths registered due to tuberculosis was 115, of which 88 were classified pulmonary. In 1912 the total number of deaths was 124, of which 109 were classified pulmonary. In this connection it should be remembered that many of the deaths are non-residents who came here for treatment. For example, cases are sent from the entire county to the poor farm pavilion. During this year 192 cases were added to our list.

Diphtheria.

"There were 171 individuals with positive cultures reported upon by the laboratory. It is difficult to determine accurately just what proportion of these were carriers only. Because quite often mass cultures from the associates of a clinical case would at first reveal what seemed to be only carriers. However when these people were closely questioned and carefully examined they revealed typical symptoms of mild diphtheria.

Scarlet Fever.

"One hundred and fifty-five cases of scarlet fever were recorded with six deaths. In 1912 there were 256 cases and only one death. This means that the type was more malignant this year or that a number of mild cases were unrecognized. Perhaps both are partially true. Quite often the first knowledge we have of a case of scarlet fever is when the department finds a child disquamating after being reported home from school sick. Mild sore throats and transient rashes in school children should be regarded with suspicion.

Smallpox.

"There were only fifty-two cases of smallpox registered. It was confined for the most part to school children and of mild type. Since an epidemic in a school interferes greatly with the regular school work it would seem advisable to have the school authorities insist upon vaccination before or at the beginning of the school year. As a rule before a child finishes the eighth grade he has one of two things, smallpox or vaccination. Then why not vaccinate early?

Typhoid Fever.

"There were 139 cases of typhoid fever registered. Each of these cases was carefully investigated to determine its source. In 110 of the cases the source could be distinctly traced to points outside Duluth. Two dozen of them came from a neighboring village. Most of the cases came from the various camps in this part of the state. The highest number, forty-one cases, was recorded in October; there was a drop to seventeen in November and to eight in December. Camp conditions remained practically the same these three months with this exception that the flies had been eliminated; surface water and open streams were as available as during the summer. Evidence at hand convicts the fly of being the chief disseminator of Northern Minnesota typhoid.

"Since so many outside cases came to this city to be diagnosed and treated it is strange that we have so little local typhoid. Fortunately most of the cases are in a hospital during the very infectious stage. All cases of typhoid should be unless they are otherwise isolated with a trained nurse in charge.

"There were twenty-one deaths from typhoid this year and nineteen last year.

"Hunters, woodsmen and others who know they are about to be exposed should protect themselves by an antityphoid inoculation.

Measles.

"There were recorded 657 cases of measles, of which five terminated fatally. It is important to note that the immediate mortality was practically the same as that of diphtheria and scarlet fever; no doubt the total morbidity and the secondary mortality was much greater.

Hospitals.

"The health department operates two small hospitals. A modern institution located at Thirteenth avenue west and Fourth street, cares for scarlet fever and diphtheria. The regular smallpox hospital is out near the county poor farm. Miscellaneous cases are also sent there.

"Repeatedly in the instance of both scarlet fever and diphtheria if the original case was promptly sent to the hospital the other members of the streams were as available as during the summer. Evidence at hand convicts the fly of being the chief disseminator of Northern Minnesota typhoid.

"Repeatedly in the instance of both scarlet fever and diphtheria if the original case was promptly sent to the hospital the other members of the family would escape. When this was not done it was not unusual to see families with four to six other cases before the quarantine was raised. Even when the original case was mild the other members would eventually succumb, and as a rule, with a much more severe form.

"Many cases were taken in at the lying in houses scattered about the city. Of course, the cases requiring the discipline were cared for at 'The Bethel' as formerly. There is an urgent need for a woman's and children's hospital in this city. We sincerely hope that the plans of the Woman's council will be realized in the near future, and that the first unit in the new centrally located city and county hospital will be the pavilion for women and children."

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Good Work Undertaken By the "Santa Claus Girl."

Have you ever heard of her—the "Santa Claus Girl?"

She is Miss Olive May Wilson of Philadelphia, and she is the girl with an idea.

It is not an idea that will set the world on fire, or cause a revolution, or anything of that sort, but it is an idea that aims to make somebody happy—or help to do so.

As such it is decidedly worth while.

Miss Wilson, in a word, wants congress to pass a law granting the franking privilege of the mails for the distribution of gifts to poor children at Christmas.

Rather a clever notion, and a helpful one, is it not?

Miss Wilson is not content with merely harboring the idea, but she is hard at work in an effort to carry it out. She has won indorsements for her plan from many prominent persons, the latest being Speaker Champ Clark of the house of representatives, and Admiral Dewey. Both commend the idea as promising much good.

I have a great deal of respect for a person with an idea which aims to do something good for somebody else. It is not so hard for most of us to be charitable and kindly at Christmas time, but many of us forget others during the remainder of the year; or at least take only a passing interest in others less fortunate than ourselves.

This young girl, however, is not of that sort. Though one Christmas is just past, she is looking forward to another one, and many to come in the future. She wants to make her idea live, and to produce permanent results.

The person with an idea of doing good to others is not living in vain, no matter what his or her material success may be.

EDISON IS HELEN KELLER'S HOPE

Inventor Told of Plans for Friction Printing — Blind Woman Showed Interest in Talking Pictures— How She Described the "Hand of a Creator.'

By Bertha E. Tomlinson in New York Evening Post.

There is perhaps, no woman living today—and comparatively few men, and those active in public life—who has more friends, or who meets a larger number of persons of all ages and conditions than Helen Keller. And yet, curiously enough, to many she is even now a myth. It is said by those best in the position to know that the belief is rather wide-spread abroad that there is no such person as Helen Keller. And constantly those around her find that simple-minded folk try timidly to touch her, as one set apart, and some mystic power in her touch.

The writer had the pleasure and privilege of meeting Miss Keller on her latest stay in New York, under conditions of unusual interest and friendly intimacy for a first meeting, and saw, over and over again, young and old, of all degree, press to shake her hand, and receive her unfailing word of tactful, sympathetic greeting, as if the touch of the hand were holy and the spoken word a blessing from a saint.

There will dwell always, in the memories of the few privileged to be present, the meeting between Thomas Edison and Helen Keller—a meeting which both had long desired—which took place Sunday, Dec. 14, at the Edison home, in Llewellyn Park, Orange, just before Miss Keller and Mrs. Macy started on to the West, to continue the arduous lecture tour, which means almost constant speaking and traveling until May 1.

Her Meeting With Edison.

To the others in the room that beautiful Sunday afternoon there were only the great inventor, his face alive with interest, and Helen Keller, fairly radiant with happiness, though any interview would have been impossible without Mrs. Macy, the wonderful friend and teacher, through whom, with occasional assistance from Mrs. Edison, all the talk on both sides passed.

Her own hearty interest in the people around her, the joy of living, which makes Helen Keller so delightful a comrade, were at high tide that afternoon. The eager words of greeting, of question, of discerning comment, fairly stumbled over each other on her lips. From the talk and some simple tests of that happy afternoon, Helen Keller carries today the hope of three seeming miracles in the not far distant future:

Greatly increased ease and ability in her speech, and that of others similarly limited.

Printed books for the blind. An invention, of which Mr. Edison speaks confidently, which will transmit sound waves into electrical vibrations, these electrical vibrations carrying actual perceptions of sound to Miss Keller through her acutely sensitive fingers.

It must be remembered that Helen Keller can have no memory of ever having heard her own speech as she was stricken when a baby less than 2 years old. She must rely on Mrs. Macy or some other helpful friend, to explain to her, via finger interpretation, whether her words and enunciation are understood by those she is addressing, be it single individual or large audience. To her great disappointment, Mr. Edison could not understand her, while he heard easily enough the voice of Mrs. Edison and Mrs. Macy. But he explained to her why and how her handling of consonants, especially the "s," "o" and "t" sounds, made her speech difficult to understand by a deaf person or by those some distance away; and showed her how to handle better these bothersome consonants.

There was much merry talk about the new talking-pictures, the invention which promises to make grand opera as easily obtainable in any home as parlor organs.

"But what of the scenery, and the dances?" demanded the girl who has never seen or heard an opera, as the great inventor described this recent child of his genius. And those who listened and watched—for one does, literally, watch a conversation in which Helen Keller takes part—could only marvel at the reality and vividness of her mental picture of great operatic productions.

"But this," said Helen Keller, at last, "is for those who already have many pleasures. Will you not make printed books which the blind can read? Books for the blind now cost so much."

It was one of the very rare references to the limitations life had laid upon her which ever escaped her lips; and this seemed far more a plea for others less fortunate than for herself.

Books For the Blind.

Printed books for the blind, Mr. Edison assured her, are one of the likeliest of probabilities. A very smooth paper, a "friction" ink, a type larger than the ordinary book type—and the thing is done. Highly sensitive finger-tips will read these books almost as easily and swiftly as normal eyes read the ordinary printed page.

Helen Keller feels deeply and intensely; and expresses her feelings with the abandon and freedom of a child. She was deeply stirred by the realization that she was indeed face to face with the man whom she had so long desired to meet, and her intense feeling moved every one in the room.

"My hand is to me what your hearing and sight together are to you," she says in "The World I Live In," that rare book of revelation. "It is the hand that binds me to the world of men and women."

And this hand, delicate, sensitive, responsive to every contact with the world around her, caught and held the hand of Edison, striving to secure the impressions of personality which come to others through undimmed eyes and freedom of speech.

"It is the God-hand," she said once, the fingers fluttering on Edison's hand. "It is the hand of the creator."

And Edison on his side was impressed and stirred by the blind girl's marvelous keenness and delicacy of touch perception, and the possibilities it held. He explained to her and to the others who listened, that science would make possible in the near future the translations, and that these electrical vibrations, carried through those sensitive fingers to that highly developed brain, would register there the actual perceptions of sound which come to those of normal hearing through the ears.

Just how? That is the miracle which is to be worked out in Edison's brain and laboratory.

Two further incidents of that afternoon will linger always as fragrant memories.

One, when Helen Keller went into the spacious hall, where the maids of the household were gathered, greetings and shaking hands with each, with the cordial and gracious manner that wins all from the first moment. The other, the hour when Mr. Edison played record after record on a beautiful Victrola, watching with the pleasure of the host and the interest of the man of science Helen Keller's delight as she "listened," her hand against one side of the large horn. What did she get? Who can tell for a certainty? Intense enjoyment—that was beyond all question. To any spirited music, her free hand kept perfect time. A beautiful voice and violin selection brought quick expression in words of swift and sympathetic appreciation. (Remember, she was never told unless she asked what the selections were). And once when a beautiful bird song was being given, she said:

"Now I begin to know how it sounds when a bird sings. I heard a rooster crow once. I held him in my hands so long he had to crow. But I never could make a bird sing in my hands."

The rich, happy, hopeful afternoon came to an end all too soon—Miss Keller and Mrs. Macy were due to catch the express for the West at its first stop outside New York.

"What do you think of Mr. Edison?" asked a friend, as the little party waited a moment for the train.

"What everyone else thinks of him," came the quick response.

"And that?"

"That he is the greatest man in the world."

Mrs. Macy, the friend and teacher whose patience and love have wrought the miracle of Helen Keller's education, heard and smiled.

"And she is the greatest woman in the world," she said.

"The calamity of the blind is immense, irreparable"—the quotation again is from "The World I Live In." "But it does not take away our share of the things that count—service, friendship, humor, imagination, wisdom."

HOW SOME FLOWERS PROTECT THEIR HONEY.

From "Bees Shown to the Children," by Ellison Hawks, published by the Platt & Peck company: Have you ever wondered why cup-shaped flowers, the harebell, the snowdrop and many others, droop their heads? It is because they would become filled with rain or dew if they did not do so, and thus their nectar would be spoiled, and insects would no longer visit them. For the same reason daisies will close their petals when dark clouds come up, and will remain closed until the sun shines again. Have you ever seen a flower of the white dead nettle? It actually protects its nectaries with one of its petals, which overhangs the the others, and acts like a little umbrella.

The ordinary nasturtiums have the edge of the three lower petals cut into fine strips. These keep the rain from the nectar, which is situated at the end of the long spur. You will notice that hive bees are not often seen on nasturtiums, for their tongues are not long enough to reach the nectar; so these flowers depend more on bumble bees for fertilization. The nasturtium is a flower which shows the "honey guides" very well, for all the lines on the petals point to where the nectar is to be found.

Some flowers have to protect their honey from certain insects, who wish to take it without fertilizing the flower in return. Ants, for instance, are very fond of honey; and, as you can easily imagine, they are so small that they can creep right down to the nectaries without dusting themselves with pollen, or fertilizing the flower. So certain flowers, like the primrose, have their stalks covered with multitudes of tiny hairs. These serve as a barricade to the ant and prevent it from climbing to the flower above. The cross-leaved heather has its stalk and calyx covered with sticky hairs, so that not only are the little thieves prevented from getting to the flowers, but they are actually held prisoners as well.

The hair grows considerably faster during the summer than in the winter.

THREATEN TO BURN CHISHOLM HOME

Mike Lamora Gets Letter Telling of Incendiary Plans.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police are trying to unravel the mystery surrounding a communication Mike Lamora found on his doorstep on West Pine street, stating that his home was to be burned.

It was written on the back of a plain envelope and read:

> "Leonard Imbleau said he is going to burn down your shack when you go away again with some gunny sacks and kerosene. He said so, so I would let you know you are in danger. "H. HURTE."

The words "H. Hurte" are set below the main part of the letter and is presumed to be the signature. The police made an investigation, but could disclose no preparations for the setting of the house on fire.

Had Mysterious Fire.

Several days ago the garret of the Lamora home caught on fire in a mysterious manner which he has been unable to figure out. The police believe the letter is a blind and the signature was meant to be fictitious. Assistant Cashier Fred Hurt of the First National bank lives in the next block and the police think the writer of the letter attempted to use this name as a blind to mislead the authorities.

FAIR

The warmer weather came as promised, but with it clouds. However, a much better promise is handed out today for tonight and tomorrow. It will be fair, and for the first time in a long period Duluth will have a pretty Sunday. It will be somewhat colder, however, but with moderate winds.

A year ago today it was stormy. The sun rose this morning at 7:34 and will set this afternoon at 5:09, giving nine hours and thirty-five minutes of sunshine, two minutes more than yesterday.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions: "A disturbance centered over the upper Ohio valley has caused light to heavy rain, sleet or snow over the southern lake region and Southeastern states during the last twenty-four hours. Most of the Southern and Eastern reports are missing because of wire trouble. Light snow also fell over Western Lake Superior, Western Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and snow or rain over Northern Oregon, Washington and Southern Montana. Temperatures have risen decidedly over the western lake region, upper Mississippi valley and Southwestern states, but the weather is somewhat colder in the extreme Northwest, which latter condition will doubtless reach the Head of the Lakes tonight.

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Forecasts for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Sunday:

Wisconsin—Unsettled weather tonight with slightly colder in east and north portions; Sunday cloudy.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Sunday; somewhat colder in east portion tonight.

Iowa—Mostly cloudy tonight; Sunday generally fair.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Sunday; warmer in northwest portion tonight.

South Dakota—Fair tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

Montana—Generally fair tonight and Sunday; warmer in east portion tonight.

Upper Michigan and Lower Michigan weather reports missing.

DULUTH CONCERN'S SKIRTS ARE CLEAR.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—A conference held here yesterday afternoon between members of the council and water and light commission and a representative of the Northern Coal & Dock Company of Duluth to ascertain how the coal invoices shipped to the village were raised and resulted in the Duluth concern being given a clean bill.

The Northern Coal & Dock company representative showed that all its bills to the Hibbing Lumber company checked with the freight bills for the coal furnished. There remained unexplained, however, the changes made in the bills of the Northern Coal & Dock company as shown at the council meeting Tuesday. When and where these changes were made is still a matter for speculation, but the Northern Coal & Dock company demonstrated to the satisfaction of the members of the council and the commission that the changes were not made in its office.

It is probable that no further action will be taken by the village in the matter, as the coal received by the village this month, and unpaid for, more than makes up for the overcharges of the past.

The county's receipts from all sources during 1913 were $1,253,203.11, with expenditures of $1,025,222.98. The general tax collections during the year amounted to $892,082.66. The revenue from state land and interest collections footed up $26,588.65, and the mortgage tax collections $19,927.78.

The largest items in the disbursement column are school district warrants issued and the town and village warrants, there being $327,818.58 of the former and $335,669.43 of the latter. The road and bridge warrants issued amounted to $78,801.56 and the county revenue disbursements to $77,093.51. There were also $41,330 issued for bond redemption. The school districts and state revenue accounted for the expenditure of $88,347.67.

VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN IS BEING WOUND UP.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia's hot city campaign is drawing to a close. For mudslinging it has been marked. Michael Boylan, one of the candidates for mayor, will hold final meetings tonight and Monday evening.

The meeting tonight will be at the Fay opera house and the meeting on Monday will be at the Italian society hall.

ELY NOTES.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—About twenty-five members of the Young People's society of Winton came to Ely last evening in a sleigh, and after driving around for some time, went to the parlors of the Methodist church, where an oyster supper was served by the young people.

The Rev. J. W. Schenck of Aurora will preach in the Methodist church here tomorrow in exchange with the pastor, Rev. E. F. Stidd. Mr. Schenck has spoken here a number of times.

Bury Section 30 Man.

Ely Minn. Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Peter Jidaroff was held yesterday afternoon from the Catholic church. Jidaroff died from injuries sustained in the Section 30 mine last Tuesday, when a piece of logging fell, striking him on the head, fracturing the skull. He was taken at once to a hospital, but the injuries proved fatal. He was 19 years of age, came from Bulgaria but a short time ago, and leaves several cousins at Section 30, besides relatives in Bulgaria.

Children Find Explosive.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.) — While returning home from the Lincoln school Thursday afternoon, Gladys Sinstren and Vivian Wisner picked up an unexploded dynamite cap with fuse attached and not realizing the danger of handling it carried the thing home. W. F. Anderson, while visiting the Sinstren home yesterday, saw it laying on the table in the kitchen and promptly notified Mrs. Sinstren of the danger.

Farmer-Logger Killed.

Cadott, Wis., Jan. 31.—Fred Krans, a farmer, aged 50, was found dead near here yesterday. He had been hauling logs yesterday on a bobsled and started home late. It is supposed his team ran away and threw him off. His driverless team reached home about midnight. He leaves a wife and five children.

Hibbing School Attendance.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 31.—Yesterday closed the first half of the school year for the Hibbing public schools. The enrollment, including night school, has been in excess of 3,000, and the total day school enrollment is 200 more than last year at this time.

POULTRY FARMING A DIVERSIFIED INDUSTRY.

By H. R. LEWIS,
N. J. Agricultural Experiment Station.

No branch of our present agricultural development offers greater latitude in diversity of effort than poultry husbandry. It is made up of so many different branches and has so many different sources of income that the beginner may select the line which will best fit his particular conditions. Before selecting or developing any branch of work, a careful study of market conditions and features of location and transportation must be made. There is a constant demand for strictly fresh table eggs and for high class market poultry. The problem, then, is to choose a line of production and by improved methods produce high quality, and no anxiety need be felt over distribution.

The most profitable and easily managed branch of poultry production is market eggs, the aim being to so hatch, rear and manage birds that a maximum of eggs are produced during winter, when prices are high. The requisites are strong, vigorous pullets, hatched during April and reared on free range, and given in winter plenty of good food and a congenial environment. The latter necessitates plenty of room, an abundance of sunlight and fresh air, together with entire freedom from moisture. Eggs commanding highest prices are infertile—that is, males should be kept from the pens except during breeding seasons.

Capons and Day-Old Chicks.

Next in order of possibilities comes the production of market poultry, such as broilers, roasters, capons and fowls. Broilers may be produced as a side line or as specialized business, preferably the former. The surplus males which occur in the hatching and rearing of pullets may be marketed young as broilers or kept until fall and sold as roasting chickens. With the lighter breeds the former method usually brings the best returns, while in the case of the American and Asiatic breeds it will often be much more profitable to hold them for roasting. The advantages of capon production are larger and heavier birds at killing time, a sweeter and finer flavored meat and a much higher selling value, together with a lower cost of production.

The day-old chick business offers exceptional opportunities to the man with a small piece of land, and custom hatching is one of the modern developments of the past decade.

Possibilities in raising of breeding stock and in production of hatching eggs are limitless. Success depends upon quality and ability to advertise.

APPLES AND PEACHES; WHERE AND HOW TO GROW THEM.

Necessary Locations and Soils.

BY A. A. GULLEY,
College of Agriculture, Storrs, Conn.

Northeastern states offer innumerable satisfactory locations for the growing of apples and peaches, and the former in most of the varieties will make a congenial home in almost any spot in which one might choose to live, expect in the very mountainous districts.

In picking out land for fruit growing bear in mind that apples, pears and peaches are bulky; therefore nearness to transportation facilities is most important. On the other hand, where capital is limited, land farther from market costs less and, as far as the fruit is concerned, may be just as desirable. Wherever chosen the land should have a fair elevation, not on top of a high hill exposed to strong winds, nor yet in the bottom of a narrow valley, but gently sloping hillsides are ideal, and the direction is of slight importance. The choice will often lie between rough or rocky fields costing but little or those much easier to cultivate and so more expensive at the start. The latter are, as a rule, cheaper to handle as time goes on, but success may be had from either. Whichever spot is chosen it should be naturally or easily drained for water must never stand near the surface in an orchard.

The apple allows a wide latitude in the matter of soil, and some varieties will grow on almost any land strong enough to grow trees. For the varieties generally grown gravel or clay gravel soils are very satisfactory, but lighter lands are also successful when supplied with humus. The particular nature of the soil is less important than location and drainage, and many so called run out farms can readily be fitted for fruit growing.

Peach Trees Are Particular.

The needs of the peach are quite different from the apple, and to start with the peach is more particular. Choice of soils is also restricted as success can only be assured where there is a natural drainage and a warm, sandy soil so congenial to the peach.

SUCCESS ON A SMALL FARM.

What One Woman Did.

BY KATE ST. MAUR.

Can a family make a comfortable living on a small farm?

Yes, most emphatically yes, if they possess ordinary common sense and industry. My own personal experience is an undeniable demonstration of that fact. I started on a rented place with really no capital, as a business disaster had swallowed up all my savings, so that I know what it is to commence at the very bottom of the ladder.

The place we found was an old fashioned homestead. There were two large barns, corncrib, toolhouse and several old sheds. It was really a farm of 180 acres, but the owner let us have the house and twelve acres, including the orchard, for $15 a month, on a three years' lease, with the privilege of taking over the additional 168 acres at any time during our tenancy for an additional $8 a month, with the option of purchase.

Stock Bought From Savings.

Stock had to be bought in small lots, as I saved money from our living expenses at first. So I bought a few old hens—broody ladies that wanted to set—and raised forty-eight chickens the first summer. The old hens had cost $10; extra eggs for setting, $5; feed, $4. And on the credit side there were ninety chickens sold as broilers, which brought $22, fifty-eight young pullets kept for stock and all the eggs we wanted for our own table. From a trio of ducks bought early in the spring I sold sixteen young ones when nine weeks old for $7.92. In November of the same year thirty more were sold and twelve retained for stock. I can't give the exact cost of feeding because no separate account was kept, but certainly $20 would cover it. The old birds cost $4.50, so the profit on the investment amounted to nearly $30.

The apple orchard was in a very badly neglected condition, but still we realized $180 from sales in the fall, and our vegetable garden had supplied our own needs and furnished a bountiful supply for pickling, preserving and canning for winter. Having a balance on the right side of the ledger, we built a new chicken house and bought a cow. The place was entirely self supporting by the eighteenth month, and from that time on stock grew so rapidly that it seemed advisable to take on the rent of land and raise all our own feed for the stock.

The great secret in starting on a small place is, I think, to commence with poultry, garden and berry fruits and gradually increase stock and crop raising operations, as success and market, to say nothing of your own experience, makes growth feasible.

DEVELOPING THE DAIRY CALF.

Raising the Future Milker.

By E. K. PARKINSON.

The development of a dairy calf should begin in the sire and dam back several generations. To illustrate, if there is land enough to keep a cow and money being distinctly an object it is decided to buy a heifer calf and raise it. With this end in view the milkman or butcher is interviewed, and, being an obliging chap, he finds a pretty little bossy, drops $10 into his pocket and the prospective milker is installed. For two years the beast is fed, petted and watched over, and at last the eventful day arrives when, with new milk pail in hand, the family gather in the barn to watch the milking—the result, about eight quarts daily. At first that sounds very well, but wait a moment. The Massachusetts Agricultural college has found the keep of a cow (feed, insurance, taxes, depreciation, etc.) costs $146.01 per year, so let us do some figuring: Eight quarts for 300 days (the cow being dry two months yearly) gives 2,400 quarts, which is sold at 6 cents per quart would return $144, a loss of $2.04—not quite what we had reckoned on, is it?

How to Feed.

Therefore a future dairy cow should come from a line of good milkers—at least, on the sire's side—and will cost as a calf about $25, but the money is well expended, and the calf once purchased, the importance of spending thought as well as feed in its development should not be forgotten, especially during the first six months. Feed new milk the first two or three weeks, four to six quarts daily divided into three feeds, then gradually substitute skimmilk and continue so to feed until six months old. Skimmilk and well cured hay, alfalfa or clover fed three time daily should make the bulky part of the ration. Silage may take the place of one feed of hay when three months old and may be fed twice daily after six months. In addition to bulky feed, the calf requires grain to furnish nutriment and stimulate growth. Feed little at first, about a half a pound a day in a clean wooden box, and gradually increase until two pounds are given. A good mixture consists of cornmeal, ground oats and wheat bran in equal parts and a half part of linseed meal. Feed the spring calf in the barn the first summer and when a year old turn her into a good pasture, when no other food will be required. Fall calves should not be obliged to depend entirely on pasture until eighteen months old. Keep the heifer growing, feed her well, but do not fatten her.

HOW TO PREPARE MEAT FOR CURING.

By W. H. TOMHAVE,
Formerly of University Farm, St. Paul.

It is highly essential that all animal heat shall be removed from meat before an attempt is made to prepare it for curing. If the surface of the meat comes in contact with salt before all the animal heat is removed, it will have a tendency to shrink the muscles and form a coating on the outside which will not allow the generating gases to escape. Meat should never be frozen when salted, as the frost will prevent the proper penetration of the brine, and uneven curing will be the result.

BALANCED RATIONS.

By H. R. FLINT,
Formerly of University Farm, St. Paul.

A balanced ration is "one in which each of the different food materials or nutrients is present in just the right proportion and amount to meet the needs of the animals," says Bulletin 159 of the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station. Tests indicated that cows fed balanced rations yielded a pound of butter fat for each seventeen pounds of total nutrients consumed, while twenty-one pounds were consumed to a pound of butter fat when an unbalanced ration was fed. The use of the balanced ration thus saved four pounds of digestible nutrients for each pound of butter fat produced, or a pound and a quarter of butter fat was produced by the same number of pounds of digestible nutrients in balanced rations as was required for a pound of butter fat when the unbalanced ration was fed.

Not only was the butter fat more economically produced, but the cows given a balanced ration finished the test with better appetites and in much better flesh and general physical condition than the others. It is not specially difficult to gain the profit resulting from the balanced ratio if you secure and use Prof. T. L. Haecker's booklet on "Feeding Dairy Cows," published as Bulletin 130 of the Agricultural Experiment Station, University farm, St. Paul.

FEEDING HENS WITH MUSTARD IN ENGLAND.

Every poultryman's great problem is to secure lots of eggs, especially from September to April, when eggs are at a premium. Hatching eggs are desired then, and unless they are produced during these months no real profit can be made by the real egg farmer, not the fancier.

Fowls unquestionably like seasoned food and a great many poultrymen are always on the lookout for something that will stimulate egg production without leaving any after effects. Hens after going through the period of moulting, which is a severe strain on them, naturally need toning up and something to tempt their appetite. In England for many years they have been feeding mustard, which is the greatest of table condiments. The breeders in this country have only just begun to feed it, as it was regarded a valuable secret and not allowed to get out, and even now no reliable information can be gotten from any of our experimental stations on the value of mustard as a real stimulant and egg producer without ill effects, but some of our large farms have been using it with marked results as to increase of eggs produced and quality of same.

Mustard should be fed in the mash mixture, at the rate of one heaping teaspoonful daily to each ten birds. The mustard should be thoroughly and evenly mixed with the ground grains in order that all birds may receive equal amounts. It is best to first mix the mustard with five times its bulk of the mash mixture, and this in turn with the balance of the mash. The mash may be fed either dry or moist. Mustard may be given throughout the year, or only during the cool season, as preferred. In some cases the amount is increased to one teaspoonful to seven or eight birds, especially where the larger varieties are kept.

In England during the years 1909 and 1910 Ralph R. Allen, editor of Monthly Hints on Poultry, conducted a twelve months' test of mustard feeding. The plan of the experiment was comprehensive, and included three methods of feeding even lots of Buff Orpington pullets. The object of the test was to determine the comparative egg production, the comparative cost and the effect of the different rations on the birds. The first pen received the regular ration; the second had capsicum added to the mash and the third received mustard in the mash. Briefly summarized, Mr. Allen's published results were as follows:

The mustard-fed birds produced more eggs and at a lower cost per dozen than either of the other lots. Those receiving capiscum were least productive. Post mortem examinations at the conclusion of the experiment demonstrated that the birds receiving capsicum had abnormal livers, while the mustard-fed stock was in perfect physical condition. This test demonstrated that it pays to feed mustard to poultry, since egg production is greatly increased thereby, especially in the cold weather, and that no ill effects follow the continuous use of this condiment.

ELECTRICITY'S PART IN EGG PRODUCTION.

In England they are having quite a discussion on longer hours for laying hens and some very interesting experiments are being carried out. One man has been experimenting for over two years with electricity and now has given it up for acetylene gas, which, he claims, is giving him better results. This though has been seriously challenged by Randolph Meech, who conducts an experimental farm and writes as follows:

"I am installing, in addition to another poultry farm, an apparatus which has a clock with four hands, two for the morning and two for the evening, and all that is necessary is to set these hands once a day, wind the clock, and the rest is done electrically, and at the time at which it is set, the light will come up gradually and this period is arranged to run from ten minutes to half an hour without a flicker, quite automatically, and gradually goes down at the time fixed for it to do so, which is when it is full daylight, and it goes up again at twilight and down again at the time set. I must certainly take an exception about Light Sussex laying two eggs in eight hours and that the average is three eggs in forty-eight hours. I defy any man to prove that he can make any hen lay three eggs in forty-eight hours under the electric or any other system.

"It is possible, of course, for one hen to lay two eggs within a few hours of each other, just in the same way as a hen may lay a double yolked egg, which is caused in no other way than on account of the over-prolificity of the bird, or the bird being fed on too forcing foods; but to pretend to argue the point that a hen will lay if kept under the rays of electric light three eggs every forty-eight hours is nonsense. Any one who has kept birds under the rays of electric light knows fully well that the birds will start to lay almost instantly, but there is no man yet that can prove that he has produced even 15 per cent or 10 per cent more eggs in the long run under the rays of electric light than from hens that have been kept under normal conditions during the summer months. Last year our birds did exceptionally well under electric light from September to Christmas, but they fell immeasurably short from the beginning of January to the end of February, and I am at the present time under the impression that the extra amount of eggs obtained during October, November and December was certainly curtailed to almost a similar amount short in the new year.

"This year I have half the birds under electric light and half under normal conditions, and I hope to be in a position to say by the end of March which of these birds have in the long run done best. I do not wish to discourage any one who would like to experiment with the birds under electric rays, but I cannot let the statement that three eggs can be obtained on an average in every forty-eight hours from every hen pass without comment. Every one knows that at this time of the year to get 50 per cent of eggs continuously from the birds, where large flocks are kept, is good, and above the average, and if one was able to obtain an average of three eggs in forty-eight hours from each hen under electric light I would at once install a plant of 20,000 hens."

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

BY LE ROY CADY,
Associate Horticulturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Vegetable and flower seeds should be purchased soon.

The Carrie gooseberry is one of the best for home use.

Get the hotbed sash and frames ready. It will soon be time to use them.

Send for catalogues and make selections early. Some seed are scarce again this year.

Try high-priced novelties sparingly. Some are good, but many are worthless for you.

Start a few evergreens about the garden or yard. Blue spruce and Black Hills spruce are excellent.

Every home needs a strawberry bed as much as a garden. Senator Dunlap is an excellent variety.

Buy sweet peas in colors. Do not depend on mixtures. Straight colors are prettier on the trellis and it is easier to pick the colors desired for bouquets.

Rhubarb roots dug last autumn may be put in the cellar now and forced. The shoots from these are very acceptable at this time of year.

Perfection currant gives large bushes but is not as prolific or hardy as some of the others. It is well worth growing in the home garden.

Do not invest heavily in new, high-priced fruits, plants or vegetable seed, no matter how highly they are recommended. Stick to the old, tried varieties that are doing well in your community.

In buying fruit plants stick to the list adopted by the State Horticultural society. This list can be obtained from A. W. Latham, 207 Kasota block, Minneapolis.

Root-grafting of apples may be done now. Procure seedling roots and cions and try a few. Keep each variety well labeled so that there will be no question as to what they are at planting time.

FARM EQUIPMENT SHOULD BE DOUBLED.

By A. F. WOODS,
Dean of Department of Agriculture, St. Paul.

Large amounts will be required in Minnesota as well as in other states for improvement of land and equipment, on the average it may be safely estimated that the cash investment in land, buildings, equipment, and live stock will have to be doubled in order to get the best returns. To get these funds, short time loans for working capital are necessary. The farmer cannot pay 8½ per cent for this money as he is reported to be now doing on the average, and earn for himself and his family a reasonable profit. The rapid increase of tenancy is an indication of the increasing inability of the farmers to own the land they work. If this is allowed to go on it will tend to an increasing inefficiency in agriculture, resulting in business depression and higher cost of living.

LOOK FOR THE LABEL.

BY W. L. OSWALD.

The new Minnesota seed law, which is effective now, requires that all agricultural seed sold for seeding purposes must be labeled. The law does not prohibit the sale of any seed, but states that the label must disclose certain facts, such as the purity of the seed, germination, and whether or not it contains any seeds of quack grass, dodder, perennial sow thistle or Canada thistle, besides other information. It also gives the privilege of selling seed with the label "Not cleaned seed." All buyers of seeds are urged to be very careful to see that it is properly labeled. Do not buy seed marked "Not cleaned seed" unless it is absolutely necessary.

SUNLIGHT.

BY H. PRESTON HOSKINS,
Assistant Veterinarian, University Farm, St. Paul.

Sunlight is one of the best and cheapest disinfectants at our disposal, and we should take advantage of this fact at every opportunity. In the construction of barns or shelters of any kind for animals, ample provision should be made for the admission of the maximum amount of sunlight. Southern exposure is desirable, that is, having the majority of the windows facing the south. The warmth thus provided in cold weather is desirable, and much of the excessive heat in summer can be avoided by providing suitable curtains or screens. Most disease germs are easily killed by direct sunlight, as has been repeatedly shown by experiments.

AMBASSADOR PAGE TO UNVEIL MEMORIAL.

London, Jan. 31.—Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador, has tentatively arranged to unveil at Weymouth in June the memorial erected in that town to Richard Clark and John Endicott, two Weymouth men who took part in the early colonization of America. Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain is a descendant of John Endicott and she assisted considerably in the movement inaugurated by the town council for the memorial. The town of Weymouth, Mass., and the city of Boston, the towns in Newfoundland have been asked to send representatives to the unveiling. The Chamberlain family will also be represented.

HISTORY AND CULTURE OF MARQUIS WHEAT

By A. C. ARNY,
Assistant Agriculturist, Division of Agronomy and Farm Management.

Marquis wheat was developed at the Central Experiment farm, Ottawa, Can. It is the result of a cross between Red Fife and Hard Red Calcutaa made in 1892 by Dr. A. P. Saunders. In 1907 a baking test was made and the flour from Marquis wheat was found to be high in bread making strength and of good color. It proved very stisfactory in yielding power during the next two years and following the harvest of 1908, Marquis wheat has been distributed regularly from the Central Experiment farm.

The straw of Marquis wheat is stiff and usually below medium height. Although it is a beardless wheat, a bearded spike occurs occasionally. The chaff is smooth, yellowish in color and holds the kernel firmly at maturity. Marquis wheat matures from five to seven days earlier than Minnesota No. 169 and from two to three days earlier than Minnesota No. 163 and velvet chaff. An early maturing wheat has the advantage over a later maturing variety of equal productive power and milling quality in that it possibly more often escapes attack of rust and in northern latitudes escapes damaging frosts that come before the later varieties of wheat mature. The kernels of Marquis wheat are short, broad and from medium to dark red in color. The weight per measured bushel is usually over sixty pounds.

Marquis compared with standard Minnesota wheats and commercial velvet chaff:

Variety—	Av. Days to Mature	Av. Height Inches	Av. Yield Bu. Per Acre	Av. Weight Per Bu.
Minn. No. 169, Haynes Blue Stem	100*	39	27.06	58.5
Minn. No. 163, Glyndon Fife	106*	37	27.23	60.0
Commercial Velvet Chaff	108*	37*	28.38	62.3
Marquis	105	35*	28.11	60.5

*—Two-year trial at Crookston, one-year trial on duplicate plots, University farm.
*Data from Crookston station supplied by Supt. C. G. Selvig.

In the three trials of Minnesota No. 169, velvet chaff and Marquis and two trials of Minnesota No. 163 the average results of which are given, the Marquis wheat yielded slightly more than the average of the other three varieties and slightly less than the velvet chaff.

From trials at University farm, at Crookston and from reports from a number of farmers who grew the Marquis wheat in comparison with the wheats commonly grown in the state in 1912 and 1913 in different sections of the state, it is evident that the Marquis wheat should be sown largely on the heavier, more productive soils in Minnesota. On the lighter soils usually more subject to drouth, better results may be expected from the use of the bluestem. The Marquis wheat should be tried out in a limited way on each farm in comparison with the varieties that have been grown and, if it proves more profitable, it may be introduced more generally in following years.

THE QUALITY OF MARQUIS WHEAT

By C. H. BAILEY,
Cereal Technologist, Division of Agricultural Chemistry.

The quality of wheat is dependent upon several factors, principal among which are the percentage of flour which can be produced from it in milling, and the baking quality and composition of the flour, including the size or volume of the loaf, color of the crumb, absorption or quantity of water used in making the dough, and the percentage of protein (which is largely gluten.) Certain other factors, such as moisture content, soundness or freedom from fermentive changes, etc., are also of importance, but these are due to methods of handling rather than varietal characteristics.

When measured by these standards Marquis wheat of the crop of 1913 has been found to compare very favorably with Fife and Bluestem wheat raised under the same conditions. Samples of Marquis wheat, and of Fife or Bluestem, or both, were obtained from a number of localities in the state and tested in comparison with each other. While there were no wide differences between the two groups and the general relation observed did not hold ture in all instances, on the average the Marquis wheat samples gave slightly higher percentages of total flour, and the high-grade or "middlings flour" contained a higher percentage of protein, absorbed more water in making the dough, and produced loaves of somewhat larger volume. There was comparatively little difference in the color of the flour obtained from the two groups. This is shown in the following table which gives the results of tests on the Fife and Bluestem samples, and those on the Marquis wheat samples grown in the same localities, and in most instances on the same farm.

Variety—	No. of Samples	—Tests in Middlings Flour— Total Flour	Loaf Volume	Water Used	Color Score	Protein (N x 5.7)	Crude Protein in Wheat (N x 5.7)

Fife and Bluestem.	9	71.14	2557	58.6	99.3	11.34	12.24

CURING SALT PORK.

BY ANDREW BOSS,
Agriculturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Plain Salt Pork.—Rub each piece of pork with fine common salt, and pack closely in a barrel. Let it stand over night. The next day weigh out ten pounds of salt and two ounces of saltpeter to each 100 pounds of meat, and dissolve in four gallons of boiling water. Pour this brine, when cold, over the meat; cover, and weight down to keep it under the brine. The pork should be kept in the brine until used.

FIRST OF THE FARMERS

By WALT MASON in COLLIER'S

The land-poor farmer is a well-known institution in the Middle West. He is frequent in all new countries, and it is impossible to convince him of the error of his way. He continues to hunger and thirst for more land, until at last he has to be content with six feet of it. There is some reason in his ambition when he gets his land cheap, in the certainty that its value will rapidly increase; but when a man continues to buy land at a high price, merely to own it, and to be able to say that he owns everything between him and the horizon, his wisdom may be questioned.

Thousands of American farmers, who might be comfortable and happy, with money in the bank and tobacco in the old tobacco box, are eternally striving and straining to make the next payment on the west eighty or the south quarter section, and to pay off mortgages which are as threatening as funnel-shaped clouds.

A Swiss Showing 'Em How to Farm.

These farmers, in everything but land, are as poor as distinguished as turkey. They conduct their agricultural operations on a large and expensive scale. They cover so much ground that they can't do it properly, and they haven't time to attend to fertilizing or soil analysis or trifles of that kind. They cultivate their corn with four-horse cultivators, and get fifteen bushels an acre where they should get thirty; they wear out their land raising wheat, and the wheat goes to pay for more land or to lift mortgages. In the country of big farms a man who has to be satisfied with eighty acres is looked upon with pity, and he usually dies young of a broken heart.

Arnold Martin came to this country from Switzerland to show the folly of this system. He was unconscious of his mission at the time. He had no idea that he was destined to be a voice crying in the wilderness. He came in the steerage, and his highest ambition was to get a job on an American farm and draw the princely wages of which he had heard in his native Alpine village. It is eighteen years since Arnold first beheld Liberty in her great act of enlightening the world, and Ellis island resounded to the clang of his wooden shoon.

He was so poor that he had to work his way to the West, and when he reached Pawnee county, Neb., he looked around him and beheld a fair and fertile country, and decided to travel no further. He secured a portfolio as third assistant to a farmer of the vicinity, and for three years he labored diligently and made a reputation as a first-class farm hand. He was a quiet young man, with little talent as an elocutionist, but he had good eyes and an excellent memory, and as he toiled he observed, and filed away facts for future reference.

After three years of arduous toil he had saved $272, and then he decided to embark in business for himself. He bought a tract of twenty acres near Pawnee City, paying $12.50 an acre for it. People who took an intcrest in the young man declared that no punishment could be too severe for the man who sold him that tract, for it was notoriously the worst piece of land in the county. It was rocky and rough, and the soil had no substance to it, and even the rattlesnakes side-stepped it. Kind-hearted folk called upon the misguided youth to express their sympathy and mingle their tears with his, but, in his fatuous foreign way, he seemed perfectly satisfied with his bargain, and the neighbors heard him yodeling by the hour as he toiled on his barren acres.

Much water has run under the bridge since Arnold Martin made this venture, and now his little farm is celebrated all over Nebraska, and its fame is spreading to the far corners of the country. The agriculturists who smiled or wept when they heard of Arnold's foolish bargain now repair to his home to receive instruction and admonition from him. For he makes more money from his twenty acres than the average farmer can hope to make from his 640 acres.

He Is Not Land Hungry.

Recently he took a lot of his products to a dry farming congress at Tulsa, Okla., and won prizes aggregating $1,167. He was the hero of that assemblage, and people crowded around him all day long to ask him how in thunder he did it, and Arnold explained patiently and good-naturedly. He makes no mystery of his success. He is making a fortune on a piece of land American farmers considered too poor for a hog pasture, and he says he thinks he might have done better had he purchased ten acres instead of twenty. He believes that twenty acres make almost too large a farm for one man to attend to.

The United States department of agriculture has sent some of its experts to Pawnee county to study Arnold Martin and his hip-pocket farm, and one of those experts, after contemplating the owner's curves for a few days, said: "This man is the first of American farmers." Then he went back to Washington and prepared a special bulletin treating of Martin and his methods.

Martin has never suffered from land hunger. At Tulsa he said to a group of farmers: "A farm of 320 acres is a misfortune, and one of 640 acres is a downright calamity."

SERUM-TREATED HOGS.

By H. PRESTON HOSKINS,
Assistant Veterinarian, University Farm, St. Paul.

"How long after a hog is vaccinated before it can be butchered for food purposes?" we are often asked.

At least ten days should be allowed to elapse between vaccination and butchering. If, at the expiration of this time, the hog appears to be healthy in every way, it is fit for food. If the hog shows any signs of sickness, no matter how slight, it would not be well to butcher it until fully recovered, and then the carcass should not be used if it shows any extensive alternations as the result of the previous illness.

NOVEL FARM SIDELINE.

How Todd County Farmer Finds Profitable Winter Work at Home.

By H. R. FLINT,
Formerly of University Farm, St. Paul.

Basswood is common in the woodlots of many Minnesota farms, and while it is decidedly valuable for lumber where it reaches good development there is much of it that has come up in the form of sprouts and is rather small and crooked for lumber.

A farmer in Todd county has solved the problem of the profitable utilization of such material in a manner that is worthy of being widely followed. Having an 8-horse power gasoline engine which he used for sawing wood, grinding feed and other similar farm work, he secured a circular rip saw and mandrel, made a suitable frame and table for the saw and used the outfit to make egg cases of his poor basswood. As the sawing was all done in winter when work was slack it was necessary to build a rough shed about 14 by 20 feet in size to shelter the machinery and men, but the entire outfit, aside from the engine, cost less than $100 and the labor required to build the plant. Heat was furnished by a stove in which was burned chiefly waste and slabs from the saw.

The egg case parts are sawed out, planing being unnecessary if the saw works well, the ends cleated together, and all the pieces shipped tied in neat bundles. Thus there is no expense for nailing them except the slight labor to cleat the ends together. The labor was nearly all performed by two men.

These cases were sold through one of the local storekeepers, the manufacturer receiving $15 per 100 for them. During the winter of 1912-13 the plant turned out a finished product which sold for $750.

The trees are first cut into logs of convenient lengths for handling; these logs are hauled or skidded to the plant and there cut into bolts about twenty-six inches long by means of a circular saw before they are taken into the building. The bolts are ripped into boards about one-fourth of an inch thick and six inches wide with a thirty-two-inch circular rip saw, and the ends of the boards afterward trimmed square and smooth by a small circular saw which can be placed on the rip saw mandrel.

A reasonable amount of experience in handling circular saws is about all of the special knowledge required to install and operate a plant of this kind. Specifications and prices for egg cases can be obtained from a local dealer or from commission men in the Twin Cities. A small amonnt of timber will supply such a plant for a considerable time, because the boards are so thin that a relatively small number of logs will produce a surprising number of cases.

In writing a play about Disraeli that wonderful personage whose eccentric personality within the memory of most living men, dominated world politics, the ordinary dramatist would have chosen the stormy days when the brilliant young statesman was making a career for himself, culminating in the stirring events that followed his challenge to O'Connell's son. Louis N. Parker, whose "Disraeli" George Arliss will present next Tuesday and Wednesday matinee and night for the first time here, has chosen a later period as more suitable to his purpose. He shows us the immortal "Dizzy" at the zenith of his career. Woven into the action of the piece is the diplomatic battle for the control of the Suez canal, which Disraeli conducted and won for England single-handed. No one could be made to realize the importance of preventing the control of the canal from falling into unfriendly hands, the Bank of England refused to aid him in his project, and only by going to the Jews for money, and by astutely forestalling all moves made by his opponents, did he complete a task the fruits of which were soon recognized. All this in the play serves merely as a background for a love story encouraged and fostered by Disraeli with the same cunning with which he bent political tools to serve his purpose. In general, Disraeli's tactics in furthering the wooing of the Lady Clarissa by Viscount Deeford, are much the same as those of Richelieu in regard to the Chevalier Mauprat and Julie in Lytton's famous play. Before the contemplated match is consumated, Disraeli makes the aristocrat prove himself a man.

The production is elaborate scenically and the costumes of the period—the early seventies, lends an attractive charm.

Mr. Arliss' company includes such well-known players as Violet Heming, Margaret Dale, Florence Arliss, Lilla Campbell, Charles Harbury, Oscar Adye, Arthur Eldred, Henry Carvill and Dudley Digges.

This being the centennial of Verdi's birth, there is a general revival of interest in the life and works of the world's greatest composer. The greatest musical and dramatic stars have formed a celebration in the way of motion pictures of this genius. These pictures will be shown at the Lyceum next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. These pictures were taken and enacted on the very ground that Verdi was born, and wrote the everlasting operas such as "Cavalierria Rusticanna," "Aida," Traviata," "Il Trovatore," "Rigoletto," "Ernani" and many other famous operatic gems. Europe's greatest actors have taken part in this wonderful picture and through their untiring efforts, this production has proven the craze of the world. Verdi is impersonated by the great living artist in Europe, who portrays this master from boyhood days to his death. The photography, emotional acting and scenic splendor have captivated the most critical of people. Each opera that this genius has composed, appears in this wonderful film, and ten years of constant talking, could not do justice to this production. Verdi's delightful music will be played in connection with this picture. In the vision scenes showing him composing his various operas, music from each opera will be played. The combination of splendid acting and the rendering of this special music in connection with the picture leaves a realistic impression that lingers for years.

There will be four performances each day, two in the afternoon and two each evening.

With a cast of more than 100, and with the only and inimitable Thomas W. Ross, the foremost of American comedians in the leading role, that real play of true American life and heart interest, "Checkers," has been given to the motion picture going public by the All Star Feature corporation, the makers of "Arizona."

A Broadway cast has been carefully selected for the presentation of this silent drama, and in support of Mr. Ross there is to be seen many of the original company, and many faces which have for a number of years been identified with various of the more prominent stock companies of the country. In the supporting cast are to be seen Gertrude Shipman, a prominent stock leading lady; William A. Williams, formerly of the Pathe company, Jack Regan in the character of Push Miller, and many others.

In order to secure the necessary local atmosphere of the racing life, the producers have at tremendous expense had their company quartered at the Laurel and Havre de Grace race courses in Maryland, and as a result, the picture abounds with views of thoroughbreds pounding down the stretch in races, the morning workouts, the crowds at the grand stands, etc.

"Checkers" in five reels and more than 250 scenes will be shown at the Lyceum today only.

"How does Howe do it?" is the question usually asked by those seeing Lyman H. Howe's most recent triumph—a comprehensive reproduction depicting the details as well as the magnitude of the gigantic task of constructing the Panama canal. It is a natural question to ask because so many other photographers have tried and failed to do justice to the immensity of the undertaking. They found that to record on motion film how this crowning achievement since the dawn of history was consummated was as baffling as the actual job of digging the "Big Ditch" was for the French who finally abandoned it in despair. But where others failed to film the immensity of the undertaking, Mr. Howe has succeeded in securing the only reproduction which shows the prodigious project adequately and in all its phases.

Now that the canal is practically completed, this reproduction is of course of the most timely interest, but entirely aside from this, its importance can never be denied or over-estimated because it portrays what must be considered for centuries to come as the epitome of human endeavor. When it is remembered that not only is this the only film record that is absolutely faultless photographically as well as in subject matter, and that this is the only time Mr. Howe will exhibit it here, the significance of Mr. Howe's engagement assumes a greater importance than ever to the legion of local patrons of his unique Travel Festival. It affords an opportunity which should be taken advantage of by every American not alone because of its world-wide importance but still more so because the Panama canal is so purely American—because it is distinctly an American victory by American brain and brawn. The program will include many other big new features.

There seems little doubt that William T. Hodge is the American comedian of the hour. His individual style, the natural art of acting, which he has brought to a stage of perfection, certainly entitles him to the mantle of Sol Smith Russell and James A. Hearne. Did he choose to retain one vehicle he would be identified as a perennial success, but Mr. Hodge had no such idea. When he dropped "The Man From Home" two seasons ago, theatrical managers were at a loss to discover his motive, but this apostle of genial optimism stands for success. He already had secured a new comedy and it is in this play, "The Road to Happiness," that Lee Shubert will present him at the Lyceum theater soon.

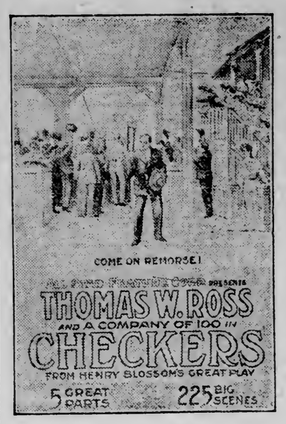

It is related that out of a thousand plays submitted to Mr. Hodge he selected his present vehicle as best suited to follow his former success. There seems little room for doubt that his judgment has been vindicated.

The story deals with characters and scenes in a little village in Northern New York, where there is no problem of sex, politics or business. It is a simple, homely story. The honest directness of the narrative embellished with good, sound, everyday philosophy makes an irresistible appeal. The action is natural and the plot is worked out in a logical order of situations. The leading character is Jim Whitman, the struggling lad of the village who aspires to become the leading lawyer of his native town. He is extremely business-like, yet altogether optimistic and cheerful. From a bashful country boy he naturally develops into a dominant and resourceful citizen and with supreme self-confidence, he proceeds steadily forward, surmounting cheerfully all obstacles in the way of his ambition. Benjamin Hardcastle is the wealthy man of the town. He is desirous of marrying his own daughter to the son of the local banker, whereas the suitor is in love with Hardcastle's step-daughter. Being a man of no conscience, Hardcastle circulates a scandalous story concerning his step-daughter with the result that Whitman comes to her rescue, taking her to the home of his mother. By and by Hardcastle's daughter falls in love with Whitman. This so angers the old man that he organizes a party which has as its aim the driving out of the village of the ambitious boy. The party gets Whitman into an abandoned barn and there threatens to tar and feather him, but, by a clever ruse, the boy outwits them and makes his escape. Ever after he is never molested and everything, by the by, comes his way.

Mr. Hodge is well supported by a company which has been chosen with a view of giving him the best possible results.

"The musical comedy hit of three continents" is the way the advertisements read for the "Quaker Girl," which comes to the Lyceum soon, exactly as presented for one whole year at the Park theater, New York, headed by Victor Morley. It ran two years in London and a year in Paris. The piece is still running in Australia and a company opened recently in Rio Janerio, Brazil, while this company is touring the United States. This makes four continents that have approved "The Quaker Girl," which is a record never before equalled by a musical entertainment of any sort.

S. MILLER KENT,
American Actor, Who Will Headline the New Bill at the Orpheum Theater.

Orpheum

"The Real Q," is the title of the playlet that S. Miller Kent will present at the Orpheum theater next week as the headline attraction of the bill that will begin with Sunday's matinee and continue every afternoon and evening for the remainder of the week. S. Miller Kent is a name familiar to the followers of the theater, and he has enjoyed much success on the legitimate stage as well as in vaudeville. The playlet which he is offering this season is said to provide unusual opportunity for the talents of Mr. Kent. The actor is billed as the "Raffles of Vaudeville." In "The Real Q," Mr. Kent has the role of a suave and clever doctor. The situations are interesting and the suspense as to the outcome is maintained until the very end of the play. This will be Mr. Kent's first visit to the Duluth Orpheum.

Herman Timberg, versatile comedian, will be one of the entertainers on the week's bill and he will doubtless be welcomed by many of his old time admirers, for although this young actor is young in years, he has had much interesting experience and is known to many patrons of vaudeville and musical comedy. He was formerly the star with Gus Edwards' "School Boys and Girls," and when this vaudeville act was enlarged to a musical comedy Herman Tfnberg was chosen as the star of the production. He played with that production until the close of last season. His present vaudeville offering is a delightful little comedy act with dancing and singing enjoyable features. The pantomimic art of this young performer is also said to be of a droll and most amusing sort.

Mosher, Hayes and Mosher, American cyclists, who will appear at the Orpheum next week, have just returned from London, where they enjoyed a most successful engagement at the Palace theater. The performers are Americans and they have been trick cyclists ever since the perfection of the bicycle has made this form of skill a possible feature of vaudeville entertainment. In addition to their skill they are comedians of much ability.

Clara Inge, an eccentric comedian, who will appear on the week's bill, has the probably unique record of one day in the chorus. Her rise was rapid. From the chorus she was transferred on her second day of stage life to a small part and her success has continued. Her last engagement in musical comedy was with Blanche Ring. She has been as successful in her vaudeville experiences.

Parillo and Frabito are street minstrels. The two young men are both instrumentalists and vocalists, and their act is reminiscent of the canals of Venice, from which city they come. They sing and play their own accompaniments on the accordeon and the guitar, and their act has been hailed as one of the best musical turns on the circuit.

The Blossings give a gymnastic performance which is said to be sensational in the extreme. The woman member of the team is heralded as a female Hercules. They come to America from Australia, via London.

Owing to a sudden change in the booking due to the illness of some performers, Manager Billings has not yet received the billing of the seventh act on the program. It is coming direct from New York to open on the circuit here.

The motion picture for the week will be the big Lubin drama, "The Pale of Prejudice," and it is expected to maintain the popularity of the exclusive Orpheum service.

The week of Feb. 8 will be "Tango Week" at the Duluth Orpheum. The pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle will be exhibited that week, to the accompaniment of appropriate music by Director Fred G. Bradbury and h. Orpheum orchestra, and there will be other tango features on the bill.

* * *

The Orpheum in the last few years has been able to proudly boast many many influential names in the artistic world. The most recent is a combination of three, each one of which is representative. Blanche Bates alone is of the utmost importance. When, however, she is presented by Charles Frohman, and in a playlet by Sir James Matthew Barrie, the trio may safely be said to take precedence in vaudeville importance.

* * *

When Lianne Carrera adopted the stage, her sponsors made their bid to the public through the fact that she was Anna Held's daughter. It was quickly determined, however, that Miss Carrera did not need to lean on another's reputation, but could stand upright through her own merit. Miss Carrera is at present offering a scenic musical skit, which is one of the big successes of vaudeville. She will shortly be seen over the Orpheum circuit.

* * *

The sinuous grace of Alice Els, who with Bert French is offering "Rouge et de Noir" (The Dance of Fortune) over the Orpheum circuit, has frequently been compared to the tiger's. This comparison she will welcome to Miss Els, as she confesses this animal was her inspiration, and for months previous to the presentation of the dance, she spent hour after hour at various menageries studying the tiger's every move.

* * *

Once again Paul Armstrong figures as a vaudeville contributor. This time it is a dramatic playlet called "To Save One Girl." This has to do with political corruption. It has been said that "To Save One Girl," is in reality an actual incident in the career of Barrett O'Hara, the present lieutenant governor of Illinois. The playlet is at present appearing over the Orpheum circuit.

* * *

There is one less cowboy in Wyoming. After resisting Andreas Dippel's offer to send him abroad to study for grand opera, Bill Pruitt, the cowboy Caruso, has finally harkened to the call of vaudeville and is at present finding an outlet for his remarkable voice over the Orpheum circuit. Pruitt was the soloist of a cowboy band which, as a lark, serenaded the grand opera impresario, who declared Pruitt had the most wonderful natural voice he had ever heard.

* * *

Nina Barbour, the young woman recently discovered by a well-known actress singing in one of the East side sweatshops, and who, over night, became a vaudeville headliner, appearing at the Palace theater, has been given an Orpheum circuit route. Miss Barbour has transferred her workshop environments to the stage, and before a setting depicting the section of the loft building where she was employed shows her discovery and rise to her present position.

* * *

Miss Willett Whitaker, the interpreter of darkey folk songs, and F. Wilbur Hill, her capable assistant, have just returned from a nine months' engagement in Australia. They hardly reached New York before they were placed under contract for an immediate Orpheum circuit tour.

* * *

Eddie Foy has sounded the assembly call for his family—counted noses; discovered that all seven of the little Foys were present; has taken them under his paternal and managerial wing and begun a tour of the Orpheum circuit. Foy has long been the synonym of joy. The Eight Foys, therefore, may be called the equivalent for every adjective applicable to laughter.

At the Empress

Vaudeville will hold the boards at the Empress for four days beginning with the matinee Sunday. Four acts of good variety and two reels of photo plays will make up the bill. The headline act will be the five Bragdons, four men and one woman. Their act is entitled, "Fun in a Vaudeville Agency." The skit consists of singing and other musical numbers, acrobatic feats and patter. The Bragdons have a very neat wardrobe of costumes and make many changes during the act.

A close rival for honors on this bill is Henry Hargrave and his company of players, who present a comedy drama called, "Chums." This play relates the closeness of friendship between two young men who have known each other from boyhood. One of the young men is a distinct failure in all his endeavors while the other is a happy-go-lucky chap, not any too well off himself, but with a fund of jollity that is inexhaustable. The story tells of the saving of one of them from suicide and the incidents are turned into comedy.

Wolf and Zadella are a mixed team of comedians. Their act consists of odd antics that are said to be very laughable.

Will Coleman with his Irish jokes and talk, completes the bill.

Two reels of photo plays will also be presented.

One of the most enjoyable events of the theatrical season, coming to the Empress next Thursday for three days, will be the visit of "Salomy Jane" with an exceptionally well balanced company. In these days of problem plays and off-colored society dramas, this charming stage adaption of Bret Harte's widely read poem, "Salomy Jane," is doubly welcome. As presented by the Robert Sherman company "Salomy Jane" is proving an excellent attraction, and ever since its initial performance it has been receiving the attention it deserves at the hands of

Rex

Daniel Frohman presents another star actor in Cyril Scott, the eminent romantic actor who won such sensational success in the stellar roles of "Prince Chap," "The Lottery Man" and other dramatic triumphs. He is ideally cast in "The Day of Days," in which he will appear at the Rex Feb. 2, 3 and 4. Louis Joseph Vance based his exciting novel on Oriental fatalism which assigns to every man his "day of days," wherein he shall range the skies and plumb the abyss of his destiny, alternately its lord and slave. In the course of the story Cyril Scott, as Perceval, becomes the hero of a chain of fascinating adventures which ends just as the clock denotes the end of his "day of days."

With the above will be shown the second installment of "Our Mutual Girl," meeting famous actors and actresses and the noted people of New York. This second part of the story bids fair to outdo the initial number with its variety of beautiful gowns, and also in the wee touches of humor showing through "Our Mutual Girl's Love Story."

The "Great Moral Picture Drama" will be played at the Rex theater Feb. 5, 6 and 7. This story is a most sensational depiction of everyday life in the heart of the absinthe drinking district of the Paris slums. To make the story carry the lesson and ring true, King Baggot spent a week in the Tenderloin district of Paris acquainting himself with the habits of the absinthe fiend. Director Brennon, the director of this picture, in an accidental way was brought in contact with some of the terrible results of the dreadful wormwood drug. All scenes are made in Paris, along the Champs Elysees, the River Seine and in Mont Martre, the Tenderloin of Paris. The climax of the third reel is made in the Bois de Boulogne, one of France's most beautiful parks. In this scene King Baggot was wounded by Miss Baird, who struck him a blow while resisting the attack of the supposed absinthe fiend. The emotional strain upon Miss Baird was so terrific, and she put herself so completely into the part, that she fainted twice during the taking. The drama carries the spectator into the dens of the Apaches and reveals the workings of the underworld of the wickedest city in the world. Leah Baird as the faithless wife will claim both pity and wrath as the story unfolds.

Turkey Trot day will begin at the Rex Feb. 5, 6 and 7, and Carlos Sebastian and his pretty partner, Miss Allen, will show all the latest dances of the day, such as the Hesitation Waltz and the modern Turkey Trot, a dance for those who "don't want to make their feet behave." The Turkey Trot is described as the "poultry of motion." The Maxixe Brazilian, the Sebastian Tango and others too numerous to mention will also be shown. Mr. Sebastian is such a favorite with society in the East that he receives $50 an hour from patrons desiring to learn the newest dance creations. He is the drawing card at the Jardin de Dance, New York, and hundreds visit this place every night to see the graceful movements executed by him and his partner in the above dances. The artists are brought close to the camera so that every movement may be seen.

DONT'S FOR THEATER GOERS

The following "dont's" were sent in by a local theater treasurer as a list of suggestions for theater patrons.

Don't ask for seats down in front on an aisle at 8:15 p. m.

Don't use the old gag about being nearsighted or hard of hearing in order to get seats down in front—think up a new one.

Don't leave your change on the window—some one will sure get it, and you will say the man short-changed you.

Don't ask the man in the box office if it's a good show. He has to say "yes" to hold his job.

Don't have your money ready when in line. The people behind you are in no hurry.

Don't figure that the ticket seller is a mind reader—just tell him what you want and where you would like them—it saves a lot of time.

When the paper comes out and says it's a bad show don't call up right away and cancel your seats. Maybe the critic wasn't feeling good when he saw it.

Don't ask why we don't get Olga Nethersole and other $2,500 stars every week at our vaudeville house. Remember we are still under the 100,000 mark.

Don't tell the ticket man it's a rotten show. He knows when it is bad as well as you do.

Don't expect the ticket seller to smile all the time. Remember he only works from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m. It's a very gay life.

Don't think that all theaters are built with nothing but center aisles. You'll be mistaken.

Don't ask if its the same show up in the gallery as it is downstairs just because the gallery is cheaper.

VERDI, THE COMPOSER, AT THE AGE OF 5,
In Motion Pictures at the Lyceum Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

The company which played George Scarborough's romantic drama, "At Bay," at the Thirty-ninth Street theater for more than 100 consecutive performances, went on tour without a single change. The organization, including Guy Standing and Chrystal Herne, will remain in the immediate vicinity of New York for about four weeks and then will go to Boston. The interest on the part of out-of-town theater managers has been manifested to such an extent that it is highly probable a second company will be organized within the next month and launched as soon as possible.

At the Little theater in Philadelphia a one-act play entitled "The Tiger" is creating quite a sensation, it is said. "The Tiger" was allowed to rest until recently, owing to the prejudice existing against white slave plays, to which class the playlet belongs.

There is a possibility of the Progressive Burlesque circuit spreading farther out if it takes up the offering to add what is known as "the Northwest" to its wheel. It is stated that the Progressive circuit deems it too late in season to take up the proposition now, but it might do so beginning with next season.

SENTIMENT ON MEXICAN BORDER DISCUSSED BY EX-DULUTHIAN

E. E. Taylor of El Paso Tells of Terrible Torture and Death of Madero.

Some sidelights on the Mexican situation from a former Duluthian now in El Paso, Texas, are given by E. E. Taylor in a letter to The Herald. Mr. Taylor speaks of the torture and killing of Madero.

Mr. Taylor was employed by the Western Union in Duluth a few years ago and married a Duluth girl. His letter follows:

"What is the sentiment on the border as regards intervention? Well, that depends on what your call public sentiment. There as elsewhere in the United States there are various specimens of public sentiment. There is the Taft Republican, the Wilson Democrat, the Socialist, and the man who will grab the rifle and go to the fight. Probably the last named are in the majority hereabouts.

Border Too Far North.

"It is a generally accepted fact here that the Mexican border is too far north for comfort and that it should be shoved about 200 miles to the south and out of the way. There is practically no desire anywhere along the border to intervene in behalf of either faction, nor is there any desire for mediation of any sort.

"We can readily see why President Wilson refuses to recognize Huerta and his cohorts, but we do fail to see just why Huerto was told to vacate.

"The murder of Madero was most cruel, and the tortures preceding it were most savage. Scalping a person was very gentle as compared with it.

"But lets get back to the issue. On the border the kerosene-gasoline loss of the Standard oil worries no one; the losses of ties, box cars, etc., of the Pearsons are never commented on, and nobody cares a picayune about the smelter trust.

"What has made the border people feel the way they do is the treatment that has been doled out to Americans generally in Mexico. Those here who want war with Mexico are stimulated by a desire to punish the Mexicans for these wrongs. Call it revenge if you will, but that's the idea. For the prevention of these outrages in the future, they want to see the border go south in order that we better protect our citizenship in the future without calling on Washington.

Rights of Americans.

"Border people entertain the idea that where an American has the right to go and live, there he has the right to protection so long as he behaves himself. Americans have never been granted that right in Mexico and never will until that mongrel Indian race is shown by force what-is-what.

"Therefore opinion here says that if war comes let it be in behalf of outraged Americans, rather than in the role of collection bureau."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Examinations End First Semester's Work---T. F. Phillips Goes to Hospital---Mr. Young Takes Physics Classes ---Basketball Game With Aitkin Is Called Off---Business Talks Will Be Continued.

Friday closed the high school work of the first semester after a half week of examinations, covering the studies of the half year. On Wednesday all the tests in English were given and the teachers of the various session rooms were given charge of the supervision. On Thursday morning examinations in German, bookkeeping, French, Swedish, Norweglan and biology were held, followed in the afternoon by history, art, cooking and commercial geography. On Friday morning, algebra, geometry, chemistry and physics were offered, while the afternoon subjects were Latin, agriculture and commercial arithmetic. In almost all cases the students found their subjects well scattered, and the few cases of conflicts were adjusted with little trouble. The new system of examinations seems to be popular with the students.

Monday was a "senior day," at least among the girls of that class, for nearly all appeared at school with their hair arranged in real braids down their backs, and tastefully adorned with big blue or red ribbon bows.

* * *

All of the high school societies, such as the Stump, Schillerbund, music classes, orchestra, etc., have postponed their meetings of the week on account of examinations.

* * *

On Tuesday the boys of the senior class, not to be outdone by the girls, appeared with a few reminders of their youth. With hair parted in the middle, ties of an unspeakable description and other remnants of boyhood days, the fourth year classmen completely lost their dignity.

* * *

All the students were given program blanks on Monday morning for the purpose of making out the course of study for next semester. These were to be made out and approved by parent or guardian in each case and returned on Wednesday.

* * *

T. F. Phillips, head of the science department, has been compelled to give up his work for some time and has gone to the hospital. He is greatly missed about the high school by his many friends, and all wish him a speedy recovery. Principal Leonard Young has taken charge of the work in physics.

* * *

Monday was the regular day for the freshman class meeting, but owing to the poor attendance of the first-year classmen, it was found that a quorum was not present, so no business could be done. V. B. Ging, class adviser, will visit the freshman session rooms and urge a more progressive class spirit.

* * *

The regular basket ball game which was scheduled for Friday night with Aitkin was called off, owing to the fact that this week ends in the nature of a vaction, and it would have been impossible to have had a crowd for such a game. Inasmuch as there would have been considerable expense attached to playing this game, it was thought best by the athletic management to make a change of plans in order to keep the team on edge, however, a practice game with one of the local teams has been arranged.

* * *

The Commercial club is making plans for a party to occur just before the Lenten season. Mr. Carey plans to continue the series of talks on, "Modern Business Methods" by some of Duluth's leading business men, during the second semester.

WILL COMMEMORATE ZEPPELIN'S BIRTHDAY.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—The town of Friedrichshafen, on the German side of Lake Constance, has decided to commemorate Count Zeppelin's seventy-fifth birthday by founding a museum to show everything available concerning aerial navigation by dirigible balloons. Many of Count Zeppelin's manuscripts, drawings from books, and reduced models of his airships will be placed on exhibition. Count Zeppelin made his first balloon ascension in the United States during the Civil war.

THE LITTLE PLANT CALLED REVERENCE.

Go to church Washington's Birthday.

Not that you shouldn't go tomorrow—for you should.

But if you are not in the habit of attending, make a note in your date book that you have an appointment to attend church on February 22.

For a campaign is to be begun, organized by the Men's Interchurch Council, to induce as many people as possible to "break the record" and go to church on that day.

Similar campaigns have been carried out or are now in progress in other cities. Invariably, reports are, they have had large success. Not everybody, of course, has gone to church; but a great many have attended who would not otherwise have gone.

And very likely a large proportion of those who have been tempted to go, if just this once, liked it so well that they will go oftener—perhaps regularly. And that's all to the good for everybody.

Let us call your attention to the very wise and very sensible reflection on this subject by Oliver Wendell Holmes, at the top of this page today.

"I find," says this sage and physician, this genial doctor to souls and bodies, "that there is in the corner of my heart a little plant called Reverence, which needs to be watered about once a week."

And so will you find, you who more from thoughtlessness than anything else have fallen into the bad habit of not going to church—that you have in the corner of YOUR heart a little plant called Reverence which ought to be watered—if not once a week, at least much oftener than it has been watered in the past.

It's a fine idea, and a good campaign. We wish it all success, and we pledge it all possible co-operation.

Some time between now and Saturday, February 21, somebody is likely to ask you to go to church on Washington's birthday.

Take it as a friendly invitation, and accept it. Better still, take it from your own heart, in behalf of that neglected little plant called Reverence.

You will enjoy it. It will stir chords in your heart long silent—chords that harmonize with the infinite. It will be a pleasant experience, and you will be the better for it.

And if it tempts you, the habit of not going to church thus broken, to form the habit of going to church, so much the better.

Missouri claims to have the oldest man in the country, but there is room for doubt so long as he fails to tell about some winter he remembers that was milder than this one.

PROVING TOO MUCH.

Sometimes earnest and eager advocates go too far and prove too much.

General Wood, in his argument for a whacking big army for this country, has provided a very interesting demonstration of that.

He says that no foreign nation would attempt to invade the United States with an army of less than half a million men. The deduction he intended to be drawn from this, of course, is that we ought to have half a million men available to contend with such an army.

But the proper deduction from his premise—which everybody will admit—is that this country is in precious little danger of an invasion, and therefore it need not concern itself with creating a great army of defense and with prospering the manufacturers of armaments by buying equipment for it.

"What nation," asks the Pittsburg Dispatch, "can afford to divert from its military force a half million soldiers to invade this country? It is the notorious fact that all European countries are straining their resources to maintain the forces they deem necessary to provide against possible attacks from foes much nearer home. France is levying a special tax on both wealth and revenues to enable her to increase her defensive fund. Germany is collecting her extra tax on wealth. England has not got five hundred thousand men in her ranks. If either Austria or Russia should contemplate the diversion of half a million men to this country, the other would seize the territories in the Balkans that to both are more vital than the United States. If the European powers were not so dreadfully afraid of each other they would seek the restoration of their solvency by reducing military expenditures."

The great nations of the world are burdening themselves to maintain ever-increasing defenses. Defenses against what? Against the armaments that other nations are building up for their own defense! There is no comedy so funny in all the world as this—or it would be funny if it was not so terribly tragic.

But General Wood, in seeking to prove the need of a large army for the United States, has succeeded admirably in proving that we do not need a large army; and to have a larger army than we need is needlessly to increase the burden of taxation and the drain upon productive industry caused by the diversion of able-bodied men from the pursuits of productive peace to the absurd pursuit of destructive war.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth got that Massachusetts legacy just in time to keep from passing entirely out of the public mind.

RESPONSIBLE PARTY GOVERNMENT.

President Wilson will not recommend Federal regulation of stock exchanges because it is not in the Democratic platform.

He exhibited the same policy in the matter of woman suffrage.

This is restoring party government to a place of respectability from which it fell long ago—and great was the fall thereof!

It is placing upon the parties a new responsibility. It is restoring to them an old duty, long forgot. It is giving party platforms new importance and new meaning.

Perhaps the downfall of parties as such is not unconnected with the loss of such responsibility as President Wilson is placing on the Democratic party.

It will be well if the parties realize the mighty moment of this new policy—or old policy rejuvenated. It may give them new reasons for being, new incentives to character and responsibility.

And to think that "go-to-church-Sunday" will bring a really novel suggestion to some people!

WAGES AND MATRIMONY.

We are not soon to hear the last of the Ford benefaction.

It is related now that one very interesting effect of the new order of things in the Ford factories is a sharp increase in marriages.

It is said that, with their first fattened pay envelopes in their pockets, more than seventy-five workers in the Ford factories hurried to seek marriage licenses and preachers. The necessary partner to the transaction had been provided in each case, of course.

Here is a rather vivid illustration of the social value of good wages.

And, incidentally, of the social harm of poor wages.

It is for the good of society, we take it, that men and women should marry and have children and live happily ever afterward in decent comfort; properly housed, clothed, fed and warmed, and able to give the children a training that will make good and useful citizens out of them.

That can't be done on wages as low as the traffic will bear—which means wages as low as you can get unfortunate victims to work for.

The employer viewpoint, too often, is that wages should be always on a strictly competitive basis, which means necessarily a low basis now that it is no longer possible for discontented wage-earners to turn easily to the land for a living and a home. This is not saying that many employers do not realize that they owe a duty to society, and that it is carrying out that duty—if not actually good business—to pay their men all they can. Nor is it saying that the proportion of such employers is not steadily increasing. We think it is.

A minor note in this new development of the Ford case is that many of the wives-to-be were factory workers who, now that the husbands-to-be are to get wages enough to support a family, will no longer have to labor themselves, but can enter a home and rear a family.

And of course it is not good for society to have wages so low that motherhood is handicapped or prevented because women who ought to be wives and mothers must either work alongside the men in the factories or turn the home into a boarding house.

Unconsciously, too much of the social energy and intent has been directed in the last generation toward diverting the fruits of industry into the creation and maintenance of a wealthy class. And there is no social value, and much social harm, in such a class.

If, hereafter, much more of the social energy and intent are directed into spreading the fruits of industry more widely, so that they may yield good wages and sound living conditions as well as comfortable dividends, it will be a very good thing indeed.

Uruguay has a woman in its diplomatic service. Next thing we know England will be naming Mrs. Pankhurst to succeed Sir Lionel Carden.

FLOWERS TO THE LIVING.

If we had a million dollars we would spend it by placing signboards in every cemetery on this earth, inscribed on every signboard would be these words: "This is no place for praise. They do not need it—now."—"Apache" in Stillwater Prison Mirror.

That's a pretty fine sentiment to come out of a prison—though there are no finer sentiments, in intent and often in form, than we find in this prison exchange.

It's a mighty fine sentiment to come from anywhere.

And it's a particularly fine sentiment to put in practice—though one that is all too seldom practiced.

No man or woman is so sure of himself, so self-confident, as not to need the encouragement and stiffening of an occasional word of praise—when it is earned.

It's a great mistake to save all the praise for the dead. It falls then on deaf ears, and does no good. Yet when these dead lived and labored it might have helped tremendously—you never can know how much it might have helped. That word of tribute might have been a blazing sun of hope, piercing and scattering clouds of doubt and despair. It might have been the helping hand that plucked a soul from the depths.

Don't be stingy with your words of praise, and don't save them all for the dead, to whose deaf ears they never can reach.

If you think a man or a woman has done well, never be afraid to say so. Unless you are so cocksure of yourself that you need no word of praise to encourage you in well-doing, say that word as you would that others should say it unto you.

If the embargo on arms to Mexico is to be lifted, why not round up all the gun toters in the United States and send them down there, weapons and all?

THE PARTIES.

William Cullen of Illinois, who helped to organize the Republican party, has just died, having outlived the Republican party something more than a year.—Kansas City Star.

That, surely, is the most unkindest cut of all. Is it deserved? Is it true? Those are pretty important and interesting questions. They come to this: Is the Republican party dead?

It hasn't much appearance of life, it is true. Its only feeble motions since November, 1912, have been produced—perhaps galvanically—by the Old Guard interests that slaughtered it. But Bristow and Cummins, pretty definite progressives, have come back to it, and Hadley never left it. What is its future, anyway?

We should guess that the spirit of the Republican party which saddled the nation with the afflictions of monopoly and special privilege it has been having such pains getting rid of is dead, anyway. At least it is innocuous. The Democratic party, being in power, has great need of guarding itself against the recrudescence of this spirit in its own ranks.

The Roosevelt party seems about as alive as the Republican party. Yet both can hardly survive. If the Republican party lives at all, it must be because the oxygen of progressiveness is breathed into its veins. Then there would be three progressive parties, which is an anomaly.

It will be best for the Republic if this tangle can get straightened out somehow, pretty soon. It will not be good for the Republic or for the Democratic party to have but one strong party in the country. That way lies corruption, debasement, downfall.

It will be for the good of the country and the Democratic party if one strong minority party springs up, ready to become the majority party if the Democracy makes a bad stumble. Whether that strong minority party is the Republican party rejuvenated or the Roosevelt party de-individualized, makes less difference.

Probably there is going to be plenty of time to bring about carefully whatever is going to happen along this line. The way the Democratic party is getting along under Wilson seems very likely to bring about, in 1914 and 1916, a new "era of good feeling" in which the Wilson Democracy will have pretty clear sailing with very feeble party opposition.

But by 1918 and 1920—which seem a long way ahead but will get here sooner than we think—there ought to be a respectable minority party—respectable in character and strength—to debate the issue and dispute the way. The nation needs it, the Democracy needs it; and by that time a fairly long lease of pretty complete power by the Democrats will have greatly increased the need of it.

But just at present it looks as though the Kansas City Star's brief obituary of the Grand Old Party were entirely fitting.

England is experimenting with some rubber plating for her battleships. Quite appropriate for anything that is designed to traverse the bounding main.

A BANK'S VERY GOOD CREED.

The Chase National bank of New York sends out a placard, made to fasten on a wall, containing this "patriotic creed":

We believe in our country—the United States of America. We believe in her Constitution, her laws, her institutions, and the principles for which she stands. We believe in her future—the past is secure. We believe in her vast resources, her great possibilities—yes, more, her wonderful certainties.

We believe in the American people, their genius, their brain, and their brawn. We believe in their honesty, their integrity and dependability. We believe that nothing can stand in the way of their commercial advancement and prosperity.

We believe that what are termed "times of business depression" are but periods of preparation for greater and more pronounced commercial success.

And we believe that in our country are being worked out great problems, the solution of which will be for the benefit of all mankind.

Now that's a very fine creed. It is a creed that the great majority of the American people always have held dear, always have placed high.

It is particularly good to see a bank, and a bank in New York, putting it into forceful words, adopting it as its own, and urging its friends to give it a conspicuous place before them.

In it is a spirit of optimism that will banish fear, lull senseless apprehensions, and give pause to the blind instinct to oppose every move toward the "working out of great probems for the benefit of all mankind."

And, while the Chase National bank is expressing its belief in the "vast resources" of the United States, let it be reckoned that its vastest resource, its most precious resource and the resource that it should conserve most jealously, is American manhood and womanhood; and that wages, working conditions, living conditions and industrial operations should be so shaped as best to conserve this first and greatest resource of America.

Theodore Roosevelt has sent word to Illinois Bull Moosers that there must be no amalgamation with the Republicans. If the Bull Moosers were not an unbossed party probably Theodore would not dare to issue such direct orders.

SAVINGS CLUBS.

Some weeks ago The Herald described the workings of an office savings club which had come to its notice, by the use of which the employes of an important local industry were helping each other to learn habits of thrift.

We have learned since that in a number of cities the savings banks themselves have taken up this plan, and that it is working admirably.

Under bank management, it works this way: You go to the bank which is conducting a club, and you are given a card. This card shows the amount you are expected to pay in each week. You make the first payment, and your card is punched. Then you pay weekly until the time fixed for withdrawal, when you withdraw your balance, with accumulated interest, make a permanent deposit of it, or invest it as you please.

The uses of such a club are innumerable. In the case described by The Herald, the money accumulated during the year is divided at Christmas. Thus Christmas expenses are provided for, a fund is raised for winter clothing and supplies, a nest-egg is begun toward provision for a rainy day, or the money is just spent—all according to the wish of the club member.

But—where the banks handle it and a variety of uses is possible—the club plan can be used to such ends as these: Christmas money; vacation expenses; taxes or insurance payments; payments on mortgages; bulky home improvements, etc.

The use of the plan for vacation expenses will illustrate it. Immediately after this year's vacation, you fix in your mind the amount you'd like to have for next year's vacation. You divide that sum into as many payments as there are pay-days between then and vacation time next year. You take out a savings club card at the bank, and make your weekly payments. Just before vacation time, you draw out your balance with its accumulated interest, and fare merrily on your way.

The same plan would be followed where you wished to accumulate enough to make a payment on the mortgage, to paint or decorate your house, to buy a lot and make a start toward home-owning, or to do any other similar thing that you ought to be doing in these years of your best productiveness.

The plan has not yet reached the Duluth banks. Maybe it would be worth their while to consider it. It involves some annoyance in bookkeeping, because of its variance from the present plan semi-annual interest payments. But it offers such an excellent incentive to begin saving that it seems likely to attract many who are not now depositors, who are not now saving anything, and many of whom would thus become permanent depositors.

After all it is only natural that congressmen should want to inquire into other people's records, if only in retaliation for what the other people do to the congressmen about once in two years.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Lilywork on the Pillars.

The great brass pillars in the portico of Solomon's temple were adorned at the top with the finest art of ancient engravers. "Upon the top of the pillars was lilywork." Floral designs had been wrought into the columns near where they touched the roof. At some tasks the workmen of antiquity were as skillful as those of today.

The lilywork was merely for ornamentation. It added nothing to the strength of the pillars. But it made them doubly pleasant to look upon and gave the worshiper added delight as he surveyed the glorious house of Jehovah. When utility is matched by beauty the combination is irresistible.

The good man, who is also an attractive man, makes a consummate appeal to us. If I could have but one I should prefer strength to ornamentation in character. But when one meets a personality combining the two he is gratified as the old Jew was when he looked on the solid and beautiful building that gleamed upon Mt. Moriah.

As a matter of fact those who are pillars of society should lack neither the strength nor the grace of goodness. You can build a beautiful palace on a solid foundation as readily as a sawmill or a boiler shop. There is no reason why saints should not be at the same time notable ladies and gentlemen.

Some of the best people in the world need just this touch of beauty, this embellishment of grace to make them really effective. The lack of courtesy, tact and charm of manner is never more unfortunate than in the case of people of really rugged virtue of character. I even recently heard a clergyman express the half-jocular wish that some of his deacons might attend dancing school, in the interest of their deportment. No one would try to polish a lump of punk, but a piece of oak that is planed and polished is a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

That such a plea is not merely a fanciful one was borne in upon the writer by the remark of a young man on whom he had urged the matter of church membership. He replied that he was not deterred by intellectual difficulties nor by dissent from the moral standards required, but through disappointment at the lack of attractiveness in the lives of those within the fold. Wider observation will, one is certain, lead him to quite another conclusion. But the point he made is surely sufficiently important one for churchmen, like myself, to remember.

Such a little thing may dull the cutting edge of character! An investigator in Europe has decided that Napoleon lost the battle of Waterloo because of his careless handwriting in a note to Grouchy. A slipshod penstroke cost him the victory. Whether this be true or not, many a battle since has been lost because of careless, slipshod neglect of little things in conduct that are yet mighty in their effect.

Ah, the little more and how much it is, And the little less and what worlds away.

The knight of story had all that the clodhopper had—and something more, a chivalric and courteous bearing. His manners lent him distinction. So, too, in our day there are those whose solid possessions of character have been embellished with the fair flowers of courtesy and tact in a way to make them doubly admirable. They are pillars, indeed, fit not only to support the building of society, but to delight the eyes and win the affections of all beholders.

THE PARSON.

The Woe of George Gould.

New York letter to Houston Chronicle: If some one will kindly kick in with George J. Gould's spat, that gentleman will be relieved of anguish and uncertainty. Also he will not lose a lot of money, which now appears to be going away from him.

The other day Mr. Gould bought a light brown suit. But one piece of the material had been imported by the tailor who caters to Mr. Gould's contours. When the tailor had constructed a light brown hat and a pair of light brown spats of the same cloth he burned what was left, and presumably cabled orders to break the loom. Then Mr. Gould went out to give the avenue a treat and slipped a spat. No one knows when the tragedy took place. No one even permits himself to wonder how far Mr. Gould may have walked before his inequality in spats became apparent to him. But it is known that a personal search followed. When that proved fruitless Mr. Gould advertised. Still he is half-spatted. "But why the agony?" some one asked him the other day.

"Think," said Mr. Gould impatiently. "That spat was made of cloth that absolutely cannot be matched. I cannot wear my new suit without spats, of course. If I do not recover it, I will have to throw my suit away."

In which case Mr. Gould may have to stay in bed.

The Farmer's Wife in Northern Minnesota

Mrs. I. B. Ferguson to the Baudette Region.

The writer does not agree with the man who recently said that he considered the position of being a farmer's wife "a darn poor one."

Personally we consider the task of being a farmer's wife in this northern empire the biggest and most interesting job we ever undertook.

The life calls for the use of all the brains and education a woman possesses, and the more she possesses the better. It is a life that puts a sharp edge on a woman's brain and makes her keen mentally.

It is a life that develops resourcefulness. The old hats are retrimmed and the old clothes refashioned. About the style we seldom worry. If we had our way at the present time we would turn a few snakes loose among the hobbles and split skirts. The suggestion comes to us from the following classical gem:

"When Eve in Eden saw the snake, she chased around to get some clothes and in view of the latest styles, we need some snakes now, goodness knows."

Farm life in Northern Minnesota is productive of physical vigor. We learn to tramp the trails and woods; we chase our cattle and those of our neighbors; we help by piling brush when the "men" is clearing land; help to plant potatoes and corn; we lead the ox for cultivation of the crops; we use the hoe; we seed and care for the vegetable garden; we work much with the little chicks and turkeys and we spend hours in our wonderful flower garden. We spend much time out of doors drinking in the exhilarating northern air, and it is not to be marveled at that we come to feel a physical vigor and walk with a firmness of tread that we never knew before.

And this life is never dull or uninteresting. We are in a land of new things, of first things, a land where history is rapidly being made. We see the land plowed and turned over for the first time in the history of man. We are mowing grain where the forest stood before. The log cabin is transformed into the frame house. The graded road takes the place of the trail, and the former will soon be changed into a state road, and the autos will whiz by. Truly the changes are coming rapidly.

But we would not paint the life of the farmer's wife in Northern Minnesota all in glowing colors, but would mix the rosy hues with the more somber tints of hardships, struggles and even tragedy, but out of these experiences largely there comes the mental keenness, the resourcefulness, the physical vigor and strength that make of our women a distinctive type.

Literary Table Manners in Minnesota.

To the Editor of the Sun: Apropos of your recent editorial article on "The Technique of Writing" and the comments thereon a few days later of an instructor in English at the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale university, allow me to submit a copy of a letter just received by a lady in this town from a young miss 17 or 18 years old living on a farm in Northern Minnesota:

January 9, 1914.

Dear Friend: We received the lovely collars and bow you sent us for Christmas. We think they were just beautiful.

We have been having nice weather here for quite a while, but it is snowing a little today. We have had very little cold weather or snow this winter.

I am writing instead of mother, as she is ill in the hospital in Duluth, Minn. The little girls liked the mats very much. They have used them for every purpose imaginable, from a rug to a pillow sham, and even a case for one of their dolls.

Mother left home the last day of December and father left home the 6th of January and N— is living on his homestead, so that leaves us girls here all alone.

Please excuse a short letter as I must pump water for the stock.

Thank you in advance for the Saturday Evening Posts that you are going to send, also for the ones you have sent in the past.

Ever your loving friend, and hoping to hear from you soon, I am,

---

As appears from the letter, the writer and her two younger sisters were alone on the farm at the time. In a previous letter by a member of the family it was stated that one of the real annoyances of life on the farm in question was the howling of the wolves at night and the horrible cries of the deer when caught by them.

As to the letter, the copy precisely follows the original as to spelling, punctuation (except the addition of periods and commas in one or two instances), paragraphing and all. Not a word has been changed.

It may be interesting to readers of the Sun, and particularly to the gentleman engaged in impressing "the elements of literary table manners on the youthful mind" at the Sheffield Scientific school.

The Mystic.

There is a quest that calls me,
In nights when I am alone,
The need to ride where the ways divide
The Known from the Unknown.
I mount what thought is near me
And soon I reach the place,
The tenuous rim where the Seen grows dim
And the Sightless hides its face.

I have ridden the wind,
I have ridden the sea,
I have ridden the moon and stars.
I have set my feet in the stirrup seat
Of a comet coursing Mars.
And everywhere,
Thro' the earth and air
My thought speeds, lightning-shod,
It comes to a place where checking pace
It cries, "Beyond lies God!"

It calls me out of the darkness,
It calls me out of sleep,
"Ride, ride! for you must, to the end of Dust!"
It bids—and on I sweep
To the wide outposts of Being,
Where there is gulf alone—
And thro' a vast that was never passed
I listen for Life's tone.

I have ridden the wind,
I have ridden the night,
I have ridden the ghosts that flee
From the vaults of death like a chilling breath
Over eternity.
And everywhere
Is the world laid bare—
Ether and star and clod—
Until I wind to its brink and find
But the cry, "Beyond lies God!"

It calls me and ever calls me!
And vainly I reply,
"Fools only ride where the ways divide
What Is from the Whence and Why!"
I'm lifted into the saddle
Of thoughts too strong to tame
And down the deeps and over the steeps
I find—ever the same.

I have ridden the wind,
I have ridden the stars,
I have ridden the force that flies
With far intent thro' the firmament,
And each to each allies.
And everywhere
That a thought may fare
To gallop, mine has trod—
Only to stand at last on the strand
Where just beyond lies God.

The Imperial Coffee and Spice Mill company occupied the east side of the building and its loss is between $2,000 and $4,000, with no insurance. The McMartin Manufacturing company occupied the west side, and its loss is estimated at $3,000 or $4,000, with insurance of $4,000.

Abolishing Poverty

Kansas City Star: How to relieve poverty was the question that used to be discussed at meetings of charitable organizations a few years ago. Now the question is how to prevent poverty. This change was emphasized by Rabbi Levy of Pittsburg in his address before the United Jewish Charities last night.

The present system, he pointed out, tends to keep the poor poor. It hasn't yet reached the stage of removing handicaps and insuring an equal opportunity to all. When these handicaps are removed, when every boy or girl is started in life with a sound body, trained to be efficient, and protected later by proper regulation of industry and the necessary social insurance, then there will be only a vestige of the crushing poverty that now oppresses so considerable a percentage of the industrial population.

In the '80s Father Glynn's Society for the Abolition of Poverty was regarded as a freak organization. Today every competently conducted social movement is a society for the abolition of poverty.

Tipping Off the Audience.

Popular Magazine: When Representative James B. Aswell of Natchitoches, La., was superintendent of schools for his state, he made a tour of Arkansas for the purpose of persuading the Arkansans to submit to heavier local taxation for the benefit of the public schools. Mr. Aswell has never been a dub in the art of speaking and on this trip he fairly burned up the countryside with his eloquence, inducing the rural populace to part with real money.

One night he was to face an audience far back in the country, in a neighborhood that had never been profaned by the screech of a locomotive or the soft rumbling of a spring wagon. At the appointed hour, the farmer who was to introduce him stepped to the front of the platform, mopping his brow with a bandana, and gasping for breath. He then spoke as follows, with all the labor necessary to overturn a house or uproot an oak:

"Ladies and gentlemen, you know I ain't used to makin' no speeches. I ain't never pertended to be no orayter. Besides, it's a hot night, a powerful hot night, an' you wouldn't expec' me nohow to wear you out with a long speech. But I'll now introduce a man who will."

The Living Word.

Oh earth, thou hast not any wind that blows
Which is not music; every weed of thine
Pressed rightly flows in aromatic wine;
And every humble hedgerow flower that grows,
And every little brown bird that doth sing,
Hath something greater than itself, and bears
A living word to every living thing,
Albeit it hold the message unawares.
All shapes and sounds have something which is not
Of them; a spirit broods amid the grass;
Vague outlines of the Everlasting Thought
Lie in the melting shadows as they pass;
The touch of an Eternal Presence thrills
The fringes of the sunsets and the hills.

OUR BIRD FRIENDS

It is high time for the whole civilized world to realize that many of the most valuable, beautiful and remarkable birds of the world are now being exterminated.

On this account our loss is something tremendous, and it is each individual's duty as a citizen, when seeing a man or boy with a gun, to stop him and learn his mission and instruct him as to the law respecting the killing of your birds.

There is no greater pleasure than being on friendly terms with the wild of nature, and it is a pleasure to be had only for the taking.

Can we not do something to combat that wild instinct for blood which seems to be our inheritance from remote ancestry?

Let us each one make a special effort along this line this year.

The DOCTOR'S HELPS

By DONALD McCASKEY, M.D.
Member of Staff, General Hospital, Lancaster, Pa.; Fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine

HE FEARS HIS NERVOUSNESS MAY LEAD TO BRIGHT'S DISEASE

A gentleman writes me: "I do not have any pain, but my blood pressure runs too high. There is a dead-like feeling in my lower limbs down to my heels. Many times I go to sleep while reading. I am very nervous and fear it may lead to Bright's disease."

Your simplest and quickest method of determining whether your fears about Bright's disease are or are not well-founded is to have your urine analyzed both chemically and microscopically. Take, therefore, a twenty-four-hour specimen with you to your doctor and know one way or the other, and get your mind easy about the subject. If you have Bright's disease, treat it so that you maintain your good health so far as it is possible. If you have not Bright's disease, don't borrow trouble any longer. The "deadness" you speak of in your limbs and your sleepiness reveals one thing clearly; your system is oversaturated with poisonous waste matters. Do this for the next two months: Live exclusively on a fruit and vegetable diet. At bedtime twice a week take a hot bath and a good sweat. Study "HOW TO KEEP YOUR KIDNEYS IN GOOD CONDITION."

ABOUT VARICOCELE.

I am in constant receipt of letters from men who ask if I cannot suggest a cure for varicocele.

I want to emphasize that every scrotal swelling in a male IS NOT A VARICOCELE. Occasionally there is some outside infection as gonorrhea, syphilis or a tubercular involvement. These conditions, however, are the exception rather than the rule with the average young man who consults the physician about his varicocele.

To all inquirers as regards this latter condition I want to urge them to closely follow the advice given below. If within the three months' period specified absolute relief, both mental and physical, has not resulted, the most competent physician in the community should be consulted, and his counsel followed. If an operation is advised then, it should be done.

Varicocele is a condition that has scared more men than yourself. It is in reality a mole-hill which to your mind has grown into a mountain.

You have let it "get on your nerves" until you are actually so worried about it that your sexual functions are being temporarily disturbed.

There are more fakirs who wax fat on the fees of men worried about varicocele than I could tell you about. A man who is worried about this trouble is oftentimes convinced it is serious. YOUR VARICOCELE IS NOT SERIOUS AT ALL.

The fact that your scrotum is somewhat enlarged is no reason why you should become really convinced that you are in dire trouble.

My advice to you is to wash your parts every night and morning with cold water—preferably ice water. Do this for the next three months, and do it faithfully. Get your system cleaned out of any accumulated poisons which are circulating around in your blood. To do this, take a five-grain dose of powdered calomel every Friday or Thursday night about 4 p. m., and follow it at 8 p. m. with two ounces of castor oil. Do this faithfully every week for three months, the same as the ice water therapy. Use your common sense about your eating and daily habits.

Editor's Note—Again the editor desires to call attention to the fact that no attention can be paid to unsigned letters soliciting advice nor to inquiries which are not accompanied by addressed and stamped envelope. We do not break any confidence or trust imposed. Our readers can feel free to ask their most personal health questions in seeking aid.

SIMON BOLIVAR BUCKNER

By SAVOYARD.

Washington, Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—"And the king said unto his servants, know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

Take him all in all—mind, knowledge, accomplishments, manhood, character—and Simon Bolivar Buckner was the greatest man I ever met, and his death leaves old Kentucky, for the first time of her history, without a citizen who fills to the full the world's stage on which tread the world's great. He was a soldier, statesman, sage. He was a poet as well, and full of sentiment that was held in check by the profoundest common sense. What a nobility of heart it was that prompted this grand man to preserve in the home he builded for his declining life the room in which he was born! And there he died at the advanced age of 90 years, the most illustrious citizen not only of old Kentucky but of the entire South.

I shall never forget the first time I met Gen. Buckner. It was at a social party in Glasgow, Ky., in 1884. He had then recently been an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky that was awarded to his friend, J. Proctor Knott That evening Gen. Buckner was the center of that gathering composed of the elite of the men and women of Barren county. How courtly he was! O, my boy, would that you could learn the deference that splendid, grand man that evening paid the noble women there gathered. He made rude all King Arthur's knighthood.

The next day this great man was good enough to seek me. He had read some of my poor stuff and thought he discovered that I loved Shakespeare. He was the most accomplished disciple of the greatest of poets I ever saw, and for some hours we discussed and quoted from the matchless productions of the bard of Avon, and I felt how beggarly was my poor knowledge of Shakespeare's works compared with his.

* * *

Physically Simon Bolivar Buckner was a giant. He must have been a man of exceptionally strong passions, but like George Washington, he conquered himself. It is written:

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."

I never met another man of such admirable poise, of such magnificent dignity. And yet he could enter into the spirit of a harmless joke, and not even Proctor Knott had a readier or a keener sense of humor. But Buckner's temperament was that of the sedate. He took life seriously, and like Gen. Lee he held that the biggest word to order human conduct was duty. It was a passion with him and he acted it every day and hour of his long and honored life. That is what makes his death such a loss irreparable to old Kentucky.

The Southern Confederacy of 1861-65 is the most engaging child of history. Born radiant as the moon, defended by the bravest soldiery that ever girded on sword, it was fated to destruction. It was undone by a series of "ifs" and with three of these Simon Bolivar Buckner was intimately associated.

First—Had he been chief in command at Donelson he would have carried his army out of that conflict victorious, and the April following Albert Sidney Johnston would have had under command at Shiloh 14,000 additional veteran troops commanded by Simon Bolivar Buckner. Think of that.

Second—Had he been in command at Perryville the Confederate forces would have numbered 40,000 men instead of 14,000, and the occupation of Kentucky perhaps would have been years instead of weeks. Think of that.

Third—Had President Davis Hearkened as he listened to him and other division commanders, Bragg would have been removed, and Lookout Mountain, instead of a fatal Confederate defeat, would have been a glorious Confederate victory. Think of that.

But it was not to be. Heaven had decreed—"The North shall have the victory; the South shall have the glory."

And Gen. Buckner returned to his native state and took on himself the duties of a citizen. He was a conspicuous man, as he would have been anywhere in any age. There was not a day when he was a soldier that he cheerfully would not have doffed the rank of an officer and at the order of a superior seized a musket and taken his place as a private soldier in the ranks, and when he got back home his sole endeavor was to be a good citizen. His example was catching.

But old Kentucky hunted out and made Buckner governor of the commonwealth and he ranks among the elite of that illustrious roll. I do not believe Kentucky ever produced a man better equipped for statecraft than Buckner; I am sure he was her greatest soldier.

It is Bismarck's birthday, April 1, and it was Buckner's. He died Jackson's day, Jan. 8, ninety years later. He was full of years and full of honors. No grander character was ever made by Kentuckian. And the sod of the old commonwealth will lie light above the great heart that was encompassed in the manly breast of Simon Bolivar Buckner.

What an inspiration his life must be to his son, of whom I am glad to hear that he is not a chip off the old block, but the old block itself.

Pray God it be so.

OTTO I. BERGH, Secretary Farm Crops Show.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The third annual farm crops show to be held here Feb. 18-20, at the conclusion of the annual ten days farmers' short course at the Crookston School for Agriculture, will be the biggest and broadest affair of the kind ever attempted in Northwestern Minnesota. Prizes aggregating over $2,000 have been hung up, with special cash premiums being added every day for special exhibits, with close to $3,000 the probable sum total.

The farm crops show will be held here owing to the lack of transportation facilities to the school of agriculture, where the short course will be held.

The exhibits for the big show are arriving daily, and the city hall will be entirely inadequate to hold them. The opera house has been leased for the three days, and the city hall and another large show room on Main street has been provided in addition to the Commercial club rooms.

Features of Exhibit.

Corn, clover and alfalfa will be features, with due attention to all the small grains. The first run of 5,000 premium books was exhausted last week, and another run of 12,000 ordered. Farmers in the thirteen counties of Northwestern Minnesota are exhibiting an interest far beyond what had been anticipated. The hotels have received so many reservations that all are making provision for extra cots, and an appeal has been made to citizens to list spare rooms in order that the crowds can be taken care of.

It will be a monster gathering, indicative of the new era of better agriculture which has dawned. The leading men identified with progressive agriculture will be here, and there is the greatest enthusiasm manifested in the show throughout the northwestern section of the state.

CRIMINALS UNFIT FOR BATTLEFIELD

Generally Turn Out to Be Cowards, Says Dr. Consiglio.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—Criminals generally turn out to be cowards on the battlefield, according to observations in the cases of 225 men with jail or prison sentences in their record made during the campaign of Italy in Tripoli by Dr. Consiglio, chief of staff surgeon with the Italian army, and reported in a German medical paper. Dr. Consiglio says:

"The abnormal man is unfit for methodically disciplined effort in times of peace. In war, where the demands of discipline and the strain of systematic preparations increase, he displays invariably sooner or later a reaction against his surroundings, which manifests itself chiefly in morbid lack of discipline, disobedience, insubordination or even desertion. The moral strain and the violent manifestations of war induce in such men physical disturbances, excitative crises, hysteric and epileptic attacks and acute insanity. They lack the possibility of methodic action, the iron will to respond to the multiple demands of the instant and to the continued physical and intellectual strain.

"While the habitual criminal, although impulsive and aggressive toward superiors and comrades, generally is cowardly in battle, there are among the occasional criminals, those who have gone wrong through drink or love of adventure, many who distinguish themselves in warfare. But even these relapsed regularly into breaches of discipline and were useless for ordered effort.

"The soldier adapted to modern warfare, capable of continued effort, able to retain his cool presence of mind in battle, is a man who has shown himself in time of peace to be an able, well-disciplined citizen. The time seems to be past when the blind courage of the adventurer, unconscious of danger, constitutes an especially valuable element in deciding the fate of nations."

GERMAN SOCIALIST LEADER WAS WEALTHY.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—The Swiss estate of August Bebel, the late German Socialist leader, has been appraised by the tax office at Zurich at $250,000. He had other property in Germany probably worth $50,000. The terms of his will have not been made public.

ARMY OFFICERS HAVE PRIVILEGES

German Policemen Must Regard Consideration Due Military Calling.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—Claims of the German army officer to the possession of a higher grade of personal honor than that of the ordinary civilian, emphasized in so many ways since the Zabern affair, and to a certain preferential treatment before the law, is found to have recognition in the police regulations of Cologne, and it is probable that an interpellation will be brought in the diet asking whether similar police regulations are in force in other cities in Prussia.

In Cologne the policeman renders himself liable to punishment if he disregards "the consideration due the military calling." In cases of misdemeanor he is, under no circumstances, to arrest an officer, "since it is more consonant with the general interest that a violation of police ordinances remain for the time unpunished and be later the subject of a reprimand than that a conflict should be occasioned between officers and police officials."

An officer may be arrested for felony, but even in this case the policeman is empowered to leave the offeneder at liberty. "The police officials must consider carefully that in arresting an officer they are not dealing merely with a person, but that by the compromising of the officer's uniform of the army of his majesty the king is involved, and that only extraordinary circumstances justify such an arrest and absolve the policeman for it.' It is even provided that members of the so-called vice squad, whose duty it is to control women of the streets, shall not molest such women if these are in the company of officers.

ELLISON UNABLE TO OBTAIN BAIL

Theatrical Agent Faces Trial on Charges of Petit Larceny.

In default of $200 bail, Charles Ellison, local dramatic instructor and theatrical agent, who was arrested early yesterday afternoon on two charges of petit larceny, may have to spend the next four days in jail.

Ellison was unable to obtain bail following his arraignment in police court yesterday and as his trial was set for 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, the prisoner may remain in a cell until the trial.

The arrest of Ellison followed a double complaint made to the police yesterday morning by R. H. King and C. F. Bradfield, who claimed that they each gave Ellison $15 to be taught how to act and to have the latter place them on the stage. He has failed to keep his agreement, the plaintiffs claim, and they now charge him with petit larceny, or obtaining money under false pretenses.

LAST OF SUBURBS' DEBT WILL SOON BE CLEARED

March 1 the city will retire $47,000 of New Duluth bonds, wiping out the last of the indebtedness of $1,182,000 which was assumed by the city when it annexed West Duluth, New Duluth, Fond du Lac and Lakeside, which are now suburbs of Duluth.

The issue was floated in 1894 and bears interest at 6 per cent, the highest rate of any bonds outstanding.

When the legislature passed the law authorizing the annexation of the various villages, the city was required to take over their bonded debt. That of West Duluth was greatest, being $1,000,000. That of Lakeside was $100,000, Fond du Lac's was $10,000 and Oneota, $100,000.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Girls to Be Given Practical Experience in Housekeeping.

Engineering College to Offer Instruction in Radio-Signaling.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Practical experience in housekeeping for the college girl, the experience to be secured at the university during her course and under the supervision of a member of the home economics faculty, is the latest plan proposed at the college of agriculture for putting the education of the girls on as practical a basis as that provided for boys. The plan has been proposed and worked out by Miss Josephine S. Berry, head of the department of home economics, and approved by Dean Woods. The plan as proposed by Miss Berry will give eighteen senior home economics girls an opportunity to perform the complete round of duties that the ordinary housekeeper would have to perform for six weeks in succession. The work will be of collegiate rank and the girls will be given three credits toward their diplomas for it. The experiment which, according to members of the home economics faculty, is the first of its kind ever tried out in the United States, will be conducted in a professional home economics sorority house, the Phi Upsilon Omicon.

Radio-Signaling.

A course of instruction in radio-signaling is to be offered next semester, beginning Feb. 4, by the engineering college of the university. The course will treat of the fundamental principles of wireless transmission of intelligence, including instruction in electromagnetic waves and their propogation through space as applied to wireless telephony and telegrpahy; free and grounded waves, wave lengths, and other phases of the subject. The department has already received part of the equipment for the wireless laboratory and will have apparatus for demonstration and research work.

For Philippine Service.

University graduates with military training are being invited to enter the Philippine army service. Lieut. Woolnough, commandant of the military department at the university, says that the service is in need of a number of college trained men and will start them out at $1,200 a year, for a three-year term. No mental test is required for university graduates and they will be accepted on diploma if they have the two-year cadet training.

The Commencement Address.

President H. B. Hutchins of the University of Michigan has been secured to deliver the commencement adadress to the graduating class of 1914. The announcement was made early this week from the administrative offices. The forty-second commencement will take place on Thursday, June 11.

Changes in English Department.

There will be several important changes in the English department next semester. Prof. Craig, who left for Europe Tuesday evening, announced that he had decided to decline the flattering offer from the University of Texas. Dr. Craig will spend the remainder of the college year in England, doing research work. His classes will be taken by Wilke M. Collins, who has been secured for the second semester. Dr. Harton, who is at present lecturing in the East, is expected back very shortly, and will be on hand for the entire semester.

The French Club.

At a meeting of the Le Club Francais held on the French seminar recently, it was decided to present the one-act play "La Grammaire" in Shevlin hall, Feb. 13. The performance will be preceded by the annual dinner for the members of the club.

Dramatic Club.

Arrangements have been completed for the presentation of John Galsworthy's "The Pigeon," and Civtor Mape's "The Flower of Yeddo" by the University Dramatic club at the Princess theater, Tuesday evening, Feb. 10. Albert Shiely will play the leading role in "The Pigeon," while Ora Hyde will be the heroine. Martha Wolff, Lillian Seyfried, Gladys Fewell and Barbara Feeor constitute the cast of "The Flower of Yeddo."

On Lengthy Journey.

A journey that will take him through three continents and among many strange peoples of strange manners was commenced early this week by Dr. A. E. Jenks, professor of anthropology at the university. Prof. Jenks will study the Papago and Pima Indians of Arizona, the Berbers and Kabyles in the mountains of Northern Africa, Italiens in the provinces of Southern Italy, the Majgars of Hungary, the Poles and Bohemians as they live in their own country places, the stone implements of Spain and France and Belgium.

Cadet Corps' Ball.

At a meeting of the officers of the cadet corps on Thursday afternoon, Harry D. Lovering, colonel of the cadet regiment, was chosen as chairman of the military ball committee. The date of the function was set for Friday night, April 24. This will bring the ball on the second Friday following the Easter vacation, and the first practical, available date after the Lenten season. The ball will be held in the Armory, and elaborate plans have already been made for decorations and music.

Social Festivities.

The social committee of the Women's Self-Government association has been busy preparing festivities for the early part of the new semester. Chief among them are a Shevlin party to be given in co-operation with the Y. W., and a sunlight dance to be given in the Armory on the first open Saturday of February or March 8.

CONFERENCE OF EDUCATORS

Rural School Board Members Will Assemble in Duluth.

Approximately 175 rural school board members from all parts of the county will be in attendance at the annual convention of the rural school boards, which will be held at the courthouse on Feb. 10. N. A. Young, county superintendent of school, is now making arrangements for the affair.

During the one day of the convention, subjects of general interest to school board members, teachers and parents of rural school children will be discussed. S. A. Challman, state school inspector, will be among the speakers at the convention.

The law provides for the annual convention to be called by the superintendent of the county schools. The statute provides that each member be paid $3 per day and 5 cents for each mile traveled in attending. The expense must be borne by the various school boards.

WHEN Robert E. Denfeld of this city, newly elected grand master of the Minnesota Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons affixes his signature to a certain parchment, a new Masonic blue lodge will spring into existence. The new lodge will be known as Lakeside lodge and its jurisdiction concurrent with the other blue lodges of Duluth.

The grand lodge of Minnesota at its meeting a few days ago granted the application of the Lakeside Masons for a charter. The lodge had already organized and up to the time of the grand lodge meeting had been working under a dispensation from the grand master.

The new grand master will sign the charter within a few days and will install the officers of the new subordinate lodge.

Lakeside lodge has engaged the old town hall at Lakeside for a meeting place. The second floor has been remodeled to meet the requirements. The plan is to eventualy build a hall to be devoted exclusively to Masonry.

Lakeside lodge is the fourth blue lodge to be organized in Duluth. The others are Palestine lodge No. 79, organized in 1870; Ionic lodge No. 186, organized in 1889 and Euclid lodge No. 198, West Duluth. A movement is now on foot to organize a fifth lodge among the Masons residing in the West end.

Lakeside lodge will hold its regular meetings on the first and third Mondays of every month. The first class of candidates, consisting of Walter and Edward Harris and Hugh and Walter Greenfield has already received the first degree. The second and third degrees will be conferred after the lodge has been regularly installed by the grand master.

MEUNIER---SCULPTOR OF LABOR

Six American Cities Join in Making His Work Known to the New World---Peddlers, Hammermen, Miners, Longshoremen Among the Life-Sized Figures.

By SAMUEL HOWE.

(The Meunier Exhibition, recently shown in Buffalo and Pittsburg, is now in New York. It will soon go to Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis. America is indebted to Cornelia B. Sage, director of the Albright Gallery, Buffalo, for bringing the Exhibition of the Belgian sculptor's work to this country.)

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

In endeavoring to depict the life of the laboring man of our times, Meunier struggled with several materials—chalk, color, wax and clay. His distinction rests in the main upon one worth-while, understandable monument which, while modestly termed a monument to labor, is in reality a tribute to humanity and its ability to endure.

His Masterpiece.

This piece so vivdly illustrates the triumphs and tragedies of daily labor that even the most untutored people must understand. His four great panels in high relief and groups of detached figures are not extravagant outlines of occasional but of daily occurrences. They typify splendidly four great adventures wherein man is admirably and naturally working as a child of nature. In the field is man shown gathering the harvest; in the mine picking coal; in the glass house husbanding the heat of the furnace and in the dock yard carrying merchandise.

The intensity of Meunier's feeling, his ability to concentrate and to transmit to others is illustrated in the scene in the glass house. It is obvious to the most casual observer that the posing of men engaged in this peculiar avocation was practically an impossibility. They are evidently caught on the fly extracting the broken melting pot from the furnace, an operation fraught with danger to the men as well as to the remaining crucibles, holding the amalgamation of earth's silicas and metallic oxides.

Meunier has caught the general movement, the excitement, the temper of the occasion—an occasion which may happen twice in twenty-four hours or only once in a season. The melting pots used in glass making are made of clay; they hold the silica until it eats its way through the thin side. For the breaking of the pot there is no prearranged sign signal or test—nothing but the cry of the fireman in the pit who, raking the clinkers, finds glass running like water upon the heap of cinders or partly burned coal, or, perchance, the prongs of his fork may betray the leak. To bank the fire, rush up and sound the alarm is the work of a few seconds. Panic may be the result. "All hands" is the cry.

Toilers' Qualities Revealed.

The men vary in age, temper, disposition—all this the group reveals. They have been brought to the work by the hurry-up call. Some of the men are old. Others are young. Both qualities are of rare value this moment—the madcap abandon of youth and the older, more staid experience. Some have been called from the clay bin where they have been treading to extract the air bubbles, to locate tiny pebbles. Just as they are, bare-footed, they have had to respond to the call. The temporary steel curtain of the fire opening has been lifted and the fumes strike the faces of every man defiantly.

In the cool depths of the mine Meunier shows a different condition. He has contrived to show some of the miners working in narrow channels, galleries, some of them only twenty to thirty inches in depth, with dangers from fire damp and cramp of muscle and nerve.

The Man and His Method.

But of the man, his equipment and his training, a word. After three years of study in the Academy of Brussels, he taught drawing in Louvain.

In the seclusion of this somnolent, scholastic town, he worked out his salvation unaided. His studio had formerly served as a dissecting room of the nearby medical school of the university, and was a grim sepulchral structure, tower shaped and pierced by narrow arched windows, some of which were roughly boarded over. He never had an assistant, preferring to build the fire and execute the most rudimentary tasks with his own hands.

His work shows infinite patience and care, and in it lingers the temper of the subject, seen in the shrunken faces, in the gray calm of the picture. His method seems to have been to spend as much time as possible with the men in the workshop, the mine, the brick-fields, the forge, and so to familiarize himself with the outline and character of the subject as to convey it to his larger work in his studio, a gray, dreary place dominated by the noble spirit, the incentive of which was undoubtedly to illustrate the laborer as he found him not to idealize him.

His Life With the Workers.

Meunier was intimate with weavers of cloth, carvers, chair makers, button and stay front makers and men engaged in kindred crafts. Many of them used the lathe in their industries, and when the little streams which furnished power dried up in summer or froze in winter Meunier turned their lathes for them.

His deep feeling for the man tired, worn out, body and soul and spirit, is shown in his work, particularly in his illustration of the dock laborers, those who bore upon their shoulders stone or baggage, those who dragged nets along the beach spreading them to dry. With the dyers in their shops he shared experiments—washing, wringing, dipping, drying, cleansing, verily wallowing in their vats of steaming solution. With the farmers in the heat of the sun he bore his share of the toil. His Harvest, depicting men cutting corn and women binding it into sheaves, is vigorous—it is true.

The impassivity and gloom of the miner, of the puddler, the thin, jerky, rapid movements of the glass-blower, the rhthymical gait and grave serenity of the plowman, the plodding of the job hand or the fisherman—these, thanks to Meunier's daily comradeship with the men wherein he noted their individuality and their temper are all shown in the language of the man of the street.

There is just one word in this Meunier story revealing the psychology of the man and his method of procedure which, though much used today in the chatter of the hour, is still pregnant with series meaning. The word is "service."

DUKE ERNST STARTS BUILDING PALACES.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—Duke Ernst of Brunswick, son-in-law of Emperor William and two months a sovereign, has lost no time in starting a career of palace building. One new place for which designs are now ready is planned as a summer residence for the duke and Princess Victoria Luise and will stand in a magnificent forest belonging to him near Brunswick city. Another palace near Blankenburg will be rebuilt for a hunting seat. The duke's building activity is probably due in part to rivalry with the crown prince, whose protest against allowing Ernst August to ascend the throne of Brunswick has not been forgotten. The crown prince and crown princess are now building a residence at Potsdam, but Ernst August, with his great personal fortune, will be able to eclipse this.

Form Label Council.

At a meeting attended by fourteen local unions under the auspices of the Federated Trades assembly at Kalamazoo hall last night, the "Duluth Card and Label council" was organized. The following officers were elected: President, William Reed of the Photo Engravers' union; vice president, Fred Bernard of the Barteenders' union; recording secretary, A. Howe of the Painters' and Decorators' union; secretary and treasurer, George Walters of the Pressmen's union; sergeant-at-arms, Vernon L. Baker of the Typographical union. The officers were installed by S. S. McDonald, vice president of the State Federation of Labor.

DEMAND GOOD PAVING MATERIAL

Business Men Want High Class Improvement for Superior Street.

Business men of the West end who are interested in the paving of Superior street, will ask that substantial paving be laid on the thoroughfare when paved next summer. It is proposed by members of the West End Commercial club to have the property owners insist on sandstone, vitrified brick or creosote blocks.

Superior street will be the thoroughfare on which the heaviest traffic between the city and West Duluth will follow. The paving has recently been ordered by the city commission but the material has not been selected. This will probably be done early in the spring.

In discussing the paving proposition George M. Jenser, secretary of the club, said yesterday afternoon:

"With West Superior street as a horrible example there is no danger that the property owners will recommend a 'cheap' pavement. The fallacy in trying to save a few dollars in the first cost of a pavement is the worst kind of economy and should be strongly guarded against. There are really only three kinds of material that can be considered for this improvement. It must be a material that will stand the heaviest kind of traffic. All the heavy hauling between the main city and the western section must pass over this street, and as a consequence only the best kind of pavement is good enough. Only three kinds of pavement used in this city have shown durability and ability to sustain heavy traffic, namely sandstone blocks, creosote blocks and vitrified brick. One of these materials must be used. In regards to cost sandstone is the most expensive, next comes blocks and third vitrified brick. Sandstone and brick are somwhat noisy, while creosote blocks are nearly noiseless. On the other hand, brick and creosote blocks are more or less slippery in wet and cold weather and are claimed by humanitarians to be hard on horses. Sandstone has perhaps the best reputation for a general utility pavement. It gives sure footing to horses and is practically indestructible. When once laid it lasts a lifetime. A great many property owners prefer this material and will strongly urge its adoption."

ORPHEUS SOCIETY GIVES BANQUET

Plans for New Building During Coming Year Are Announced

The Orpheus Singing society entertained last evening at its annual banquet at the Woodmen hall for about 100 guests and members of the society. William A. Anderson, musical director of the organization, presided as toastmaster.

Following the supper toasts were responded to by Dr. O. S. Olson, Rev. John A. Krautz and C. R. Magney. Several selections were rendered by the members of the chorus.

An announcement was made by Mr. Anderson that it was probable that the society would be in its own home at its next annual banquet. Assurances had been given the committee in charge of its building proposition that several well-to-do citizens of Duluth were willing to put up the money required to construct the hall. This offer may be taken up by the society, he said.

W. A. ANDERSON.

The Orpheus society owns a 50-foot lot on the northeast corner of Twenty-sixth avenue west and Third street. Here it has been planned to erect a two-story building occupying the entire property. The basement will be large enouguh to provide a large auditorium, while a sub-basement under this will provide for the heating plant. The plans for the building have already been drawn. The proposed building will cost about $30,000.

NORMANNA CHORUS HEARD IN CONCERT.

The Normanna male chorus rendered an excellent musical program before a large audience at the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, last evening. The concert was the first of a series to be given in Duluth and on the ranges prior to the chorus leaving for Norway, where it will take part in the centennial celebration of that country's independence.

Through these concerts the society expects to raise sufficient money to pay about two-thirds of the expenses of the members in taking the trip. The Normanna society will send about twenty-five members and these will go as a representative gathering from Duluth to the Norwegian national celebration.

The local men will join with the affiliated Norwegian singing societies in making the trip to Norway. A steamship has already been chartered which will carry about 1,000 of the singers across the ocean. Those who are going from Duluth are George Thrana, president; Alfred Christopherson, Bert Eldegaard, Otto Hammer, Olaf J. Hanson, Sverre Haug, Haakon Haugen, Sander Jentoft, J. A. Johnson, Harold Kjelman, Helmer Sorentzen, A. J. Meyer, Jens Myrkued, Ludo E. Nagel, Hans Nordby, Gunnar Okstad, John Rathe, Birger Sande, Carl A. Schulz, Jens Solom, Joseph Solem, Louis Solem, Jacob Stensholt, Daniel Stoen, Olaf Sandfor, Gust Sodahl, Anton H. Tesdahl, John Thorrgeson, Hans Thorstad, D. J. Vick and A. Hanson.

The other members, some of whom may announce their decision later, are: Fred A. Hanson, Lars Hennung, Anders Jerstad, Ingwald Jonasson, John Klefstad, Rudolph P. Morch, Martin Rockman, Aksel Ruskey, John Simonson and Sevrin Thoresen.

West End Briefs.

Miss Emma E. Anderson of West Fourth street left last evening for Minneapolis where she will spend two weeks visiting relatives.

Karl Backstrom of Twenty-eighth avenue west returned yesterday from Chicago where he has been spending a week on account of illness of relatives.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN COMPETITION

Two Duluth and Minneapolis Methodist Churches in Attendance Contest.

Beginning tomorrow and for a series of fifteen consecutive Sundays, the Sunday schools of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Duluth and the Hennepin Avenue Methodist church of Minneapolis will enter an attendance contest which will terminate May 10.

At a meeting held recently in Minneapolis at which officers of both schools were present, plans were devised and terms arranged on the basis of which the contest is to be conducted. The aim of both schools will be to maintain an average attendance of 600 schools and a collection of $20 each Sunday throughout the period planned. Either school maintaining such an average will be credited with 100 per cent. Both schools have an average attendance for the past several months of about 500 and a collection of $12 to $15. It will not be possible for either schools to make more than 100 per cent on the collection by running the amount above the average of $20 a Sunday. However, on attendance, it will be possible for each school to gain additional points by running their attendance above the 600 mark.

In order to stimulate the proper interest during the contest a large bulletin board has been arranged at the local M. E. church on which will be posted the Duluth and Minneapolis figures for each Sunday. In order to aid each of the six departments of the Sunday school as to their particular standing in the contest, numbers will also be posted showing the attendance of both schools in the several departments. The secretaries of the two schools will exchange this information and have it available for each following Sunday.

During the contest, it has been decided to fly the flag from the flag staff at the First M. E. church each Saturday and Sunday as a reminder to all interested, to keep the contest and the securing of new members in mind. There will also be printed in the Saturday Herald a statement regarding the previous Sunday's result.

One of the school officers says of the contest:

"It is the desire of the officers in charge of the contest to make a much larger use of a plant for Christian education, whose chief object it is to be a more constructive force in true citizenship.

HIS GENEROSITY.

New Orleans States: The man of whom we were told went into a downtown restaurant a noon or so ago and ordered a substantial luncheon. He ate it growlingly and when he had finished and received his check, marched up to the cashier's desk and slapped down a fine-looking bank note.

It was a Confederate bill and the cashier was not slow to detect it. She pushed it back to the customer.

"This is no good," she said scornfully.

"Neither was the lunch," answered the patron. "Keep the change, however." And he went away.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Girls to Be Given Practical Experience in Housekeeping.

Engineering College to Offer Instruction in Radio-Signaling.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Practical experience in housekeeping for the college girl, the experience to be secured at the university during her course and under the supervision of a member of the home economics faculty, is the latest plan proposed at the college of agriculture for putting the education of the girls on as practical a basis as that provided for boys. The plan has been proposed and worked out by Miss Josephine S. Berry, head of the department of home economics, and approved by Dean Woods. The plan as proposed by Miss Berry will give eighteen senior home economics girls an opportunity to perform the complete round of duties that the ordinary housekeeper would have to perform for six weeks in succession. The work will be of collegiate rank and the girls will be given three credits toward their diplomas for it. The experiment which, according to members of the home economics faculty, is the first of its kind ever tried out in the United States, will be conducted in a professional home economics sorority house, the Phi Upsilon Omcion.

Radio-Signaling.

A course of instruction in radio-signaling is to be offered next semester, beginning Feb. 4, by the engineering college of the university. The course will treat of the fundamental principles of wireless transmission of intelligence, including instruction in electromagnetic waves and their propogation through space as applied to wireless telephony and telegraphy; free and grounded waves, wave lengths, and other phases of the subject. The department has already received part of the equipment for the wireless laboratory and will have apparatus for demonstration and research work.

For Philippine Service.

University graduates with military training are being invited to enter the Philippine army service. Lieut. Woolnough, commandant of the military department at the university, says that the service is in need of a number of college trained men and will start them out at $1,200 a year, for a three-year term. No mental test is required for university graduates and they will be accepted on diploma if they have the two-year cadet training.

The Commencement Address.

Dr. Craig will spend the remainder of the college year in England, doing research work. His classes will be taken by Wilke M. Collins, who has been secured for the second semester. Dr. Barton, who is at present lecturing in the East, is expected back very shortly, and will be on hand for the entire semester.

The French Club.

Dramatic Club.

Arrangements have been completed for the presentation of John Galsworthy's "The Pigeon," and Civtor Mapes "The Flower of Yeddo" by the University Dramatic club at the Princess theater, Tuesday evening, Feb. 10. Albert Shiely will play the leading role in "The Pigeon," while Ora Hyde will be the heroine. Martha Wolff, Lillian Seyfried, Gladys Fewell and Barbara Peoor constitute the cast of "The Flower of Yeddo."

On Lengthy Journey.

A journey that will take him through three continents and among many strange peoples of strange manners was commenced early this week by Dr. A. E. Jenks, professor of anthropology at the university. Prof. Jenks will study the Papago and Pina Indians of Arizona, the Berbers and Kabyles in the mountains of Northern Africa, Italians in the provinces of Southern Italy, the Majgars of Hungary, the Poles and Bohemians as they live in their own country places, the stone implements of Spain and France and Belgium.

Cadet Corps' Ball.

At a meeting of the officers of the cadet corps on Thursday afternoon, Harry D. Lovering, colonel of the cadet regiment, was chosen as chairman of the military ball committee. The date of the function was set for Friday night, April 24. This will bring the ball on the second Friday following the Easter vacation, and the first practical, available date after the Lenten season. The ball will be held in the Armory, and elaborate plans have already been made for decorations and music.

Social Festivities.

The social committee of the Women's Self-Government association has been busy preparing festivities for the early part of the new semester. Chief among them are a Shevlin party to be given in co-operation with the Y. W., and a sunlight dance to be given in the Armory on the first open Saturday of February or March 8.

CONFERENCE OF EDUCATORS

Rural School Board Members Will Assemble in Duluth.

Approximately 175 rural school board members from all parts of the county will be in attendance at the annual convention of the rural school boards, which will be held at the courthouse on Feb. 10. N. A. Young, county superintendent of school, is now making arrangements for the affair.

During the one day of the convention, subjects of general interest to school board members, teachers and parents of rural school children will be discussed. S. A. Challman, state school inspector, will be among the speakers at the convention.

LAKESIDE LODGE

A NEW LINK IN DULUTH'S MASONIC CHAIN

WHEN Robert E. Denfeld of this city, newly elected grand master of the Minnesota Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons affixes his signature to a certain parchment, a new Masonic blue lodge will spring into existence. The new lodge will be known as Lakeside lodge and its jurisdiction concurrent with the other blue lodges of Duluth.

The grand lodge of Minnesota at its meeting a few days ago granted the application of the Lakeside Masons for a charter. The lodge had already organized and up to the time of the grand lodge meeting had been working under a dispensation from the grand master.

The new grand master will sign the charter within a few days and will install the officers of the new subordinate lodge.

Lakeside lodge has engaged the old town hall at Lakeside for a meeting place. The second floor has been remodeled to meet the requirements. The plan is to eventualy build a hall to be devoted exclusively to Masonry.

Lakeside lodge is the fourth blue lodge to be organized in Duluth. The others are Palestine lodge No. 79, organized in 1870; Ionic lodge No. 186, organized in 1889 and Euclid lodge No. 198, West Duluth. A movement is now on foot to organize a fifth lodge among the Masons residing in the West end.

Lakeside lodge will hold its regular meetings on the first and third Mondays of every month. The first class of candidates, consisting of Walter and Edward Harris and Hugh and Walter Greenfield has already received the first degree. The second and third degrees will be conferred after the lodge has been regularly installed by the grand master.

MEUNIER---SCULPTOR OF LABOR

Six American Cities Join in Making His Work Known to the New World---Peddlers, Hammermen, Miners, Longshoremen Among the Life-Sized Figures.

By SAMUEL HOWE.

(The Meunier Exhibition, recently shown in Buffalo and Pittsburg, is now in New York. It will soon go to Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis. America is indebted to Cornelia B. Sage, director of the Albright Gallery, Buffalo, for bringing the Exhibition of the Belgian sculptor's work to this country.)

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

In endeavoring to depict the life of the laboring man of our times, Meunier struggled with several materials—chalk, color, wax and clay. His distinction rests in the main upon one worth-while, understandable monument which, while modestly termed a monument to labor, is in reality a tribute to humanity and its ability to endure.

His Masterpiece.

This piece so vividly illustrates the triumphs and tragedies of daily labor that even the most untutored people must understand. His four great panels in high relief and groups of detached figures are not extravagant outlines of occasional but of daily occurrences. They typify splendidly four great adventures wherein man is admirably and naturally working as a child of nature. In the field is man shown gathering the harvest; in the mine picking coal; in the glass house husbanding the heat of the furnace and in the dock yard carrying merchandise.

The intensity of Meunier's feeling, his ability to concentrate and to transmit to others is illustrated in the scene in the glass house. It is obvious to the most casual observer that the posing of men engaged in this peculiar avocation was practically an impossibility. They are evidently caught on the fly extracting the broken melting pot from the furnace, an operation fraught with danger to the men as well as to the remaining crucibles, holding the amalgamation of earth's silicas and metallic oxides.

Meunier has caught the general movement, the excitement, the temper of the occasion—an occasion which may happen twice in twenty-four hours or only once in a season. The melting pots used in glass making are made of clay; they hold the silica until it eats its way through the thin side. For the breaking of the pot there is no prearranged sign signal or test—nothing but the cry of the fireman in the pit who, raking the clinkers, finds glass running like water upon the heap of cinders or partly burned coal, or, perchance, one prongs of his fork may betray the leak. To bank the fire, rush up and sound the alarm is the work of a few seconds. Panic may be the result. "All hands!" is the cry.

Toilers' Qualities Revealed.

The men vary in age, temper, disposition—all this the group reveals. They have been brought to the work by the hurry-up call. Some of the men are old. Others are young. Both qualities are of rare value this moment—the madcap abandon of youth and the older, more staid experience. Some have been called from the clay bin where they have been treading to extract the air bubbles, to locate tiny pebbles. Just as they are, bare-footed, they have had to respond to the call. The temporary steel curtain of the fire opening has been lifted and the fumes strike the faces of every man defiantly.

In the cool depths of the mine Meunier shows a different condition. He has contrived to show some of the miners working in narrow channels, galleries, some of them only twenty to thirty inches in depth, with dangers from fire damp and cramp of muscle and nerve.

The Man and His Method.

But of the man, his equipment and his training, a word. After three years of study in the Academy of Brussels, he taught drawing in Louvain.

In the seclusion of this somnolent, scholastic town, he worked out his salvation unaided. His studio had formerly served as a dissecting room of the nearby medical school of the university, and was a grim sepulchral structure, tower shaped and pierced by narrow arched windows, some of which were roughly boarded over. He never had an assistant, preferring to build the fire and execute the most rudimentary tasks with his own hands.

His work shows infinite patience and care, and in it lingers the temper of the subject, seen in the shrunken faces, in the gray calm of the picture. His method seems to have been to spend as much time as possible with the men in the workshop, the mine, the brickfields, the forge, and so to familiarize himself with the outline and character of the subject as to convey it to his larger work in his studio, a gray, dreary place dominated by the noble spirit, the incentive of which was unlike to illustrate the laborer as he found him not to idealize him.

His Life With the Workers.

Meunier was intimate with weavers of cloth, carvers, chair makers, button and stay front makers and men engaged in kindred crafts. Many of them used the lathe in their industries, and when the little streams which furnished power dried up in summer or froze in winter Meunier turned their lathes for them.

His deep feeling for the man tired, worn out, body and soul and spirit, is shown in his work, particularly in his illustration of the dock laborers, those who bore upon their shoulders stone or baggage, those who dragged nets along the beach spreading them to dry. With the dyers in their shops he shared experiments—washing, wringing, dipping, drying, cleansing, verily wallowing in their vats of steaming solution. With the farmers in the heat of the sun he bore his share of the toil. His Harvest, depicting men cutting corn and women binding it into sheaves, is vigorous—it is true.

The impassivity and gloom of the miner, of the puddler, the thin, jerky, rapid movements of the glass-blower, the rhthymical gait and grave serenity of the plowman, the plodding of the job hand or the fisherman—these, thanks to Meunier's daily comradeship with the men wherein he noted their individuality and their temper are all shown in the language of the man of the street.

There is just one word in this Meunier story revealing the psychology of the man and his method of procedure which, though much used today in the chatter of the hour, is still pregnant with series meaning. The word is "service."

DUKE ERNST STARTS BUILDING PALACES.

Berlin, Jan. 31.—Duke Ernst of Brunswick, son-in-law of Emperor William and two months a sovereign, has lost no time in starting a career of palace building. One new place for which designs are now ready is planned as a summer residence for the duke and Princess Victoria Luise and will stand in a magnificent forest belonging to him near Brunswick city. Another palace near Blankenburg will be rebuilt for a hunting seat. The duke's building activity is probably due in part to rivalry with the crown prince, whose protest against allowing Ernst August to ascend the throne of Brunswick has not been forgotten. The crown prince and crown princess are now building a residence at Potsdam, but Ernst August, with his great personal fortune, will be able to eclipse this.

Form Label Council.

At a meeting attended by fourteen local unions under the auspices of the Federated Trades assembly at Kalamazoo hall last night, the "Duluth Card and Label council" was organized. The following officers were elected: President, William Reed of the Photo Engravers' union; vice president, Fred Bernard of the Bartenders' union; recording secretary, A. Howe of the Painters' and Decorators' union; secretary and treasurer, George Walters of the Pressmen's union; sergeant-at-arms, Vernon L. Baker of the Typographical union. The officers were installed by S. S. McDonald, vice president of the State Federation of Labor.

DEMAND GOOD PAVING MATERIAL

Business Men Want High Class Improvement for Superior Street.

Business men of the West end who are interested in the paving of Superior street, will ask that substantial paving be laid on the thoroughfare when paved next summer. It is proposed by members of the West End Commercial club to have the property owners insist on sandstone, vitrified brick or creosote blocks.

Superior street will be the thoroughfare on which the heaviest traffic between the city and West Duluth will follow. The paving has recently been ordered by the city commission but the material has not been selected. This will probably be done early in the spring.

In discussing the paving proposition George M. Jensen, secretary of the club, said yesterday afternoon:

"With West Superior street as a horrible example there is no danger that the property owners will recommend a 'cheap' pavement. The fallacy in trying to save a few dollars in the first cost of a pavement is the worst kind of economy and should be strongly guarded against. There are really only three kinds of material that can be considered for this improvement. It must be a material that will stand the heaviest kind of traffic. All the heavy hauling between the main city and the western section must pass over this street, and as a consequence only the best kind of pavement is good enough. Only three kinds of pavement used in this city have shown durability and ability to sustain heavy traffic, namely sandstone blocks, creosote blocks and vitrified brick. One of these materials must be used. In regards to cost sandstone is the most expensive, next comes blocks and third vitrified brick. Sandstone and brick are somwhat noisy, while creosote blocks are nearly noiseless. On the other hand, brick and creosote blocks are more or less slippery in wet and cold weather and are claimed by humanitarians to be hard on horses. Sandstone has perhaps the best reputation for a general utility pavement. It gives sure footing to horses and is practically indestructible. When once laid it lasts a lifetime. A great many property owners prefer this material and will strongly urge its adoption."

ORPHEUS SOCIETY GIVES BANQUET

Plans for New Building During Coming Year Are Announced

The Orpheus Singing society entertained last evening at its annual banquet at the Woodmen hall for about 100 guests and members of the society. William A. Anderson, musical director of the organization, presided as toastmaster.

Following the supper toasts were responded to by Dr. O. S. Olson, Rev. John A. Krantz and C. B. Magney. Several selections were rendered by the members of the chorus.

An announcement was made by Mr. Anderson that it was probable that the society would be in its own home at its next annual banquet. Assurances had been given the committee in charge of its building proposition that several well-to-do citizens of Duluth were willing to put up the money required to construct the hall. This offer may be taken up by the society, he said.

W. A. ANDERSON.

The Orpheus society owns a 50-foot lot on the northeast corner of Twenty-sixth avenue west and Third street. Here it has been planned to erect a two-story building occupying the entire property. The basement will be large enough to provide a large auditorium, while a sub-basement under this will provide for the heating plant. The plans for the building have already been drawn. The proposed building will cost about $30,000.

NORMANNA CHORUS HEARD IN CONCERT.

The Normanna male chorus rendered an excellent musical program before a large audience at the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, last evening. The concert was the first of a series to be given in Duluth and on the ranges prior to the chorus leaving for Norway, where it will take part in the centennial celebration of that country's independence.

Through these concerts the society expects to raise sufficient money to pay about two-thirds of the expenses of the members in taking the trip. The Normanna society will send about twenty-five members and these will go as a representative gathering from Duluth to the Norwegian national celebration.

The local men will join with the affiliated Norwegian singing societies in making the trip to Norway. A steamship has already been chartered which will carry about 1,000 of the singers across the ocean. Those who are going from Duluth are George Thrana, president; Alfred Christopherson, Bert Eldegaard, Otto Hammer, Olaf J. Hanson, Sverre Haug, Haakon Haugen, Sander Jentoft, J. A. Johnson, Harold Kjelman, Helmer Sorentzen, A. J. Meyer, Jens Norkued, Ludo E. Nagel, Hans Nordby, Gunnar Okstad, John Rathe, Birger Sande, Carl A. Schulz, Jens Solem, Joseph Solem, Louis Solem, Jacob Stensholt, Daniel Stoen, Olaf Sandfor, Gust Sodahl, Anton H. Tesdahl, John Thorgeson, Hans Thorstad, D. J. Wick and A. Hanson.

The other members, some of whom may announce their decision later, are: Fred A. Hanson, Lars Hemung, Anders Jerstad, Ingwald Jonasson, John Klefstad, Rudolph P. Morch, Martin Rockman, Aksel Ruskey, John Simonson and Sevrin Thoresen.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 31.—The "dinner" that was given following the performance at the Auditorium on Wednesday, arranged in honor of Gaby Deslys, the French actress, was not all that the enthusiastic press agent had hoped it would be. Many of those who were invited to attend sent declinations, and others who were invited did not even take the trouble to resent the attempt that palpably was made to use their names for advertising purposes. Charles Reed of St. Cloud Reformatory to Get Position.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 31.—Charles S. Reed, superintendent of the state reformatory at St. Cloud has been agreed upon by the state board of control as warden of Stillwater prison.

The plan is to relieve Reed of his duties at St. Cloud some weeks before Warden Wolfer quits Stillwater, and have him work with Wolfer at the prison and learn the details of prison management before assuming charge. Reed's successor at St. Cloud has not been selected. When this is done, both appointments are expected to be officially announced at the same time.

DOING THE TANGO WITH SPORT SUBJECTS AS SEDUCTIVE PARTNERS

Waino Ketonen Will Show Real Form in Big Mat Battle With Husky Joe Carr.

Kelly Will Meet Miske---Duluth's Crew May Be Best in the World---Pal Brown in Frisco.

BY BRUCE.

ON Tuesday evening, Feb. 10, one week from next Tuesday, mat fans of Duluth will get their first sight of the little wrestler who has shown in his training work the greatest form, the greatest variety of holds and the most profound knowledge of leverage of any wrestler who has ever appeared in this city—with the exception of the great and only Frank A. Gotch.

It has been the desire of the officials of the Greater Duluth Athletic club to see this boy tested out. Waino Ketonen came here with the reputation of being one of the very greatest of the middleweights. In the case of Ketonen the great things that have been shouted in from the world outside have not in the least exaggerated the ability of the conqueror of Chris Jordon.

In Joe Carr, Waino will meet an opponent who is classed with the leaders of the middleweight division. Carr gave Yokel one of the hardest battles of the Mormon's career in Minneapolis this last fall, and as he will be permitted to make weight at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Carr will have something like seven pounds on the little Finnish champion.

Old Mike Yokel will watch the outcome of the first contest Ketonen wrestles in the Northwest with the greatest of interest. The man doesn't live and eat regularly that Mike is afraid of; but the fact remains that he has refrained from meeting the boy who looks to the critics here like about the greatest piece of wrestling machinery developed during the past few years.

Ketonen defeated Jordon and the talk of a contest with Yokel fairly sizzled. Should the Finn show wonderful class against Carr there would be more pertinent reasons why Yokel can't very long put off the day when he must meet his most persistent challenger.

Doing long stretches on the roads around Duluth and working out every afternoon, Ketonen will step upon the mat for this contest in the very pink of condition.

The little Finn is 24 years of age. During his career he has met and defeated the best on the other side of the pond, defeating Jack Carroll, welterweight champion of England at Wigan, England, two years ago, two falls in nine minutes.

Here Comes the Kelly.

IT was Spike Kelly who made one of the first appearances last fall in the boxing game on the other side of the bay. Now comes the announcement that Kelly is coming back some time after the middle of the coming month and will meet Billy Miske of St. Paul before the Superior Athletic club.

The former Chicago battler is at the present time under the management of The Abrams brothers. These two men declare that Kelly is in the best of condition and state that they will see to it that the welterweight contender enters the ring with Miske in the very pink.

Mike McNulty of St. Paul was in the city the greater part of yesterday endeavoring to sign Mike Gibbons, brother of the phenomenal Mike, for a contest with Kelly. The Abrams boys were willing, and it is reported that Kelly showed all of his teeth at the mere mention of the meeting. But when the negotiations had proceeded further it was discovered that McNulty, pleading the cause of Gibbons, refused to consent to anything like reasonable weight for the Apostle boxer, desiring to have Thomas come in at 160 pounds.

When the poundage ultimatum of the taxicab owner was propounded, the negotiations were off and Kelly signed the articles for the battle with Miske.

Miske is a willing, slam bang battler. He is strong and willing and the go with Kelly should be filled with action. Having seen the twain in action, our opinion strings along with the Kelly one.

Word From Old Jim.

NOW comes a letter from James A. Ten Eyck, father of James E. Ten Eyck and of the rowing game in this country—the proud parent of two objects worthy of admiration.

James A. tells us that there is a triumvirate coaching at Yale. They have a resident diplomat, so called. Possibly he is there to keep peace in the coaching family. Guy Nickalls is one of the coaches of the Yale crew. Some years ago Nickalls was one of those peculiar creatures, a gentleman amateur of England.

The English gentleman amateur is an immaculate creature; one who never comes in harsh contact with the world; one who is pure and sweet and lily white.

When old Jim's boy Ned went to England in eager quest of the Diamond Sculls, he was but 17 years of age. He was the proud son of one of the greatest of all American oarsmen. Well young Ned won, won from the flower of England, and the fact so astounded the British sportsmen that they were inactive for some few days. Then they jolly well recovered. They did that; they went and barred young Ned, using the leverage that he was not an amateur in the true sense of the word, as his father labored for a living, or some such flimsy argument.

"And now," writes the grizzled old oarsman, than whom no finer old chap ever sat in a boat, "it occurs to me to wonder what some of the English think of Nickalls at the present time—for he is actually coaching a crew—that horrible, untold-of occupation that they declared stained the standing of me and threw my boy out of amateur competition."

We have stated many times that Ned Ten Eyck was perhaps the greatest amateur sculler the world ever smiled upon. It was his greatness that caused the English to bar him—and no other consideration—so there now, old Jim.

About the Henley Four.

FROM time to time there comes creeping upon all fours, scarcely as yet able to stand upon its exiguous legs, the rumor that Jimmy Ten Eyck Jr. has some grand scheme in regard to the last year's junior four of the Duluth Boat club.

They do say as how the belief of James is sturdy and bold that this crew can defeat any four in the world—at least with a little more training.

So far James has ample and able basis for this belief. In the events of last season this crew showed beyond the slightest protesting doubt that it was the greatest four in the United States. It swept the country and won every race it entered with seeming and masterly ease.

Now here is the argument—if Con Riley's four will race the wonderful young four of the Duluth Boat club, and the Duluth four should win—why then there are some of us enthusiastic enough to believe that the citizens of Duluth would band together and contribute enough funds to send this crew to the English Henley.

Riley's four went to England and came back toting home the championship of the world. Say! the cits of Winnipeg have never got over talking about it, and the fact became pretty well known over the beaten news tracks of the world.

There are some who believe Duluth has the best four in the world. All of the boys are young—they are bound in the ordinary course of events to improve. If Horak, Rheinberger and the Moore brothers do improve, believe us, Bill, it would take one of the greatest fours in the world to push the nose of its shell ahead of them.

The Home Coming.

NEWS came treking in yesterday that Pal Brown was in San Francisco and would be home on the fifth of the coming month. The news came through a letter written to Sig Abrams, president of the Twin Ports Boxing club, and in the missive Pal states that he is ready to fight any and all of the boys of his division who can be brought to meet him.

With the return of Brown it is probable that some of the biggest bouts that have been held under the Hedding boxing law will be staged by the Twin Ports club. Efforts will be made to get some of the best of the lightweights to meet Pal, according to the plans made known by President Abrams, and you may be sure that the range throng will be down in force to see the youngster work.

Hibbing Lightweight Declares He Is Ready to Meet All Contenders in Order to Get Chance at the Champion, Willie Ritchie.

Pal Brown is at the present time in San Francisco and will leave for Hibbing within the next day or so, according to the letter received by a friend of the range lightweight.

In the letter written here Brown declares he is ready for any of the lightweights of the game. Pal also declares that all of the boxers he met in the Antipodes outweighed him and that he was forced in every match to give away from five to fifteen pounds in weight.

After visiting with the members of his family the Hibbing boy declares that he will be prepared to meet any of the members of the 133-pound brigade. One of the prospective matches for the Hibbing youth is the clash with Johnny Tillman of Minneapolis, and the chances are that this contest will be staged before the Twin Ports Athletic club.

"I will take a chance at any of the lightweights in the game," declared Brown. "There is no man in the division that I fear or will avoid. I am out for the championship and will take them as they come. I would like to get a crack at Ritchie, and in order to get the chance at the title will take on any of the contenders. I have held my own with all of the boxers in Australia, all of them outweighing me, and I am ready to meet any of the American boxers at the limit.

"Australia is a great country and I had a fine time over there. I was guaranteed a certain sum, the money being placed in a bank. It was a great experience for me and during the trip I met with some of the finest people it has ever been my lot to be mixed up with."

According to the plans divulged in the letter, Brown will reach home about Feb. 5, which is next Thursday. After a short rest he will start his campaign among the lightweights of this country.

President Abrams of the Twin Ports Athletic club claims that he has the promise of Brown to meet any opponent he may select for him, and according to the present plans of the officials of the club across the bay, Brown may appear across the bay in the latter part of next month.

SPECIAL WIRE CARRIES NEWS OF HOCKEY GAME.

To show some of the interest in hockey it might be stated that the fans of the Canadian Soo had a direct wire from the curling rink to one of the largest cigar stores in the Canadian town, and that every play of the game was given to the 1,000 fans at the other end of the wire.

So great is the interest in hockey at the Soo that frequently one of the fans down there would ask the operator at the Soo end of the wire to forward advice to the players.

"Tell the forwards to play further up," was the admonition of one of the Soo fans and it was promptly repeated over the wire.

Manager Kelly of the local Western Union was in charge of the wire, and he was somewhat elated when the fans down at the Soo asked their operator to state that it was the best service they ever had.

BIG SIDE BETS ARE ONLY A MEMORY OF THE PAST

Present Sporting Men No Longer Make Huge Wagers Upon the Outcome of the Various Sporting Events.

"They don't make side bets like in the days of real sport any more." This was part of a conversation overheard in a prominent cafe the other day. The man making it probably didn't know how he was hitting the nail squarely on the dome when he "cracked" it, says a San Francisco sport writer.

The days of the big side bets at the ringside have vanished, like the great stakes that were played for in the days of the old Mississippi river boats. Few and far between are the dates when side bets are a part of the agreement of the fighters opposed to each other, and yet not more than twenty-five years ago all fought for the side bet as the purse, and the sharing in gate receipts on a percentage basis was an unknown method to the battler.

It makes, or rather forces us to ask, "Is there a decline in the sportsmanship of backers and promoters, compared with the days of old?" It would appear so. In the first place, probably the abolition of the finish fights with skin-tight gloves may be the cause of it to a great extent. You who have never been to one of these old-time fights, when the men stripped bare to the waist and were hounded from pillar to post by officers, sheriffs and other limbs of the law; pitched their ring on the turf and chanced to luck that the battle would be finished before interference arrived; you who have not taken part in these exciting episodes will never know the exhilarating feeling that took possession of us all. The danger of the thing was worth all the hardships suffered and endured on these midnight or early morning expeditions.

With the making of the laws that gave legal status to the holding of fights in well-appointed clubs and made police interference an impossibility came the vanishing of the big bettors and the men who risked fortunes on fights passed out of public gaze. They left the limelight of the sporting stage, and we have no successors to these knights of chance who would speculate on anything that had the element of gamble about it. What a bunch of real sports—men who never looked for the "best" of it. An even break was all they wanted for their money, and when they got that they were just as cheerful losers (according to their appearance) as they were happy winners. Where are the Al Smiths, the Dick Roches, the Joe Ullmans, the Jimmy Colvilles, the Franz Laws, the Dave Pullfers, the Mike Dwyers, the Pittsburg Phils, the Billy Emmetts, the Davy Johnsons, the Riley Grannons, the Harry Philips and others of their type? Where are their successors? We might search the world over and not find them with the Lick telescope or the big Yerkes glass in Chicago.

Emmett Passed Away 25 Years Ago.

Have we any speculators now like Billy Emmett of Chicago? Emmett passed away some twenty-five years ago. I was but a youngster on the Mississippi on the morning of Feb. 7, 1882, perched up in the tree that stood in front of the hotel near which the battle ground was pitched for the Sullivan-Paddy Ryan fight. Emmett had just sold his interest in the Academy of Music in Chicago to Dan Shelby, and with all the money from the proceeds went to New Orleans to wager on Sullivan's chances. He shouted at the top of his voice that he was "ready to bet $50,000 or more on the Boston boy," and how Billy Harding—who was representing Richard K. Fox on that occasion—went into hurried consultation with Tom Kelly, who was Ryan's chief adviser, and, if I recall it right at that time, finally did bet $10,000 with Emmett. To make the story short, Emmett bet everybody to a standstill, and yet when the fight had finished won only $45,000 on that great event.

At what battle of today do you see such amount wagered? Here is another test of sportsmanship. The second battle between Harry Gilmore and Billy Meyers took place at North Judson, Ind., in the little two-story opera house, which also served the purpose of town hall. Meyers had just beaten Gilmore in Minneapolis and this was a return bout. The side bet was $5,000 for each man. Alf Kennedy of Streator, Ill., furnished Meyers' end and Jim Black and Joe Woods of Minneapolis looked after Gilmore's financial part.

This was not a public fight, but only for the money at stake. But a few were present. As I recall them now, George Siler was referee; Otto Floto, timekeeper; Parson Davis, stakeholder, and the balance of the party, besides the principals, were Alf Kennedy, Joe Woods, Jim Blanc, Paddy Carroll, Jack McGurn, One-Eyed Connolly and the seconds of the men. Meyers knocked Gilmore out the first round and some $30,000 changed hands on the result.

The biggest betting fight I ever attended was the one between Meyers and Jack McAuliffe in the same town that the Meyers-Gilmore scrap took place. Only at Reno, Nev., when Jeffries met defeat three years ago, was such a representative gathering present. All the coal miners about the Streator section had contributed towards a pool which amounted to something like half a million dollars of bet on Meyers. I will never forget when Dick Roche crossed the ring after the men had entered and shouted: "I will bet $25,000 or any part of it on McAuliffe." He was snapped up so quickly it took your breath away. Then Jimmy Colville followed with the same proposition and Phil Dwyer did likewise, as did Billy West, the well-known minstrel of that time. To make a short story, Harry Ballard, then managing editor of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, held something like $133,000 in stake money at the ringside.

As will be recalled, the battle lasted sixty-odd rounds when Mike McDonald, the referee, called it no contest. Only one blow had been struck, and that by Meyers, who knocked McAuliffe down.

FAMOUS FOOTBALL PLAYERS PROMINENT IN PUBLIC LIFE

Former Knights of the Gridiron Have Had Successful Political Careers---Intercollegiate Boxing League Proposed.

New York, Jan. 31.—That college football with its rigorous training, necessity for self-control and ability to surmount repeated setbacks on the part of its players, is particularly fitting for a successful political career later in life would appear to be indicated by the number of famous players who have achieved positions of prominence in both state and nation. There is seldom an election of importance in which some football player is not elevated to public life by the voters of one or another political party. These former knights of the gridiron are selected or appointed to all manner of political positions and almost without exception discharge the duties of their offices in an extremely satisfactory manner.

The recent election of Blair Lee as United States senator from Maryland recalls to mind the long list of former players who have won public recognition of similar nature. Lee, who was a famous "forward" at Princeton in the late seventies, playing the position of "next-to-end" now known as tackle, followed the footsteps of many other Princeton, Harvard and Yale players.

Old Harvard Captain.

Robert Bacon, late ambassador to France, was an old Harvard captain and halfback; James S. Harlan of the United States interstate commerce commission is an old Princeton forward; Lee McClung, late treasurer of the United States, a former captain and halfback at Yale; William H. Lewis, recently assistant attorney general of the United States, an old Harvard center; S. H. Tompson, the present first assistant attorney general of the United States, and William W. Roper, the present surveyor of the port of Philadelphia, both Princeton ends; ex-Congressman Lucius N. Litteauer, a linesman for the Crimson; Gifford N. Pinchot, late chief forester, once a varsity man at Yale, and his successor, the present incumbent at Washington, Chief Forester Harmon S. Graves, a former back for the Blue. The late Governor William E. Russell of Massachusetts was a halfback at Harvard; Governor George R. Carter of Hawaii, once a guard at Yale; Everett J. Lake, the great Harvard halfback, lieutenant governor of Connecticut, and the famous W. H. Corbin, affectionately known as "Pa," the present commissioner of taxes for Connecticut, once a center for Yale. John C. Bull, the great Pennsylvania halfback, is attorney general of the state of Pennsylvania.

Famous Yale Fullback.

In the Connecticut senate recently sat Frank S. Butterworth, Yale's famous fullback of twenty years ago. Down in Delaware is Justice Marvel of the supreme court and once secretary of state, an old Princeton captain and forward, and in the office of the attorney general of Maryland sits celebrated Edgar Allan Poe of Princeton. In the office of the chief justice of New Jersey is William S. Gummere, another old Princeton captain; in Pennsylvania's Twentieth judicial district is another Princeton player, Judge J. M. Woods. George W. Woodruff, an ex-judge of the United States circuit court, was once a celebrated guard at Yale, and still more famous as a coach at Pennsylvania, inventor of the quarterback kick, guardsback and a host of other football maneuvers. A recent reform mayor of Harrisburg was Vance McCormick, the old Yale quarterback. A late assistant police commissioner in New York was Bert Hanson, the old Yale guard, and there is "Big Bill" Edwards, an old Princeton captain, late New York street cleaning commissioner, now in charge of a similar department at Newark, N. J. Charles D. Daly, the Army's successful coach last fall, has recently left the office of fire commissioner of Boston to rejoin the army and the list might be continued indefinitely.

Boxing Leagues Planned.

The University of Pennsylvania boxing team elected officers last week to formulate plans and take action toward the formation of an Intercollegiate Boxing league. The projected organization is the result of five years' effort by Pennsylvania boxing enthusiasts to interest other universities in the establishment of such a league. One obstacle is the popular belief that boxing is dangerous and an incentive to gambling. It is believed, however, that the present effort will succeed, and that boxing will be taken up as an intercollegiate sport.

If a league is formed the Amateur Athletic association novice rules will be amended to serve as the league code. The projected regulations call for a regulation costume and eight-ounce gloves. Other rules will provide for three rounds in all competitions; an interval of one minute between rounds; each competitor to be assisted by one second, who shall be an undergraduate in good standing; no coaching during the progress of a bout. No student under 18 years of age will be allowed to compete.

STILL HOPES FOR TINKER

President of Brooklyn Club Expects Him to Play There.

Mails Contract to Federal Manager to Protect Interests.

New York, Jan. 31.—Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn baseball club, says that his club never has refused to accede to Tinker's demands, and in sending the contract which Tinker received yesterday, had taken the last step necessary for the legal protection of its claims.

"A contract," said Ebbets, "is a document of negotiations between the parties interested. We had the right under the contract which Tinker signed with the Cincinnati club, that contract being legally assigned to the Brooklyn club, to negotiate with Mr. Tinker up to the end of January.

"We offered Tinker the same salary he received while a member of the Chicago champions. Tinker came back asking our representative, Manager Robinson, for a salary of $7,500 for a term of three years. Since then we have had the matter of Mr. Tinker's demands under consideration and finally the board of directors of the Brooklyn club agreed to accede to his demands. Thereupon we sent him a contract and letter stating that we accepted his terms. We registered his contract and letter on Jan. 27, thus giving us four days leeway. That action was taken after a very careful consideration.

"We at no time refused to accede to his demands, the negotiations being open until his claims were accepted or refused. We never rejected his terms. We are advised that this action will protect us fully and legally. The fact that Mr. Tinker acknowledges receipt of the contract is entirely satisfactory to us. We hope and expect that he will play with the Brooklyn club."

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Organized baseball had an inning yesterday in the contest with the "outlaw" Federal league. Jimmy Johnstone, who established a stolen base record on the Pacific coast last summer was induced to sign a Cub contract, and Jacques Fournier and Russell Blackburn have agreed to accept the terms of the Chicago American. All three of the players were sought by the Federals, it was reported.

A telegram from Chattanooga brought the news that Umpire Henry O'Day, acting as emissary for the Chicago Nationals, had induced Johnstone to sign and Manager Tinker of the Chicago Federals said that the agreement had been made just in time for the Cubs, because he expected to make an offer that Johnstone could hardly refuse. Johnstone was drafted last fall, and according to the rules, his salary for the first forty-five days as a Cub would include a 25 per cent increase over that drawn from the Coast league club. The point at variance which was finally adjusted, was the amount he was to receive after forty-five days if he made good.

The local Federal club has lined up the needed number of property owners to offset a petition circulated by others asking that the city prevent the establishment of a baseball plant on the North side selected. This was announced last night by Charles Weeghman, president of the club, who said that this time next week 200 men would be at work on the new plant.

DULUTH WINS FINAL GAME FROM THE CANADIAN SOO

Curling Club Team Swamps the Visitors By 12 to 2 Score.

Barkell and Olson Show Some of the Season's Best Hockey.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Calumet	5	2	.714
American Soo	5	3	.625
Duluth	3	3	.500
Portage Lake	5	6	.450
Canadian Soo	3	7	.300

Duluth won the second game with the Canadian Soo hockey team last evening by the decisive score of 12 to 2, the home guards completely outplaying the visitors in all of the points of the game and demonstrating that the curling club aggregation is at the present time in the best condition of the season and is playing by far the best game.

In shooting, the locals gave a rare exhibition. Diminutive Russell Barkell was in rare form and shot some beauties from the side lines. But it was the combined work of the team that brought about the result, and in passing and rushing and in cleverly checking the Canadians at all points, the Duluth aggregation gave the most satisfactory exhibition of the year.

One of the chief points of satisfaction about the win is the fact that the Portage Lake seven lost again last evening, and today finds Duluth resting in third place.

Wray Out of Game.

Johnny Wray, one of the dependables of the visiting team, was obliged to leave the game early in the first half. During the series the crack of the Canadian team has been clear off form, owing to his game foot, and this has crippled the efficiency of the Soo seven. Michaels replaced Wray and to the credit of the spare goes both of the goals registered by the visitors.

In checking the rushes of the visitors Duluth seldom gave the Soo boys an open or clean shot at goal. Many wild shots were attempted, but the major portion of these were made from a position that gave the player little real opportunity of scoring.

Olson and Barkell had their sights affixed at the proper level and they scored from positions that are generally accounted out of range of the net. The shooting of both of these boys was the sterling and striking feature of the game.

Duluth Scores Early.

Arnie Olson was the first Duluthian to score. The speedy rover rushed the rubber up the ice without assistance and then shot her in from the side. In just thirty second later, before the spectators had time to settle down, young Jimmy Owens took the puck up the side lines in a grand and exalted rush and pumped it through Hesson.

Hardly had the crowd settled again before little Kahler shot one in from scrimmage and it began to look as if the team was out of the woods.

Capt. Elliott, who played one of the star games for the visitors, rushed the puck down the sidelines and then neatly passed it to Michaels in front of the net and the youngster shot it through.

Kahler shot one from a lively scrimmage in front of the Soo goal in 12:45. Just as the twenty-first minute of the play had elapsed Olson took the rubber up the ice in one of the prettiest rushes of the game. A neat pass to Barkell resulted in a pretty goal. Two minutes later Began received the puck in the middle of the ice, rushed into the Soo scoring zone, slipped it over to Kahler and another score was hung up.

Just before the close of time for the first half Barkell scrambled up the ice alone, closly pursued, and then lofted one of the sensational nets of the evening, caging it from clear over by the sidelines.

The Second Half.

Just two minutes after the start of the second half Kahler passed to Barkell in front of the visitors' cage and the latter neatly slipped the rubber past the guard of Hesson.

Olson negotiated the next one unaided and made the net after a dash for nearly the length of the ice.

Old Joe Linder came out from behind his net with the puck at the conclusion of 10 minutes of play, dodged several of the Soo forwards, did some hot sprinting, carried the rubber right down in front of the enemy's goal, and then slipped it over to Barkell, who shot it through.

Barkell made another sensational goal five minutes later, this one like several of the others coming from the sidelines.

Michaels scored the second and final net of the visitors a minute later, shooting the cage from scrimmage, and just before time was called Olson carried the puck far down the ice, passed it over to Barkell and Russell shot the final one of the game.

Game Is Very Clean.

As was the case in the initial game of the series, not one penalty was inflicted. Both of the games have been the cleanest ever played here, and it is probable that in league hockey they will stand as a record. Hockey has received a grand boost from the visit of the boys of the Soo and it has been proven that there is little need for some of the features that have crept into some of the other games of the league, more particularly the ones that have been played away from Duluth.

An informal banquet was tendered to the members of both teams at the Kitchi Gammi club, following the game, and the feeling of good fellowship was further cemented by the meeting.

FORMER CHICAGO WELTER MATCHED TO MEET MISKE

"SPIKE" KELLY.

MANY BASEBALL MOGULS RECEIVED HUMBLE START

Uncle Ben Shibe Once Sold Baseballs to the Early Clubs.

James E. Gaffney Drove a Milk Wagon and Frank Farrell Tended Bar.

(By Monty.)

New York, Jan. 31.—With hardly an exception, those who head the big league baseball clubs of today are what could be termed "self-made men." Nearly every one of them started well down on the ladder of life and, through dint of his own persistent effort and ability, climbed up rung by rung to a position where his name is known throughout the country. In the list we have a milk wagon driver, a bartender, a bank clerk, a lumber salesman, a small coal dealer, a whisky drummer, a civil service employee, a small ward politician, a hotel bellboy, a soda water clerk, a baseball ticket seller, a dry goods salesman, a baseball player, a newspaper reporter, and the original maker of baseballs as a business.

On the system that "the last shall be first," it is now in order to consider Benjamin F. Shibe. Thirty years ago, when the game was just beginning to amount to something, Ben Shibe thought he saw good prospects for a man who would make baseballs as a business. So he "went to it," and began to supply all the baseballs used by the National league. Then, when the great firms of Spalding and Reach were organized he obtained the contract to make all the baseballs for both. He was taken in later as a partner by both companies, and he continues to make all the baseballs sold to the National and American leagues.

"Bell-Hop" Owns Red Sox.

The latest recruit to the ranks of club owners is a shining example of the self-made man. Joseph J. Lannin, who now controls half the stock of the Boston Red Sox, began his career as a bellboy in a hotel, of which he became owner by saving his tips. He also is now the proprietor of several other hotels, including the big Garden City hotel on Long Island, one of the best hostelries in the East outside of New York city, and he also is well endowed with real estate in and around Boston—all bought with money earned from the nest-egg of his bellboy's tips.

James E. Gaffney, head of the Boston Nationals, has had a varied career. He began as a milk wagon driver, later became a policeman, worked up in the force and then resigned to become an alderman. He now is one of the ruling spirits in New York Democratic political affairs. The soda water clerk on the list is Charles W. Murphy, president of the Chicago Cubs. He 'tended fountain in Cincinnati during the years of his youth, and then drummed up on the side a lucrative business selling moderate priced jewelry to his customers.

Clerk Heads Giants.

Harry N. Hempstead, president of the New York Giants, was a salesman in the late John T. Brush's enterprise in Indianapolis known as "The When Clothing store." He sold overcoats, trousers, vests, overalls and jumpers. Later he married a daughter of Mr. Brush and was put in charge of the store, where he showed so much ability that his father-in-law bequeathed his interest in the Giants to him at his death.

Charles H. Ebbets "knocked around" Brooklyn as a boy and finally landed the position of head ticket seller in the grandstand of the Brooklyn Baseball club twenty-five years ago. From there he worked up by gradual steps until he now is president of the club, a position he has held continuously since 1898.

William F. Baker, owner of the Philadelphia Nationals, held a position in the civil service in Brooklyn when a young man. Later he was civil service commissioner of Brooklyn and then became deputy police commissioner of New York under Mayor McClellan, subsequently being promoted to the position of police commissioner. Besides his baseball venture he also is interested in a big wholesale millinery establishment at the present time.

Dreyfuss Peddled Booze.

Barney Dreyfuss used to be a whisky drummer in Louisville. He made so much money that he was able to buy stock in the old Louisville club of the National league, of which he became president in 1899, the last year the club was in the league. He went to the Pittsburg club as its president and owner in 1900, and he has been there ever since.

August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati Reds and also chairman of the national commission, was employed in a minor way in political affairs in Cincinati before he became head of the baseball club. He was a sort of canvasser or agent of political leaders in certain phases of the work.

Charles W. Somers, owner of the Cleveland Americans, built up his coal business until he now is a millionaire besides being head of the Naps.

Frank J. Farrell a number of years ago was a bartender in the famous saloon of Jimmy Wakely at the corner of Forty-second street and Fifth avenue, New York city. He saved his money and invested in real estate and race horses, becoming a partner of Davy Johnson in owning a big stable of thoroughbreds. The star of the stable was Roseben, holder of the world's record of 1:22 for seven furlongs. Farrell also was paired up at one time with Julius Fleischmann of Cincinnati in proprietorship of a racing stable. Finally he turned his attention to baseball and bought the New York American league club in 1900.

Many Lowly Starts.

Frank Navin, though the president of the Detroit Americans, is only a figurehead for W. H. Yawkey, who owns the club. Yawkey, through keen judgment, built himself up from a lumber salesman to owner of a tremendous lumber business, now valued at several million dollars.

Gen. Charles H. Taylor, father of John I. Taylor and a partner of Joseph L. Lannin in the ownership of the Boston Red Sox, was once a newspaper reporter and advertising solicitor. He now is the owner of the Boston Globe, besides being a big figure in baseball.

Charles A. Comiskey, who is now touring the world with his Chicago White Sox and the New York Giants, was one of the greatest players of baseball in the olden days. He was first baseman and manager of the St. Louis Browns that won four straight American association pennants in the late '80s. He saved his salary and joined hands with Ban Johnson in forming the American league in 1900.

Robert E. Lee Hedges, owner of the St. Louis Browns, was a bank clerk in Cincinnati once and later cashier.

Iceland's largest waterfall has been bought by an English company, which will develop 400,000 electric horse power for the manufacture of atmospheric nitrogen fertilizer.

FAMED WINTER SPORTS AT ST. MORITZ IN SWITZERLAND DRAW BIG CROWD

START OF THE BOBSLED RUN.

Bog sleighing is one of the liveliest sports of the winter and it is not without danger. These pictures were made at St. Moritz, which is one of the Swiss resorts which are crowded in winter with visitors from all parts of the world, who go to enjoy the winter sports there. Switzerland is especially the playground of the English in winter. Fewer Americans go there though their number is increasing. These pictures show the beginning of the bog sleigh run at St. Moritz and the turn at "Sunny Corner."

GOPHER QUINT IN HARD LUCK

Disabled Team Loses All Games to Date in Conference.

'Varsity Girls Show Big Interest in Athletics This Year.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minnesota still has a zero percentage in basket ball, having lost every one of the five games which the team has played in the conference schedule this season.

With Shaughnessy's entrance into the game, however, and with Lawler's recovery from an injured knee, Dr. Cooke hopes to break the hoodoo which is apparently following the team.

The department of physical education has issued a schedule providing for tryouts for membership in the Sigma Delta Psi, the honorary athletic fraternity. Each Saturday up to the close of the college year has been set aside for particular events, and on the last Saturday, June 6, all candidates will be given an opportunity to qualify in any events in which they may have previously failed.

Thirty in Tryout.

Thirty odd men took part in the trials last week and a number qualified. On account of the fact that examinations are now in the limelight, many of the men who would have taken the tests, failed to put in an appearance. Eight men proved their ability as broad jumpers and passed or at least tied the sixteen-foot mark stipulated for those in the junior class. No one qualified in the senior requirement of eighteen feet.

The three-mile run proved to be a much harder proposition and but five men finished the distace in the required junior time of twenty minutes. Montgomery was the single candidate for the senior membership who came under the wire in the three-mile race for the dignitaries within anything like the time that it is supposed to be made in. He made the distance in seventeen minutes and forty-eight seconds, the senior allowance being eighteen minutes and thirty seconds.

Four athletic contests are scheduled for the girls of the university within the next two months. The first will be a skating contest, Feb. 27; the next a girls' class basket ball contest, March 28; the third a gymnasium contest, April 7, and the fourth a swimming contest, which is scheduled after the Easter vacation. The girls are already practicing for all these contests.

The interest in athletics among the girls is far greater this year than it was last, according to Dr. Anna Norris, physical director. The swimming pool is used by them on Thursday, and professional instruction is given in the different strokes. The walking club, which took weekly trips Saturdays during the fall, has been transformed into a skating club. Girls in the different classes are preparing for the annual class basket ball tournament. The interest in this event is always keen and attracts the attention of more girls than any other athletic event.

LEAGUE LEADERS COMING FOR GAME WITH DULUTH TEAM.

Calumet, the leaders of the hockey league, and having on its team genial Jack Mahon, who was one of the stars of the Duluth team last season, will be here Monday and Tuesday, and judging from the form that is being shown by the Duluth team at the present time, the games promise to be among the hardest fought and the best contests of any that have been played here.

It appears that Duluth has struck its gait. The team is showing the best hockey of the season. Some of the visitors who have seen all of the teams of the league play declare that the locals are too far down in the race. The series with the league leaders will give Duluth the opportunity to climb and will also afford the golden chance to pull the leaders down a bit.

One of the greatest crowds of the season should witness both of these games. With the league leaders as the opponents of Duluth and the locals playing at top form—the incentive is hockey's choicest offering, and the result should be one grand overflow crowd, for the curling club officials are giving the local sport lovers some fine sport.

PORTAGE LAKE TEAMS DEFEATED

American Soo Wins From Copper Country Team 4 to 1.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 31.—The Michigan Soo hockey team again won from the Portage Lake seven, the score being 4 to 1. The ice was very keen and both of the teams put up one of the fastest games that has been witnessed here during the present season. While the Portage Lake team showed remarkable offensive combinations at times, the defense of the Soo was exceptionally strong and the goal tending of Tallion proved one ot the features of the contest.

Hogan scored the lonely Portage Lake goal. Godin scored two of the locals' goals and Hill and Campbell the other two.

RECORD MADE IN STATE PENSIONS

Former British Cabinet Minister Drew Total of $210,000.

London, Jan. 31.—A record in state pensions is established in the case of Viscount Ross, former cabinet minister, whose death occurred recently. He drew a pension of $10,000 yearly for twenty-one years, his total of $210,000 in pension money having been approached only by C. P. Villiers, who established the former record of $160,000 at his death in 1898.

There are now only three former ministers drawing pensions, Lord George Hamilton, who receives $10,000 a year; Henry Chaplin, whose pension is $6,000 yearly, and Lord Balfour of Burleigh, who also receives $6,000. These pensions are drawn under an act of parliament which provides that a former member of cabinet who has no means to maintain his dignity as an ex-minister may apply for state aid.

MILLER CRITIC OF PHILIPPINE POLICY.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 31.—Representative Clarence Miller of Minnesota, speaking here last night at the annual banquet of the Chandler club, discussed "Our Duty to the Philippines." He sharply criticized the policy of the Democratic administration in extending promises of independence to the Filipinos.

"The splendid structure which Americans have spent years in building in the Philippines," he said, "has been tumbled to pieces like a house of blocks."

ONE SECRET OF FORD'S SUCCESS

High Price of Gasoline Drives People to Light Cars.

"The high price of gasoline," said E. J. Filiatrault of the Mutual Auto company yesterday, "is one of the big factors in the colossal fortune of Ford. A Ford car will run twenty miles on a gallon of gasoline. A "Six" will run eight miles with the same amount of fuel, and the Forty will go twelve miles. That is to say, the Ford cars require just about one-half the fuel of the average car.

"The Ford has the minimum of weight with the maximum of strength. Its lightness decreases wear and tear on tires. It runs at a moderate rate of speed—somewhere between twenty and thirty miles an hour, and thirty miles is about as fast as any sane man wants to go on a public highway. Economy and efficiency are the two big words about this time, and these two words apply especially to the Ford car.

"Henry Ford is big enough to get other people to do his work. He is the only mechanician in history who is a first class business man. Of course, Edison has gotten along pretty well in a business way, but Edison has been more stolen from than any other man in existence. Thousands of men have appropriated his ideas, and attorneys without number have sat up nights working out schemes to get around his patents, and many of these schemes have succeeded. Nevertheless, good to say, Edison is not on half rations. Ford is a mechanic and inventor, and yet he is a great business man. Working with him is a very strong, very able, level-headed financial man—a man big enough to be secretary of the treasury, and who would do honor to the positon. Then there is a sales manager in the Ford works, who has a selling organization that runs on Silvertown tires, with automatic lubrication. And salesmanship isn't merely industry—it is inspiration.

"Also, Mr. Ford's advertising men are artistic and literary, and are hands and feet and eyes and ears for their chief. The private secretary looks like a part of the landscape, as a private secretary should. Then there are inventors, chemists, statisticians—all spiritual antennae of Henry Ford, in the factory Mr. Ford has men after his own heart and about all of these have come up from the ranks. There are more than 17,000 people on his payroll. The Ford factories are run as units. When the Ford works are enlarged it is simply by adding another unit and duplicating the machines. The Ford company has never had a labor trouble nor a financial jolt. It began small and has grown at an even pace. The whole thing is self-lubricating and runs on ball bearings. Henry Ford throws responsibility on men and they carry it off, and by carrying it off they become strong. His success has come to him since his hair began to turn gray. Now he is just fifty. He uses no tobacco, no strong drink, and no strong language. Moderation is his watchword. In his private office there is a series of subterranean passages that lead to seven different points in his factories. He is liable to come up at any one point at an inopportune time.

"Ford makes the machinery that manufactures the Ford. This department in itself is a gigantic business. No one manufacturer of tires could keep him going. Recently at West Orange a six-story concrete building was erected for the sole purpose of supplying electric light fixtures for Fords, model T, 1914.

"Three hundred thousand Fords are to be made between Oct. 1, 1913, and Oct. 1, 1914. It will probably be four hundred thousand."

STUDYING CARS.

Knowledge Cannot Be Obtained By Study of Catalogues.

"However closely and attentively he may study his atlas, no man can know the world until he gets out and takes a first-hand look," says J. T. Peacha, Jr., of the Interstate Auto company.

"For the same reason, no man can thoroughly know automobiles from study of catalogues and other sales literature, no matter how truthful the text and illustrations on the printed page. This leads to the conclusion that the annual automobile shows are extremely useful from an educational point of view.

"I have frequently heard the complaint that the exhibition of so many good cars under one roof confuses prospective buyers and postpones their decision. This may be true to a certain extent, but if the show influences more deliberate and careful decision, the dealer who has a really good car to sell shouldn't complain. When I sell a Kisseli-Kar I want the buyer to feel exactly as I do, that he is getting the fullest possible value for his money. The more he knows of other cars, the more he must be convinced of the worth of my car when he decides to give me his order. Being candid, he will get more immediate satisfaction in driving than he otherwise might. This means less time and attention on my part—less advice and instruction after the sale."

AUTO HAS ADDED TO REAL ESTATE VALUES.

"An angle of the automobile business which a great majority of the people of this country have failed to take into consideration," said John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company the other day, "is that of the increase in real estate values since the horse was relegated to the background by the mottor car. There is no way of estimating his increase in dollars and cents, but it has been country-wide—from the congested city districts to the most remote farming territory.

"In the cities the elimination of the horse barn has added millions of dollars to the value of downtown real estate. For years past we have seen desirable manufacturing enterprises driven away from areas where horses were housed. It has been out of the question to attempt to build residences anywhere near territories where there are a number of stables. With the substitution of the automobile garage for the horse barn, real estate values have increased by leaps and bounds, the added worth in some cases being as much as 100 per cent.

"And it is not only in dollars and cents that we have seen these increases in city real estate values. With the elimination of the horse we have added large areas of unoccupied property in our downtown sections. An automobile can be housed in so much less space than that required for horse and wagons that, literally, millions of dollars worth of land have been made available for other purposes as fast as business concerns have done away with their horses.

"The same conditions holds true in every small town and village of the country. And in the farming districts we find constantly increasing land values, as the pleasure automobile and commercial vehicle have come into more general use. The motor-driven car has brought the most remote farm into touch with the world, for gasoline has eliminated distance."

CARS SHOWN AT CHICAGO AUTO SHOW

Cadillac.

The essential changes which characterize the 1914 Cadillac are, first and most important, the two speed axle, which affords two direct drives thereby doubling the means of promoting the economical and efficient application of the power developed by the engine to the driving of the car. The use of the high direct drive also makes possible a material reduction in the speed of the engine for any given car speed. Changes are also seen in the simplified electrical system, which eliminates much of the wiring. The speed of the cranking device has been increased. The carburetor has an electrical heater which vaporizes the gasoline instantly and greatly facilitates starting with the poorer grades of fuel, particularly in cold weather. A hinged steering wheel which drops down and the positioning of the control levers makes it easy for front seat passengers to enter or leave the car at either the right or left side. The entire line of body designs is new and comprise the two, four, five and seven passenger open cars, together with the three passenger landaulet coupe, the five passenger inside drive limousine, and the seven passenger standard limousine.

Cartercar.

Though not favoring the annual model idea, the Cartercar company, Pontiac, Mich., has added to its line of open and closed cars fitted to model five chassis a roadster and touring car mounted on an eirtely new chassis, known as model 7. This has been added to meet the demand for a cheaper car than the model 5. In it, the standard Cartercar type of friction drive is incorporated, but a number of modifications of the larger design have been included in order to make a less expensive and lighter job. The new model 7 sells for $1,250 and is equipped with a 3.5x5 inch three point suspended engine.

Hudson.

Only six cylinder models represent the Hudson Motor Car company of Detroit this year, it having retired from the four cylinder field entirely. The model 37 four cylinder type of 1913 is no longer made. The model 54 six cylinder car is continued with a number of chassis and body changes, and late in the fall a light six was announced as a running mate.

This latest Hudson is known as model 40, and is really brought out in competition with the average high grade four cylinder vehicle now on the market. With a weight of 2,340 pounds, the car is said to be lighter than some of these fours, and its gasoline consumption is claimed to be nearly as low as that of the model 37 four. The price of this model is set at $1,750 in touring and roadster designs.

Chalmers.

Chalmers has two representatives this year, the model 24 Six-60 and the model 26 Six-48. The latter, selling at $1,800, makes its debut at the New York show. Though the Chalmers Motor company, Detroit, had a six last year, the Six-60 is not a continuation of it. The new six has a T head motor, which type of power plant is entirely new to Chalmers construction; a casting with the intake valve in the head being characteristic of Chalmers motors heretofore. Compared with last year's six, the new model 24 has a slightly smaller motor, a wheel base two inches longer—132 inches—and lists at $2,175 in roadster and four and five-passenger touring designs, which is $225 under the figures on the six of last year in similar body types.

Overland.

Standardization at the factory of the Willys - Overland company, Toledo, Ohio, has dictated a policy for this year which means the production of one chassis model only. The 1914 chassis is known as model 79 and is a continuation of the 1913 model 69 with several changes. A slight reduction in price of model 79, as compared with that asked for 69, is also a point of interest. Greater production and parts standardization make it possible to shave the figure to $950. Model 71, the larger of the two 1913 chassis, has been dropped.

Franklin.

The Franklin six-thirty shown is the only model made by this company. The six-thirty is built in six body styles, all interchangeable on the one chassis. Four styles are on exhibit—touring car, roadster, coupe and sedan. The six-thirty has left hand drive, center control and it is extremely light in weight. Among the mechanical details of note on this latest Franklin direct cooled motor are valves of the compensating types which takes care of the difference in expansion so that the valve clearance changes very little as the motor gets warm, giving a very quiet valve mechanism.

Kissel Kar.

Three current models, introduced last July, and two models, the details of which are not yet available, constitute the line of pleasure cars offered by the Kissel Motor Car company of Hartford and Milwaukee, Wis. The current three consists of one four-cylinder chassis of 40-horse power, with touring, runabout and sedan bodies, and two six-cylinder chassis of 48 and 60-horse power, respectively, with touring runabout, sedan, limousine and berlin bodies.

GETS HAYNES AGENCY.

M. W. Turner Is Attracted to Car By Up-to-Date Feature.

The control of all speed changes by push buttons conveniently located is one of the features of the Haynes automobile shown at the Chicago auto show this week. It was the first opportunity of seeing this latest addition to automobile construction for thousands of people. This electric gear shift is so like the control of railroad switches in the large railway terminals that all question of its error is removed, and the mechanical shifting of the gears is insurance against damage that comes from incompetent or careless shifting by hand.

Women will find it of the greatest assistance when driving and an added element of safety. The sale of this car for Northern Minnesota has been placed with M. W. Turner, who is now offering it to Duluth buyers.

WOMAN ENTRANT IN BIG ROAD RACE.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—The next 500-mile race on the local speedway, for the first time in history, will see a woman, if not a driver, at least an entrant, if the plans of Mrs. Leotia K. Northam, a noted Los Angeles sportswoman, materialize. Mrs. Northam, who has been in the game for some time, at present has her driver, Omar Toft, in Europe, negotiating for the purchase of a Delage, the machine that divided foreign championship honors with the Sunbeam and Peugeot last year. She plans to enter all the important meets of the season, starting off with the Vanderbilt, and winding up at Corona. Failing to get a Delage, she will buy some other car, she says. In the past she has used a Simplex.

To indulge in her racing hobby, Mrs. Northam had to have herself incorporated. The A. A. A.'s definition of "entrant, contestant, or competitor" is "any man or organization which makes an entry of a motor car for a contest." No mention being made of women, Mrs. Northam had but the alternative of becoming an organization. This she promptly did. No objection has been offered to her subterfuge thus far, so that on the grounds of eligibility it is not thought she will have any trouble here next May.

Were Mrs. Northam attempting to drive, matters would be different, as pilots' licenses are only granted to men. It will thus be remembered that last year a Philadelphia actress, Vivien Pressott, attempted to secure A. A. A. recognition for the purpose of entering the 500-mile race, but failed signally. Even if the Three-A should give such sanction it is not likely that the speedway would loosen, as Carl Fisher, president of the course, has very strong views on the subject. If at any time a woman should be injured in connection with his races he would close the track, he has often said.

BUY CAR EACH YEAR.

Selecting Right Car Is Best Economy, Says Dealer.

"Why do so many automobile owners buy a new car each year and why do they so frequently buy a different make each year? Simply because they are dissatisfied; or if they do buy the same make of car each year they do it thinking the new model will be more satisfactory than the old," says J. T. Peacha, Jr., manager of the Interstate Auto company, Franklin dealer here. "If a man is satisfied there is no reason for sacrificing on his car and buying a new one. Of course, if his financial circumstances are such that he can gratify the whim of having the 'very latest' it is different, but the majority of owners today are not so financially well off that they can keep on indulging themselves in that way.

"Frequently buying is not economical and loss through depreciation is excessive. It is a burden that owners generally cannot continue to stand. It is an expense that is entering into consideration in the great wave of economical sentiment now manifesting itself in the automobile world.

"Added to the question of economy of operation is the important item of economical ownership. Can a car be run for several years and be satisfactory for longer than the first season, and will it have a good selling value at the end of a reasonable period of usage?

"These points must be carefully considered. A car today must meet an intelligent desire for satisfaction. It must be satisfactory today and a year from today in the face of the growing sentiment for economy and comfort.

"Automobile satisfaction does not come from any one feature of a car. The great excellence of any one make must lie in the full development of each and every feature. This will result in a satisfaction that must necessarily include easy riding, easy driving, comfort, economy and long life. This cannot come from dependence on any one or two points of construction. It must be built into the car in every detail."

Luxury in Cars.

A new mode has lately been started in Paris for decorating the inside of closed motor cars with tiny but exquisite oil paintings, which, mounted in suitable frames, are hung around the inside of the car. A well-known Paris painter states that he has had within the last few weeks a large number of orders for little canvases of this kind.

Flower baskets are everywhere and a tiny bookcase holds a miniature set of leather-bound volumes of light novels to beguile odd moments of waiting outside of shops. There are footstools to match the chair and a hassock and cushions for the pet Pekinese of the car's mistress. Oil paintings are only the latest fad for helping to change the Parisian's automobile from a motor car into boudoir on wheels.

Attends Chicago Show.

Fred Kleyn, manager of the Kleyn Automobile company, left yesterday for Chicago, where he will attend the Chicago automobile show. Next week he will attend the show at Minneapolis, remaining there until Friday, when he will return home.

MOTORCYCLE NOTES

Since the publication of the official records, and after the excitement of the immediate contest had passed, the recent 300-mile event at Savannah has more and more appealed to motorcycle enthusiasts as being the greatest test of the kind in the history of motorcycledom. In the saddle for more than five hours, at an average speed near sixty miles an hour, the half dozen riders who finished the race showed remarkable endurance and control of their mounts. The average speed made by Bob Perry, the winner of the event, was a little less than sixty miles an hour.

What promises to be the greatest motorcycle endurance run ever staged in this country is being planned by the Houston, Tex., Motorcycle club. The course, which covers in all 800 miles, is entirely over Texas roads and will include everything from smooth boulevards to deep Texas sand. The route will include San Antonio, Fort Worth and Dallas.

Brig.-Gen. George P. Scriven of Washington, D. C., declares that the motorcycle is as valuable in the army as an airship, and more practicable; cheaper and faster than a horse; excellent for delivery of telegraph messages, and could be used to advantage in general field work. He has recommended to congress the advisability of having a motorcycle corps in the army.

A novel event is being planned by the Canadian Motorcycle club of Toronto This is to be a motorcycle ice meet, and will take place on the Ashbridge bay. The course as chosen will have a quarter-mile start, a mile runway and a quarter-mile finish. All contestants must have their motorcycle fitted with side cars.

Chris Lauridsen of Fairbanks, Alaska, is making a motorcycle trip to Seattle, Wash. Lauridsen is said to be the first rider to attempt the trip.

Auto Gossip.

That the automobile industry is on a firmer foundation than ever before in its history is the opinion of C. W. Nash, president and general manager of the Buick Motor company, who has just returned from a trip through Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

"Buick dealers are prospering in a way even Buick dealers never have before," said Mr. Nash, "and I am looking for a record making year."

There were at the New York automobile show a great many stunning cars built especially for show purposes and only procurable by the public on special order. That it paid the manufacturers to exhibit these "special jobs" was proved by the large number of sales made off the floor, for delivery after the close of the show.

One of the decidedly attractive exhibits was that of the Kissel Motor Car company, which presented the following special cars: A "4-40" roadster, painted a rich blue black and upholstered in blue Spanish leather; a "4-40" five passenger touring car, painted and upholstered in purple lake, a novel and very handsome finish; a "6-60" touring car upholstered in gray motor cloth; a gray "6-48" roadster with slip covers. In addition to these, standard models were shown in sedans and touring cars of all three Kissel Kar chasses.

Twelve minutes after the opening of the New York auto show Saturday, Jan. 3, the first sale of the exhibit was closed when Mr. Percy Rockefeller placed his order for the handsome gray-finished Cadillac inside drive limousine which was on exhibition. The car will be delivered to Mr. Rockefeller at the close of the show.

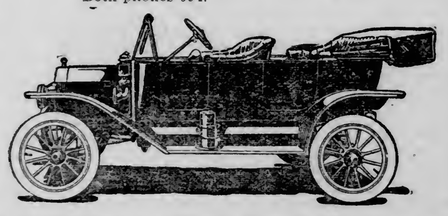

HORSE OUTRUNS A KANGAROO.

Norman Duncan in Harper's Magazine: Notwithstanding the kangaroo's popular reputation for speed, he is easily overtaken in the bush by a good horse within half a mile. A capable kangaroo dog—a lean, swift beast, a cross between a greyhound and a mastiff, bred to course and kill—soon runs him to bay. Without dogs, it is the custom to kill with a cudgel. This is often accomplished by the sportsman from the back of his horse. Dismounted, however, with the kangaroo waiting alert for attack, it is sometimes a perilous venture to come to close quarters. A slip—and the sportsman finds himself all at once in a desperate situation. A lumberjack showed scars of an encounter. He had ridden the kangaroo down, and being in haste to make an end of the sport, he had caught up the first likely stick his eye could discover, and he had stepped quickly and confidently in, and he had struck hard and accurately. And the next instant, caught off the ground, he was struggling, breast to breast, in the hug of the creature, frightfully aware that he must escape before the deadly hind foot had devastated him.

"My club broke," he exclaimed, "and the boomer got me."

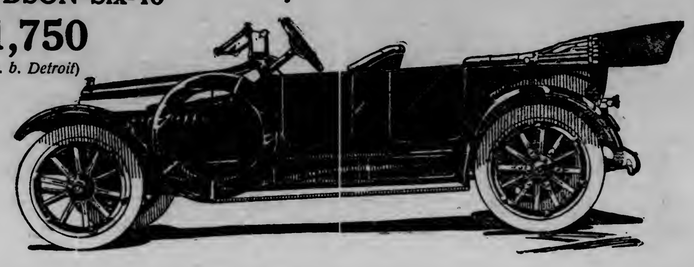

From 10,000 to 12,000 live geese are shipped by express from Prince Edward island to Boston early in October of each year.

HUDSON Six-40
$1,750
(f. o. b. Detroit)

The Most Talked-About Car In the Country

See This Innovation

A few weeks ago the first Six-40 was shipped from the HUDSON factory. Before this time the first month's output had been ordered by users who had not seen the car.

They were sold on these startling facts:

That the streamline body, the equipment, the new features were like the latest HUDSON Six-54, the handsomest car of the season.

That the weight would be under 3,000 pounds—under any comparable Four.

That the operative cost would be less than any equal-powered Four.

That the price would be $1750, f. o. b. Detroit—way below the price of Fours of equal power and size and class.

Think What This Means

Sixes have been high-priced, heavy, costly to operate. For that reason many have been forced to buy Fours.

Now comes this Six-40. It weighs 500 pounds less than last year's HUDSON "37"—a Four. It costs one-fourth less to operate. And it far undersells any Four in its class.

You legions of men who seek lightness and economy find them now in this Six-40—beyond any Four you know.

A Distinguished Car

In addition, here is the new streamline body. Here are all the new features which characterize the new HUDSON Six-54.

Disappearing tonneau seats. Gasoline tank in cowl dash. Left side drive. Extra tires ahead of the front door.

Up to six months ago, no car at any price offered so many attractions.

And a car designed by Howard E. Coffin, the great HUDSON engineer. A car that embodies all the best HUDSON standards.

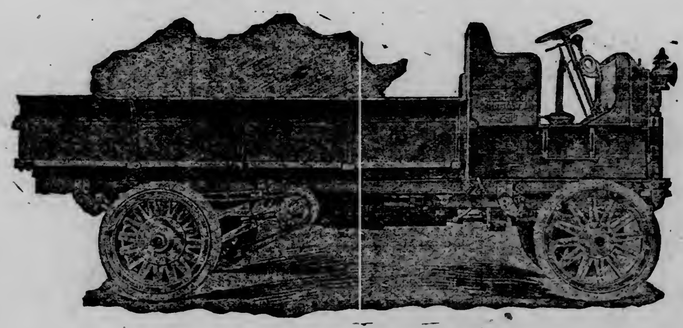

Our first Six-40 has just arrived. It is now on exhibition. Come, see it and ride in it while it is new. The car marks a new era in motor-car history, and all of you should know it.

WHEAT SELLS STILL LOWER

Market Is Weak With Cables and Limited Buying Power.

Flaxseed Higher on Light Receipts and Good Crushers' Demand.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 31.—The wheat market turned weak again today, as the result of lower Liverpool cables, good reports regarding the prospects of the winter wheat crop, and small inquiry from any quarter.

May wheat opened ⅛c off at 89¼c and it closed ⅛c lower still at 89¼c. The July option opened a shade off at 90⅜@90⅝c and it closed a fraction down at 90⅝@90¾c.

Durum received better trading support than spring wheat. The May option opened unchanged at 89½c and it closed ⅛c off. The July option closed unchanged at 90¾c, after opening at 91c.

Oats were firmer closing ¼c up at 36⅞@36⅝c. Rye closed unchanged at 52½@55½c for the best grades, and barley unchanged at from 44 to 66c.

Puts on Minneapolis May wheat closed at 88¼@88⅜c asked and calls at 89⅝c asked. At Winnipeg, January oats closed at 33¾c and May at 36⅝c.

A bearish factor in the market came in advices that a heavy snow covering over much of the winter wheat belt allays apprehension of winter killing. Buying from abroad was also said to be losing its force. Purchases of 200,000 bu of winter wheat were reported to have been made to come to Chicago yesterday from the Southwest. Liverpool cables were lower on expectations of larger world's shipments this week and freer Canadian offerings.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth today were just 20 cars against 64 last year. On the week a small decrease was shown in the volume of grain in the local elevators on account of the loading out of 208,000 bu of winter wheat into a steamer for winter storage. Winnipeg receipts are at present away below par, amounting today to only 54 cars compared with 437 a year ago. Minneapolis receipts are being relatively well maintained, attributable to good buying by millers. Arrival there today came to 233 cars compared with 295 last year.

Flaxseed Is Strong.

Flaxseed ruled strong on good demand by crushers at the opening and higher Buenos Ayres cables. Receipts of the seed at primary markets are only a fraction of what they were a year ago. The session's trading was confined to the May option. It opened unchanged at $1.51½ and closed ⅝c up at $1.52⅛. The July option was closed ⅝c higher at $1.54⅛ nominally.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed at $1.32½ and July at $1.35¼.

Flour sales were just fair, but mills are said to be grinding freely on orders booked earlier in the month. They are cleaning them up fast.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The easier American cables and the Modern Miller report stimulated some pressure at the opening and prices were unchanged to ¼d lower. Following the opening there was a further decline of ⅛d. The decline was checked by Australian advices and steadier closing at Buenos Ayres and Rosario, but the expectation of larger world's shipments this week rather than from America and predictions of large shipments from Russia, together with freer Manitoba offers, held the market at the reduced level. At the close the market was dull but easy and ⅛@¼d lower than yesterday.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "Gossip on wheat and corn last night was tearish, but traders said that, considering the news on wheat, they were surprised that prices did not decline more. Several of the local bulls who unloaded explained their action as due to increased offerings of hard wheat from the west, as 400,000 bu have been bought this week to come here, and to the poor export demand.

"Traders who were active in the corn pit said after the close that 2,500,000 bu May had been traded in at 66½c and it was difficult to trace where the buying had come from, as the corn disappeared in the same mysterious manner it has on previous declines. Despite the absorption of the offerings, the bears were confident that their position was right."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Are Pulled Down By Heavy Snowfall.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Heavy snow today throughout the Eastern half of the winter crop belt pulled down the price of wheat. The reason was that absence of snow protection for autumn-sown fields has of late been one of the chief supports of the market. Predictions of larger world shipments, especially from Russia, tended also to favor the bears. Prices opened ⅛c to ⅛@⅜c lower and suffered a slight additional setback.

Resting commission orders to buy at a decline checked the weakness. The close was steady, ⅜@⅛c net lower.

Corn was steadied by the change to wintry conditions. It was said shelling and hauling would be delayed and that feeding demand would increase. The opening was unchanged to ⅛c higher and the market seemed inclined to keep within ⅛c either way from last night's level.

Prospects later of an improved call from the East added a little to the firmness. The close was steady, ⅛c to ¼c above last night.

Traders in oats governed themselves by the action of corn. Business was only of a scattering sort.

Realizing sales by longs more than offset in the provision pit the effect of higher prices for hogs. First transactions varied from 2½@5c decline to 5c advance, but later the market showed a loss all around.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Open Higher, React, But Have Late Upturn, Closing Strong.

Best Prices of the Session Reached on Initial Rise.

New York, Jan. 31.—Stocks again moved up strongly at the opening today. There was heavy buying of all the popular shares. Gains of a point or so were made by Union Pacific, Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Bethlehem Steel and Pressed Steel car. Steel reached 67⅛, a new high figure for the movement. Rock Island stocks were again heavy. The common lost ⅝ and the preferred 1½ points.

The advance was checked when covering was completed and the market sagged. Weakness of the Rock Island shares accelerated the reaction, which cancelled the gains in the active stocks. Rock Island fell 2⅝ to 12⅞ and the preferred 3⅜ to 18¼.

The market closed strong. Best prices of the day, however, were those reached on the opening advance. A bearish factor was weakness of Rock Island securities. Rock Island common broke to 12⅝, preferred to 18½, and collateral 4's to 48. These securities rallied with the rest of the market on the late upturn, of which the demand for Great Northern preferred was a feature. This stock touched 132½. Bonds were firm.

COPPER STOCKS RULE HIGHER

Active List Strong Despite Disabled Wire Service.

The market in mining stocks was strong at Boston today in the face of the handicap imposed through the disarrangement of the wire service by a sleet storm. Prices ruled higher through the active list. Amalgamated Copper sold 50 cents up at $77.12; Calumet & Arizona 25 cents up at $67.25 and Butte & Superior 63 cents up at $36.38.

Trading was exceptionally good for a Saturday session in the Duluth curb list. Alex Scott was a strong feature with sales reported in it at $5.25 and $5.50. Keating sold at 93@94c; Calumet & Sonora at 75c; Savannah at $1.62, and Calumet & Corbin at 13c.

In a circular issued to shareholders of Butte-Alex Scott yesterday by the president of the company, N. F. Hugo, it was announced to be the policy of the board of directors to discontinue development work to the minimum and to extract the ore blocked out above the 1,900-foot level, and the money so secured conserved for the future development of the mine, when the price of copper and conditions surrounding will warrant its expenditure for development.

The company does not owe any money and has considerable cash on hand, but has decided to discontinue the payment of dividends for the present.

"During 1913," the circular said, "we sank our shaft 430 feet, and drove drifts and crosscuts amounting to 1,325 feet for development purposes, besides paying three dividends of 50 cents per share each. We are now down to the 2,000-foot level, and the ore body recently found on that level is as large and as rich as any of the upper levels. In this connection, we might say that our neighbors, 'The High Ore,' whose property adjoins ours, have recently sank their shaft to the 3,450-foot level and the ore is high grade. Their veins come right up to our line, and there is every prospect of the same continuing through the Scott property at this great depth, showing that our property has hidden ore reserves proved by the 'High Ore' development that will keep us mining for many years to come."

Referring to the general situation, Skillings' Mining and Market Letter today says: "Stocks have undergone some reaction this week as a result of profit-taking, following the bulge of last week. It is all very natural and necessary to the making of markets. The reaction has been moderate and orderly and the position of the mining issues continues strong and very satisfactory. Copper metal is 14¾ cents. Indications point to slightly better prices for lead and zinc. Business expansion continues, and the country is optimistic. The iron and steel business is recovering rapidly. The outlook, on the whole, is good for much higher prices and broader market ultimately."

FINAL NOTICE!
TO BONDHOLDERS OF LAKE SUPERIOR AND NEVADA DEVELOPMENT CO.
Now is the last chance to send in your bonds, with 50c for each bond, to Miners National Bank of Eveleth. We need 150 bonds more to be able to start foreclosing proceedings. Do you intend to come with, or do you wish to have these bonds unsettled forever?
The bondholders need their money. People 75 years old have invested their last cent in this mining scheme. Hired girls have invested their savings. They need their money back. Anybody trying to take or keep the money away from the poor and weak should be punished to the limit. The promoters of this company are traveling in Pullman sleepers while the bondholders are struggling in poverty.
We should demand settlement. Now is your last chance.
This offer is good until Feb. 15th, 1914. If enough bonds have not showed up then, the move will be called off and the bonds returned to their respective owners.
This ad will only appear a few times so pin this in your hat.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE

New York, Jan. 31.—Dun's Review today says: Recent improvement in business conditions is in some measure sentimental and certain branches of trade and industry have not shared in the forward movement to any appreciable extent. Briefly summed up the situation continues irregular although there is tangible reason for the bitter feeling prevalent.

A noticeable revival of activity has occurred in some mercantile lines and this is especially true of the leading drygoods markets in which prospects appear quite favorable. Conservatism is manifest where distant purchases are involved, but orders for immediate delivery are steadily expanding. Jobbers are anticipating a satisfactory season, while manufacturers of both cottons and woolens are well engaged as a rule.

Developments in wool have encouraged holders as demand is brisk and the tendency of values upward. Another reassuring feature is the fact that the turning point in iron and steel seems to have been definitely reached.

Failures this week numbered 397 against 355 last year and sixty-three in Canada compared with twenty-six a year ago.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY

BUTTE-ALEX SCOTT.

On account of recent developments this property stands far in advance of any independent mine in Butte, and at the present time there is no property from which so much encouraging news can be expected. Here is a mine with a great vein of ore opened up on many levels and on the 1,900 and 2,000 it is very large. This is No. 3vein and there is no doubt but that this big vein carries values to very great depth. The high ore is about 1,400 feet deeper than the Scott and on same vein system, and No. 3 vein passes from the High Ore into the Scott, and therefore, there is hardly a question but that this vein proven by the high ore is just as rich in Scott ground to very great depth. No. 1 vein on the 2,000 was discovered near the shaft and it is developing an elegant ore body and should make it possible for the Scott company to ship a big tonnage from this vein alone for many years to come. Always please remember, that veins in the Scott mine may be worked to the great depth of 4,000 feet, and that is the reason why this mine should be a great copper producer, and then it is on Butte hill where ore bodies worth millions are run into sometimes when least expected. Look what they did in the Speculator on the Edith May vein. Scott stock is hard to buy; it is trading around $5.50 and I do not see how you can help but make money on this stock. It certainly looks reasonable for an advance of 100 per cent when you take into consideration that there are only 75,000 shares that this company has to pay dividends on. Call me up if you have any Scott stock to sell; I will gladly place it for you at the highest price possible.

CALUMET & SONORA.

It might be well to begin taking on this one at present prices. Big ore bodies have been opened up lately and you can see that Greene-Cananea, our neighbor, has advanced to $40 per share. Sonora reminds me of Butte & Superior and I think that big Eastern interests will soon get into this deal. I understand they have had men on the ground and that other experts will visit the property with President Burgan and Secretary Percival. They all leave for Cananea in the next few days. The owner of 1,000 shares of Calumet & Sonora may in time draw enormous dividends. I remember one time that I was the owner of 50,000 shares of the old Butte & Superior stock. At that time there were about 500,000 shares of stock. I also understand that this mine did earn $700,000 last year and will do much better from now on. I would feel pretty well now if I had that stock and that it was earning almost $1.00 a share per year—$50,000 a year, think of it! Sonora looks like the Greene-Cananea alongside of it, which is selling at the rate of $24,000,000. There is certainly a chance for thought in this Sonora, with only 250,000 shares and a property with big ore bodies and 633 acres of ground and many veins. I have seen this property.

CUYUNA-MILLE LACS.

A wonderful iron property with great ore reserves. Stock is trading at $2.25 to $2.50. I think you will make no mistake on this one and I advise the purchase, for it is one of those with real great possibilities.

CUYUNA-DULUTH.

Also looks very good and no doubt you will make money by purchasing these shares.

I will gladly give you information on any property and will not advise the purchase of any stock unless I know it has possibilities. There are many good companies well worth considering, and we must not forget such companies as Butte & Superior, Shattuck and many others which have had their little troubles in their earlier stages.

I think we are due for a big stock movement and that outside people will be heavy buyers of our local curb stocks, and that a great deal of money will be made by those who pick them up at the low prices of today.

MONROE SURVIVOR TELLS OF VAIN FIGHT FOR WIFE'S LIFE

Swam for Two Hours Holding Her Up By the Hair.

Ignored By One Lifeboat, He Made Another Take Them in.

New York, Jan. 31.—Six survivors of the disaster to the steamship Monroe reached here early today over the Pennsylvania railroad from Norfolk. Among them was Thomas Harrington of Bridgeport, Conn., accompanying the body of his wife, who died after being taken aboard the rescue ship Nantucket.

Harrington swam in the cold water supporting his wife by holding her hair in his teeth. His father and his brother met him here.

"Tell them what happened, Tom," said the father. "We all want to know and it will get it off your mind."

Then, in a dull monotone, the young man told his story.

Wasted Time Dressing.

Harrington and his wife had a stateroom on the side where the Monroe was rammed. "When the shock came," he said, "we got up and dressed and wasted time that might have saved the poor girl's life."

By the time they reached the main saloon the ship had keeled so that the side wall was their floor.

"There was a lurch," said Harrington, "and Margaret was thrown twenty feet and lodged under the bench built along the sides of the cabin. I slid and scrambled after her. When I took hold of her she screamed and pointed to her right arm. It was broken and hanging limp.

"'Don't touch me!' she screamed. 'For God's sake let me die!'

"I told her she would have to come and would feel better about it later. Oh God! She was right, and I didn't know it! But I got her loose.

Ship Sank Under Them.

"Then the ship sagged back again and there was a rush of water that washed us out to the deck. I managed to get off our outer clothes. Then we let go and the ship went away from under us."

Harrington told how he tried to swim holding his wife by the broken arm, but this pained her so that finally he twisted her long hair into a rope, close to her head, and taking it in his teeth, floated on his back, keeping the woman's head on his chest.

One lifeboat passed within ten feet, he said, and ignored their calls for help. After nearly two hours another boat came.

"I held Margaret up to them," continued Harrington, "and a sailor said: 'Let her go; she is dead.'

"'She is not dead,' I said to him, 'and you take her aboard if you don't want to go to hell with murder on your soul!'

"She Smiled at Me."

"So they took her in, and she opened her eyes and smiled at me.

"When they got me aboard the ship they put her in one stateroom and left her and put me in another. I believe that if a doctor had been with her right away with stimulants she might be alive now. But they were all mixed up, and when I found where she was lying all alone she was dead."

LAHTI'S EAGLE EYE BURGLAR'S NEMESIS

Frank Fisher, Claiming First Arrest, Cornered By Bertillon Expert With Picture, Admits He Got Out of Waupun Only Last Week.

Frank Fisher.

Denying, when brought into police court this morning, that he had ever before been arrested, Frank Fisher, 32 years old, charged with burglary in the third degree, was confronted with a photograph taken by the Superior police just about a year ago. He finally admitted that it was his photograph and that he was released last week from Waupun, the Wisconsin state penitentiary.

When Gus Lahti, Bertillon expert at police headquarters, looked the prisoners over before they were taken to police court this morning, he recognized Fisher's face. Mr. Lahti then asked Fisher if he had ever been arrested before, but this the prisoner denied. Mr. Lahti then went to the Bertillon room and after a short search found Fisher's photograph and Bertillon measurements, but filed under the name of Frank Wilson. Fisher admitted later that he had used an alias when arrested at Superior last year on a charge of burglary. He was sentenced on Jan. 22, 1913, to one year at Waupun, from which institution he was released just a week ago.

Fisher was arrested last evening by Patrolman Nyberg and Special Officer E. S. Hindrum of the Northern Pacific yards, who caught the prisoner prowling through the yards. He was caught by the special officer entering a box car. Hindrum took him to Patrolman Nyberg. Just as the latter reached Garfield avenue, Fisher made a dash for liberty and ran into the yards. Patrolman Nyberg fired three shots in the air and these had their desired effect, the fugitive finally stopping in his flight.

Fisher was arraigned before Judge Cutting this morning on a charge of burglary in the third degree. He asked for an examination, his hearing was set for 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

HEARS BROTHER WAS MURDERED IN DULUTH

Karl Erickson.

In a newspaper at Norrkoping, Sweden, a report was published several weeks ago of the murder of Karl Erickson in Duluth. The report says that no details of the tragedy are known.

This morning Chief Troyer received a letter from Miss Lina Erickson, a sister of Karl, who is living with her parents at Norrkoping, Sweden. She says that the report of her brother's murder was published in the Norrkoping Tidnine and that he was supposed to have been killed in Duluth. Just when the crime was committed, the newspaper account does not say.

Miss Erickson wants to know more about the murder of her brother, but is of the belief that if he is dead, he was killed several years ago, even as far back as 1897, when the family last heard of him. Chief Troyer will go over the records for the past fifteen years within a few days and attempt to find a report on the murder of Erickson.

In her letter Miss Erickson says that her brother should be 40 years old, if he is living, and that he came to Duluth about twenty years ago. The photograph, which was enclosed in the letter was taken in Duluth when Erickson married about fifteen years ago. Miss Erickson hopes to be able to locate both her brother and his wife, as she rather doubts the report in her home paper.

SPEER LAST TO BE HEARD IN INQUIRY

Judge Denies Charges Made Against Him By Attorney.

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 31.—Federal Judge Emory Speer was the first witness today before the congressional committee investigating charges of official misconduct against him. Before the jurist was sworn, Chairman Webb announced that Judge Speer's testimony would complete the investigation.

Judge Speer denied having told District Attorney Alexander Akerman that he would raise his fees in a bankruptcy case if he would withdraw his protest against fees to Talley and Heyward. Judge Speer also denied having threatened to sentence to jail any lawyer who sought to disqualify him in a case in which his son-in-law, Al H. Heyward, was counsel.

Akerman had testified that Speer had made such a threat in November, 1910.

TRAIN IS FIRED ON BY COLORADO MINERS

Special With Strike-Breakers Forced to Return to Pueblo.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 31.—A special train carrying forty-one strike-breakers from Pueblo to the Victor-American Fuel company's mine at Radiant was fired on by a crowd of striking coal miners this morning at Williamsburg. The train was stopped and backed into Pueblo, after being hit by many bullets.

Reports received here do not indicate that anyone was injured. The occupants of the cars threw themselves flat on the floors to escape the bullets.

Lieutenant Governor Fitzgerald, acting in the absence of Governor Ammons, instructed Adjt. Gen. Chase to use the militia to give the train a safe conduct to its destination.

AMERICAN AMONG SMALLPOX VICTIMS

Two Others Are Among the Sick Reported at Tampico.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Smallpox at Tampico already has caused the death of one American. Rear Admiral Fletcher reported today sixty-four cases, and two Americans among the sick. The hospital ship Solace is there. The admiral has ordered that no one be permitted to land from the American ships. Rail and telegraph communications have been cut.

Rear Admiral Cowles, reporting the arrival of the cruiser Pittsburg at Manzanillo, says all is quiet there.

COMPOSES SUITE ON AMERICAN THEME

VICTOR KOLAR

Victor Kolar has just had the honor of having the second of his serious compositions played by the New York Symphony orchestra at one of its concerts in New York. The first was a fantasy called "A Fairy Tale," which was played last February. The second is a symphonic suite based on American themes which Mr. Kolar calls "Americana." It is a most ambitious work, and it was received with warm approval by a large audience. Mr. Koler, who is a member of the orchestra, was born in Bohemia, Feb. 12, 1888. He was a pupil of Anton Dvorak. Mr. Danirosch, who is himself a composer, has shown a great sympathy with the ambitions of young Americans. On this occasion he not only recognized the merit of this American composition by putting it on his program but permitted the composer to rehearse and conduct the orchestra.

HOHLER OFF FOR MEXICO

Sails to Replace Sir Lionel Carden at That Capital.

Villa Announces Executions of Federals Will Stop.

Liverpool, Jan. 31.—Thomas B. Hohler, first secretary of the British legation in Mexico, who is to act as charge d'affaires on the departure of Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, left for New York today on board the Lusitania. Mr. Hohler declined to talk about the Mexican situation.

Villa Changes Policy.

Juarez, Mexico, Jan. 31.—Gen. Francisco Villa announces that civilized warfare, practically, with reference to the treatment of prisoners, would hereafter be adopted by the rebels. He procured a little book from United States army officials dealing with "the ethics of international warfare," which he said would be put into practice in the rebel army, and he added that henceforth no Federal officers would be executed unless they had previously been captured and on being released had broken faith not to fight again.

The statement of the rebel leader was of interest because of the impending attack on Gen. Refugio Velasco's Federal garrison at Torreon, which is looked upon as the probable scene of the next big military movement in Mexico. It may be a week or ten days before the rebels actually open the attack, although they are moving toward the Federals in great numbers.

Chihuahua as Capital.

Meantime Chihuahua city, with 35,000 population, the largest rebel stronghold, is rapidly being transformed into "the provisional capital of the republic." A mansion has been provided there as the executive office of Gen. Carranza, who is expected from the Pacific coast about Feb. 15.

To Governor William C. McDonald of New Mexico, Gen. Villa reiterated his statement that he had no ambition to become president of Mexico or to overshadow Gen. Carranza.

"I never will be president of Mexico," said Gen. Villa. "I never went to school a day in my life, and I am not educated enough for that post. My alphabet has been the sight and trigger of a rifle; my books have been the movements of the enemy."

The rebel leader thus referred to his eighteen years' experience as a bandit, when he was hunted in the mountains.

Eager for Recognition.

Gen. Villa asked Governor McDonald if there was any prospect of recognition of the rebels by the United States.

"We wish our friends in the United States would help us, because we are your friends," Gen. Villa said. "You have the greatest government on earth, and your president is the best. We wish you to know the truth about us. We are not always executing people. Indeed, we intend to execute only traitors or those who have broken faith with us. Please tell your countrymen I know I am not competent to hold high office because of my lack of education, and that I can fight only for the liberation of my people."

Louis Terrazas, son of the rich land owner, still is held prisoner in Chihuahua for ransom. Members of his family who arrived on the border reported that recently Terrazas was tortured to reveal the hiding place of $600,000. The money, it was said, was hidden in one of the Terrazas homes and was revealed after the prisoner had been half strangled. Gen. Villa disclaimed knowledge of the charge, saying he was at Chihuahua when the torturing was alleged to have taken place. He admitted that Terrazas was being held a prisoner.

Overtures From Federals

The mission of Bonales Sandoval, a lawyer of Mexico City, to the rebels was disclosed when it was learned that he came to present to Villa an offer of some of Huerta's officers to go over to the rebels. Villa declined to treat with Sandoval, who, it is understood, will not return to rebel territory.

ALLEGED MURDERER PROMISES SURRENDER

John Henry Returns Home and Sheriff Is Notified.

Jacksonville, Ill., Jan. 31. — John Henry, the fugitive for whom the vicinity of Woodson and Morgan counties had been scoured for the last three days, and who is wanted in connection with the murder of Charles E. Zard, Everett E. Crain and Howard Crain, all of whom were buried today, was at his home last night.

Jesse Henry of East St. Louis, who has been staying with his brother's wife at her home, answered a knock at the door about 10 o'clock and heard his brother say:

"This is an awful bad night out in the cold and snow. Won't you let me come in and stay tonight? I want to give myself up tomorrow."

Jesse Henry called Sheriff Roberts of this city by telephone about 10:30 and told him he would guard John, and to come to Woodson and get his brother.

FLANAGAN WILL DENY HE GOT GRAFT MONEY

Defense Is Outlined in St. Paul Police Corruption Case.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The defense in the trial of Martin Flanagan, former acting chief of police, and Fred Turner, former city detective, charged by a grand jury indictment with bribery in the third degree, will be that the former police officers were not parties to the deals in which large sums of money are admitted to have been collected from women of the underworld, and that neither of the defendants offered protection.

The specific indictment under which the former police officers are being tried charges them with accepting a bribe of $1,000 from Dorothy Hazzard for police protection for a resort which she conducted at 100 South Washington street.

Told of Underworld.

Between Willie Wolff, Mamie Lacey, Ida Dorsey and Rose Brown, the crowd that thronged Judge Morrison's courtroom yesterday, where the St. Paul graft cases are being tried, revealed sordid tales of the St. Paul underworld and its alleged contributions to the police for protection. Witnesses were called and recalled by the state and little was left undone in an effort to connect Flanagan and Fred Turner with the various payments.

The one sensation of the afternoon, and which was eagerly grasped at by the defense, was a statement by Ida Dorsey of Minneapolis, who, it is said, paid $5,000 for the privilege of opening a resort in St. Paul, to the effect that Flanagan had told her that if she gave up a cent of graft money, she would not be permitted to open her place. Later, however, she said she paid $3,000 to Wolff which she understood was for protection purposes.

SOCIAL CENTER WORK GROWING

Report Shows Attendance of 1,840 During Month of January.

The monthly report of Miss Margaret Culkin, director of social centers, shows a gratifying increase in the attendance of the meetings held in January over those of December. During the month 48 meetings were held and the total attendance was 1,840, or a gain of 464 over December.

A number of new features were introduced by Miss Culkin since the first of the year, fitting into the program of extension which she has outlined for social center work. These include wrestling at West Duluth under the direction of Frank Kreidler; the organization of a glee club at West Duluth under the direction of A. G. Alexanader; social dancing at West Duluth under the direction of Miss Berta Schmiedl; match games of basket ball at Lakeside, and cooking exhibits for the Housewives' league under the direction of Miss Susan Stryker and Miss Ethlyn Phelps.

Miss Culkin incorporates a statement of property injured or lost during the month. The total value does not exceed $2.

POPE RECEIVES TWO AMERICAN PRIESTS

Merry Del Val May Be Advanced to Church Chamberlain.

Rome, Jan. 31.—The pope today gave a long audience to two American priests, Rev. Thomas D. Beaven, bishop of Springfield, Mass., and Rev. A. A. Cyran of Webster, Mass.

His holiness tried for a time to converse in French, but was compelled to revert to Latin, in which he expressed his regret at his lack of linguistic ability.

The bishop afterward said that the pope was in excellent spirits and mentally alert, but that he did not seem able to endure much physical exertion.

It is reported that Cardinal Merry Del Val probably will be appointed chamberlain of the church, an office which has been vacant since the death of Cardinal Rampolla. It is one of the highest positions in the church, as during an interagnum the chamberlain directs the ecclesiastical and political government of the church.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trust legislation will be the subject of a series of five lectures to be delivered by Former President William H. Taft before the law school of the University of Minnesota, beginning on March 16. On the evening of March 17, Mr. Taft will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Minnesota Bar association, to be held at St. Paul. The subject of his banquet speech has not been announced.

WANTS A DOG.

Chicago News: "No," declared Mrs. McWhooper, "we will not have a dog."

"Why not?" asked McWhooper. "Why won't we have a dog?"

"Aren't we cursed with fleas off our neighbors' dogs as it is?"

"That's just it," said McWhooper. "That's just what I want a dog for—a good flea dog. Dogs are intelligent beasts. A good flea dog will never spend much of his time around home, where his owner can be made uneasy. If he hangs around his own home what does he get? Its get out, Towser! Get out of here! Darn your hide!' So the real good flea dog doesn't spend time at home. He stays mostly on neighbors' doormats. If I get a good flea dog I can make things lively for the neighbors.

"No one can look cross-eyed at me when I kick him off my own porch. He is my dog. But the neighbors daren't kick him off their porches. So that's where we'd get even.

"Dogs are like kids—you have to have them to get even with neighbors. When the neighbors' kids are going to eat peanuts or bananas or cut out paper dolls they always come over to our house to make the litter.

"If we had children we could train them to make similar litters in the neighbors' yards, and then come home to rest when they had their fun.

"I have noticed that when you are being especially polite to a neighbor the neighbor's dog is sure to come and wipe his paws on you. He wouldn't dare to do that to his master."

"Yes," said Mrs. McWhooper, "when I am making calls every once in awhile a dog or a baby will come in and climb into my lap as I sit in the parlor. It knows that I am obliged to be polite and that I mustn't say, 'Get out of here!' Dogs and babies take advantage of callers on such occasions.

"They will impose in the same way on the parents, the aunty or the guardian who happens to be talking to you. They know the people in charge of them must at least appear good-natured when company is present, and they impose upon those people accordingly. However, it would be nice to see our dog wiping his feet upon a guest occasionally. I'll think it over."

SHE KNEW HER BUSINESS.

Los Angeles Times: An Alabama negro recently, who had won a dollar in a crap game, decided to have his fortune told, so he hied himself to a fortune teller, who led him into a dark room with mystic red lights in each corner.

She had him hold out his open palm, which she observed closely for a moment, and then she said:

"You like chicken, you have won money in a crap game and you have been in jail."

"Lawd, lady," responded the negro, "you dun read my mos' secret thoughts."

WILL ASK WILSON AS TO IMMIGRATION

Senate Directs Smith to Talk With Him About Bill.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Before a definite course on immigration legislation is determined upon by the senate there will be a conference with President Wilson. The senate committee today authorized its chairman, Senator Smith of South Carolina, to consult the president and with Chairman Burnett of the house committee. He will do so within a few days.

"We want to find out just what the president's ideas are on immigration legislation," said Senator Smith. "The attitude of President Wilson on the literacy test is not known."

The committee today heard Prof. Sydney Gulick of the Imperial university of Japan, who advocated a 5, instead of a 10 per cent limit on the number of aliens admitted each year. He would include Japanese and Chinese among those foreigners thus admitted.

The bills as now drawn do not change the race exclusion features of present laws.

"The literacy test in the pending immigration bill does not reach the perilous immigration from Asia, but means merely the restriction of a certain amount of immigration from Europe," declared Representative Baker of California when the house today resumed debate on the Burnett bill. He insisted that the Asiatic problem was the greatest issue confronting congress.

FOR MAKING PIES.

Chicago Inter Ocean: To prevent the fruit juice running over in the oven when making pies sprinkle a little carbonate of soda over the fruit before the top crust is put on. This prevents the juice from running over and also lessens the acidity of the fruit, so that it will not require so much sugar to sweaten it.

SUIT TO SET ASIDE SALE OF PARROT TO BE HEARD SOON

Minority Stockholders Allege Conspiracy to Wreck the Company.

Joseph B. Cotton Re-elected President of the Butte & Ely.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to present plans the case of the minority holders of Parrot company stock in the suit brought in the Federal court two years ago to have set aside the sale to the Anaconda Copper Mining company of all the property for 90,000 shares of stock is to come to a hearing in this city on Feb. 9. At the special meeting of the Parrot stockholders for the purpose of bringing about the sale there was a report from the appraisement committee consisting of H. A. Gallwey and E. P. Addicks, in which it was recommended that the offer of the Anaconda company to buy the property for 90,000 shares of stock be accepted. It was stated that the books of the company showed that the property had been operated at a loss since 1908. It was stated that the principal workings of the company have reached a depth where the ore bodies available for working purposes lie beneath the surface of mining claims owned by the Washoe Copper company, the Anaconda company and the Red Metal Mining company, and the segregation of the property rights of the different claimants to these ore bodies is a matter of extreme difficulty. To determine the rights of the claimants would be practically out of the question, says the report, and the only solution is the unification of the titles of all the mining claims in the vicinity, and such a course, if upon a fair and equitable basis, would be to the mutual advantage and benefit of all the mining companies involved.

After the report had been submitted a formal resolution was offered providing for the sale to the Anaconda company for 90,000 shares of stock, and this resolution prevailed by a vote of 167,873 shares, there being 3,585 shares in opposition to the resolution. Soon after the sale some Eastern stockholders who had voted against the sale commenced proceedings to have the sale set aside on the ground that the price paid was vastly below the value of the property. The suit seeking to prevent the transfer was at first started in the district court in this city, but before action was taken a suit was brought in the Federal court and nothing more was done in the local court. In the original suit B. N. Richardson, H. B. Jackson, Mary A. Knight and Isaac Bradford were named as parties to the suit of the minority holders, but afterwards their application for the setting aside of the sale was dismissed, leaving William E. Wall and Louis Foss as the sole applicants for the setting aside of the sale.

Conspiracy Charged.

In the suit the allegation is made that in 1899 those in control of the Anaconda company entered into a conspiracy to deplete the assets of the Parrot and get possession, and that having gained possession of the control of the Parrot they proceeded to do so. It is claimed that the smelters of the company were closed and the treatment of the ores turned over to the United Metals Selling company, which turned it over to the Anaconda company. It is alleged that this meant a loss of $500,000 to the Parrot company. It is further asserted that the smelting works at Gaylord were dismantled, entailing a further loss of $1,000,000. The sale of the Adventure claim to the Red Metals company is alleged to have meant a further loss of $10,000,000. It is claimed some real estate was sold to Henry F. Kroyer of New York and others which also brought about a loss, while the Little Minah, the Bellona and the Parrot shafts were closed, causing an additional loss of $10,000,000. It is claimed in the complaint that a reasonable value of the Parrot property is $50,000,000 and that the dumps and tailings, claimed to be of no value, are worth $5,000,000. The complaint winds up with the assertion that $100,000,000 have been lost to the Parrot stockholders through the management of the affairs of the company, which, added to what would be a fair value of the properties if handled by the company itself, would make about $200,000,000.

Belmont Mine.

Shaft sinking has been resumed at the Belmont mine of the Anaconda company and the ore being mined in that property is being hoisted up through the Anaconda shaft. The closing of the Belmont shaft while sinking is going on was deemed advisable, particularly as the Anaconda can easily handle the Belmont ore and its own beside. Shaft sinking will be completed in the course of a few months and then the shaft will be reopened again for ore hoisting. The Belmont is supplying between 900 and 1,000 tons of ore a day at the present time. When the shaft sinking is finished the output of the Belmont will be considerably increased should the market conditions at that time warrant it.

Butte & Superior.

The Butte & Superior company in accordance with the order of the Federal court has filed its report on ore treated, as required in the suit pending before the court of appeals brought by the Minerals Separation company for an alleged infringement of patent. The ore treated during December was 28,757 tons, and the amount of concentrates recovered from "heads" was 6,655 tons. Analysis and assay figures of heads showed 13.84 per cent zinc, .78 per cent lead, .20 per cent of copper, 2.18 per cent of iron, 1.24 per cent manganese, 71.87 per cent was insoluble, 7.98 ounces of silver per ton and .01 ounces gold per ton. The cost of flotation per ton of concentrates recovered was $4.56 and the value per ton of concentrates recovered was $23.79. The assay returns of "tails" from the flotation process was 2.85 per cent zinc, .11 per cent lead, .05 per cent copper, 1.10 per cent iron, .95 per cent manganese, 88.40 per cent insoluble, 2.09 ounces silver per ton and .0053 ounces gold per ton.

Butte & Ely.

Harmony was not the feature of the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Butte & Ely company in this city a few nights ago. A minority crowd, representing about 65,000 shares against 405,000 shares held by the Cole and Cotton faction, endeavored to nominate a board of directors and block some changes in the by-laws as well as prevent a loan to the Giroux company, but without success. The report of the treasurer showed that the Butte & Ely company had $137,000 in the treasury. Against the protest of the minority holders of stock the majority voted to renew a loan of $100,000 to the Giroux company at 6 per cent interest, instead of 5 per cent as previously paid. The directors were given authority to hold meetings any place in the country. J. W. Neukom, Joseph B. Cotton and Edward Maney, all of Duluth, were elected directors, the other two being John D. Pope, manager of the North Butte, and Harry Holp, a clerk in the North Butte office. Joseph B. Cotton was afterwards re-elected president; John D. Pope, vice president; Edward Maney, treasurer; J. W. Neukom, secretary and assistant treasurer. On the board of directors last year were I. A. Heilbronner, stock broker and the man who brought suit to have a receiver appointed for the company, and B. E. Calkins, a prominent merchant. Both were eliminated this year.

Butte Ballaklava.

During the past month the Butte Ballaklava company shipped slightly over 2,000 tons of ore, the mining being carried on principally on the 900 and 1,400-foot levels. The ore in the big Ballaklava vein has widened and at the present time is said to be 14 feet in the breast of the drift. It is 13 feet wide on the 900-foot level. The big electric hoist has been placed in commission and the shipments will be considerably increased.

Electrical Inspection.

A. F. Batchelder and J. B. Cox, officials of the General Electric company of Schenectady, N. Y., have been in the city, looking over the electric engines being operated on the railway of the Anaconda Copper Mining company between this city and Anaconda. The company represented by the two men supplied the engines and their sole purpose of visiting the city just now was to see to it that the engines were working to satisfaction. Both men declined to make any statement on the subject, but it is understood that the company they represent will build the electric engines for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul line to be electrified the coming spring.

Nettie Mine.

The work of unwatering the shaft of the Nettie mine, which is to be operated by the Anaconda Copper Mining company, is not making as much progress as was expected and with a view of hurrying the work along another pump has been added, making three at work. The shaft is down to a depth of 500 feet and about 150 feet has so far been cleared of water. After the water has been removed, it is believed that a considerable amount of shaft repair work will have to be done.

BIG BOND ISSUE BY COPPERMINES

Will Provide Funds for Building Reduction Works Near Ely.

Ely, Nev., Jan. 31.—With the object of providing funds for the construction of reduction works near Ely, a trust mortgage from the Consolidated Coppermines company to the Bankers' Trust company of New York has been filed here. The mortgage is given to secure an issue of $3,500,000 in 7 per cent bonds, the interest to be payable semi-annually in February and August.

The bonds are to mature Aug. 1, 1928, but may be called for payment on any interest date at 110 and accrued interest; or, they may be converted into stock at the option of the holders. Bondholders desiring to make such an exchange will receive certification of full paid stock equal to the face value of the bonds and at the par value of the stocks at the date of conversion.

The right of holders of bonds which have been called for payment to exchange their holdings for shares of capital stock shall continue only until and including the date fixed for redemption or purchase of the bonds.

By the trust mortgage all the mining and ranch property of the Consolidated Coppermines company now owned and plants of machinery now owned or to be constructed during the life of the bonds are pledged for security of the bond obligations.

All shares of subsidiary corporations owned by the Coppermines company are also pledged, this including 1,303,859 shares of the Chief Consolidated Mines company out of the total issue of 1,441,420 shares, and 111,336 out of 250,000 shares of the Butte & Ely Copper company.

When this work will be started has not been fixed definitely, but a corps of engineers is now engaged in proving up the surveys of the Warm springs site, where the management desires the works shall be located.

JUNCTION SHAFT CONCRETING DONE

Five Compartment 1800-Foot Shaft Is Concreted Throughout.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 31.—The great work of concreting which the Junction shaft has been carrying on has been practically completed. It is a gigantic piece of work, the biggest in the history of mine shaft concreting in the world, so far as is known. It has been carried on from the 1,800-foot level to the surface with never a hitch and in remarkable time. The engineers and men who have had it in charge achieved a record that will long stand them in stead.

This shaft, already famous in the mining world by reason of the splendid bodies of copper ore that it has made available, will now come in for a new sort of fame. It is bound to attract the attention of engineers the world over because of its concreting, which represents an achievement with concrete greater by far than any other on record. The Junction has a five-compartment, 1,800-foot shaft concreted from top to bottom. The nearest approach to this in any other concreted shaft is depth of 700 feet, so far as known, in a three-compartment shaft. The most of the concreting in shafts goes no deeper than 300 feet, and even these shallow shafts are not numerous.

When the concreting of Junction shaft was taken up, the engineers had no precedents to go by. All they knew was that they had good ground to the 1,800-foot level and that it lay in a country not subject to movement. Up in the hills the idea of concreting would have promptly been dropped because of the movement of the earth that prevails there, but down in the valley this escaped and there is the opportunity to concrete with entire safety. Having the ground, the engineers took up the study of concrete. They satisfied themselves that the expressions of experts in concrete that it could not be carried successfully to great depth were not well grounded. Then they started in on the job. The concrete work commenced on the 1,500-foot level and was carried up. All the mixture was lowered from the surface, shot down through piping. After the shaft had been brought up from the 1,500-foot level, the work was undertaken from the 1,800-foot level to the 1,500-foot level. It is this section that is now practically finished.

PRODUCTION INCREASING

Forces at Work in Michigan Mines Are Growing Rapidly.

Many Miners Who Left the District Now Coming Back.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the Lake Superior copper district men are coming in very fast, as will be seen by the statements of productions and forces of employes given below in the accounts of the different mines. The new men, entering the Copper country for the first time and the old men returning, are doing so of their own accord and at their own expense. Naturally more of the class, trammers and laborers, that were so scarce the first half of the year, are arriving than miners, so that it is difficult to get a sufficent supply of the latter class to keep pace with the former. The mines are having an excellent chance to select the men best adapted for tramming and other kinds of laborers' work. Many of the miners who left the district because they did not care to join the Western federation, or, who being members, fled on account of the intimidation and the disturbances that occurred when the work was resumed, are now coming back and gradually the members of the Western federation are slipping away from that organization and are handing in their federation cards so as to go to work again. Quite a number of the mines are working, the Croatians and the men from the other southeastern provinces of Austria remaining more steadfast, probably because they are extremely socialistic in their tendencies, but mainly because it is almost impossible to communicate to them the true state of affairs in this country and especially in this district, as so few people speak their languages. The congressional investigation is holding some back, but it will injure them rather than the companies, since the latter will have no difficulty in obtaining other men. It would seem to be a conservative statement that within three months the mines will have as many men as before the strike and some will be up to the maximum of the working capacity of the properties.

Calumet & Hecla.

At the Calumet & Hecla the daily shipments from the Osceola amygdaloid last week averaged slightly over the normal, rising to 3,640 tons for four days in comparison with 3,500 before the strike. It will only be a question of a very short time when the daily output will reach 4,000 tons. About 110 drills are in operation. No. 18 is now working both shifts. Here the ground is merely scratched, as only the second, sixth and thirteenth levels have been extended to the Centennial boundary line and only the ninth below the fourth is connected with No. 17. These levels, put out as feelers, have proven the ground good and more work will be done here in the immediate future. For the whole mine the daily shipments are only 200 tons less than those of June. For some little time the company has had more men than in that month and the "inefficiency and 'dead work'" are decreasing daily. When these factors attain their usual high standard, the twenty-eight stamps will be running at their full capacity, the 1,000-pound stamps, working wholly on the conglomerate, the eight-hour or three-shift system went into effect in December. At the Hecla mill of seventeen stamps, two to six are working on the amygdaloid and the remainder on the amygdaloid, the new plan was effective Jan. 23.

Wolverine.

The Wolverine will soon have the Leyner-Ingersoll drill, the most improved type of the one-man drill, exclusively in operation. There had been quite a marked change for the better in the output, which amounted in June to about one-half the regular tonnage of 1,300 tons. The yield per ton is higher than during the first part of the year. Although the company has stated that no dividend would be declared until the labor troubles were settled, the conditions are now so favorable that there is some talk, that since the treasury casth and quick assets exceed the $800,000 left or $2 may be voted the last of next month, the usual time of dividend action.

Quincy.

The Quincy is working three shafts, Nos. 2, 6, and 8 both shifts, with a daily production of 2,800 to 3,000 tons or better than two-thirds of that before the strike. No. 7, the southernmost shaft, where the rock is pretty much exhausted, as the boundaries have been reached both to the south and at the bottom level and which is consequently not much of a factor in the tonnage, and No. 9, where the work is all development, mining operations will not be resumed until the producing shafts have a full supply of men. About 1,360 men are working underground in comparison with 1,580 the first part of July. Men will be taken on until the full capacity is reached, and that means many more than were employed during the first half of the year.

Isle Royale.

The Isle Royale is producing at three shafts, Nos. 2, 4, and 5, the two first being operated both shifts and the last the day shift. Repairs are being made at No. 6, where the regular mining work will be begun this week. About 265 men are at work underground and the output is about one-half the normal. Some cleaning up is being done on the Portage lode.

Osceola.

Osceola Consolidated has within 110 of the regular force employed during the first half of July and a production of three quarters of that shipped during that period. North Kearsarge did not resume on account of its isolated position and its contiguity to one of the "plague spots" until the middle of December, but it is making rapid strides towards its old numbers.

Hancock.

Hancock, after twenty-eight days' operation, is only about thirty men short of the former force. The management states that the policy followed the first portion of the year will be continued. The rock will be stored in the bins until their capacity, 2,000 tons, is reached and then it will be shipped to the Centennial-Allouez mill. A shipment of that quantity was made the first of this week.

Mohawk.

Mohawk has been in the storm center and was unable to start up until Dec. 3, but it has made good progress since that time. A tonnage of 936 was hoisted Monday and there are 270 men, 240 of whom are employed at the mine, counting both the surface and underground forces, as against 800 July 22. Shafts Nos. 1, 2, and 4 are running day shifts. At No. 5 heavier rock crushers are being installed and a 45-pound skip rail is being substituted for a 30-pound.

Ahmeek.

At the Ahmeek, which had more difficulties to contend with than any other of the producing properties, the output is about one-third that of June.

Allouez.

The Allouez is now only about 40 behind the number, 306, on the pay rolls when the work ceased.

Copper Range.

The Copper Range Consolidated is now producing from 3,300 to 3,500 tons daily as compared with a normal of 5,500. One-half of this is coming from the Champlon and one-quarter each from the Baltic and Tri-mountain.

WEALTH OF ROWE MINE IS SENSATION OF THE CUYUNA

Some of the Men Who Are Now Drawing Big Royalties.

Ore Body Said to Be of 100,000,000 Tons in Extent.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The wealth of the Rowe mine at Riverton has stirred up Pittsburg, and the annual report made by Capt. J. C. Barr to the stockholders of the Pittsburg Steel company was a source of gratification to them. Conservatively estimated by a number of geologists and iron men, the ore body is said to be of 100,000,000 tons in extent, all of high grade and averaging not less than 56 to 58 per cent metallic iron. Negotiations for the taking over of this property were first started in October, 1912. Expert iron men were placed on the property to make a complete report. Negotiations were closed with the owners in February, 1913. At the time the original owners had no idea of the wealth of the property, the rich deposits being discovered by the work of the company's experts. Hydraulic work was carried on all summer and well into the winter to assist in stripping the over-burden, which averages about forty feet of sand. A shovel is now at work getting the pit in shape for the big shipments this season. Already about 600,000 cubic yards of over-burden have been removed. Leading producers have estimated the value of the ore in the ground at $1 a ton. The property was acquired principally to supply ore for the Pittsburg Steel company's two modern blast furnaces recently erected in Monessen. It will enable the Pittsburg Steel company and the Pittsburg Steel Products company to be practically independent in the way of an ore supply and will give employment to 6,000 men with a payroll of $5,000,000.

Men Who Draw Royalties.

On the Cuyuna iron range are many men who at one time or another had fee interests in the Rowe mine. Dr. R. J. Sewall of Crosby and E. A. Lamb of Deerwood are one time owned most of the Rowe mine. E. W. Dunne of Brainerd owned the farm section which was sold to the Waite, Williams and Brown interests of Duluth and drilled, and to this later were added their holdings in lots 8 and 9 in section 18, 46-29, as now controlled by the Pittsburg Steel Ore company.

The Dunne farm was thoroughly explored and an ore body revealed. It was believed that it would be necessary to build a concentrator to successfully handle the ore. The Carlsons took over the Waite, Brown and Williams interests and leased them to the Pittsburg Steel Ore company, a subsidiary of the Pittsburg Steel company.

The Cuyuna Iron Ore company was organized with $15,000 capital, sold 700 shares and the holdings in lots 8 and 9 were also taken over on a lease by the Pittsburg Steel Ore company. One of the considerations was that these lots were to be thoroughly explored and outside of any past exploration work conducted by first owners. The first hole down by the Pittsburg people revealed rich ore and a lot of it, and more drill holes showed up what appeared to be an inexhaustible deposit.

The stock in the little Cuyuna Iron Ore company has jumped in value until it is now rated from $1,000 to $5,000 a share. Royalties are now being paid to the company. At 35 cents a ton, a handsome revenue will be realized from this year's shipments of the Pittsburg Steel Ore company, which, by the way, are estimated to be equal to almost the whole tonnage of last year's range production.

Prominently identified with the Cuyuna Iron Ore company are John T. Murphy, publisher of the Superior Telegram; C. W. Potts, E. A. Lamb, H. J. Ernster of Deerwood, Dr. R. J. Sewall of Crosby, Dr. H. J. O'Brien, L. E. Waterman, Ralph Anderson, C. T. Robinson, C. E. Wales, a Soo Line director, and Archibald McKay of Superior.

Cuyuna-Mille Lacs.

The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs mine has its big pump installed on the first level and the sub-level. They are making rail shipments to furnaces. There are about 4,000 or 5,000 tons in the stockpile. The Northern Pacific railway will put in a spur to the Canadian-Cuyuna Ore company holdings in section 13, township 45, range 30, situated one mile south of the main line near Loerch and about six miles east of Brainerd. Work will be started on a timber shaft within thirty days.

F. A. Edson is reported to have struck good ore in section 19, township 47, range 28. At the Adams mine in Oreland drifting is in progress and rich ore will soon be encountered. But 100 gallons a minute are being pumped. However, a larger flow of water is expected when the ore body is reached. At Barrows, Shaft No. 1 will be sunk to 180 feet depth. It is eighty feet deep now. Shaft No. 2 is down 180 feet. Shaft No. 3 is down fifty-seven feet and will be extended to 200 feet. At present the pumps are in Shaft No. 2. Two 3,000-gallon pumps handle all water in fine shape, discharging a 14-inch stream. They are now pumping 1,500 gallons.

The Brainerd-Cuyuna mine in the city limits of Brainerd is eighty feet deep with its shaft work. About 400 gallons is being pumped and Capt. John Martin will soon add another pump.

At Crosby and Ironton the Pennington and Thompson pit mines are silent, the shovels having ceased stripping. Work will be resumed in spring when shipping starts. The Armour No. 2 mine and the Kennedy mine of the Rogers-Brown Ore company are working big crews and stockpiling.

Good Season for Crosby.

Crosby expects a most prosperous season when the ore shipments open in spring. The Soo is providing for the increased traffic by marshalling 1,000 ore cars where previously 100 did duty. Riverton is expected to increase in size on account of the operations of the Rowe mine. Eighteen houses under construction by the Pittsburg Steel Ore company are almost completed. Iron Mountain, a new townsite of the Steelton Land & Townsite company, is attracting interest, being situated in the center of range activities. The Duluth-Brainerd mine near by is expected to enter the list of shippers this year.

At Brainerd J. R. Harrington of Hibbing is expected to soon commence exploring the tracts of lands which the late Judge G. W. Holland bequeathed to the city of Brainerd.

C. W. Potts of Deerwood has drills at work near Big Rabbit and Little Rabbit lakes. Two are working near Big Rabbit and one near Little Rabbit. The Toulouimoe Mining company is carrying on extensive exploration work. Pete Hanson, formerly with the Helmer Exploration company, is now drill runner on one of the Potts drills.

At the village of Cuyuna the Weyerhaeuser interests have the Duluth Diamond Drilling company at work with two drills exploring section 31, township 47, range 28. The Cuyuna Iron Valley Mining company is drilling the Dehning farm and the Lindstrom place. Other drills of the Helmer Exploration company are operating in section 16, township 46, range , and section 10, township 46, range 29. The Cuyuna-Duluth mine is cutting a pump station at the 300-foot level. Mining is being carried on at the first level and the sub-level. There are about 16,000 tons in the stockpile, the ore running from 60 to 64 per cent.

STEWART BEATEN IN MINING SUIT

Involved Large Body of Ore in the Ontario Mine.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 31.—The Stewart Mining company lost an important suit when Judge F. S. Dietrich decided in favor of Jonathan Bourne, Jr., former senator from Oregon, a few days ago, and dismissed an action brought against him by the Stewart company. The suit was for ore bodies beneath the surface of the Ontario lode mining claim. The properties of the Ontario company involved in this action are valued at $400,000, and the action was virtually a suit for the control of Ontario, as an adverse decision would have meant that the most valuable part of the property would have passed into the hands of the Stewart company. The Stewart Mining company, the plaintiff in the action, owns several claims adjoining the Ontario, the latter being owned by Bourne. There are some of the richest veins in the Coeur d'Alenes within these claims, and it was admitted in the course of the trial that the same veins run through the Ontario claim that are found to be so rich in the claims of the Stewart Mining company. There are various faults on the Stewart fraction claim. The question which the courts had to decide was whether this fault constituted a part of the apex of the vein which extended across both the Stewart and the Ontario, or whether it was only a side or edge of the vein. The court holds that it is no part of the apex, and the complaint is therefore dismissed. The properties contested for are consndered among the richest in the Coeur d'Alene section, and the case has been bitterly contested. It is considered one of the most important mining cases that ever came out of the northern part of the state. Recently the same parties waged a similar fight before the supreme court of Washington. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are said to have been at stake in mine values.

COEUR D'ALENES IN GOOD SHAPE

Dennis Ryan Reports That the Mines Are Looking Good.

Salt Lake, Jan. 31.—Dennis Ryan, owner of the Ryan hotel in St. Paul and heavily interested in mines in the West, operating in several of the intermountain states, is at the Cullen, just back from a two weeks' trip to the Coeur d'Alenes, which region he declares very prosperous. He said:

"The mines there have shipped more ore than ever before in the history of that section, and as far as the outlook at present is concerned, I can see only a roseate future. There are no labor troubles on the horizon at present, and the entire district looks as though all records would be broken for prosperity for both miners and operators.

"Personally, I am in favor of the law recently passed in Nevada, by which the mine owners are compelled to employ only men who speak English. Speaking from my own experience, I know that a lot of these foreigners work only long enough to get enough money to buy machinery and material than they are worth, and I would rather pay a man a dollar a day more if I was sure that he was a competent miner than to pay less and take chances on the green hands furnished by men who can't understand what you say, and yet claim to be miners, and, therefore, are admitted into the unions.

"It is to such men that we owe a lot of the accidents and fatalities of quartz mining that otherwise would not happen, and these men are the first to come back on the companies when they are injured. Give me an intelligent miner who knows his business and comprehends what is said to him, and there will be fewer accidents, more profit to the mine owner and to the workman, and a generally better feeling all around."

Mr. Ryan is visiting his brother, Patrick Ryan, and the latter's son, Dennis Ryan, while in the city.

MAKE VISIT TO AJOS PROPERTY

Calumet & Arizona Officials Are Also Entertained at Tucson.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 31.—Capt. John C. Greenway, C. T. Knapp, attorney for the Calumet & Arizona interests, and George A. Newett, editor of Iron Ore, of Ishpeming, Mich., made a visit to the Ajos property of the company last week.

Capt. Greenway stopped at Tucson, where he and the members of his party were guests of the Tucson chamber of commerce, by special invitation. The Tucson business men desired to make known their hearty good will toward the talked of Calumet & Arizona railroad construction to the Ajos mine. In return they were anxious to hear from Capt. Greenway some assurance that the road would be built from Tucson upon its construction being taken up.

Capt. Greenway told the Tucson gathering that it was not possible at the present time to enter into definite talk about railway construction, for the reason that much yet remained to be worked out in association with the Ajos property, particularly with reference to the method of treatment of the ores which might be found to be desirable. Until these details were concluded the company would not be in position to say what it might need in the way of railroad facilities.

DENN-ARIZONA TO RESUME SOON

So Says "One in Position to Know" at Bisbee.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 31. — Recently there have been reports that the Denn-Arizona property is to resume operations. There was a very significant hint dropped during the week concerning this matter by one thoroughly in position to know. The remark dropped was not in connection with talk of Denn negotiations or the particular likelihood of its resuming operations, but in association with a general review of splendid conditions prevailing in the district at this time and the bright outlook for the immediate future. The remark of the gentleman referred to was "and Denn will be resuming." It was not so much the statement as the manner in which it was made and its connection with other remarks that gave the ground for belief that this meant a great deal more than the surface conveyed—that it meant, in fact, that Denn negotiations had been concluded and that it would be but a short time before results were in readiness for announcement.

Whoever gets the Denn, and however it may be taken over, if there is the money and the engineering ability behind the transaction, it will make a valuable mine, one of the big and rich ones of the copper belt. That is the opinion about the property that is entertained by those in the district who are informed as to it. All that is now standing in the way of the Denn is the big volume of water with which it has to contend with on its lower levels.

AFTER IRON ORE TRAFFIC

Two Railroads Will Now Compete in Iron River District.

Output Expected to Double Within the Next Few Years.

By April 1, it is expected, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul will be running trains into the Iron River district of the Menominee range on a regular schedule. Thereafter the company will compete with the Chicago & Northwestern for the ore traffic of an important field of the Lake Superior iron region. The Milwaukee road is reaching out for this business through an extension from Crystal Falls, fourteen miles due east of Iron River as the crow flies. The extension itself is practically completed. Contracts for the grading for tracks leading to the Bates, Bengal, Rogers and other mines have already been awarded. By the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes, the road will be in position to care for a heavy tonnage. The ore will be taken through the Crystal Falls country to Channing over the company's own tracks and from that point it will be transported over the tracks of Senator Isaac Stephenson's Escanaba & Lake Superior line to Escanaba, Lake Michigan, the shipping port for all of the Menominee output and part of that of the Marquette range.

Much Exploration Proceeding.

The Iron River district, although a producer for many years, is in the early stages of its development. Great quantities of ore have been discovered during recent years, and more mining and exploratory companies are at work in the field than in any other region of similar area in the Lake Superior country. With trade conditions favorable, the output undoubtedly will more than double within the next few years.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul company has removed its tracks from the Vivian mine at Quinnesec, east of Iron Mountain, and is utilizing the steel in the construction of a logging road. The Vivian is idle and its future is uncertain. It is a small mine producing a low-grade ore and has lately been operated by Pickands, Mather & Co.

Oglebay, Norton & Co. have recently suspended production at the Chatham and Perkins mines, in the Iron River country. Two hundred employes were made idle temporarily, the great bulk of the men quickly procuring work in the Michigan copper district. It is expected the Chatham and Perkins will resume mining in the spring. The Iron River district has experienced a boom the last year or two, with the result that dwelling houses are in eager demand. In the village of Iron River itself it is said there is not a building that is not occupied. Similar conditions exist in various mining settlements, notably in the Palatine field.

Developing Big Mines.

At the east end of Iron county, a summer of exceptional building activity is in store at the new town of Alpha. It is in this field that the Longyear interests are developing the Judson mine and Pickands, Mather & Company the Balkan. The Judson is already stockpiling ore and will be in position to ship directly upon the opening of the season of navigation, notwithstanding the development of the mine was started only on Aug. 6, last. An inclined shaft was put down to a depth of 300 feet, at which point a station was cut and drifting to the ore body was started. The deposit was encountered early in January at a point 145 feet distant from the shaft.

The Penn Iron Mining company, subsidiary to the Cambria Steel company, is reported to have encountered excellent ore in an exploratory shaft sunk in Section 6, 39-29, a mile northeast of the city of Norway, Menominee range. The property adjoins the Munro mine of Pickands, Mather & company. It is owned in fee by John Marsch of Iron Moutain and Chicago, owner of the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad. Section 6 has been explored at various times extending over a period of many years. Now the Penn company has found the ore so long sought and it has discovered it at comparatively shallow depth. Systematic exploration to determine the probable extent of the deposit will now be undertaken.

To Operate More Extensively.

With the lease to the Great Northern ore properties on the Mesaba range cancelled a year hence, it is expected that the United States Steel corporation will operate its properties in the older districts of the Lake Superior region on a materially larger scale than has been the case the last few years. The company has workings in reserve in many of the fields. Included among its holdings is the big Chapin mine at Iron ountain, now and for several years past operated well under capacity. Preparatory work indicating a large expansion is in progress at the Chapin. At this mine, the Hamilton shaft is being rebuilt from top to bottom and encased in concrete. As it is into this opening that the great volume of water made by the mine is drained, the shaft will be equipped with electrical pumps of large capacity. At the east end of the Chapin the old "B" shaft is being rebuilt and deepened. To supply the mine with ample electrical power, a hydro-electrical plant is being installed at the Quinnesec falls of the Menominee river. Several hundred thousand dollars is being expended in the new work. The result will be not only cheapening of production, but a larger output.

MAY APPEAL FROM THE DROOD VERDICT

Members of Dickens Society Disgruntled Over Recent Trial.

London, Jan. 31.—There is a talk of appeal from the verdict of manslaughter found by the literary jury which recently tried John Jasper for the murder of Edwin Drood. The more serious-minded members of the Dickens society who expected a careful weighing of evidence with the hope of ending the controversy over Dickens' unfinished novel with Jasper and Drood were the chief characters are disgruntled because the trial developed into such a farce, "and such a dull farce at that."

There were many who did not appreciate the humor which G. K. Chesterton, as judge, and George Bernard Shaw, as foreman of the jury, tried to inject, and the convicted defendant's whose part was taken seriously by F. T. Harry, asserts that there are ample grounds for an appeal, if for no other reason than that the verdict was solely the decision of Foreman Shaw who arrived during the luncheon interval" nearly three hours before the end of the trial, as the foreman himself admitted. Most of the jurors had left before the trial ended.

Walter Frith, one of the counsel for the defense, is even more severe with Shaw. He declares that the verdict was "typically Shawian and therefore typically farcical and unsatisfactory. It also had the more flagrant defect of being absolutely untrue, for the jurors were not consulted as to its terms."

WOMEN'S RIGHT TO PRACTICE LAW

Bill to Be Introduced in British House of Commons.

London, Jan. 31.—A bill is to be introduced in the house of commons next session which aims at giving English women the right to practice as lawyers. It is a question whether it will receive the support of the government, without which it stands little chance of success.

The matter has been fought out in the courts for several years and the decision to introduce a bill results from the judgment of the court of appeal, which in December decided that the present law did not give women the right to practice, and that the only tribunal which could give women such rights was parliament. The grounds for this judgment were not that there was any inherent unfitness among women which prevented them from appearing in law practice, but merely that there never has, in fact, been a woman lawyer in England. The court held that this common law disability was further supported by a dictum of Lord Coke, issued over 300 years ago concerning those who had become entitled to practice law from time immemorial. As old as it is, this dictum is still binding in English law.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

BIGGEST REAL ESTATE DEAL IN YEARS MADE IN WEST END

Sloan Block and Esmond Hotel Exchange Hands for $60,000.

This Transaction Follows Other Important Deals Made Recently.

The largest transaction in West end property in several years was put through yesterday afternoon, when the Sloan block at the corner of Superior street and Twentieth avenue west and the Esmond hotel on the avenue changed hands at a consideration for the joint property of $60,000.

The purchaser was the Lake Superior Investment company, incorporated by local capitalists, headed by John A. Stephenson. The former owners, George B. Sloan of New York and Theodore Irwin of Anchorage, Ky., bought the property back in the old boom period, more than twenty-two years ago, and they are said to be now drawing out about even on their investment. The property has a frontage of 100 feet on Superior street, extending back 140 feet to Michigan street:

Will Improve Property.

The new owners propose to expend $5,000 in improvements on the Sloan block, and only recently the Esmond hotel was remodeled throughout and was leased for a term of years to Michael Raehlin. The block on Superior street has been well rented for several years.

That West end business frontages are much in the limelight is evidenced in the number of important transactions that have been reported in them during the last few months. To enumerate, the property across the street from the Sloan block changed hands last October at $50,000, with Albert H. Polinsky as the purchaser. Nelson Bros. later purchased the frontage adjoining their knitting factory, and, later the F. I. Salter company became the owner of the block next to the Rex hotel. There must not be overlooked, either, the building of the Rex hotel block last summer by the Gopher Real Estate company, entailing an outlay of approximately $100,000.

John A. Stephenson, one of the principals in the sale just reported, has for many years been heavily interested in West Duluth, First street and East Superior street realties, but this is his first venture in the West end field.

Good Opportunities Offered.

"I think that real estate in that district offer exceptional investment possibilities," he said today. "Few persons appreciate the strategic position held by Superior street frontages in the vicinity of Twentieth avenue west. All the property on the south side of the street, beginning at Twenty-third avenue west and extending to the Missabe ore dock is owned by the Soo railroad and is not on the market. On the opposite side of the street are located the large factories of E. A. Patrick & Co. and the Zinsmaster-Smith Bread company, while a few blocks further east, the Point of Rocks begins.

"This leaves practically only six blocks of choice property between Eighth avenue west and the ore docks, where both sides of the street could be occupied for retail business purposes."

Negotiations in two important deals in central business properties that have been pending for some time are reported to be making progress and it is now expected that they will be closed up during February. The satisfactory nature of the present inquiry is the subject of comment among operators. The outlook is regarded as most favorable for the putting through of the greatest number of transactions in years during the season now being entered upon.

A. W. Kuehnow, manager of the Gary Land company, reported sales of sixteen lots in Gary First and Central divisions to Chicago, Peoria, Ill., and Gary, Ind., investors. From the inquiries coming to hand, Mr. Kuehnow looks forward to a busy season in the steel plant district. The carrying through of a large building program is expected at Gary, such being promoted through the assurance that the installing of a water and sewage system will be proceeded with in the early spring. In addition to a list of structures now in course of erection recently enumerated, the building of a structure to be used as a general store has been started on Ninety-ninth avenue between Dickson and Gary streets.

Stryker, Manley & Buck closed the sale this morning of the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Twenty-eighth avenue west for Martin and Sophia Smith to Sallie B. Thomas. The consideration is reported to have been approximately $9,000. Upon the property is located a two-story building occupied by A. Lysen as a general store and a house.

The Hoopes-Kohagen company advised a gratifying early interest in its Park Drive addition proposition. A few sales of building lots on the Central hillside were also put through during the week.

Richardson, Day & Cheadle noted a good inquiry for building lots in the Normal school district. The office yesterday disposed of a large block of property in the East end of Superior.

Charles P. Craig & Co., sold two five-acre tracts at Greysolon farms to Duluth buyers who propose to improve them for market gardening purposes.

The Alliance Real Estate company sold four lots in Ironton Fourth addition, to outside investors.

MORE BIG BUILDING JOBS IN SIGHT THAN IN JANUARY 1913

Contractors and Architects Look Forward to Busy Year.

Taking Bids on Normal School Addition; Cuyuna Range Active.

"There is more big building work in sight than at this time last year, and the prospects, according to reports coming to this office, are bright for the coming season," said E. R. Cobb, secretary of the Duluth Builders' exchange today. The above opinion expresses in a nutshell the present status of the building trade in this city and district.

At the local architects' offices the information is to be obtained that there is more preliminary work in hand likely to develop into business than in several years back at this season. Included in the list are jobs that will run up into large figures. It covers business, manufaacturing and high-class residence propositions.

After an investigation among contractors and builders in every part of the United States, the American Carpenter and Builder of Chicago says that great optimism prevails in trade circles. Throughout the upper Mississippi valley, including Minnesota, Pennsylvania, and the Pacific coast states, the outlook is especially bright. Builders in the Western states, except Washington, New Mexico and Nevada, are found to be feeling very cheerful, reports from every section predicting increases in 1914 over last year.

Permits issued at the building inspector's office during the present week were seasonably light, numbering eleven with the cost of improvements placed at $9,075. The largest permit in the list was taken out by Mrs. Mary E. Whalen for a frame dwelling on Twenty-fifth avenue west to cost $2,500.

Three handsome homes to cost from $6,000 to $6,500 each, are to be built by the Hunter's Park Land company. The general contract has been awarded to Gustafson & Olson; the heating and plumbing to Arch. McDougall and the electrical work to George Shuler. The plans were prepared by P. M. Olsen, architect.

Mr. Olsen is also preparing plans for two houses to cost $3,500 each, to be built in the spring by the Lakeside Land company.

The plans for the proposed addition to the normal school went out for figures yesterday from the office of W. A. Hunt, architect. Bids are due to be received in ten days, when it is expected the contract will be awarded without delay so that excavation for the foundation may be started next month.

Jacobson Bros. have already started work on their contract for the Munger school, to built at Twelfth avenue east and Eighth street. The plumbing and heating contract has been awarded to Stack Bros. and the electric wiring to F. Peterson. The contracts for the structure aggregated $43,000. Completion of the work is called for by Aug. 15. The plans were prepared by Holstead & Sullivan.

Building operations are active in the Cuyuna range towns this winter and considerable new work is forecasted to come out in the spring. Vernon J. Price & Co. are taking figures on the Crosby First State bank building for W. S. Pitts. It is to be a modernly appointed brick structure of two stories and a basement. The bank and a store will occupy the ground floor, while the one above will be fitted for offices and flats. Its cost is estimated at $18,000.

At the Manganese townsite, adjoining the Iron Mountain mine, a hotel is being brought to completion for Peter Peterson of Big Forks, Minn., and a store building is under erection for G. C. Travers. Several houses have gone up in the town since early last fall.

Holstead & Sullivan have the plans out for the remodeling of the Ray house on Second street east. The general contract and the heating, plumbing and electric wiring will be let simultaneously.

The same architects have also plans and specifications out for the remodeling into offices of the quarters formerly occupied by the Kitchi Gammi club, at First street and Third avenue west.

J. J. Wangenstein, architect, is taking figures for the electrical work on the new M. S. Cook theater.

TO CONSIDER EACH CASE

Fate of Six Officers in Hands of Hicken and Troyer.

Detective Toewe Did Not Borrow Money From Resort Keeper.

Commissioner W. A. Hicken, head of the safety division, is investigating the recommendations of the grand jury relative to the discharge of two police officers, the suspension of two and the reprimand of two.

He has taken up their cases with Chief Troyer and others who are familiar with them but states that as yet he has reached no conclusions. He expects that he will have arrived at his determinations of the several cases next week, when they will be announced. The commissioner explains that he desires to consider each case on its merits, which will require several days.

Relative to the alleged and pretended interview in the morning paper that he had been misquoted when The Herald said he was gratified by the report of the grand jury, Commissioner Hicken said this morning that he was reading The Herald's statement from him when the News Tribune's representative was in his office. "I remarked that The Herald had my position stated correctly and that if I had not stated in so many words that I was gratified, The Herald reporter must have read my mind."

Injustice to Toewe.

Through a misunderstanding of Commissioner Hicken and Chief Troyer, an injustice was done Detective Herman W. Toewe in the report of the recommendations made by the grand jury to the commissioner.

Thursday morning the commissioner was called before the grand jury and recommendations made to him in the cases of six officers, among them Detective Toewe. Detective Toewe, according to the commissioner's recollection of the case, was accused of having borrowed money from Madame Gain about six years ago. The amount was supposed to have been $150, and the detective was said to have given security and paid the money back.

The facts in the case as brought out before the grand jury were that Detective Toewe borrowed $100 from Gust Egdahl, the proprietor of the Fifth avenue hotel, and paid it back at the rate of $25 a month. The loan was made and repaid more than five years ago. There was no claim that the detective borrowed any money from Madame Gain at any time. Detective Toewe indignantly denied this morning, that he had ever borrowed money frim any resort keeper, or received any favors from them. "Neither did Mr. Egdahl ever receive any favors from me for making the loan," said the detective. "I needed it to tide me over for a few weeks, and he loaned it to me, and I repaid him every cent of it. He will verify this. I think Mr. Lovett, Mr. Greene, Mr. Hicken and the chief will all bear me out when I say that there was never any evidence or even a suggestion that I borrowed money from a resort keeper."

THREE COMPANIES SUED FOR DAMAGES

Heaviest Sum Asked of Mahoning Ore & Steel Company By Zekon Pulvalich, Hurt in Explosion—Two Railroaders Sue.

For injuries which destroyed the sight of one eye, paralyzed one side of his face and left him with a permanently disfigured face, Zekon Pulvalich, 40 years old, wants $25,750 damages from his former employers, the Mahoning Ore & Steel company. The mining company and Charles Peterson, a fellow workman, are made defendants in a personal injury action brought by Pulvalich in district court this morning.

Pulvalich was employed as a dump man at the Mahoning mine and received his injuries while at work on Aug. 29, 1913. John H. Norton is his attorney.

John Blomquist is suing the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company and Whitney Bros., contractors, for $2,750 for injuries claimed to have been sustained through the negligence of the defendants on June 18 last at Two Harbors. Blomquist was employed by Whitney Bros., and was engaged in the work of repairing a turn-table in the company's yards. During the course of his work his right ankle was broken and he was otherwise bruised.

* * *

Mike Biga, 35, claims that in order to save himself from being struck and perhaps killed by an approaching train he was obliged to jump from his position on the tracks, where he was engaged as a member of an extra gang in the local Northern Pacific railroad yards. Biga had a heavy railroad tie in his hands when he made the leap and was badly ruptured and bruised, he claims. The accident took place on May 7, 1913. He is suing the Northern Pacific Railway company for $2,400 damages.

SURE, WE'RE ALL GETTING IT

New York Newspaper Men Refuse to Accept $5,000 a Year Job.

New York letter in Cincinnati Times-Star: Journalism is looking up. More than that even! Our noble profession—to be figurative about it—is gazing fate in the eye and snapping its fingers. The business of writing the literature of the hour is taking its proper relative importance in the field of human endeavor. What's this all about? Well, just listen:

"Bob" Adamson, stepping up from mayor's secretary to head of the fire department, discovered that he had a lot of jobs to fill by appointment, the first being a chief deputyship, with a salary of $5,000 a year, a swell office and a red motor car, having a loud bell and no speed limit. "This," said Mr. Adamson to himself, "is the kind of a job that wants the right kind of a fellow. Let me think!"

After thinking, he sent for Sloane Gordon. He showed him the swell office, pointed to the car standing outside, mentioned the salary, and asked Sloane when he'd like to start work.

"Say, Bob, old boy," said Mr. Gordon, "I certainly appreciate the compliment you pay me in offering this appointment. It's just bully. But I can't take it. I couldn't toss up my newspaper and magazine contracts. I love to work. This would be too easy for me. And, while $5,000 will buy lots of cigarettes and things, it wouldn't be as much as I'm making now. But I am grateful. Sure! Come down to the Plaza and I'll buy you a bottle to prove it."

Mr. Adamson took another long think. "Aha, the very man!" said he at last. Then he sent for Herbert Corey. The proposition being explained to him, Mr. Corey wiped away a tear.

"Bob," said he, "I'm really and honestly affected by your compliment. To think that you would pick me out to sit right next to you, except when scooting around in a red car, gets me right here under my second shirt stud. It makes me feel sort of soft and hazy, Bob; on the level it does. But I couldn't afford to take the job. You see I'm making a little more than $5,000 now out of my newspaper and magazine contracts, and ——"

"I think that will be about enough," said Mr. Adamson. "Where do you want to buy me a bottle?"

"At Sherry's," said Mr. Corey.

"There's no use talking," ruminated Mr. Adamson later. "Times have changed since I was in the business. A $5,000 job with a motor car thrown in declined by two newspaper men! I'll have to look around in some of the less gainful professions. I suppose I'll have to go down to Wall street and get a banker or a railroad president."

FEW NEWSPAPERS KNOWINGLY JUGGLE WITH THE TRUTH

Truth and Morality Never Afraid of Publicity, Said Joseph Pulitzer, Late Editor of New York World.

Alleyne Ireland in the Metropolitan Magazine: "You do not know," said Mr. Pulitzer, "what it costs me to try and keep the World up to a high standard of accuracy—the money, the time, the thought, the praise, the blame, the constant watchfulness. I do not say that the World never makes a mistake in its news columns. I wish I could say it.

"What I say is that there are not half a dozen papers in the United States which tamper with the news, which publish what they know to be false. But if I thought that I had done no better than that I would be ashamed to own a paper. It is not enough to refrain from publishing fake news, it is not enough to take ordinary care to avoid the mistakes which arise from the ignorance, the carelessness, the stupidity of one or more of the many men who handle the news before it gets into print. You have got to do much more than that. You have got to make everyone connected with the paper—your editors, your reporters, your correspondents, your re-write men, your proofreaders —believe that accuracy is to be a newspaper what virtue is to a woman.

American Papers the Best.

"I do not say that the World is the only paper which takes extraordinary pains to be accurate; on the contrary, I think that almost every paper in America tries to be accurate. I will go further than that. There is not a paper of any importance published in French, German or English, whether it is printed in Europe or in America, which I have not studied for weeks or months, and some of them I have read steadily for a quarter of a century; and I tell you this, Mr. Ireland, after years of experience, after having comparisons made by the hundred, from time to time, of different versions of the same event, that the press of America as a whole has a higher standard of accuracy than the European press as a whole. I will go further than that. I will say that, line for line, the American newspapers actually attain a higher standard of news accuracy than the European newspapers; and I will go further than that and say that although there are in Europe a few newspapers, and they are chiefly English, which are as accurate as the best newspapers in America, there are no newspapers in America which are so habitually, so criminally stuffed with fake news as the worst of the European papers.

A Newspaper Creed.

"As a matter of fact, the criticisms you hear about the American press are founded on a dislike for our headlines and for the prominence we give to crime, to corruption in office and to sensational topics generally. The charge of inaccuracy is just thrown in to make it look worse. I do not believe that one person in a thousand who attacks the American press for being inaccurate has ever taken the trouble to investigate the facts.

"Now, about this matter of sensationalism; a newspaper should be scrupulously accurate; it should be clean; it should avoid everything salacious or suggestive, everything that could offend good taste or lower the moral tone of its readers; but within these limits it is the duty of a newspaper to print the news. When I speak of good taste and of good moral tone I do not mean the kind of good taste which is offended by every reference to the unpleasant things of life; I do not mean the kind of morality which refuses to recognize the existence of immorality—that type of moral hypocrite has done more to check the moral progress of humanity than all the immoral people put together. What I mean is the kind of good taste which demands that frankness should be linked with decency: the kind of moral tone which is braced and not relaxed when it is brought face to face with vice.

Vice Thrives in Secrecy.

"Some people try and make you believe that a newspaper should not devote its space to long and dramatic accounts of murders, railroad wrecks, fires, lynchings, political corruption, embezzlements, frauds, graft, divorces. Think what you will, I tell you they are wrong, and I believe that if they thought the thing out they would see that they are wrong.

"We are a democracy, and there is only one way to get a democracy on its feet in the matter of its individual, its social, its municipal, its state, its national conduct, and that is by keeping the public informed about what is going on. There is not a crime, there is not a dodge, there is not a trick, there is not a swindle, there is not a vice which does not live by secrecy. Get these things out in the open, describe them, attack them, ridicule them in the press and sooner or later public opinion will sweep them away."

REALISM IN MOTION-PICTURE DRAMA

By Frank Parker Stockbridge in the Popular Mechanic Magazine.

Hanging by one hand from the basket of a balloon several hundred feet above the earth, jumping from a moving aeroplane 3,000 feet in the air with nothing between the actor and a frightful death but a slender rope, leaping overboard from a sinking ship—these are a few of the thrilling "stunts" which motion-picture actors have lately been doing, and which more are being trained to do.

An English "movie" company seeking for new thrills, hit upon the idea of building film dramas about the balloon and the aeroplane. Nothing short of genuine balloons, real aeroplanes, and actual adventures in mid-air would answer their purpose. The balloons and aeroplanes were easy enough to get—the hard part was training the actors and actresses for their parts. It is the one thing to go up in a balloon, and something quite different again to leap from a balloon. And then to take a motion picture of this performance complicates the problem immensely. But all of these difficulties were overcome successfully and the balloon and the aeroplane are now numbered among the "properties" of the film drama.

Trained For Mid-Air Dramas.

The training of actors and actresses for the production of film dramas in mid-air is carried on at Hendon, Eng., where a number of captive balloons are employed for the preliminary instruction. The first training consists in climbing a rope suspended from a height, perhaps from the gable of a house. When the performer has become proficient in this, he or she is then trained to climb the guide rope of a balloon that has just been started up. At a height of 200 feet in the air they begin to climb and then practice hanging on to the basket in various attitudes. After a month of this training, those who are thoroughly qualified for the work are so proficient that they can climb a rope or hang from a balloon at any height with perfect confidence. So far no serious accident has occurred to any of them.

In the production of the film drama "Through the Clouds," the 17-year-old actress who played the principal role, nearly lot her hold on the rope when the balloon was 3,000 feet above the earth, and was only saved by the quickness of wit and presence of mind of one of the actors who was not supposed to be visible in that particular scene. As a result, the drama had to be rewritten to fit the scene as it was actually photographed.

Story of the Play.

The theme of the play is the attempt of a courageous young girl to rescue her father from a band of criminals, who have captured him and are endeavoring to force him by torture to reveal the hiding place of his wealth. Hotly pressed by their pursuers the criminals drag their victim into the basket of a captive balloon which happens to be anchored conveniently near their line of flight, cut the anchor rope and fly away with him. But his brave daughter is not to be foiled so easily. Her plight and her youthful beauty appeal to a daring young airman, who volunteers to take her in his aeroplane in pursuit of the fleeing balloon.

In the staging of this play two balloons were used, lashed together, and in the basket of one the motion-picture camera man placed his machine. The cloth of his camera lens thus took in the lower part and the basket of the other balllooon, and the aeroplane as it came close below. As originally planned, the girl was first to shoot the villain as he peeked over the edge of the basket to watch the approaching aeroplane, and then climb the rope into the car of the balloon, where she would release her father from the Londs with which he was tied.

The whole action had to be carried on actually in mid-air. The balloons had to be high enough above the ground so that no buildings or trees would appear in the picture in such a way as to lessen the thrill, while, of course, an aeroplane is much safer at a considerable height than it is close to the earth. The first part of the action went off according to program. After three hours of maneuvering, the airman, one of the most skillful professional fliers in England, brought his machine to a point where the guide rope of the balloon trailed across the aeroplane.

Her Hands Slipped.

The young actress seized the rope and in another second was hanging by her bare hands fifty feet below the basket and half a mile above the earth. Hand over hand she climbed up the rope, a feat which she had successfully performed many times at lower altitudes, in rehearsals. The nervous strain of her first trip in an aeroplane, and the knowledge that a fall meant certain death, however, nearly cost her her life. Her hands were slipping on the rope when the quick wit of the actor who played the part of her father came to her rescue. Leaning over the edge of the basket he threw a noose of rope down around her body, hauled it tight, and in this way lifted her, her hands torn and bleeding and her strength almost gone, into the car. Then the drama had to be reconstructed to make it clear that after the villain had been shot the father had succeeded in untying the rope that bound him just in time to save his daughter from a horrible fall.

More than a month of preliminary recharsals, including balloon ascensions as high as two miles and lasting ten hours, were required before the performance of "Through the Clouds" was finally photographed for the movies. Even more expensive rehearsals, however, and almost equally dangerous feats on the part of the performers were required in the production of the dramatization of Gerhardt Hauptmann's novel "Atlantis."

Collision At Sea.

The big scene in this is the sinking of a ship at sea after a collision with another vessel. The Danish company which reproduced this drama chartered a trans-Atlantc liner, the C. F. Tietgen, of 8,137 tons. Five hundred actors and actresses were placed on board to represent the passengers, while the actual officers and crew of the Tietgen acted in their regular capacities. The scenes of panic, lowering of lifeboats, frightened passengers leaping overboard—everything but the actual sinking of the ship—were enacted and photographed on board the Tietgen in the Kattegat, an arm of the North sea. Then the ship went back to its dock, and another ship, which was externally an exact duplicate of the Tietgen, but constructed of wood especially for the purpose, was towed out, and from another vessel, photographs were made showing the lifeboats taking to the water, passengers leaping into the sea, and all of the scenes and horrors which surround a genuine shipwreck, up to and including the actual sinking of the ship. It was realized by the producers of this film that photographs taken on the deck of the ship, while possibly thrilling, would not be entirely convincing unless an actual sinking ship were shown, and so many thousands of dollars were spent in building the dummy vessel solely for the purpose of sinking it after a few minutes of use before the camera.

Realities Demanded.

No better examples of the actual reality of the events portrayed on the screen in a modern picture show could be given than these. Time was when the "movies" attempted nothing more than to show stage effects produced by the familiar mechanics of the ordinary drama. But the motion-picture audiences of today are quick to detect the difference between a genuine scene and one that has been faked. They demand realities for their nickels and dimes. Recognizing this demand, the producers of motion-picture films are leaving mere illusions to the old-fashioned "legitimate" drama, and are spending thousands and tens of thousands of dollars to give their patrons the real thing. If the action of the motion-picture drama deals with a shipwreck, a ship is wrecked for the purpose. If it demands that the heroine shall be rescued from a burning hotel, a hotel is burned in order that there can be no suspicion of fraud or deception when the films are thrown upon the screen. When the scene is laid in an old Spanish mission, for instance, the film producer is no longer content to have his stage carpenter build an imitation mission building, but moves his entire company and his camera men to Southern California, and buys or leases a genuine old Spanish mission for dramatic purposes. Historic events are staged on the very spots where they occurred, with costumes and equipment reproduced with exact fidelity from those actually employed at the time. No historical structure is safe from the assaults of the moving-picture man. Recently an English company reproduced a film drama of the Middle Ages, the scenes of which were laid in and about the historic Tower of London, and the British government authorities were prevailed upon to permit the use of the actual tower for the occasion. When Sir Walter Scott's great romantic novel "Ivanhoe" was dramatized for the movies, one of the greatest peers of England lent his ancient castle for the staging of the famous siege scene, in which Front de Boeuf and Brian de Bois-Guilbert led their armored Norman host, with battle-ax and cross-bow, to the assault of the stronghold, which Ivanhoe and his archers were defending.

Must Be Genuine Explosions.

Not only in dramatic "thrillers" but in the representation of actual events realism is the rule in the motion-picture world. Explosions and railroad wrecks staged for the "movie" today must be genuine explosions and actual wrecks. No one has yet found a way to reproduce for the movies the scenes of such catastrophes as the Omaha tornado or the Dayton flood by any sort of stage effect, but beyond a doubt the realism of the movies will eventually include such scenes as these. Today tropical scenes are actually staged in the tropics, while the motion pictures taken by members of Capt. Scott's Antartic expedition are giving the people of the whole world new and exact information about the strange and interesting scenes of the life of the polar regions. Recently one of the pioneer film concerns sent a man to South Africa with instructions to travel the entire length of the Dark Continent, from the Cape to Cairo, and make motion picture films of every phase of African life and scenery, including the native tribes and the beasts of the jungle, while other operators are penetrating into almost every other strange or unexplored corner of the globe risking their lives in the effort to bring the whole world to the patrons of the movies.

GOVERNMENT BREAD RECIPE.

Washington Star: The American housewife wastes much energy in making bread, according to Miss Hannah Wessling, expert breadmaker for the department of agriculture.

Bread doesn't need much kneading, she declares. "Let the yeast do your work," is the motto of this busy little woman, who knows how to make all kinds of bread from German pumpernickel to Hawaiian banana bread. Good American white bread is her specialty, and when it comes to the kind that mother used to make, the government's official breadmaker declares that the following instructions are the best:

Take twelve ounces of flour for a one-pound loaf. Use one-fourth ounce of sugar, one-fourth ounce of salt and ten ounces of tepid water.

Mix the yeast, salt and flour and then let them ferment for an hour instead of using them immediately. Warm the flour and mix. Allow the mass to stand one hour. Don't handle it. It doesn't need much kneading. Mix it up and allow it to stand another forty-five minutes, when it is ready for the pans.

The entire process should be conducted in a room where the temperature is 80 or 86 degrees. Any warmer means sour bread, and any cooler soggy bread.

TOLD THEM HOW.

Kansas City Star: A jolly group of traveling men had just got comfortably settled in the hotel lobby when another knight of the grip arrived.

"Mighty glad to see you fellows," he exclaimed enthusiastically, shaking hands all around.

"Sorry we can't say as much for you," was handed him by one of the group.

"Oh, you could, all right, if you'd lie like I do," replied the newcomer.
